LIFE AMBITION OF IOWA MAN REACHED AFTER LONG HARD FIGHT—GARST NAMED AS NEXT GOVERNOR—BIG RECEPTION HELD FOR THE TWO MEN WHO WERE APPOINTED—GARST IS NOW ACTING GOVERNOR OF IOWA

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 25—The Hon. A. B. Cummins was chosen United States senator today to fill out the unexpired term caused by the death of the late Senator Allison which would have expired March 4, 1909, and Warren Garst was selected as governor to fill out the unexpired term of Cummins, who would have completed seven years as Iowa's chief executive, on January 15, 1909.

Following the election of Cummins, to the senate by a vote of 109 to 35 at 12:20 Lieutenant Governor Garst at 3 o'clock was duly inaugurated and assumed the reins of the office immediately. A reception at which thousands attended was held in the capitol building at 8 o'clock. Governor Garst and Senator Cummins stood in line for more than two hours receiving the congratulations of Iowans. Chief Justice Ladd administered the oath of office to Governor Garst. Senator Cummins will go to Washington early next month to be officially sworn in.

MO. VOTES ALL TAFT

Gov. Folk Decides Disputed Question About Electors.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 24.—Gov. Joseph W. Folk Monday afternoon decided that, under the Missouri statute, all the electoral votes of the state should go to William H. Taft.

This decision was made in spite of the fact that Brannock, the Bryan elector for the Sixteenth congressional district, received more votes than Kiel, the second Republican elector-at-large, who received the lowest vote on the Republican electoral ticket. Brannock, however, received fewer votes than the Republican elector for the Sixteenth district. The Missouri statute requires that an elector shall reside in the district for which he is elected.

Taking the vote of the first elector as a basis, the plurality of Taft in Missouri is 1,026. Both the Democratic and Republican electors in the Sixteenth district ran ahead of their respective electoral tickets. This is explained by the theory that some of the voters in the Sixteenth district voted only for the district elector.

Capt. Patrick Henry Is Dead.

Clarksville, Tenn., Nov. 24.—Capt. Patrick Henry, who spent much time in Washington for 20 years as the official representative of the levee board of the Mississippi river, died at his home here early Monday. He was a collateral relative of Patrick Henry of the revolutionary period, was 62 years old and was a graduate of the Virginia Military institute. He had a wide acquaintance among public men in all parts of the country.

Accused Banker Out on Bail.

New Orleans, Nov. 24.—William Adler, president of the defunct State National bank, pleaded not guilty to the charge of misappropriating the funds of that institution before Judge Saunders in the federal court Monday. Mr. Adler was released under the original bond of $10,000.

Strike Breakers at Pensacola.

Pensacola, Fla., Nov. 24.—Strike breakers to work on the wharves of the Louisville & Nashville railroad arrived here Monday on special trains from points in Kentucky and Alabama. Nearly 300 negro laborers accompanied by half a hundred detectives were brought in during the day and sent to the three export wharves to load and unload steamships which had been idle for three days on account of the walkout of all the longshoremen in the employ of the company.

TRUST NOT J. D.'S IDEA

ROCKEFELLER GIVES CREDIT TO FLAGLER AND TODD.

Asserts They Were Master Architects of the Combine—Cross-Examination Is Severe.

New York, Nov. 24.—Credit for the creation of the Standard Oil trust, which counsel for the federal government claim still exists as the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was given by John D. Rockefeller, as a witness Monday under cross-examination in the federal suit to dissolve the Standard, to two men—Henry M. Flagler and Samuel C. T. Todd.

To these two master architects of the oil combine Mr. Rockefeller gave full credit, saying that he was sure it was not himself as he did not possess the ability for so progressive a move.

Mr. Rockefeller spent an arduous day on the stand under the incessant questioning of Frank B. Kellogg, the government counsel, and when adjournment was taken he gave every evidence of delight that the day was done.

Frank B. Kellogg, who with other government investigators has been endeavoring for over a year to locate the missing stock transfer books of the Standard Oil trust, sought Monday through Mr. Rockefeller to find the missing trail of these books and Mr. Rockefeller promised to do what he could to find them. Mr. Rockefeller's examination carried him through the period of the Standard Oil trust and the years of its subsequent liquidation which lasted from 1892 to 1899.

Mr. Rockefeller's memory at times was not clear on the definite details of this trust liquidation period and he told counsel that he could not recall many of the incidents and developments of that time. During the day Mr. Kellogg developed from Mr. Rockefeller that early in the industrial existence of the Standard the presidents of two railroad companies, together with several railroad directors, were stockholders in the oil combination.

After adjournment Mr. Rockefeller told an inquiring audience of reporters that there were better things in the world than making money and since 1891 he had been gradually retiring from business. He added: "There is more important work than making money and there is much for me to do. I belong to the Brotherhood of Man."

AT MERCY OF GERMANS

LORD ROBERTS STIRS PEERS BY ALARMIST SPEECH.

HE WANTS GREATER ARMY

Declares Kaiser Could Easily Land Forces in England and Compel Submission to Humiliating Demands.

London, Nov. 24.—Speaking in the house of lords Monday night, Field Marshal Lord Roberts expressed the conviction that the lack of a military force to make hopeless the attempt of an invasion would, in all probability, be the cause of the loss of Great Britain's supremacy at sea.

In a studied speech he pointed out the comparative ease with which Germany could land an army on the shores of England. Under the present conditions England would be forced, he said, to submit to most humiliating demands.

He disclaimed all hostility to or fear of Germany; but he declared that the defense of the islands required immediate attention. There should be an army so strong in numbers and efficient in quality that the most formidable of foreign nations would hesitate to make a landing in England.

No Trouble for Germany.

He had ascertained, the speaker continued, that vessels capable of accommodating 200,000 men always were available in the northern ports of Germany, and that as a result of the new German service law 200,000 men could be collected in the districts of the nearest port without any trouble. The great German steamship lines were in constant practice in embarking and disembarking, and as the railroads were owned by the state, all preliminaries, up to the actual dispatch of troops, could be carried out with the utmost secrecy.

Germany was perfectly aware, the field marshal went on, that it would be essential for her transports to evade the British fleet, and she could easily distract attention by small raids while the main disembarkation was proceeding undisturbed.

Danger Increases Daily.

"It would be folly," declared Lord Roberts, "to shut our eyes to these possibilities, however much peace is desired. The startling events in the near east have brought home to the most careless observer that nothing could save that country which is not prepared to protect itself. If Great Britain continues to neglect the most ordinary precautions she may some day find herself in the hands of the invader and forced to submit to the most humiliating conditions. This danger is daily becoming more threatening. Within a decade Germany has created the greatest sea power that ever existed, except Great Britain, and at the present moment formidable measures are being taken to increase that power. It is calculated that there are 80,000 Germans in employment in Great Britain. They are trained soldiers and if a German force once landed on these shores they would be ready to help."

Speech Causes Sensation.

Lord Roberts' speech caused a sensation in the house. The earl of Crewe remarked on the seriousness of such statements in the present high-strung condition of Europe's nerves, saying he feared there might be regrettable consequences.

Lord Roberts' resolution to the effect that the defense of the islands necessitates the immediate attention of the government to make provision for such a strong and efficient army "that the most formidable foreign nation will hesitate before making an attempt at landing" was adopted by a vote of 74 to 32.

A FIGHT FOR MEXICO'S OIL

INDIANAPOLIS COMPANY HAS ACQUIRED CONCESSIONS.

IS HEADED BY W. K. BELLIS

Standard, Pearsons and Others Are Contestants — Barnsdall Getting Control of the Western Gas Territory.

City of Mexico, Nov. 24.—It is declared that during the coming year a fight on a large scale will be waged in the republic of Mexico for control of the local oil market and of the rich and vast fields which experts declare will be opened up. The chief contestants in this struggle will be the Standard Oil Company and S. Pearsons & Sons, Limited, an English corporation.

New companies, however, are constantly acquiring immense tracts, although most of this is being done quietly. The latest to enter the Mexican field is an Indianapolis corporation capitalized at 40,000,000 pesos.

Big Concession Obtained.

It was made public Monday that this company had acquired concessions from the federal government and from the state of Chihuahua to explore 10,000,000 acres of land in the eastern part of that state. The president of the new corporation is W. K. Bellis of Indianapolis. Meanwhile it is stated that a syndicate headed by W. R. Hearst and James R. Keene have acquired rights over 220,000 acres in eastern Chihuahua.

The Standard Oil Company is reported to have recently purchased large tracts of oil land in the state of Tamaulipas.

Barnsdall Gets Western Gas.

New York, Nov. 24.—Reports from Pittsburg say that Theodore N. Barnsdall and associates have practically obtained control of all gas territory west of the Mississippi river, having recently acquired, it is rumored, control of the gas fields of the states of Oklahoma and Kansas.

It is said that Mr. Barnsdall is planning to lay a 24-inch main from Oklahoma to St. Louis, a distance of 400 miles, which will cost about $7,500,000. Added to this another $7,500,000 will be expended before the natural gas will be piped into the homes of St. Louis, as it is explained that the city, being tubed for artificial gas, must be retubed for natural gas.

The belief is entertained in some quarters that Mr. Barnsdall is acting for the Standard Oil Company in the deal. It is recalled that the fact was brought out about a year ago in testimony in the Standard Oil suit that the latter company had made a loan of $7,500,000 to Barnsdall.

Pursuing Murderous Half-Breed.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 24.—Warrants were issued Monday by the United States and Canadian authorities for Joseph Gooselake, a half-breed who murderously assaulted Joseph Copeland, an Emerson (Man.) farmer, Saturday night. Gooselake is making for the bush of the Two Rivers country in North Dakota and is armed with revolvers and guns. He is being pursued by deputies.

TARIFF PROBERS INVITE CARNEGIE

COMMITTEE WISHES TO HEAR HIM ON IRON AND STEEL—IS RESULT O FHIS ARTICLE—IMPORT TAX ON TILES, LIME, CEMENT AND KINDRED MANUFACTURES IS CONSIDERED AT A LONG SESSION

Washington, Nov. 24.—As a result of the declaration of Andrew Carnegie in an article in the forthcoming number of the Century Magazine that the tariff schedules on iron and steel should be reduced, the ways and means committee of the house Monday night formally invited Mr. Carnegie to appear before it this week to tell what he knows about the steel industry and the possibility of the reduction of the tariff on iron and steel products.

The committee desires him to appear, temporarily, Wednesday, when the iron and steel schedule will be taken up in the hearing now being held by the committee looking toward a revision of the tariff. The hearings on the iron and steel rates will continue until Friday and if Mr. Carnegie finds is impossible to appear Wednesday the committee is anxious to hear him on Thursday or Friday.

Invitation to Ironmaster.

The telegram was as follows:

"Washington, Nov. 23, 1908.—Mr. Andrew Carnegie, New York City: This committee will have a hearing on the iron and steel schedule Wednesday, the twenty-fifth instant, and continuing Friday, the twenty-seventh. We would be very glad to have you appear before the committee on one of these days for instance, (temporarily on Wednesday), and give the committee such information as you are able upon the subject. The daily sessions commence at 9:30 a. m. Sereno E. Payne, chairman."

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

The members of the committee were a unit in refusing to discuss Mr. Carnegie's article, although all of them admitted having read it as published.

Tiles and Lime Considered.

Sitting in a long night session to consider the tariff schedules on tiles, lime, cement, carbons and kindred articles, the committee put in at work Monday.

In the course of the night session, H. L. Sheppard and Orin F. Perry of the Rockland-Rockport (Me.) Lime Company, were put through a grilling examination when they asked that the present duty of five cents a hundred pounds on lime be maintained.

Mr. Perry asserted that his company was organized in 1900, when seven or eight firms were purchased. He admitted the price of lime had advanced ever since.

Chairman Payne asked why his firm was the only one that demands a duty.

"Because we are so near to the Canadian manufacturers and because ours is the best made in the United States," he repeated.

"Why, we have the best in the world right in New York," declared Mr. Payne, with a show of state pride.

"Yes, we sell most of our product in New York," retorted Mr. Perry.

Using figures furnished him, Representative Clark figured out that the company is making 24 per cent. profit.

Official Vote of Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 24.—The state canvassing board Monday finished its canvass of the election returns. The total vote cast in Kansas for president was 375,895, as follows: Taft, 197,166; Bryan, 161,209; Debs (Soc.), 12,420; Chafin (Pro.), 5,032; scattering, 68. Taft's plurality, 35,957. W. R. Stubbs (Rep.), vote for governor was 196,692; Botkin (Dem.), 162,385; Stubbs' plurality, 34,307. The two amendments submitted, one providing for increased pay for legislators and the other relating to pay of probate judges, were both overwhelmingly defeated.

CUTS HER HEAD OFF

SHOCKING MURDER COMMITTED BY MAN AT CARONA, KAN.

With One Slash of Razor He Decapitates Neighbor Who Quarreled with His Wife.

Pittsburg, Kan., Nov. 24.—Following a neighborhood quarrel at Carona, 20 miles south of here, Hezekiah Stradler, a carpenter aged 20 years, slashed Mrs. Butts, his next-door neighbor, with a razor, cutting her head entirely off.

The murdered woman was housekeeper for Stradler's cousin, who lived next door. Trouble started between Stradler's wife and Mrs. Butts, following an old neighborhood feud. The men, it seems, had not been paying much attention to the trouble between the two women. When the trouble broke out again and angry words were hurled across the backyard fence, Mrs. Butts picked up a brick and hurled it at Mrs. Stradler, cutting a gash in her mouth.

Mr. Stradler then, getting his razor, attacked Mrs. Butts. He made one slash with the razor and the head of Mrs. Butts was cut off clean at the shoulders, the head rolling into the yard, while the body of the murdered woman fell bleeding at his feet. Stradler was arrested.

PYTHIANS CELEBRATE

Fortieth Anniversary of First Western Lodge Is Observed.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 24.—Six thousand members of the Knights of Pythias Monday began a celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the establishment of the first lodge west of the Allegheny mountains. That lodge, known as Nebraska No. 1, was founded in Omaha November 23, 1868, with nine members, George H. Crager instituting the lodge.

The meetings are being held at the Auditorium where the famed Iola team of Dayton, O., Monday afternoon gave a portrayal of "Damon and Pythias" in tableaux. Mayor Dahlman delivered the address of welcome which was responded to by John C. Cleland of Fremont, grand chancellor for Nebraska.

A feature of the evening program was the conferring of the third rank on a class of 1,080 members, the largest ever taken into that rank at one time. Eight states are participating in the celebration and many others have sent representatives.

Harlan Revisits His Alma Mater.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 24.—After an absence of many years, Justice John M. Harlan of the United States supreme court returned Monday to do honor to his alma mater, Transylvania university. His visit was made a gala event at the university, the leading citizens of the city attending to meet the distinguished jurist.

Emma Eames Not to Retire.

New York, Nov. 24.—Since Mme. Emma Eames, the operatic star, announced she would not return to New York in opera next winter, reports have been in circulation that she intended retiring from the stage. It is now announced that Mme. Eames has no intention of giving up her operatic career.

$100,000 TO BOOST STATE

NEW STATE LEGISLATURE WILL BE ASKED TO APPROPRIATE

CLYDE J. PRYOR OF BEMIDJI INTERVIEWED IN ST. PAUL BY PIONEER PRESS

NOT ONLY SETTLERS ARE DESIRED BUT TOURISTS AS WELL

The following is taken from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

Clyde J. Pryor of Bemidji is preparing a canvass of the state legislators on the question of giving to the state board of immigration $100,000 the coming year for the purpose of advertising and furthering the interests of the state of Minnesota.

Mr. Pryor is the member of the executive committee of the State Federation of Commercial Clubs from the Ninth congressional district. He was in St. Paul yesterday and approached many state politicians with his cause.

"The state board of immigration last year only received $12,000 to extend its campaign after paying its own operating expenses. From this it got 60,000 letters in reply. The pathway of immigration into Minnesota as into the whole Northwest should be made smooth and the volume of these letters would increase and settlers and tourists would come into Minnesota in marvelously increasing numbers.

Seek Tourist Business

"Settlers, of course, are not our only object. We realize the great advantage of a high class of tourists. They spend much money here and would carry information of this territory to people of the East and other countries from which undoubted return would be continually reaped.

"We will present by mail to each and every legislator of the state a series of questions with respect to the plans of the State Federation of Commercial Clubs in connection with the hundred thousand dollar appropriation to the state board of immigration. These answers will be collated and upon them we will base a large part of our campaign."

Each member of the executive committee will submit his idea of what questions should be asked the state legislators to Secretary Curtis L. Mosher of the bureau of publicity of the State Federation of Commercial Clubs and from these various ideas will be drawn the circular for submission to the legislators, many of whom already have signified their approval of the federation's plans.

TWO INDIANS AS GUESTS

SHERIFF GONYEA HAS TWO ABORIGINES AT THE POLK CO., JAIL

BROUGHT HERE BY GAME WARDEN MUNCH FOR KILLING DEER

From Friday's Daily—

Sheriff Gonyea has two Indians as guests Fred Aganash and Joe Wadena They were brought here this morning from Mahnomen Co., for violating the game laws by killing big game out of season, by Game Warden Munch and Deputy Sheriff Kejune of Mahnomen Co., there being no county jail at that place, and will serve a term of 30 and 60 days each respectively.

Fred Aganash was arrested Oct. 7 for trapping out of season, pled guilty and after a stay of 60 days was sentenced by Judge A. G. Shulind of Mahnomen to 30 days in jail or a fine of $28.20.

Wadena was arrested Sept. 25 for killing a cow and a bull moose was re arrested Oct 7th plead guilty and after a stay of 60 days was sentenced to 60 days in jail or a fine of $119.80.

Tuesday last Warden Munch arrested Na-ta-wash at Mahnomen for selling wild ducks. He paid a fine before Judge Shulind of $14.60.

Warden Munch returned this morning but at once left for Brooks where he has another hen on.

A SUICIDE NEAR BAGLEY

CHRIST TRULSON HANGS SELF IN AN APPLEBY SHANTY

HAD BEEN DRINKING HEAVY AND BECAME MENTALLY DERANGED

From Friday's Daily—

Thursday at noon Sheriff and Coroner Wagner of Clearwater Co., were called out to the Appleby shanty south of Bagley where Christ Truelson had been found dead yesterday morning, by his brother Truls. Truls had missed his brother and was around looking for him when he entered the Appleby shanty on the eighty that his brother Christ had bought last spring where he saw him sitting on the bed, apparently drunk or asleep. He spoke to him but received no reply. Upon investigation he found a small string around the man's neck and fastened to a nail in the celing. He was dead. Beside him on the bed lay an almost empty bottle. This was the only clew to a possible cause. Mr. Trulson immediately went home got his horse and went after sheriff and coroner.

Mr. Holst upon returning stated that there were no signs of foul play. It was clearly a suicide.

The event was not surprising to several people as they remembered that Christ had been into the hardware store at Bagley Monday trying to buy a revolver. He also told another man who slept with him at the hotel that the devil had been after him a whole week now.

He was drinking quite freely while at Bagley.

Dr. Olson of Erskine was in the city from Erskine yesterday on professional business.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY

A man and his political prophecies are soon busted.

A girl makes love to a man by making him do it to her.

The thing that makes a woman happy is to imagine she is.

Women put on their stockings first so that if anybody should come in they will feel dressed.

No matter from what point of view you take a fat woman in, all of her seems to be on that side.

Little girls and engaged girls do not care about boys at parties.

There are as many stories told on a jealous woman as there are on one who flirts.

The man who amounts to nothing usually resents it when another man does.

When a man finds a nice, old-fashioned well he also finds that not long ago a cat fell in it.

A man and woman can argue pleasantly until they marry each other, and then they can't.

When a husband is mean patience in his wife is never regarded by any of the neighbors as a virtue.

The expression "They say" has ruined many a man.

You laugh at some people; others laugh at you.

Did you ever notice how hard it is for people to get along with each other?

If you should die and find yourself a ghost is there any one you would haunt?

There is always something happening to keep you excited.

The long run seems to demonstrate that the man who was a little selfish displayed more sense than those more generous.

The girl who comes out plain every once in a while with the words: "I cannot afford it; we are too poor," is not a general favorite in society, but when she marries, she is a great favorite with her husband.

Every little while we meet a young man who has deliberately set out to be president, after models found in the school books. Such a man is always disagreeable. A young man who attempts to act like Abe Lincoln is little less than a nuisance.

There is only one thing people like that is good for them—a good night's sleep.

BEST TIME TO TAKE

DIRECTIONS TO PREPARE A SIMPLE MIXTURE—GIVES DOSE TO TAKE

TELLS YOU HOW TO OVERCOME RHEUMATISM WITH SIMPLE RECIPE

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable tho simple and harmless, prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

BUTLER BROS. UP AGAINST IT

Butler Bros., who built the state capitol and a portion of the state hospital in Fergus Falls had a rather interesting experience with the tariff not long ago. They were building a tunnel under the river at Detroit to connect the American and Canadian sides. In its construction they had to excavate a good deal on the Canadian side and fill on the American side so they loaded the clay, as it proved to be onto scows and took it across to the American side. A customs officer met them with the first load and assessed them a dollar a ton, that being the tariff on clay under the Dingley bill.

DISTRICT COURT HAS ADJOURNED

THE NOVEMBER TERM IN NORMAN COUNTY BROUGHT TO A CLOSE

AT ADA YESTERDAY JUDGE GRINDELAND OF WARREN PRESIDED

The Norman County district court adjourned at Ada yesterday after having disposed of several important cases.

The Schulz case which was on trial last week was decided against the defendamt.

In the suit for damages for injuries received from falling on a broken sidewalk wherein Agnes Lystrem sued the City of Ada for $2,000 the jury brought in a verdict of $280 for the plaintiff. It is probable that an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

In the action entitled C. R. Andrews & Co., vs. J. W. Snider et al, a suit to recover on a note, plaintiff was awarded a verdict for the face value of the note.

The suits brought by a number of land owners in Lockhart against A. Perusse, the ditch contractor, for damages sustained from overflow were continued until next term.

Criminal Cases

The case of the state of Minnesota against Gilbert Olson was dismissed.

After being out two days and nights the jury in the case of state against Ernest Pinske failed to agree and was dismissed by Judge Grindeland last night. Pinske was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of injuring the highway. The jury stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

THE GOVERNOR'S VICTORY

Milbank, S. D., Review: Under all of the circumstances his success is indeed a marvel. It can be accounted for by the fact that he has made a a safe, conservative and hard working public official, and to those who know or have seen him they understand the man. His triumph at this time without doubt makes him a national character and with one consent he now becomes the choice of the Democratic party as its candidate for the presidency four years hence. There were many within the party who while admiring Bryan for his great and good personal qualities, and who agreed with him in his political economic policies nevertheless honestly believed that Governor Johnson would have made a stronger presidential candidate at this time and would have been elected. However that may have been, there is little doubting that the Democratic party will now with one accord look forward to victory four years hence with John A. Johnson as their standard bearer.

Springfield, Mass., Republican (Ind) Governor John A. Johnson three times elected governor of the strong Republican state of Minnesota, and twice in presidential years, looms large in the eyes of Democratic newspapers. The Cleveland (Ohio) Plaindealer comments: "Governor Johnson may not be the Democratic nominee four years hence, but it is no rash assertion to state that if a Democratic national convention were to be held this week the Minnesota man would be speedily selected."

Cleveland, (Ohio) Plaindealer: Of course there may be nothing in it, but Governor John Johnson might just as well put on his rubbers when the walking is bad and carefully watch his digestion thus keeping himself in trim for the year 1912.

Madison Independent Press (Rep): Not having noticed any message under a Madison date congratulating Governor Johnson on the outcome of the late unpleasantness, we wish at this late date to congratulate him upon his splendid victory and at the same time assure him that we did the best we could to "bust" him up in business.

Morris Sun (Rep.): The Republican party of this state might try endorsing Johnson.

Trying Times

These are parlous times for autocrats and warlords. The czar of Russia has had to call a parliament, such as it is, the sultan of Turkey has had to do the same and yield still further the empress dowager of China has had to make her first and last surrender and the emperor of Germany finds he is not the whole thing in the German Government. Perhaps some day the speaker of the American house of representatives may get his comb cut.—St. Paul Dispatch.

There is entirely too much remedy in this country that is not applied.

TURKEY LOW IF MERCURY'S HIGH

THANKSGIVING BIRD AND THE WEATHER ARE ON TEETER-TOTTER

IF THE WEATHER CONTINUES WARM GOBBLER WILL BE REASONABLE

It's not going to be Willie's fault if he does not get all the turkey he wants this Thanksgiving. The twin city market is simply flooded with the Thanksgiving bird, and more are coming all the time—alive, dressed and every way they can be transported, coming by the carload.

Some one will probably say: "They are plentiful, but the price is prohibitive," that's the way it seems at present, when the price is soaring at eighteen cents for the dressed fowl. But listen! There's a conspiracy some where. The weather man promises warmer weather for the immediate future, and who will say that it will not be warm for a week? Here is the scheme: If it is warm until next Monday, the market is going to take a big slump, just as if the bottom dropped out. Then turkeys will be at 12½ cents a pound and no one is going to stop buying turkey with the price so low. Then, too, they say that some men desire a low market, and the poor turkeys are doomed to wabble around the streets begging to be eaten.

But if It's Cold, Then—

But if the cold snap should come the tables will be turned and the bird still roosts high on the 18-cent limb But as conditions are now, the market men can't keep the turkeys under any circumstances and must dispose of them as quickly as possible.

Everything points to a merry feast next Thursday for altho the supply of turkey is great so is the demand. There is going to be all the good things to go with the palatable bird that one wants. Cranberries are fine and the best ever. The market will supply all needs. Fruits and puddings and pies and the grape juice, and so on to the end of the bill, are within reach of all.

ELK LODGE AT DICKENSON

INSTALLATION OF NEW LODGE WILL BE MARKED BY ELABATE PROGRAM

Dickinson, N. D., is getting ready for the installation of the Elks lodge which takes place on December 11. The different committees of the Elks are all getting busy with their work and are doing their utmost to see that everything will work in perfect harmony. All of the visiting Elks and their wives and sweethearts will be properly taken care of and a good time is promised to each and everyone who attends. The installation of the new lodge will take place in the armory. The visiting wives and sister will be entertained in the opera house.

The decoration for this occasion will be something immense, something that has never before been seen in western North Dakota. The streets, the stores, the halls, and in fact all the residences will be decorated in the grandest style.

Several Crookston Elks are planning on attending.

BABY TORTURED FOR 6 MONTHS

By Terrible Itching Eczema—Face and Head a Solid Sore—Spread to His Hand and Legs—Would Scratch Until He Bled—Tiny Sufferer Immediately Relieved and

ENTIRELY CURED IN 2 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"When my son Walter was three weeks old, eczema appeared on his face. We did not know what it was so went to a doctor who treated him for three months. Then he was so bad that his face and head were nothing but one sore and his ears looked as if they were going to fall off, so we tried another doctor. He said he could cure him and we doctored there four months, the baby never getting any better. His hand and legs then had big sores on them and as for his sleeping, we could not think of it, the poor little fellow suffered so terribly. First I tied his hands to the crib to keep him from scratching, but when it got so bad I tied him in a shawl or he would scratch himself all bloody. When he was seven months old we tried a set of the Cuticura Remedies. The first application of Cuticura let him sleep and rest well, in one week the sores were gone but it stayed red and sometimes it would itch so we used Cuticura for two months, then he had a clear and white face. Now he is two years and seven months old and has never had eczema again. I hope this letter will help some who are suffering from skin disease. Every mother who has a baby suffering with skin disease should just try Cuticura; there is nothing better. Mrs. Louis Beck, R. F. D. 3, San Antonio, Tex., Apr. 15, '07."

A single set of Cuticura Remedies is often sufficient to cure torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly humors, eczemas, rashes, and irritations, from infancy to age, when all other remedies fail.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. LESS LOGGING TO BE DONE THIS YEAR

DEPUTY SURVEYOR OF MINNESOTA EXPRESSES THIS OPINION

The cut of logs in Minnesota will be 119,000,000 feet less than it was last winter. That is the opinion, expressed yesterday by Deputy Surveyor General Sinclair.

Like the opinion expressed by other logging authorities, including R. H. Chute representing the Weyerhauser interests in Minneapolis as well as the Mississippi and Rum River Boom company. The reason is two-fold—the large supply of logs on hand and the unusually light demand. The great part of the loss will come on the farmers, for whom last winter the surveyor general's department scaled between 75,000,000 and 100,000,000 feet but for whom this year Sinclair thinks not 10,000,000 feet will be scaled.

In addition, certain sections have been exhausted. In the Hibbing district, according to the surveyor general's office where 18,000,000 feet of logs were cut last winter, there is practically nothing left, altho this exhaustion of one source of supply would mean only an increased cut elsewhere if the demand were higher or even normal.

"In a general way," said Mr. Chute "I think the logging season will be unusually light except where contracts are already in force. Many logs have been carried over, and then the demand for lumber is not at all what it has been."

"The cut will be lighter than last year's," said Sinclair. "I should say by 25 per cent, anyway. There is practically no market now for logs."

11,000 MEETS FOR FARMERS

SUPT. T. A. HOVERSTAD TELLS ABOUT INSTITUTE WORK IN COUNTRY

THIRTY-EIGHT THOUSAND FARMERS ATTEND MEETINGS IN NORTH DAKOTA

From Friday's Daily—

Great preparation is being made for the institute work in North Dakota during the coming season. Discussing the subject generally, T. A. Hoverstad, superintendent of farm institutes, and for years superintendent of the Crokston State Experimental farm and well known here, said:

"It is comparatively few years since the first farmers' institute was held in America. Now there are annually held about 11,000 sessions with a total attendance of more than 1,500,000.

"In North Dakota the farmers' institute has been in existence for several years. As an institution it is now well established. Several institute annuals have been printed and distributed. Last year 89 institutes were held In 233 sessions there was a total attendance of 38,000 people. This large attendance can be attributed to several causes. Roads, as a rule, were excellent. Stormy days were very few. Bad roads and stormy weather always reduce the attendance at the meetings. The business men of the town took unusual interest in the institutes They helped in the advertising. Very often free dinners were served to the farmers who attended these meetings.

"The institute season will open about one month earlier than last year. We have now on file about 70 applications. In order to hold meetings in all sections of the state every year it will be necessary to make the institute season as long as possible Professor Thomas Shaw has already been engaged for this winter's circuit as a special lecturer. We consider ourselves very fortunate in securing his services as other states were anxious to have his name on their list of institute speakers.

"Institutes will be conducted on the same general plan as in previous years. New topics for discussion will be introduced. A new edition of the institute annual is in progress of preparation. Articles are being prepared especially for this edition. It is the intention to make this publication a handbook as well as a year book. This book will be ready for distribution by December 1st.

"The schedule for the winter circuit will soon be made out. All towns desiring an institute the coming winter should send in their applications as soon as possible. Commercial and farmers' clubs, private individuals or organizations may send in requests for meetings and the same will be considered by the local board. It is desirable to hold meetings in localities where none were held last year, so as to distribute the work over the state as much as possible."

Forestry schools are given a boost by E. G. Cheney, secretary of the Minnesota Forestry association, in an article which will appear in the next issue of the Minnesota Forester a magazine devoted to the interests of forestry. The article also contains a plea for extending the scope of the school of forestry at the University of Minnesota, thru an appropriation of $10,000 by the next legislature.

"Wherever forestry has attained any considerable degree of development you will find efficient forest schools, and it is the work of these schools that is really the foundation for the existence of intelligent forestry," says Professor Cheney.

"The state of Minnesota needs today to have its forest school in the University of Minnesota put onto the most efficient basis. The state has already in its possession over 40,000 acres in its forest reserves. There are this year seventy young men taking the forestry course in the university. In order to make these young men thoroly practical foresters they must have experience in forestry. The state reserves need the labor of these young men, and these young men need the experience that they will get in working on the reserves for the state.

"At the recent meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs, Professor Green of the university stated that he thought the state ought to appropriate at least $10,000 a year for student labor on its forest reserves; that this would furnish what seemed most necessary to make the forestry work of the university most helpfoul.

"This is a moderate request and it seems to me that something of this kind should receive the favorable attention of the legislature. The forests of the state have contributed enormously to its welfare and to the welfare of the great treeless section adjoining, and are capable of being perpetuated if they are looked after by practical trained men.

There is no more expensive luxury in the world than getting even.

BIG PROTEST BY THE JEWS

MANY DISAGREE WITH DR. HIRSH ON INTERMARRIAGE—RABBI SILBER SAYS

UNION OF JEW AND GENTILE IS EXPRESSLY PROHIBITED BY BIBLE

From Friday's Daily—

Neither the orthodox nor the reformed Jews can ever look with favor upon intermarriage with gentiles according to interviews this morning with spokesmen for both branches of the Jewish faith in Minneapolis. Both classes united in disagreeing emphatically with the utterances Sunday last of Dr. Emil G. Hirsh of Chicago, who told the Sinai congregation of that city that intermarriage with other races was the surest and quickest solution of the problems now confronting the Jewish race.

Rabbi S. M. Silber of the Anshe Tavrig and other orthodox congregations said that Dr. Hirsh was an extremist. "He is a radical reformer," declared Mr. Silber. "Don't believe him. Look it up in the Bible where the Jews are prohibited from intermarriage. Yes, I regard Dr. Hirsh's remarks as very disturbing. He is entirely wrong. But, then, he is not only a reformer, but he is a radical."

Rabbi S. M. Reinard of the Temple Shaari Tov, reformed, said he regarded the utterance as very unfortunate, but thought very little attention would be paid to it. "It is a suggestion that will be condemned by all the more conservative Jews," he said. "It will be condemned by a great majority of the rabbis. We here in Minneapolis have taken a decided stand against intermarriage. Of course, Jews do intermarry, and no other Jew would think of trying to prevent it. But Dr. Hirsh is going further than reform. Intermarriage is prohibited by the books of Moses, altho this prohibition referred specifically to seven idolatrous nations of Palestine. Yet Malachi, Ezra and Nehemiah took a decided stand against it, and the prohibition has come to be understood to apply to all other nations I amagine Dr. Hirsh's words will have little effect, unless, perhaps to encourage those who are already given to that way of thinking. Our authoritative bodies, however, will regard the utterance as very unfortunate."

ROBBERY MAY RESULT IN MURDER

One night last week several Detroit boys followed a Frazee man down the tracks and after beating him into insensibility, robbed him of $60. It is feared the man will die and the boys have been held by the police to await developments. The man had been working out west and was on his way home. He arrived on the flyer which did not stop at Frazee so he got off at Detroit and started to walk home. The boys followed him and the robbery and probable murder was the result. It is said that the boys implicated are only about 17 years old. The matter has been kept as quiet as possible.

Sacred from Attack

President Roosevelt has again in his characteristic way, shown the country the absurdity of religious bigotry. The religious belief or practices of a man, even if he is a candidate for public office, should be sacred from attack or criticism. If he is a Christian man of good moral character, he certainly should have the right to worship God as his conscience dictates. The people of this country represent all nationalities and all shades of religious thought and the effects of narrow-minded bigots to drag religion into politics should be frowned down. The days of "knownothingism" have, happily passed away forever, and a man should be elected to public office because of his fitness rather than his religious belief.—Albert Lea Tribune.

"DOLLAR WHEAT" IS SLOGAN

NORTH DAKOTA CONVENTION OF AMERICAN SOCIETY OF EQUITY

NOW MEETING IN MINOT—MEMBERS ARE VERY ENTHUSIASTIC

From Thursday's Daily—

"Dollar wheat" is the slogan of the delegates to the North Dakota convention of the American Society of Equity who assembled at Minot yesterday.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Brown and the principal address of the morning was delivered by J. Weller Long, of Chippewa Falls Wis., national organizer of the society He rehearsel the remarkable growth of the movement thruout the United States and said that the society had a great work to perform in North Dakota.

He said the main purpose of the organization was to secure fair and equitable prices for the farmers thruout the United States. The object was not to buy cheap, but to get a good price so that farmers could afford to pay a good price for the articles they need.

He said that the society had raised the price of wheat this year at least twenty cents a bushel. He urged the organization of societies thruout the state, and pointed out the beneficial results from organizations thruout the country.

Professor Arvold of the State Agricultural college spoke in the afternoon and there was also an address by United States Senator Hansbrough. Mayor Clark welcomed the delegates.

MINNESOTA PIONEER DIES AT THIEF RIVER

Lawrence G. Browning died at Thief River Falls where he resided on the evening of Nov. 11, 1908. For the past ten years he had made his home in Thief River Falls with his daughter Mrs. John W. Eastman, and, altho his acquaintance in this section was somewhat limited, he was one of the pioneers of the Great Northwest and did much towards its development. Born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in the year 1836, he came to America when but 17 years of age. His father died when he was an infant and there was a large family of children—most of whom came to America and all left their marks upon the pages of history in their adopted home. Upon the death of his wife ten years ago, Mr. Browning came to Thief River Falls and was appointed to the office of United States Commissioner for the District of Minnesota. No man ever possessed a higher sense of personal integrity and all business that was intrusted to his care received his most careful attention.

When what is now known as the Great Northern railway system was in its infancy, Mr. Browning came to Minnesota, and acepted the position as station agent for the road. At that time there were but three stations upon this now great system—James J. Hill was the agent at St. Paul and Capt. W. W. Wright the agent at St. Anthony, now Minneapolis. For many years Mr. Browning was the agent at Anoka and when James J. Hill came into control of the road Mr. Browning was appointed the general land commissioner, and was the personal representative of Mr. Hill in the undeveloped Northwest. Havnig been elected—contrary to his wishes—to the office of clerk of Anoka county, he resigned his position with the railroad company and later engaged in farming. Mr. Browning served in many positions of trust and honor in Anoka. He was a member of the first city coucil and for many years was clerk of the school board.

The deceased is survived by one sister, Mrs. Barbara McCallman of Scotland and four children, Clinton and Eugene Browning, of Minneapolis, and John M. Browning and Mrs. John W. Eastman of Thief River Falls.

PLOWING IN POLK CO. ON 20TH OF NOV.

From Friday's Daily—

Today a party of land seekers from Illinois nearly fell out of an automobile in which they were being shown land when they saw several farmers plowing, including the big steam plow on the Anderson farm southwest of the city. They had supposed the Red River Valley was frozen solid at this time and could scarcely believe their eyes.

While the ground was frozen mornings for a few days, there is no frost at all in the ground now, and as good plowing can be done as a month ago. While late plowing is far from as good as early, still the conditions this fall make it less objectionable than were the ground wet. It is dry and mellow and breaks up nicely.

Most of the farmers finished their plowing before the first of the month but a few still have some left and they will continue to plow till it freezes up—of which there is no prospect at the present time.

ONE MAN SAVES STATE $120,000

D. R. Lindsay Causes Deportation of Insane Persons from State.

One man, single handed without even a clerk saved the state of Minnesota approximately $120,000 in the last two years, by virtue of his office. He is D. R. Lindsay state deportation agent. In the biennial period ending July 31, he deported 125 persons, 124 of whom were insane and one a marked victim of tuberculosis. The average life of an insane person is five years and the average cost of keeping such a person for two years is $1,000, or $125,000 for 125 patients The cost to the state of Minnesota in deporting these unfortunates was $5,032.87. The deportations in a number of cases were paid for by the United States government, after Mr. Lindsay had been able thru investigation to prove that the federal authorities had passed the unfortunates at Ellis island, notwithstanding they were insane at the time.

The greater number deported to any one country was 12 to Sweden, Norway being second with 11 and Finland third with nine. Thirty-six were deported to other states in the United States and the balance to countries in all parts of the globe.

Thanksgiving

Today will be Thanksgiving Day, a day hallowed by tender associations connected with family reunions. The people of Crookston and vicinity have special reason to be thankful this year, and should render up to the Giver of all good gifts, heartfelt thanks for the blessings of health ,peace and plenty. In his Thanksgiving proclamation, Mayor McPhee enumerated the many things we have to be thankful for the past year, and the bright prospects of the future. But there are other things which should not be forgotten.

There is a lesson for us in our preparation for Thanksgiving in the Old Testament regarding our readiness to give thanks for national hopes and blessings.

Our extreme individualism is often an obstruction to praise. We think so much more readily of our disappointments than of our blessings. We share the spirit of our generation which is always asking more and seldom taking time intelligently to enjoy what is already in possession.

Perhaps, then, the best preparation we can make for praise is to lose our selves in some compound individuality—like the nation or the church—and to forget in thinking of its blessings the smart of our own wounds. Not to be able to do this is an acute development of selfishness. For consider what the world would be if no man rejoiced but in his own private gain! It would be like the rocks that strew a barren plain, and nt like the co-ordinated and beautiful arrangements of those same rocks to make a mighty temple.

A good man will obtain a great share of his happiness in taking part in those larger individualities which we call the family, the state, the church and by other names. He must do so or he will be miserable, or grow stony-hearted in isolation. For goodness is a social quality, and suffers when it is severed from its own natural medium of life.

When we have thought ourselves as citizens of our motherland, as children in the family of God, we shall find reasons enough for praise. Then and then first, the meaning of those splendid Hebrew songs of thanksgiving will open to our souls. For then we shall have come into sympathy with the divine planning of the world's life and will be able to rise above our present troubles and rejoice.

Plea Is A Good One

"The plan of appointing civilians to the army has several good features," said an army officer to the St. Paul Pioneer Press, "that saves the plan from being such a disappointment as several reports have indicated. Those who condemn the plan do so without a thoro understanding of the situation.

"There are many men in the ranks and civil life, who make excellent officers, who are good disciplinarians. and know how to handle men. The army would lose the services of these men if they were required to pass thru West Point because their age would bar them from entering that institution. West Point takes men between the ages of 17 and 22, while civilians may receive a commission at the age of 27 and enlisted men at 30. Then, too, the military academy is too small to supply the necessary number of officers and if all commissioned officers should be West Pointers, the school should be enlarged.

"It is true that many officers get into the army from the ranks and civil life, but they are weeded out pretty fast, as the many cases that come up before court-martial testify. The cause of this is that there are several vacancies to be filled immediately, and consequently the unfit are often accepted, whereas if the men had been carefully examined they would not have been commissioned.

"Now if congress passes the bill to enlarge the army in the case of the officers to 612 commissioned officers, the majority of these will come from the ranks or from civil life, and there is bound to be more or less disappointment in that method. If congress would only take up these matters early enough so that we could select men at our leisure, there would not be so many derelicts in the army, but congress never does these things on time and we must take the whole lump at once, with the subsequent dissatisfaction.

"As for making the army aristocratic, by having all commissioned officers come from the military school, that would never make an aristocracy in the army, for the academy has the most democratic gathering of young men that can be found. At the school are to be seen the physician's, the lawyer's, the butcher's son, and so on making it a most democratic body.

"I think the academy could be enlarged to meet the requirements of the increased number of officers, since the moral training received there, is the strongest point in favor of the military academy. But if an end is made to appointments from the ranks, it will limit the number of enlistments in the ranks, for if a man sees that he cannot climb very high there will not be many enlistments."

"One Great Garden Spot"

On page 8 of this issue an article will be found based on the statement of John W. Lee, a former Iowan, who has some pretty pertinent statements to make regarding the possibilities of the Red River Valley.

There has been a great deal said one time and another, about the Red River Valley and its future. Of its wonderful fertility and possibilities. Some of these were made by men who knew what they were talking about, and some were made by men who were simply enthusiastic — actually knew little but guessed a whole lot.

The statements from Mr. Lee are weighty because they come from a man who has been a farmer all his life. He is a practical farmer and at the same time he is a progressive and scientific farmer. He has studied the government soil surveys, knows what kind of soil he has on his own farm, and what kind of soil is found in other sections of the Valley.

He is devoting considerable attention to potato raising, and with minimum moisture succeeds in producing good paying crops of the tubers, and at the same time is putting his farm in the highest possible state of cultivation.

His statement that tiling will make the whole Red River Valley one great garden spot is significant and it is also significant that the work can be done for one half what it costs in Iowa and Illinois.

This is what must come in the future, and when it does come we will have land worth $100 per acre and on up to $200 for choice tracts in favored locations. Many will live to see this realized. It must come, and it is coming sooner than many people dreamed of a few years ago. Some farmers have already made a start. Several farmers have shipped tiling in by the car load. They propose making the right move at once. The rapid ditch construction is providing adequate outlets. It will be several years before outlets will be provided in all sections, but with the rapid progress being made it will be but a comparatively short time before every farm can be tile drained and then "The Red River Valley will be one vast garden spot."

Character and Food

Eaten to excess or constantly, mutton will cause melancholia; veal causes loss of appetite and energy. Too much mustard causes loss of memory and salt causes indigestion. Eggs grains, ripe fruit and golden grain belt beer are good for vivacity and health. This delicious beverage is produced with scientific care and epicurean judgment and should have a place on your home table. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Eveleth News: The Minneapolis Journal talks on tariff to the extent of a full column and then announces it has no particular bias to give the question but is eager to have the people do some thinking. The people have been doing some thinking for a number of years, and just now they are watching events very closely to see whether their representatives are inclined to carry out their wishes. There will be no backward movement on their part.

STAR BADBOY WANTS REVENGE

INDIAN GAME WARDEN LEADS A VERY STRENUOUS LIFE

SHINING BADGE OF AUTHORITY AND $40 A MONTH SALARY ENGENDERS ENMITY

Star Badboy, Indian game warden at Mahnomen is in trouble. He was "Star Badboy" when it came to enforcing the game laws in his territory and for this reason he incurred the enmity of his fellow tribesmen. With Indian-like tenacity of purpose, they conspired to get his scalp, figuratively speaking and with the proverbial cunning of their tribe they succeeded.

Star Badboy has the distinction of being the only Indian game warden in the state. His appointment was made Aug. 1, and it was in the nature of an experiment. As soon as he had received his nickel-plated star the commission began to get results. Numerous were the convictions he secured of violators owing to his natural ability to ferret out the cases.

But "Poor Lo" was to meet his Waterloo. All of the Indians in the neighborhood could not be appointed game wardens and so Star Badboy was handicappel right from the start. His shining star engendered bad feeling and his $40 a month salary looked like so many shares of Standard Oil stock, so it was natural that trouble should result.

When Star Badboy began to earn his salary by haling a few of his tribesmen before a justice of the peace for various violations, he severed the last tie of tribal feeling.

Wife Falls Down

One day when Star Badboy was out on his official duties some "redskins" came to his house—he does not live in a tepee—and managed to induce Mrs. Star Badboy to surrender two nice teal ducks for 25 cents.

When Star Badboy arrived home late that night his wife had the money hid under his plate at the table. It was to be a surprise to him. It was. When he learned that the money represented the selling price of two of the ducks he had shot the day before he informed his wife that she had been duped. She listened attentively while he tried to explain the game laws to her. She had never gone to Carlisle and they sounded like Greek to her.

The plot thickens.

The purchasers of the ducks went to the justice and swore out a complaint for the arrest of Mrs. Star Badboy. Her husband consented to her arrest, and then paid her fine of $10 and costs.

Carlos Avery executive agent of the game and fish commission is already considering recommendation to raise Star Badboy's salary.

STATE PRESS

Mankato Free Press: Hennepin county has no rightful claims on the speakership, and the Republicans of Minnesota should give that county to understand as much.

Albert Lea Standard: Joe Cannon will be speaker again and Tawney will be his right bower of iniquity. The people get what they voted for and will have to take what is coming to them.

Brainerd Dispatch: The coming legislative session will undoubtedly not be as long drawn out as usual. The fact that the lawmakers will draw as much salary if the session continues but one month as they would if it were drawn out over three months will have a tendency to get them down to business earlier. But it will be tough on the clerks and the members of the third house.

Aitkin Age: The tax amendment has been defeated and Northern Minnesota is said to responsible for it. When Southern Minnesota shows some evidence of an inclination to give the northern part of the state a square deal, there may be some reason to expect the north half to throw themselves on to the mercy of the south end but not now.

St. Cloud Times: Bob Dunn, after four years of strenuous objection has finally acknowledged Governor Johnson's claims and ability, as follows: "Two years hence Governor Johnson ought to be a candidate for a fourth term and at the same time make a fight for members of the legislature who will favor his election to the United States senate. There is no reason why he should not go to the senate. Some of his most ardent supporters for governor in 1904 were and are Senator Clapp's bosom friends, and they cannot consistently object to giving the governor a boost towards the presidency."

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

FUNERAL OF JUDGE JOHN McLEAN ONE OF LARGEST EVER HELD IN CROOKSTON

500 PEOPLE MARCHED TO CEMETERY—HUNDREDS FOLLOWED IN CARRIAGES

From Monday's Daily—

All that was mortal of Judge John McLean was laid to rest this afternoon in Oakdale cemetery. The funeral was held from Chesterman's undertaking rooms, and was one of the most largely attended and impressive ever held in Crookston. At 2:30 prayers were said by Rev. C. C. Warner in the chapel after which the cortege moved to Oakdale cemetery. The procession formed as follows:

City Officials;
Escort detailed from Co. I., M. N. G.
Members of the Woman's Relief Corps.
Col. Cobham Post No. 90 G. A. R.
Modern Brotherhood of America.
Polk County Officials.
Polk County Old Settlers Association.
Polk County Bar Association.
Masons.

Following the Masons came the hearse followed by the mourners and a long line of carriages, many old time friends of the deceased driving in 20 and 30 miles to pay a last tribute of respect to one whom they had honored and loved.

Arriving at the cemetery the impressive burial rites of both the Masonic order and the G. A. R. were carried out. No greater honor was ever done any citizen who has departed this life than was done John McLean Not only were there a long array of organizations which did him honor, but following the remains to their last resting place were men, women and children who had not known him as a fraternal brother, but as John McLean the citizen who had done many of them kindnesses which they will never forget and which endeared him to them.

The pall bearers were from the Masonic order and were composed of Messrs. E. M. Walsh, John Wyand, G. C. Wilde, E. A. Mills, M. R. Brown and W. G. Lytle. The honorary pall bearers taken from the members of the G. A. R. were Comrades Jefferson, Sargent, Swift, Andrist, San Piere and Martin.

Geo. McLean, brother of the deceased arrived in Grand Forks this morning and was brought to the city by Will Olds in his auto, arriving in the city just before noon. The only other relative was Mrs. Will Olds, niece of the departed.

The funeral services were a glowing tribute to a man whose life had been an exemplification of Charity in its broadest sense. The people in all walks of life were glad to do honor to his memory because in life he merited the love and respect of all mankind. This was not forgotten when his spirit took its fight. No man was ever paid a higher tribute than was paid to the memory of John McLean this afternoon.

DEEDS, NOT WORDS

Crookston People have Absolute Proof of Deeds at Home

It's not words, but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills,
For Crookston kidney sufferers,
Have made their local reputation.

Proof lies in the testimony of Crookston people who have been cured to stay cured.

John Dunn, Sr., of 336 Central Ave., Crookston, Minn., says: "It is more than five years since I first recommended Doan's Kidney Pills, but I can endorse them just as highly today as when I gave my first statement in their favor. Before I used them I had suffered for about ten years from pains in the back and about the kidneys. The kidney secretions were also disordered, being too frequent in action. Doan's Kidney Pills procured at the Wallace's Pharmacy, removed every symptom. The gratifying results have proved of a permanent nature, and I have been recommending Doan's Kidney Pills ever since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

WIFE NUMBER THREE SUES FOURTH SPOUSE

Demands Damages For Aleinating Affection Of Husband. Claims Rival Urged Suit For Divorce.

One of the most remarkable damage suits in the history of Northern Minnesota is now on trial in the district court at Fergus Falls, Otter Tail Co. The case is that of Leona Voelz vs. Albertina Voelz, nee, Milke, and is an action in which Mrs. Voelz No. 3 is suing Mrs. Voelz No. 4 for $10,000 damages for alienating the affections of Albert Voelz former husband of the plaintiff and present husband of the defendant. Mr. Voelz has been married four times according to allegations of the plaintiff's attorney.

The suit comes from the village of Richville, in the northern part of Otter Tail County. Mr. Voelz has been engaged in business there and also owns a large farm. He is alleged to be worth about $20,000. About a year ago his wife secured a divorce from him on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment, and was awarded $375 alimony.

She now comes into court and asks for additional alimony in a suit against him, and at the same time brings a big damage suit against the woman whom he married soon after she secured her divorce.

Wealthy Widow Enters

The plaintiff alleges that she came from Germany and married the defendant about five years ago and at once took charge of the household affairs on his large farm ,working faithfully and industriously. Her married life was fairly happy up to the time that her husband she alleges became infatuated with his present wife, who was at the time Mrs. Milke, a wealthy widow residing in the vicinity of their home.

This infatuation is alleged to have continued for a considerable period Mr. Voelz, according to the allegations spending a great deal of the time at the Milke house and frequently accompanying Mrs. Milke to public amusements, on long drives and elsewhere.

He is alleged to have become cross and disagreeable at home and to have treated the plaintiff in a very cruel manner. Mrs. Milke who, plaintiff says, pretended to be her friend, visited her occasionally, and Mr. Voelz is alleged to have abused his wife in the widow's presence, whereupon the widow told the wife that she should not submit to such treatment, but should secure a divorce from him, at the same time adding that under the Minnesota law she would not be entitled to any of his property for the reason that she had no children.

Conspiracy is Alleged

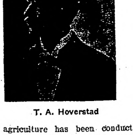
The plaintiff did not wish to take this advice, as she was opposed to divorce. She alleges that she is unable to talk the English language and knew nothing of the laws of this country and is now convinced that there was a conspiracy to get rid of her. She resolutely refused to consult an attorney or bring divorce proceedings and her husband finally deserted her and warned the business men of the village against giving her goods on credit.

She alleges further that when she still persisted in her refusal to bring a divorce action, he came to her apartments and threatened to throw her out into the street but told her he would give her $375 if she would sign a divorce application. She finally yielded and the divorce was duly secured for her. She alleges that her husband waited only the time required by law before marrying Mrs. Milke, and the plaintiff now sees thru the whole "conspiracy."

There seemed to be some question at the opening of the case as to whether a divorced woman could maintain an action against her ex-husband's wife for alienating his affections but the court finally decided to allow the case to go to the jury.

MUCH DURUM PUT IN WITH THE FLOUR

T. A. Hoverstad in charge of the farmers' institute work of North Dakota and for a number of years connected with the farmers' institutes of Minnesota and the experiment station at Crookston, has returned from Washington where he attended the hearing which the United States department of agriculture has been conducting relative to the bleaching of wheat and wheat flour.



T. A. Hoverstad

Prof. Hoverstad like Prof. Ladd of North Dakota has been one of those who contended that bleached flour made bread that fas more or less deleterious to health. He believes however, that if it is stated on the label that the flour is bleached it would not be necessary to prohibit the bleaching of flour entirely.

M. O. Hall of the North Dakota board of grain commissioners, was in St. Paul at the same time and the two discussed while there, the question of bleaching flour and of mixing durum wheat with common wheat.

R. R. Valley Interested

The Red River Valley is especially interested in the use of durum wheat 10,000,000 bushels of this wheat is ground at the Minneapolis mills most of it mixed with other wheat. In many cases it is believed that as much as one-fourth of this wheat is mixed with other flour.

The millers pay about 25 cents a bushel less for this wheat than they do the other, so if they can mix one fourth of this wheat and sell at the same prices as if they used other wheat entirely a mill which used 20,000 bushels of wheat a day will by mixing a fourth of durum save $1,250 a day.

Mr. Hall and Professor Hoverstad contend that durum wheat will make just as good bread as other wheat not as white perhaps but as good for muscle building. If the millers and the housewives and bakers could be made to come around to this point of view it would bring the durum the same price as other wheat in the market. This would be a victory for North Dakota on account of the large amount of durum wheat raised there.

LEAVES FOR SEATTLE—LeRoy Moran who acquired more or less notoriety as a result of his sensational escapes from Officer Coan of Grand Forks, and Officer Quigley of East Grand Forks, has gone to Seattle it is stated. He was given to understand that his presence would not be welcomed in Grand Forks. During his sojourn in the Polk county jail for a few weeks he was about the most insolent prisoner ever caged in Hotel de Gonyea.

Saturday afternoon when the N. P. passenger train south bound reached Fertile the conductor wired back: "Boy drowned under N. P. bride at Crookston just as train went over."

Chief Eck was notified at once, and with others made a careful search under the bridge but could find no hole in the ice where a boy could have slipped in and is of the opinion that the conductor was mistaken unless the acident happened some little distance from the bridge. The further fact that no one has reported a boy missing would indicate that the report was a mistake.

However Chief Eck took occasion to examine the river very thoroly Saturday and Sunday in various places, and states that parents should positively forbid their children going on the river as the ice is not safe. There are little patches where it is all right but there are thin spots every few rods and a skater is apt to go thru any moment.

Robertson has returned from Duluth where Saturday he made an address before the farmers institute held there The Duluth Herald says: "Prof. William Robertson head of the Crookston branch agricultural school, spoke in favor of a branch agricultural school for St. Louis county. He informed those present that there was no prejudice against St. Louis county in other parts of the state, as some people believe, and that the establishment of an agricultural school in this county would prove a boon to agricultural projects. Mr. Robertson pointed out that there was also a great field here for sheep raising and the diversified farm."

YOUNG ROBERTSON GRITTY — Afflictions seldom come singly, and Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Robertson of Wesley college, Grand Forks, are having their full share of late. First their son Harold's illness and then the doctor had to be operated on for the same affliction, appendicitis. And on Saturday Master Carl another son, got tangled up in a football game and broke his arm. He showed more than usual bravery after his accident and walked to the doctor's office to have it set, telephoning his parents where he was. He took ether like a little man and walked home afterward, and Monday morning was at school with the rest of the boys. Carl is a nephew of Supt. Wm. Robertson of the State Experiment Farm here.

Shortly afternoon today one leg of the stove in the basement of the I. O. O. F. Hall fell off and fearing the stove might tip over and cause a fire the teachers in charge of the two rooms there Misses Munn and Cushing had complete control of the children and as a result of repeated fire drills marched every child out of the building in exactly 40 seconds. This was certainly a remarkably fine showing.

An alarm was turned in, and the department responded, but there was nothing for them to do but put the leg of the stove back on.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY

DID A BIG BUSINESS—John Warfel who returned last evening from a business trip to Argyle states that the last Market day there was a grand success in every way, and that the volume of business done by the stores totalled $68,000 for the day. He says the farmers and business men are all prosperous there this year.

LOUIE BERQUIST ILL—Louie Berquist was very low this morning with heart trouble but towards noon showed some improvement. He was on his way to supper last Friday evening when he fell to the street near the Grand Central Hotel and was taken home in a carriage. His condition improved till last night when he had several sinking spells with a critical spell this morning. This is his second severe attack, having suffered a similar one some years ago. His physician believes now that he will survive the present attack.

COUNTY BOARD THRU—The board of county commissioners finished up their work for this session and adjourned last evening. They disposed of a vast amount of routine business and also wound up some important ditch matters.

PHIL ROWE DEAD—Word has been received of the death at Grand Rapids, Minn., of Phil Rowe, a former well known resident of Crookston. He was a cigar maker working for local firms for several years and later travelled for a cigar house. He cut his hand a week ago last Friday blood poisoning set in and just a week later he died. He was a genial whole souled young man and his many friends will learn of the sad news with deep regret.

MISS KROSTUE INJURED—A few days ago Miss Krostue, daughter of Hon. Gunder Krostue of Fisher, was the victim of a serious runaway accident. The horse which she was driving attached to a buggy became frightened and dashed down an alley As a corner was rounded she was thrown to the ground, lighting on her head and was unconscious for some time. The horse wheeled around and started back down the alley and would have run over her prostrate body had it not been for A. W. Rundquist of this city and another gentleman who dashed ahead of the horse and succeeded in stopping it a few feet from the girl. A physician was summoned from this city and she is now about recovered tho her nerves received a bad shock.

MAY DRESS LIKE THE OFFICERS

MILITIAMEN MAY NOW WEAR THE DRAB UNIFORMS

Adjt. Gen. Wood of the Minnesota National Guard has issued two important orders recently, affecting the National guard thruout the state. One increases the number of men in a regiment from 570 to 930 and fifty-five officers. The other allows the enlisted men to wear the olive drab uniform which has previously been allowed only the officers. The olive drab will be worn upon all occasions except parade, and at such other times as the officers may designate. The officers will be distinguished by braid on the sleeves.

The khaki dress will be worn principally during the time the guards are in camp. The militia will now be as well dressed as the men of the regular army, with the exception of drab overcoats.

The Third regiment, M. N. G. will not go into camp at Lake City next year. Spent Lake is now being considered and it may be settled upon when the officers of the Third regiment meet next March. A trip to Fort Riley, Kas., was planned but the plan has been abandoned, as the regular army will hold maneuvers there at the time the Minnesota men will be in camp.

BIG MORTGAGES IN KOOCHICHING

OVER FIVE MILLION COVERING POWER AND PAPER MILL PLANTS

A trust deed for $5,000,000 executed by the Minnesota & Ontario Power company to the First Trust & Savings bank and James L. Houghteling of Chicago has been filed with Register of Deeds Long of Koochiching County at International Falls. The mortgage covers the immense power dam and pulp and paper mills being erected there also water and flowage rights and certain parcels of real estate.

Under the terms of the mortgage $3,000,000 is made available immediately for the construction of the big dam across the Rainy river here to develop the water power and the construction of the wood pulp mills, paper mills and sulphite mille. The Rainy River Improvement company also filed a trust deed for $200,000 in favor of the Minnesota & Ontario Power company which concern has absorbed the first named corporation. The filing of these immense mortgages gave Koochiching county a fee of $3,750.

NO DOG PASSES AFTER DEC. 1

OTHER NORTHWESTERN ROADS MAY FOLLOW LEAD OF THE SOO

Dogs will not be carried for nothing after December 1 on the Soo line. The reason which called forth this order which has just been issued is probably that of economy, altho officials would not discuss that point. It is well known that the baggage cars are loaded to their capacity most of the time and that it is a great trouble to the baggagemen to take care of the dogs during the hunting season.

At present there is no distinction as to the way in which dogs are shipped, but under the new rule they will be treated as baggage. A dog which has a collar and chain attached will be rated at 150 pounds of excess baggage which if crated it will be rated as only 100 pounds of excess baggage. This will materially reduce the risks which baggagemen run in handling dogs. It is understood that several of the other northwestern roads will follow the lead of the Soo line and cut dogs off the free list.

While this will save the baggageman much trouble it will also cut off a most fertile source of revenue.

JUDGE HAGEN LAID TO REST

The funeral of Judge E. O. Hagen was held from the family residence in Sampsons addition this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. C. C. Warner officiating. There was an immense concourse of friends present to pay a last tribute of respect to the departed The remains were laid to rest in Oakdale cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. L. E. Gossman, F. M. Brown, Julius Jacobson, John O. Sundet, Martin Ronne, A. B. Holmboe.

NINTH DISTRICT MEMBERS OF THE STATE LEGISLATURE MUCH INTERESTED IN PLAN OF PROF. A. M. DUNTON OF McINTOSH SCHOOLS FOR STATE AID FOR INSTRUCTORS WHERE DESIRED FOR AGRICULTURE AND MANUAL TRAINING—ADOPTED RESOLUTIONS FAVORING ROCKNE AND REV. C. W. B. ELLIS

From Wednesday's Daily—

Last evening six members of the state legislature from the 9th congressional district met at the Hotel Crookston and organized by the election of John Saugstad as chairman and Donald Robertson of Argyle secretary. Other members present were John McGrath of Clay who also held hte proxy of Bjorge of Becker, C. L. Selerud of Norman, J. J. Opsahl of Beltrami and John Holton of Polk. Representative Rockne was unanimously endorsed for speaker, it being known that the five members from Otter Tail had already declared for him.

Rev. C. W. B. Ellis of Hawley was also unanimously endorsed for chaplain of the next house of Representatives.

Prof. A. M. Dunton of the McIntosh schools appeared before the members and made a plea for a state appropriation for provising instructors in agriculture and manual training for schools which provided rooms and equipment.

Prof. Dunton has already introduced those branches in the McIntosh schools and as a result he has 70 pupils from the country where other schools similarly have but a handful. The idea met with the hearty approval of the representatives preesnt and they will ork for such an appropriation.

PUBLIC INVITED TO LIBRARY DEDICATION

PROGRAM HAS BEEN COMPLETED FOR FRIDAY EVENING WHEN EVERY RESIDENT OF CROOKSTON IS URGED TO INSPECT THE NEW CARNEGIE LIBRARY—ADDRESSES AND SOME VERY FINE MUSICAL NUMBERS WILL BE RENDERED — MARKS REALIZATION OF YEARS OF HOPE

From Wednesday's Daily—

President J. W. Wheeler of the Carnegie Public Library board who had the matter in charge has completed the program which will be rendered at the formal dedication of Crookston's magnificent new library on Friday evening.

This is a matter of vital interest to the general public and every citizen of Crookston is urged to be present and inspect the new building which will be ablaze with electric lights. Unfortunately the receiving desk is not yet in place, but the dedication will be carried out just the same. The doors will be thrown open at 7:30 and the program will begin at 8:15 and will be as follows:

Address, Andrew Carnegie, (The Donor) Hon. Halvor Steenerson.

Address, The Educational Value of the New Library" Prof. E. E. McIntyre.

Address, Benefits of the Library, Hon. A. A. Miller.

In conclusion G. S. Chesterman will outline the purposes of the board in the future conduct of the library.

In addition to the above there will be a very high class and entertaining musical program which is in capable hands, and Riggs' Orchestra will be in attendance during the entire evening.

Public pride should induce every resident of Crookston to inspect the new library Friday evening. All will be welcome. This is an institution that belongs to the public. The members of the library board are as follows: J. W. Wheeler, president; G. F. Carpenter, Secretary; G. S. Chesterman, A. M. Sivertson, Allan McKinnon, O. O. Christianson; J. E. O'Brien, John Moore and O. Mercil, Jr.

JOINING FAMILY OF UNCLE SAM

CLASS OF 13 GIVEN INITIATION BY CLERK OF COURT LANCTOT

W. A. Lanctot clerk of the district court, went to the west end metropolis last evening and heard the application of thirteen residents of East Grand Forks for citizens' papers. Several of the number were for first papers and the remainder for full citizenship papers. The applications will be given due consideration by Judge Watts, each candidate being required to answer various quesitons designed to test his fitness for election to Uncle Sam's family and the papers will be issued ninety days later. The courtesy of Mr. Lanctot in going to East Grand Forks obviated the necessity of each of the applicants taking witnesses to Crookston who were in position to testify as to their residence here, a very important requirement to the issue of citizens' papers.

SCHOOLS CLOSED TILL MONDAY

CITY SCHOOLS APPROPRIATELY OBSERVE ANNUAL FESTIVAL OCCASION

The city schools closed this afternoon for the Thanksgiving vacation reopening on Monday. Many of the out of town pupils will take advantage of the occasion to visit their homes, and some of the teachers also will spend their Thanksgiving vacations out of town a number of them going to their homes and others visiting friends elsewhere. Nearly all of the grades had appropriate Thanksgiving programs this afternoon, two rooms generally uniting for the exercises. The program varried in the different grades to suit the ages of the pupils.

PIONEER DIES AT RED LAKE FALLS

WOMAN WHO CAME TO MINNESOTA CAPITAL IN 1827 PASSES AWAY

Martha Bottineau died at her home in Red Lake Falls Sunday at the age of 71 years. She was born at Lake Champlain, N. Y., came to St. Paul, Minn., in 1827, where during the same year, she married Pierre Bottineau, famous as a government guide during the Sioux Indian trouble, and also leader of perilous government expeditions across Northern and Western plains. Mrs. Bottineau came with her husband to Red Lake Falls in 1876, where they established what is known as the French colony in this district.

They were the very first settlers there and took up a homestead upon part of which Red Lake Falls is built. They foresaw the possibility of a city at that point, and gave the place the name of Red Lake Falls on account of the falls in the Red Lake river there.

They lived there constantly since then, her husband dying in 1895.

She was the mother of fourteen children eleven of whom survive her. They are: Mrs. Louis Berthieume Mrs. Val Detling, Miss Emily Bottineau, of Red Lake Falls, Mrs. Fartuna Bourgue, Brooks, Minn., William and George Bottineau, Clearwater Co. Minn., Mrs. B. W. Graychas and Noa Bottineau, Blackduck, Minn., Sidney Bottineau, West Superior, Wis., Norman of Prince Albert, Canada. The funeral was held from St. Joseph's Catholic church yesterday.

JUDGE JOHN MC'LEAN ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

Jumped Into Sluiceway Above Power House During Night. Left A Note With Portion Of Clothing.

Undoubtedly Was Temporarily Mentally Deranged When Rash Act Was Committed. Honored Pioneer.

From Thursday's Daily—

JUDGE McLEAN'S FAREWELL MESSAGE

Return my office files and books to city. Resignation as Justice and Court Commissioner in drawer. Pay my expenses out of money in pocket book... I desire to be buried by the Masons and Grand Army of the Republic. All the property I have is in the drawer. My army enlistment is at the Soldiers' Home. Goodbye all. Life is not worth living. I am going crazy. It is better to suffer once than long years in the asylum. Forgive me, I can't help it.

—John McLean.

This note found under a watch which was lying on top of an overcoat a pair of shoes and a collar by Wm, Anderson on the sidewalk just south of the power house of the Crookston Water Works Power and Light Co., where he is employed, lead him to look into the sluiceway where the dead body of Judge John McLean was seen floating, and was quickly pulled from the water and Coroner Chesterman notified.

It was a plain case of suicide. The people of Crookston never received a greater or a ruder shock than when the news spread like wild fire about the city. His old friends and comrades thaught it incredable and refused to believe it at first.

Deliberately

Sometime during the night, no one will ever know exactly when, Judge McLean had walked to the power house, removed his overcoat, shoes, hat and collar, and left his watch with them with the brief note written on a scrap of paper. He had then taken a small cord and tied it about his waist as tight as he could. Next he worked both hands under the cord, so that they were strapped tight to his side and made it impossible for him to assist himself after he made the fatal leap. Then he leaped into the icy waters and the end came soon.

Body Removed

The body was at once removed to Chesterman's undertaking parlors where they will be prepared for burial. The funeral services will be held Sunday next probably, under the auspices of the Masons and the G. A. R. and the M. B. A. will also have a large delegation as deceased was one of the leading members of that organization.

An Honored Citizen

Judge McLean was one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of Crookston. He was a very public spirited man, and was always in the vanguard when there was anything to be done for the up-building of the city or the advancement of its interests in any way. He was very generous, and ever willing to assist a friend in distress. The little children all knew him, and he loved them all and many a little heart he has made happy.

Extremely Patriotic

John McLean was extremely patriotic. He fought under the stars and stripes and revered them. Every Memorial day he was the leading figure. He nearly always prepared the program and was energetic in seeing that all arrangements were complete for properly honoring the old soldiers who had passed the Great Divide. He was full of patriotism at all times and never let an opportunity pass to install a lesson in the minds of the young.

Born in New York

Deceased was born in Victor, New York, June 24, 1849, where he spent his early life. He enlisted in a New York company at the beginning of the Civil War and served till its conclusion, being honorably discharged. Later he went to Lincoln, Neb., where he graduated from an Academy and studied law. Later he came on north, locating first at Audubon, and later coming to Crookston.

First Editor of Journal

Judge McLean was the first editor of the Journal, coming here in 1876 and doing the editorial and local work for Publisher Cooke. After following that vocation he practiced law and later formed a law partnership with Judge Ives, the firm being Ives and McLean, the firm doing considerable realestate business also.

Later Moves.

This firm dissolved about 1884 after which Mr. McLean was engaged in the real estate business alone and was also interested in promoting some mining deals in Washington and spent several years there, finally returning again to Crookston. He also spent about a year at Devils Lake, N. D., in the real estate business but finally returned to Crookston and has remained here ever since.

City Official for Years

Judge McLean has been a city official of Crookston longer than any other man. He was elected city justice upon his return from the west and has served continuously ever since in that capacity.

He was also the second county attorney of Polk county, following Jas. Greenhalgh, father of the present city weighmaster, who was the first county attorney. He had also been district court commissioner for some years past, and was a prompt, obliging and efficient public servant.

Parents Buried Here

Deceased is survived by two brother, Geo. who is located at Vashon, Wash., about 12 miles from Seattle, and who will arrive here Saturday and William who resides in this state His parents are both dead and buried in the cemetery here, his mother having died in 1893 and his father three years ago at the age of 90 years.

The funeral will be a very large one the city officials attending in a body.

Worry Brought Trouble On

Deceased has been worrying greatly over his financial affairs for some time past and during the last few days has remarked to several of his friends that he could neither eat nor sleep, and that he was losing his mind Others had noticed that he had acted queerly at times and this was without doubt the cause of his rash act. He committed the deed during temporary insanity.

Message in Desk

After finding the remains, Cononer Chesterman went to Judge McLean's office and opened his desk where the letter published above was found together with a pocketbook containing $127.

Not Seen After Supper

Thus far no one has been found who saw deceased after supper last evening. He was in his office up to nearly 6 o'clock, Major Mix and others being with him. He went to supper at John Fyllings on Bridge St., Jeromes addition where he boarded and roomed, ate little and returned down town.

Visited Dam Yesterday

Andrew Wygaard states that yesterday afternoon he saw Judge McLean right after dinner, coming back up town from the dam, but that the judge avoided him at the end of the Sampsons addition bridge and crossed the street.

PROHIBITION DOESNT PROHIBIT

REV. A. S. HALE'S SERMON AT MINOT PLEA FOR MORE CHRISTIANITY

SAYS HE IS INFORMED FIVE CARLOADS OF LIQUOR SHIPPED THERE MONTHLY

"I am informed that there are five carloads of intoxicating liquor shipped into Minot monthly. Five carloads monthly, think of that."—Rev. A. S. Hale in his sermon at the Vincent Methodist church, Minot, N. D., Sunday.

That Minot, N. D., needs Christianity more than it needs new sidewalks better streets, more sewers and finer hospitals, schools and churches is the statement of Rev. A. S. Hale, the new pastor of the Vincent Methodist Episcopal church in his sermon at that place Sunday morning.

Rev. Hale said that he did not mean that Minot was any worse than the average large city, no worse than St. Paul or Minneapolis but he said the supreme need of this city as in St. Paul and Minneapolis of a deeper appreciation of the meaning of Christianity and religious and moral awakening.

He deprecated the fact that 5 carloads of intoxicating liquor are shipped into Minot monthly. This was sufficient evidence of need of a moral and spiritual awakening, when it is remembered that North Dakota is a prohibition state.

WANTS CROOKSTON CLUB TO JION

C. J. PRYOR OF BEMIDJI CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT MISNER

C. J. Pryor, publisher of the Bemidji Pioneer and member of the Executive Council of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs arrived from St. Paul this morning where he has been spending the past few days on business conected with the latter organization. He has been conferring today with President Misner of the Crookston Commercial Club relative to the local organiation becoming affiliate with the State Organization, and President Misner is of the opinion the move would be a good one. The matter will be taken up at the next meeting of the club.

A. P. Hanson the Fertile banker, who was here today also assured Mr. Pryor that the Fertile Commercial club would join the state federation at once.

BUSCUIT COMPANY PLANT IS READY

THE FACTORY WILL BE REOPENED WITH FULL FORCE

The Golden Grain Biscuit company's plant at Grand Forks is ready for reopening today after a shut down of several months as a result of a fire which destroyed everything but the walls of the factory. The factory will be reopened with a full force of employes and will be kept running steadily.

The company has been supplying its customers thru the Crookston factory which was leased until the plant could be put in shape there.

SECURED AN INJUNCTION

The Northern Pacific railway has been planning to abandon Winnipeg Junction and move its station to a point about a mile further north, across the Buffalo river. The people of the village are up in arms and have secured a temporary injunction from Judge Baxter forbidding the removal The company is now negotiating with the people, and it is understood that it has offered to pay them at least a part of the value of their lots and buildings if they will consent to have the station moved and the village abandoned.

A number from this vicinity are planning to attend the meeting of the Minnesota State Horticultural society to be held in the audience room of the First Unitarian church in Minneapolis, Dec. 1, 2, 3, and 4. It will be the forty-second annual gathering of the society. The Minnesota State Forestry association, the Minnesota Rose society, the Plant Breeders' society, the Woman's Auxilliary and Minnesota State Breeders' society, meet at the same time and place.

There are to be exhibits in every line, and a lengthy program dealing with subjects of varied interest has been prepared.

FREAK OF ELECTION

ONE VOTE ELECTS THE COUNTY SURVEYOR IN RED LAKE COUNTY

THINKING HE HAD NO OPPOSITION, PRESENT OFFICIAL DID NOT FILE

It is not often that a single voter has the distinction of being solely responsible for the election of a county officer, yet one voter in the town of Silverton in Red Lake county, is responsible for the election of Oscar Ostrom, his fellow townsman to the office of county surveyor. The former overseer of highways, who held the office corresponding to that of county surveyor, C. H. Martz, did not file for the position of county surveyor, as he expected no opposition, and could not file for that of overseer of highways, as the supreme court decided recently that that office was an unconstitutional one.

Of all the 2,600 or more voters in the county, this man in Silverton was the sole one to vote for a man to fill the position, no one having filed and no name appearing printed on the ballot. By writing in the name of his neighbor in the blank space reserved for that purpose, this voter elected Oscar Ostrom to the high estate just as effectively as tho every voter in the county had honored him with their support. Hoping and expecting to save the filing fee of $10 and to get the office by appointment, Mr. Martz, the present surveyor, did not file. The result is that Mr. Ostrom is elected to the position, something that must be classed as one of the most singular and interesting incidents in connection with the recent election.

BERG'S HOMESTEAD FINE TOWNSITE

EX-SECRETARY OF STATE RECEIVES $10,000 FOR RAINY RIVER CLAIM

Hon. Albert Berg disposed of his famous "The Berg Homestead" at Warroad to a real estate company composed of Messrs. Hedberg, Alldrin and Lundbom. Consideration $10,000. The new owners we are advised, have already proceeded to plat the property, to place on the market in residence lots. The location is an ideal one and will make the prettiest residence quarter of Warroad.

COMING AGAIN TO THE FRONT

GOV. JOHN A. JOHNSON'S LEADERSHIP OF THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY—BIG PLAY IS TO BE MADE IN WASHINGTON—MINNESOTA'S CHIEF EXECUTIVE WILL PROPOSE AN AGREEMENT BETWEEN STATES AT FORTHCOMING RIVERS AND HARBORS CONGRESS—WHEREBY AMENDMENTS TO THE FEDERAL CONSTITUTION WHICH ARE NEEDED MAY BE OBTAINED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10—A year ago when Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, came to Washington, as a delegate to the national rivers and harbors congress, his friends deplored the fact that he was diffident and bashful concerning a prospective candidacy for president.

His cordial reception here, and the excellent impression he made at the gridiron dinner and other functions led his friends to believe that the chief executive of Minnesota was good timber for the highest office in the land, but Gov. Johnson himself did not look at it that way. He depreciated any "boom" and to the newspaper men confided frankly that he was not in the national game. He refused invitations to return here in January and he refused many other pressing requests to visit different places in the East and South during the winter. It was not until he came here during the month of May to attend the convention of governors, that Mr. Johnson really worked up to the real situation that there was such a strong opposition to Bryan it might result in the selection of himself as the democratic candidate.

But it was too late then to stem the tide against Bryan altho Johnson showed surprising strength in Alabama, Georgia, Virginia and Maryland.

Early Bird This Time

Gov. Johnson has profited by his experience of a year ago. His closest personal friends say that he was wiser than any of them for he knew that 1908 was not a democratic year, so far as the presidency was concerned.

And these same friends also say that the governor having tried to get out of politics in Minnesota and failed, will no longer remain passive concerning the efforts which are to be made to bring him forward as the leader of the democratic party in the United States.

He is regarded since the defeat of Gov. Folk in Missouri, as the one big democrat in the Mississippi Valley, and his presidential candidacy is to be launched in Washington next month when the national rivers and harbors congress and the convention of governors again assemble co-incident with the convening of congress, Dec. 8.

Gov. Johnson will be here and with him will come his political manager, Fred B. Lynch of St. Paul. Frank A. Day will return here from Porto Rico and be a delegate to the rivers and harbors congress. So too will Mayor Haynes of Minneapolis; Mayor Armson of Stillwater, and perhaps Mayor Lawler of St. Paul.

Gov. Johnson it can be stated on the highest and most reliable authority, will come forward with a proposition which will be extremely popular, if present indications can be relied upon.

Heretofore thees river and harbor congresses have been national talkfests. The delegates came here, listened to papers and speeches by distinguished men adopted resolutions, attended a banquet heard more speeches and went home, leaving to the congress of the United States the full power and prerogative to do something or do nothing. Last December the rivers and harbors congress was the most successful ever held. But congress at the regular long session passed no river and harbor bill and took no heed of the admonitions of such eminent men as James J. Hill, Andrew Carnegie and George Clinton.

Gov. Johnson's Plan

This year Gov. Johnson and the Minnesota delegation to the congress are coming forward with a practical proposition.

Article 5 of the Constitution of the United States provides that whenever two-thirds of the several states shall through their legislatures make application to congress for an amendment to the Constitution, congress shall call a convention for the purpose of considering such amendments.

The Mississippi valley states, together with the solid Southern states and a majority of the Western states will, it is certain unite in such a movement.

If it works successfully, the man who first promotes it in a public declaration will become a center of interest.

The scheme is a broad and comprehensive one, and the details will be hereafter set forth.

There are only two ways of amending the Constitution of the United States.

First—Congress by a two thirds vote of both houses may submit to the legislatures of the several states amendments; or,

Second—Two thirds of the several states may apply to congress through their legislatures for constitutional amendments.

The first ten amendments to the Constitution were proposed by congress to the several states during the First congress in 1789.

The eleventh amendment was proposed to the states by the Third congress in 1794.

The twelfth amendment was proposed to the states by the Eighth congress in 1803, and there were no more amendments until in 1865 the thirteenth amendment was proposed to the states by the Thirty-eighth congress.

Then followed the fourteenth amendment proposed by the Thirty-ninth congress in 1866, and the fifteenth amendment by the Fortieth congress in 1869.

To Create a Precedent

The several states have never proposed amendments to the national congress, but it is proposed that the time is now opportune to do so.

With the federal Constitution as a guide the governors of thirty states can submit to the legislatures the necessity of a change in the Constitution, since it seems to be pretty generally conceded that congress is not going to propose any more amendments to the states.

Probably the one central feature considered will be the water transportation question and the control of the water powers on navigable streams by federal authority.

There are some very absurd and ridiculous matters connected with the national waterways.

Ever since the formation of the government the work of conserving maintaining and improving the national waterways and our harbors has been under the direction and control of one branch or bureau of the war department.

This is the engineer's office which in times of war has to do with difficult engineering feats and in times of peace with civil works such as building bridges military roads and posts. Not one quarter of the time of the engineer's office is given to the waterways question proper.

Congress has rejected the proposition of President Roosevelt to establish a permanent inland water commission. The bill passed the house last session as reported by Representative Stevens of St. Paul, but it went to sleep in the Senate. Congress or rather the senate has time and again refused to propose to the state an amendment to the constitution for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. And more than twenty states have memoralized congress for such an amendment.

Are Going to Awaken

The great west including the Rocky mountains the Pacific coast the northwest states and the tier of southern and gulf states are going to awaken to the situation.

It is true that President Roosevelt twenty years in advance of the day, has forseen all of this, and it is true, too, that Gov. Johnson backed strongly by business and industrial sentiment, will propose the constitutional remedy to the existing situation.

The basic feature of course, will be to have an entirely separate and distinct department of waterways independent from the department of commerce and labor, or the interstate commerce commission or even from the proposed department of transportation proper.

By advancnig a constitutional convention, Gov. Johnson will strike a popular chord. And the democratic governors of Ohio and Indiana, who were elected on the question of general license as against moral local option will simply be distanced at the post by Minnesota's strong and growing, young governor.

Deputy Sheriff Burkhardt has just finished issuing the subpoenas for those who are to appear before the grand jury, and Deputy Sheriff Orin Daniels will at once serve the papers There are about 20 cases thus far to be brought to the attention of the grand jury which will convene in Polk County on Dec. 1st and the petit jury will convene on Dec. 7th.

NEW LAW ON HANDLING EXPLOSIVES—On October 15 an important regulation of the Interstate Commerce Commission went into effect, relating to the transportation of high explosives such as dynamite and liquid explosives. It applies to kerosene, gasoline, naptha and kindred articles of commerce, and lays down elaborate rules for handling and shipping, all looking toward the safety of the public and the trainmen who handle the stuff. Cars containing these articles must be placarded with a diamond-shaped label of either white, yellow or red color, according to the classification of the goods shipped. Each box or case must be similarly labeled with a smaller label. Every safeguard seems to be thrown around the handling and transportation of this class of traffic and the regulations are much needed.

The meanest thing about mean people is how they don't care what you think of them for it.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

Nov. 21 In History.

James Hogg.

1595—Sir John Hawkins, English naval officer who served with Sir Francis Drake in American expeditions, died.

1835—James Hogg, the "Ettrick Shepherd," died; born 1770.

1886—Charles Francis Adams, United States minister to England during the civil war, died; born 1807. The career of Mr. Adams in the place which his father and grandfather had filled before him is often cited among the foremost triumphs of American diplomacy.

1899—Garret A. Hobart, vice president of the United States, died; born 1844.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Sun sets 4:34, rises 6:52; moon rises 5:14 a. m.; moon's age 28 days; 6:02 a. m., moon in conjunction with Mercury, passing 2 degrees north of the planet from west to east.

McINTOSH PASTOR—Rev. E. A. Mirick was at Crookston Tuesday attending a fellowship meeting and remained over to attend the installation of the new pastor of the Congregational church of that city.—McIntosh Times.

WOLVES ARE SASSY—Wolves are reported to be very plentiful in the northern Minnesota woods this winter and it is said that many deer are being killed by the beasts.

NEW UNIFORMS— The members of Company I are being measured by Capt. Westerberg for the new kahki service uniform to be issued by the war department soon. The new clothes are of an olive green color and much better grade of cloth than the old uniforms. They are expected about January 1st.

MORE RURAL PHONE LINES—The telephone crew which has been working on the new rural lines to the northwest of Bagley for the past number of months, discontinued work on Tuesday of this week, the weather having become too severe of late to make work progressive. The line is now completed as far as Gonvick.

SECURES DIVORCE — Edward T. Teitsworth appeared before Judge C. W. Stanton at Bemidji Monday in the interests of Mrs. Carrie North who had brought action against Solmon North, to secure a divorce. The court issued a decree of separation as petitioned for. Mrs. North was formerly a resident of Bagley but now making her home at Bemidji.

WHOLESALE STOCK MOVED — The wholesale house of Finch-Winslow Carlisle at Thief River Falls has moved its old store rooms to their fine new quarters just completed near the Soo station at that place. They now have one of the finest houses in the northwest and they, as well as the city of Thief River Falls have reasons to be proud of the new block.

DEMAND AND PRICES GOOD — W. W. Prichard has sold a 240 acre tract of land west of the city to Ole Habbestad of Lanesboro, Minn., for $35 an acre. This the so-called Baardson farm is well improved and well kept up. This is the second big deal in farm lands within the past ten days and both tracts having sold for $35 per acre the indications point not only to a revival in the real estate business but to a revival of prices as well.—Thief River Falls Press.

HELP OUT R. F. D. CARRIERS—At this time of the year it would not come amiss to call the attention to the patrons of the Rural Free Delivery to the fact that the cold weather will soon set in and that they would confer a special favor on mail carriers if they would stamp their letters instead of depositing pennies in the mail box to defray postage. It is no snap in cold weather to draw off your mitts, and with cold fingers, fumble around in the mail boxes gathering up pennies. This could be easily avoided if the people would provide themselves with stamps enought to last them thru the winter months. In summer time it probably does not make so much difference but during the winter, there is hardly any excuse for such imposition.

Who Likes Lemon Pies?

Everybody, but they are expensive and hard to make in the old way. You should try at once "OUR-PIE" Preparation for delicious Lemon pies. It is made from the choicest ingredients absolutely pure. Sure to please you, as it has thousands of others. A lady says: "I will never again try to make Lemon pie in the old way while I can get 'OUR-PIE' Preparation." Each package enough for two large pies. 10c.

It's the worst kind of luck when you have that kind.

JUDGE HAGEN PASSES AWAY

PROMINENT POLITICIAN AND RESPECTED PIONEER CITIZEN DIED THIS MORNING

NOTED AS A VIGOROUS WRITER AND HIGH TYPE OF MINNESOTA PIONEER

From Saturday's Daily—

Universal sorrow will be caused by the announcement of the death of Judge Ole E. Hagen at Bethesda hospital this morning at 9:24, from where he had been brought last Wednesday from Badger. He was honored as a citizen and respected as a neighbor, and tho the spirit has left the flesh, his memory, and what he has accomplished during his life's work will not be forgotten.

Faithful Public Official

Judge Ole E. Hagen for three terms Judge of Probate of Polk county, Minnesota, and one of the pioneer residents of Polk county and the city of Crookston died at the age of 55 years at 9.24 a. m. He has been sick for about four weeks and was taken ill at Badger, Roseau Co., Minn., of which county he has been a resident since 1904, while he was canvassing the county as a candidate for auditor to which office he was elected by a large majority at the last general election altho he was ill and unable to be around for more than a week before November 3rd.

Caused by Peritonitis

The cause of death is assigned to peritonitis. The change for the worse came so suddenly that two of his sons Midshipman O. O. Hagen at Annapolis Md., and Chris O. Hagen head of one of the bureaus in the Educational Department at Manila, P. I., were unable to be at his bedside when the end came. Paul Hagen who is a student at the University came up yesterday so that all of his sons and daughters were with him at the last except the two first above mentioned. O. O. Hagen has been speeding homeward since yesterday from Annapolis, Md. and is expected home on Sunday or Monday morning, and a cablegram has been sent to Chris Hagen at Manila.

Reared Large Family

Judge Hagen's wife died eight years ago, and he is survived by five sons and three daughters, Atty. E. O. Hagen, Paul Hagen, Edward Hagen, O. O. Hagen, Cris Hagen and the Misses Thora, Mary, and Inga Hagen.

Most of his sons and daughters have been with him continually since he was taken ill and everything possible has been done for him. Due to the kindness of the local Great Northern officials here he was carefully moved by rail from Badger to Crookston last Wednesday, and placed in Bethesda hospital where however he failed to improve and he passed away peacefully this morning.

A Vigorous, Able Writer

Judge Hagen ever since 1892 has been one of the leading figures in the political and public life of Northern Minnesota. His fame and ability as a writer and editor was known and recognized far and wide and far beyond the confines of his own state of Minnesota. As editor and proprietor of "Rodhuggeren" a weekly Norwegian newspaper published at Fergus Falls in the early nineties he exerted a great influence upon the public and political affairs of Northern Minnesota. He was later editor and one of the proprietors of "Fram" of Fargo and for about a year was editor of Normanden of Grand Forks, N. D. His efforts as a writer were always exerted in the cause of reform, and against wrong and injustice as he saw it. His heart always went out to the weak and the oppressed and this was the secret of his success and great popularity as a writer. He was always fearless and honest in the expression of his opinions on all subjects, and no one ever questioned his sterling integrity and honesty as a man both in private and public life. He was a devoted husband and father,—his private life was always clean and pure and an example to all men, and as a public servant he was ever faithful to his trust.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

OFFICER NELSON WANTS $200 REWARD

Anton Nelson the Crookston policeman, this week applied to Judge Watts in district court for a reward of $200 for the capture of Robert Kolseth charged with horse stealing and who last week plead guilty to the charge. At the expiration of twenty days the court will set a day of hearing and if at the hearing it is shown that Nelson is entitled to the reward, for the payment of which the statute makes provision, the court will direct that an order in payment of the claim be issued.

MARKET DAY SUCCESS BEYOND FORMER ONES

Between 3,000 And 4,000 Farmers In City From All Directions.

From Saturday's Daily—

2150 PEOPLE FED AT G. A. R. HALL —AUCTION SALE BEST YET HELD

Crookston's Fourth Market Day which is managed by a standing Market Day committee under the direction of the 25,000 Commercial Club of this city opened this morning bright and clear with the thermometer registering far above the freezing point and the streams of farmers pouring into the city exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the most enthusiastic promoters. Heretofore the market days have been held during busy seasons. Now the farmers are all thru with their work, and by 9 o'clock there were streams of teams entering the city from all directions, farmers driving as far as 30 miles. Before noon every livery stable and every available shed was packed with teams and livestock brought in for sale. Cattle, horses, sheep, poultry, butter, eggs and every form of farm produce came into the city in treble the quantity ever before seen in one day.

So splendid was the showing by noon that at the free dinner given the farmers in the G. A. R. hall considerable talk was heard in favor of erecting during the winter immense sheds and ample stock yards, together with a big auction stand, and making Market Day a permanent institution once each month and possibly twice a month during the fall months.

The merchants of the city have cooperated to make Market Day the success that was achieved today. Every merchant gives discounts of from 8 per cent to 25 per cent and in addition a free auctioneer is provided so that any farmer who desires may sell anything he has at auction free of cost, stock, machinery, produce, household goods etc., and this feature is a great drawing card, as nothing has ever been brought in yet that has not been sold.

By noon today the streets of Crookston would have made a stranger think Ringlings circus was in the city. At noon it was estimated that between 2,000 and 3,000 farmers were in the city.

Give people what you think they want instead of what they ask for, and you'll make a lot of enemies.

CONTESTS WERE VERY INTERESTING BOTH LIVESTOCK AND PRODUCE

The farmers with their wives and children first gathered at the G. A. R. Hall where a substantial lunch was served and 2150 people were fed.

The Contests

The first contest held was the team judging and a crowd of 2,000 people witnessed it and showed the keenest interest. There was the finest display of farm horses ever seen in Crookston, it being a mighty well-fed and sleek aggregation of teams they were. The judges had a difficult time to decide but finally made the following awards.

3200 Pound Class

1st, Wm. Beisweinger, Lowell Twp.
2nd August Reitmeier, Lowell Twp.

2600 Pound Class

1st, Thomas Lee, Mallory.
2nd, L. Capistran, northwest of city

Other entries in this class were Stevy Altpeter, Lowell, August Prudhomme, Gentilly. A. J. Knudson, Crookston, John Vandeverter, Andover, Thorger Oustby, Vineland, August Ross, Fisher.

Produce Contests

The produce contests aroused a vast amount of interest. It was held in the old Grill Restaurant building and there were scores of entries. For instance at the last butter contest there were 24. That is a fair indication as to the manner the farmers and their wives are becoming interested in Market Day. It is gratifying to note that the winners of two of the prizes, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Miller drove about 25 miles to attend Crookston's 4th Market Day. They were here last time, and this time they were here with a big bunch of their neighbors, some of whom were here before, and they will all be here again next time.

The Awards

Turkeys, 1st Frank Reber, Crookston.
2nd, D. H. Miller, Angus.
Butter, 1st, Mrs. D. H. Miller, Angus.
2nd, Mrs. J. E. Glover, Nielsville.
Pumpkins, 1 Jim Stephens Jr.
Squash, A. P. Johnson.
Hogs, 1st, G. N. Gergerson, Crookston.

CROOKSTON GIRL IN HOSPITAL

ALBERTINE FILIATRAULT IS BADLY INJURED IN SPOKANE, WASH.

From Saturday's Daily—

Miss Albertine Filiatrault, of Crookston is laid up in a hospital at Spokane Wash., suffering from injuries sustained as a result of a fall on a slippery pavement of that city in attempting to alight from a moving street car. A letter received this morning brought the first news of her accident, which it seems was rather serious. Miss Filiatrault grew to womanhood in Crookston, residing with her parents on State Street Jeromes addition.

According to word received here she was on the car and intended leaving at a certain street. She signaled the conductor to stop the car but it is claimed that he failed to do so. Being anxious to leave the car at that place she jumped off and on the slippery pavement failed to find a secure foothold and went down.

As a result of the fall she sustained several cuts about the head and also injury to her back, necessitating an operation. She was taken from the scene in an ambulance and tho her condition has been rather serious she expects to be able to leave the institution in a week or ten days.

Miss Filiatrault for the past two years had been employed in the bindery department of the Grand Forks Times, but spent a portion of the summer in Crookston before she left for Spokane where she intended to locate permanently.

One brother, A. Filiatrault resides at Grand Forks, but most of the rest of the family resides in this city, including Mrs. A. J. Neal wife of Conductor Neal of the Great Northern.

The one way to get the best of some people is to catch them at their worst.

ONLY SO IF CO. BOARD SAYS SO

SUPREME COURT SAYS RED LAKE FALLS DIVISION PETITION WHICH HAS

From Saturday's Daily—

The supreme court of Minnesota has rendered a decision in which county commissioners have the Czar beat a mile when it comes to dictating. An action was brought before Judge Watts in Red Lake Co., asking that the county auditor be restrained from further proceedings under the original county division petition and that the petition which has been lost for years, be officially declared lost so that action could be taken under a new petition which has already been signed. The supreme court holds that the petition is not lost till the county commissioners say so. Following is the decision.

Martin V. Evenson, plaintiff-respondent, vs. John B. O'Brien as county auditor of Red Lake county, defendant-respondent, A. P. Tourpin, intervener-appellant.

Syllabus: First—After a petition for the removal of a county seat has been filed with the county auditor, the county commissioners alone have jurisdiction to determine whether the petition has been lost and the proceedings withdrawn and abandoned.

Second—Such a petition having filed, the county auditor is required by statute to issue the proper notice for a meeting of the commissioners, and cannot be enjoined from so doing by reason of the fact that the petition had been taken from his office and could not be found.

Third—The filing of a second petition for the same purpose, does not confer jurisdiction upon the commissioners to consider it until it shall have been determined by that body that the petition had been lost or that the proceedings under the first one had been withdrawn and abandoned.

TRAGEDY AT MAPLE LAKE ONE DROWNED: 4 ESCAPE

Said To Be Second Drowning In History Of Maple Lake. Two Boys Ventured On Unsafe Ice And Broke Thru.

C. Nelson Drowned. Mrs. Klinger Went Under, Head Held Above Water By Hair For Half Hour Till Aid Came.

From Tuesday's Daily—

Yesterday Maple Lake claimed its second victim from drowning in the person of Chris Nelson 7 years of age, and it was only after a desperate struggle that five others escaped a watery grave, Mrs. Wm. Klinger having been held above water for half an hour by the hair of the head by Theodore Nelson while her husband dragged a boat from Maple Bay a distance of nearly half a mile with which to rescue her.

The two Nelson boys, Chris and a brother a year older were sent to Maple Bay to make some purchases, this being on the opposite end of the lake from Mentor. The boys were warned to keep off the ice and did so on the trip down. Enroute home the ice was too tempting and they ventured a short distance from the shore where they were sliding when Chris broke thru. His brother made frantic efforts to reach him by lying on the ice. The ice beneath him broke and it was with the greatest difficulty that he managed to scramble to shore.

Mrs. Kinger saw the accident and she rushed to the rescue and she too went into the water. Mr. Klinger and Theodore Nelson heard screams of the older Nelson boy and rushed to the edge of the lake. Both men lay flat on the ice, Klinger hanging on to Nelson's feet as he worked his way to the edge of the hole where Mrs. Kinger went thru and grabbed her by the hair just as she was going down the third time.

He held her head above water for a full half hour while Klinger rushed for a boat and Mrs. Klinger was rescued completely benumbed by the icy water.

As the men were dragging the boat to shore, Nelson broke thru the ice and not daring to hang onto the boat for fear he would upset it and again endanger thelife of Mrs. Klinger he took an icy plunge, and being benumbed from lying so long on the ice without exercise he was all but helpless. However Mr. Klinger after taking his wife from the boat pushed it out over the ice and into the open water and Nelson managed to cling to it till he was towed to shore. The experience was one which none of the party care to repeat and while the loss of one life has cast a shadow of gloom over the permanent raisdents of the summer resort, all realize that a much more horrible tragedy was very narrowly averted.

The only other drowning that ever occurred at Maple Lake was a little Zeigler boy many years ago, the record of Maple Lake in this connection being really remarkable.

Mr. and Mrs. Klinger are both well known in Crookston having made their home here at one time, and with Mr. Nelson are well known to all summer residents of Maple Lake.

BAGLEY WIDOW LOSES HOME

HOUSE AND ALL ITS CONTENTS NEAR BAGLEY, IS BURNED

WIDOW IS LEFT IN MOST DESTITUTE OF CIRCUMSTANCES

From Tuesday's Daily—

The house of Christine Larsen a widow living about four miles west of Bagley was burned last night while she was absent. The building was completely destroyed with all her furniture and other effects leaving her in destitute circumstances. The origin of the fire is not known.

J. J. MOLSTAD LOGGING CLAIM

200,000 FEET BANKED AND AS MUCH MORE IN SIGHT—KILLED TWO DEER

J. J. Molstad returned a few days ago from his valuable claim on Battle River, one of the finest in that section of the country. He has been up there for about a month over seeing some logging operations. He has 200,000 feet of logs on skids now, and will have as much more before the first of the year if the weather remains good.

In addition to pine Mr. Molstad also has other valuable varieties including some very fine cedar. After attending to some business matters in conection with the repairs of his building on Robert street, Mr. Molstad will return to his claim for another short stay. The building will be ready for the plasturers in a few days.

When he returned from his claim Mr. Molstad brought down two fine deer which he shot near his place, and his friends have been enjoying some fine deer meat as a result of his prowess with his trusty rifle.

LEGISLATORS MEET HERE

SIX OF THE THIRTEEN MEMBERS FROM 9TH DISTRICT CAUCUS

LOOKS AS THO ROCKNE WOULD GET SPEAKERSHIP SUPPORT

From Tuesday's Daily—

Representative John Saugstad called a meeting of all members of the state legislature from the 9th congressional district in this city today, and in response six out of 13 are present as follows. Representatives Saugstad and Holton from Polk, Robertson from Argyle, Marshall, Selerude from Halstad, Norman; Opsahl from Bemidji, Beltrami; and McGraw, Barnesville Clay.

They held an informal session this morning and this afternoon Messrs. Robertson, Opsahl, Selerude and McGraw are being shown over the state school of Agriculture and the experiment farm by Supt. Robertson and Prof. Harrington.

This evening an executive session will be held at the Hotel Crookston at which time action will be taken on the Speakership and it now looks very much like a solid Rockne delegation. Other matters of legislation will also be brought up and discussed, the idea being for the entire 9th district delegation to act in harmony.

THE MAINE SALOON CHANGES HANDS

HARM & OESCHGER PURCHASE THE BUSINESS OF DAN SULLIVAN

"The Maine" one of the best known emporiums of liquid refreshments in East Grand Forks underwent a change in proprietors last evening. Dan Sullivan, the veteran proprietor, disposed of the business yesterday to Harm & Oeschger who recently sustained a loss by fire, which completely destroyed their place of business together with contents. The new proprietors assumed charge last evening. Mr. Sullivan will take a needed rest before engaging in business.

People with a vivid imagination should study the "rules of evidence" pretty thoroly before they talk much.

TILING NEEDED

TO CONVERT RED RIVER VALLEY INTO ONE GREAT GARDEN SPOT

JOHN W. LEE SAYS VALLEY DESTINED TO BE GREAT POTATO COUNTRY

HE RAISED ABOUT 11000 BUSHELS ON ANDOVER FARM THIS YEAR

From Tuesday's Daily—

"I witnessed land advance in price from $5 per acre to $175 in Iowa. I may not live to see it here, but others will. Of course all the land in Iowa is not worth that price but some of it is. The gumbo soil in the Red River Valley needs tile drainage to make it as rich as any on the face of the earth. Here again the Red River Valley has the advantage over the heavy soil in Iowa and Illinois that required tile drainage as here you only have to drain the low swales, as the high ridges are all right now. This will reduce the cost to one-half the cost of drainage in Iowa. When the tiling is completed the whole Red River Valley would be a garden spot."

This statement was made by John W. Lee who located in Andover Township near this city four years ago and this year raised about 11,000 bushels of potatoes from 112 acres despite the lack of moisture, and will hold all but about 1,000 for seed. His seed potatoes are all Early Ohios, and he expects to ship them south for seed during the winter as they mature very rapidly when sown south and will be shipped back in the form of the early southern crop for the northern market.

Mr. Lee says that with such soil as is found here he can raise a successful crop of potatoes with a half inch of rainfall. However he cultivates his potatoes along different lines than those usually employed. He says the use of the shovel cultivator is ruinous to the potatoes, as the shovels tear up the potato roots and loosen the soil so that the sundries it out to too great a depth and the roots can secure no moisture at all.

He uses a knife like cultivator which goes only from an inch to two inches deep, and this is followed by an attachment which pulverizes the soil on top, leaving a mulching from one to two inches deep, and he says the moisture below this depth will take care of the potato crop if not disturbed.

Many farmers this year had a rather light potato crop, claiming the season was too dry, but while Mr. Lee did not have a bumper crop he averaged 100 bushels per acre nearly, and his potatoes are of a very fine quality and will make a very good paying crop. In addition the land on which he raised potatoes will raise a bumper crop of any kind of grain he wishes to sow on it next year, and this alone is worth a great deal, added to the fact that in addition to the cultivation his potato land is absolutely free from all manner of foul weed soon.

A Piano at a Nominal Price

Chicago's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, announces a Rebuilding Clearing sale of Pianos. Nearly one thousand splendid instruments are offered without reserve until all are sold In this stock are fine new Mehlin, Hardman, Ivers & Pond, Smith & Nixon and other noted pianos formerly owned by the Thompson Music Co., the Healy Music Co., and the big F. G. Thearle Piano Co. All these concerns were bought out for spot cash by Lyon & Healy and the public may now share the advantage. In this sale are also a number of Steinway and Weber pianos. In upright pianos neat instruments at $100, $120, $140, $150, $165, $190, $200 and upwards. This is an unprecedented opportunity that will not occur again. Any piano not proving entirely satisfactory may be returned at their expense. Address Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago. Distance is no obstacle, for in proportion to the saving to be made the freight charges are insignificant. Any banker will assure you of the entire responsibility of Lyon & Healy, and their record of 45 years for honorable dealing. Write today so as to avoid disappointment.

Suit has been instituted in the district court here by the heirs of the Griggs estate against the estate of Mrs. Hattie Hines recently deceased to quite title to the property on DeMers avenue, East Grand Forks, near the bridge formerly occupied by the wyholesale liquor establishment and saloon of Harm & Oeschger, recently destroyed by fire. The land is a small triangular piece of ground, consoidered valuable on account of its location The suit will probably come up at the next term of court. Bronson & Collins represent the plaintiffs.

VERDICT OF $5,000

CONGRESSMAN H. STEENERSON WON HARD FOUGHT CASE IN FEDERAL COURT

CLIENT TERRIBLY INJURED WHILE WORKING FOR DULUTH ELEVATOR COMPANY

IVAR WALLIN AS GUARDIAN OF SON BROUGHT ACTION — SEALED VERDICT

From Tuesday's Daily—

The case of Ivar Wallin as father of James Wallin, a minor vs. the Duluth Elevator Co., went to the jury late Saturday in the Federal Court at Fergus Falls and an agreement was reached about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. The verdict was then sealed and was opened in court Monday forenoon. It awards the plaintiff damages to the extent of $5,000.

The boy in whose behalf the suit was brought was severely injured while in the employ of the elevator company, a large scar extending completely across the top of his head and his skull being crushed in to some extent. Physicians were placed an the stand who testified that his mind had been affected by his injuries, as he has sincce shown little disposition to work and complained of sleepiness and has no aptitude for study, whereas he was an unusually bright and industrious boy before the accident occurred. The defense ridiculed the claims and endeavored to give the impression that he was shamming, but the jury felt that he was entitled to damages. Congressman Steenerson handled the case for the boy and wins a handsome verdict for him.

The case of George A. Post vs. the Northern Pacific railway company, is now on trial. This case is one in which the plaintiff was injured by falling into a coal pit at Dilworth. The suit is for $10,000.

It will be the last case tried this term.

ESTABLISH BANK AT FALLS

M. F. MURPHY OF GRAND FORKS AND W. J. MOONEY OF LANGDON

TO PUT IN FIRST NATIONAL BANK IN BOUNDARY LINE TOWN

M. F. Murphy of Grand Forks and W. J. Mooney of Langdon have decided to establish a state bank with a capital of $25,000 in International Falls to be in operation in the old First National bank building Dec. 1.

Messrs. Murphy and Mooney spent several days in the Falls and purchased two lots on which they intend to build a brick block in the spring.

ROADS TO FIGHT FOR BUSINESS

THREE TRANSCONTINENTAL LINES WILL SOON BE IN BRISK COMPETITION

Transcontinental railroads are beginning a hard struggle with one another for the rapidly increasing freight traffic between the Pacific coast and the markets of the east.

During the dull times of the past year the roads were all making preparations for this great battle but only with the return of prosperity and the increase in industrial activity has the competition begun to be noticeable.

The first move has been made by the Northern Pacific road, which has chopped off 24 hours from the running time of its fast freights between here and the Pacific coast.

The Great Northern will follow suit and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road when completed will add a third direct competitor to the list.

D. D. HORTON MAY LOCATE IN WEST

D. D. Horton arrived in the city from Cloquet this morning and is spending the day in the city visiting relatives and attending to some business matters. Mr. Horton is interested in a picture show at Cloquet and reports business is good. He will leave tomorrow evening for the far west to look up some new locations and if he finds conditions as reported will decide to remain there permanently, and sell out at Cloquet, having had a good offer for his business there.

WINNER IN WORD CONTEST

RUDOLPH SAUGSTAD OF CLIMAX WON INTERESTING MARKET DAY FEATURE

FORMED 331 WORDS FROM "MARKET DAY" AFFAIR WAS A GRAND SUCCESS

From Monday's Daily—

The winner of the Market Day word contest was Randolph C. Saugstad Climax, Minn., Route 1, aged 12 years He had 501 words or combinations submitted of which 331 were allowed. The judge's decision being based on Webster's International dictionary as authority. Owing to a lack of time it was not ascertained how many of the 170 words not allowed are found in the dictionary supplement and in the dictionary of names and noted names in Fiction.

The five contestants submitting the greatest number of combinations are as follows:

	Submitted	Allowed
Randolph C. Saugstad ..	501	331
Clara Hoffman	513	173
Cora Millette	482	208
Mabel Lervin	350	188
Josie Nelson, Climax ...	325	135

It should be remembered that in contests of this nature that the new words formed should be not simply combinations of letters, but actual words found in the English language, Words of other languages not "naturalized" should not be allowed. Abbreviations and prefixes are not words a letter may be used as many times only as it occurs in the original. Many of the recent contestants had their numbers cut down nearly half and some more, because they used the letters more times in the new words than the letters are contained in the original.

There were 58 contestants and the contest was a greater success in every way than was anticipated. The interest was widespread and the Journal had repeated telephone calls Sunday and this morning to find who was the winner.

Randolph Saugstad is a son of Representative John Saugstad of Climax and the manner in which he got up his list is certainly a credit to a boy of 12 years of age, or 20 either. It was written on one long narrow list and folded the size of an envelope and addressed to "The Honorable Word Contest Committee." The words formed begining with each letter were separated and all was typewritten.

Prof. N. A. Thorson who went over the lists had a herculean task and was greatly surprised at the long lists submitted.

RAINY LAKE NOT SOLD

W. H. COOKE DENIES CANADIAN NORTHERN HAS SECURED CONTROL OF ROAD

W. H. Cook, president of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad. and heavily interested in the Virginia Lumber company, upon his return to Duluth Saturday officially denied that the Canadian Northern interests had secured control of the Rainy Lake road or that the Hines interests had secured control of the lumber holdings of the Virginia Lumber company.

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that the Canadian Northern road has secured control of the Duluth Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road," said Mr. Cook. "There is also no truth in the statement that the Hines interests have consolidated with the interests of the Virginia Lumber company in the control of the holdings of that company."

This is the first official statement that has come from the head of the Rainy Lake road and the Virginia Lumber company regarding the many rumors of the purchase of the Rainy.

RAPID RECOVERY OF DR. ROBERTSON

ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL A WEEK AFTER AN OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Dr. E. P. Robertson president of Wesley college at Grand Forks, and brother of Supt. Wm. Robertson of the Crookston state Experiment farm who underwent an operation for appendicitis a week ago in St. Michael's hospital, had recovered sufficiently to return to his home yesterday afternoon. He is feeling almost as well as ever and will soon be able to look after Wesley college as usual. He is interested in the fact that the excavation work for the new Larimore hall has been commenced. He will take steps to secure a fund of $100,000 as soon as his health will permit.

FRENCH GETS SLATER'S JOB

WABASHA COUNTY MAN TO BE NEW FOOD COMMISSIONER

SLATER WILL SHORTLY BEGIN HIS SERVICES IN AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL

From Monday's Daily—

Andrew French of Plainview, Wabasha county, will succeed E. K. Slater as state dairy and food commissioner Jan. 1. The appointment was announced today by Gov. Johnson.

Mr. Slater last summer accepted an appointment as assistant director of the dairy department at the state agricultural school, taking effect at the end of his present term.

Mr. French is the man who has twice made the race for congress against James A. Tawney in the first district. He is a farmer and practical dairyman, and has been active in dairy organizations and all the farmers movements.

He is a member of state board of equalization. In politics he is a strong Bryan man and last spring worked with the Bryan faction against Gov. Johnson's presidential ambitions. Politically his appointment will offset the dismissal of Labor Commissioner Williams who was about the only member of the radical wing of the party in the old administration.

GRANARY CAUGHT FIRE

R. T. BUCKLER, BIG FARMER IN ANDOVER NARROWLY ESCAPED BIG LOSS

FULL GRANARY CAUGHT FIRE BUT HARD WORK SAVED STRUCTURE

From Monday's Daily—

This morning fire was discovered in the big granary of R. T. Buckler, one of the large and prosperous farmers southeast of Crookston in the town of Andover.

Altho the flames had got under good headway there was fortunately a big tank of water convenient and under the direction of Mr. Buckler the men formed a bucket brigade and after a hard fight the flames were extinguished before a great deal of damage had been done by fire, tho considerable grain was damaged by the water used.

The granary was full of grain and had not the fire got in control the loss would have been heavy and in addition the other buildings would have been threatened and as they are all first class modern buildings the loss would have been deplorable had they burned.

KEY WEST

We are having the finest of weather some of the farmers were plowing till Tuesday when the snow started.

Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Augustine, Victoria Nyquist, John Grundahl took dinner at the Keystone farm Sunday.

Miss Catherine Nyquist is visiting Mrs. John Caper at the Keystone farm this week.

The Ladies Missionary society will give a chicken pie supper at the M. W. A. hall at Key West Dec. 11 every body is invited to come and have a good time.

Those who drove to Grand Forks were Mr. and Mrs. Jno Caper, Everett Caper, Will Grundahl, P. O. Augustine Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Grundahl and Wm Koelling.

John R. Capes left Sunday for Illinois where he was called on business

R. Thomson was here visiting old time friends the later part of last week and left Saturday for his home on a claim in western North Dakota.

Two boys Albert Gamache and Chas Dupont were drowned near Cass Lake last night. The boys were skating. The ice was not safe. Their parents became alarmed and went in search. They found their coats on the bank and their caps floating in the watter They searched all night and the bodies were found this morning.

If you have the right frame of mind you will be able to find material enough to make a tolerably decent structure of it.

TRAGEDY AT MAPLE LAKE ONE DROWNED: 4 ESCAPE

Said To Be Second Drowning In History Of Maple Lake, Two Boys Ventured On Unsafe Ice And Broke Thru.

C. Nelson Drowned. Mrs. Klinger Went Under, Head Held Above Water By Hair For Half Hour Till Aid Came.

From Tuesday's Daily—

Yesterday Maple Lake claimed its second victim from drowning in the person of Chris Nelson 7 years of age, and it was only after a desperate struggle that five others escaped a watery grave, Mrs. Wm. Klinger having been held above water for half an hour by the hair of the head by Theodore Nelson while her husband dragged a boat from Maple Bay a distance of nearly half a mile with which to rescue her.

The two Nelson boys, Chris and a brother a year older were sent to Maple Bay to make some purchases, this being on the opposite end of the lake from Mentor. The boys were warned to keep off the ice and did so on the trip down. Enroute home the ice was too tempting and they ventured a short distance from the shore where they were sliding when Chris broke thru. His brother made frantic efforts to reach him by lying on the ice. The ice beneath him broke and it was with the greatest difficulty that he managed to scramble to shore.

Mrs. Kinger saw the accident and she rushed to the rescue and she too went into the water. Mr. Klinger and Theodore Nelson heard screams of the older Nelson boy and rushed to the edge of the lake. Both men lay flat on the ice, Klinger hanging on to Nelson's feet as he worked his way to the edge of the hole where Mrs. Kinger went thru and grabbed her by the hair just as she was going down the third time.

He held her head above water for a full half hour while Klinger rushed for a boat and Mrs. Klinger was rescued completely benumbed by the icy water.

As the men were dragging the boat to shore, Nelson broke thru the ice and not daring to hang onto the boat for fear he would upset it and again endanger thelife of Mrs. Klinger he took an icy plunge, and being benumbed from lying so long on the ice without exercise he was all but helpless. However Mr. Klinger after taking his wife from the boat pushed it out over the ice and into the open water and Nelson managed to cling to it till he was towed to shore. The experience was one which none of the party care to repeat and while the loss of one life has cast a shadow of gloom over the permanent raisdents of the summer resort, all realize that a much more horrible tragedy was very narrowly averted.

The only other drowning that ever occurred at Maple Lake was a little Zeigler boy many years ago, the record of Maple Lake in this connection being really remarkable.

Mr. and Mrs. Klinger are both well known in Crookston having made their home here at one time, and with Mr. Nelson are well known to all summer residents of Maple Lake.

BAGLEY WIDOW LOSES HOME

HOUSE AND ALL ITS CONTENTS NEAR BAGLEY, IS BURNED

WIDOW IS LEFT IN MOST DESTITUTE OF CIRCUMSTANCES

From Tuesday's Daily—

The house of Christine Larsen a widow living about four miles west of Bagley was burned last night while she was absent. The building was completely destroyed with all her furniture and other effects leaving her in destitute circumstances. The origin of the fire is not known.

J. J. MOLSTAD LOGGING CLAIM

200,000 FEET BANKED AND AS MUCH MORE IN SIGHT—KILLED TWO DEER

J. J. Molstad returned a few days ago from his valuable claim on Battle River, one of the finest in that section of the country. He has been up there for about a month over seeing some logging operations. He has 200,000 feet of logs on skids now, and will have as much more before the first of the year if the weather remains good.

In addition to pine Mr. Molstad also has other valuable varieties including some very fine cedar. After attending to some business matters in conection with the repairs of his building on Robert street, Mr. Molstad will return to his claim for another short stay. The building will be ready for the plasturers in a few days.

When he returned from his claim Mr. Molstad brought down two fine deer which he shot near his place, and his friends have been enjoying some fine deer meat as a result of his prowess with his trusty rifile.

LEGISLATORS MEET HERE

SIX OF THE THIRTEEN MEMBERS FROM 9TH DISTRICT CAUCUS

LOOKS AS THO ROCKNE WOULD GET SPEAKERSHIP SUPPORT

From Tuesday's Daily—

Representative John Saugstad called a meeting of all members of the state legislature from the 9th congressional district in this city today, and in response six out of 13 are present as follows. Representatives Saugstad and Holton from Polk, Robertson from Argyle, Marshall, Selerude from Halstad, Norman; Opsahl from Bemidji, Beltrami; and McGraw, Barnesville Clay.

They held an informal session this morning and this afternoon Messrs. Robertson, Opsahl, Selerude and McGraw are being shown over the state school of Agriculture and the experiment farm by Supt. Robertson and Prof. Harrington.

This evening an executive session will be held at the Hotel Crookston at which time action will be taken on the Speakership and it now looks very much like a solid Rockne delegation. Other matters of legislation will also be brought up and discussed, the idea being for the entire 9th district delegation to act in harmony.

THE MAINE SALOON CHANGES HANDS

HARM & OESCHGER PURCHASE THE BUSINESS OF DAN SULLIVAN

"The Maine" one of the best known emporiums of liquid refreshments in East Grand Forks underwent a change in proprietors last evening. Dan Sullivan, the veteran proprietor, disposed of the business yesterday to Harm & Oeschger who recently sustained a loss by fire, which completely destroyed their place of business together with contents. The new proprietors assumed charge last evening. Mr. Sullivan will take a needed rest before engaging in business.

People with a vivid imagination should study the "rules of evidence" pretty thoroly before they talk much.

TILING NEEDED

TO CONVERT RED RIVER VALLEY INTO ONE GREAT GARDEN SPOT

JOHN W. LEE SAYS VALLEY DESTINED TO BE GREAT POTATO COUNTRY

HE RAISED ABOUT 11000 BUSHELS ON ANDOVER FARM THIS YEAR

From Tuesday's Daily—

"I witnessed land advance in price from $5 per acre to $175 in Iowa. I may not live to see it here, but others will. Of course all the land in Iowa is not worth that price but some of it is. The gumbo soil in the Red River Valley needs tile drainage to make it as rich as any on the face of the earth. Here again the Red River Valley has the advantage over the heavy soil in Iowa and Illinois that required tile drainage as here you only have to drain the low swales, as the high ridges are all right now. This will reduce the cost to one-half the cost of drainage in Iowa. When the tiling is completed the whole Red River Valley would be a garden spot."

This statement was made by John W. Lee who located in Andover Township near this city four years ago and this year raised about 11,000 bushels of potatoes from 112 acres despite the lack of moisture, and will hold all but about 1,000 for seed. His seed potatoes are all Early Ohios, and he expects to ship them south for seed during the winter as they mature very rapidly when sown south and will be shipped back in the form of the early southern crop for the northern market.

Mr. Lee says that with such soil as is found here he can raise a successful crop of potatoes with a half inch of rainfall. However he cultivates his potatoes along different lines than those usually employed. He says the use of the shovel cultivator is ruinous to the potatoes, as the shovels tear up the potato roots and loosen the soil so that the sundries it out to too great a depth and the roots can secure no moisture at all.

He uses a knife like cultivator which goes only from an inch to two inches deep, and this is followed by an attachment which pulverizes the soil on top, leaving a mulching from one to two inches deep, and he says the moisture below this depth will take care of the potato crop if not disturbed.

Many farmers this year had a rather light potato crop, claiming the season was too dry, but while Mr. Lee did not have a bumper crop he averaged 100 bushels per acre nearly, and his potatoes are of a very fine quality and will make a very good paying crop. In addition the land on which he raised potatoes will raise a bumper crop of any kind of grain he wishes to sow on it next year, and this alone is worth a great deal, added to the fact that in addition to the cultivation his potato land is absolutely free from all manner of foul weed soon.

A Piano at a Nominal Price

Chicago's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, announces a Rebuilding Clearing sale of Pianos. Nearly one thousand splendid instruments are offered without reserve until all are sold. In this stock are fine new Mehlin, Hardman, Ivers & Pond, Smith & Nixon and other noted pianos formerly owned by the Thompson Music Co., the Healy Music Co., and the big F. G. Thearle Piano Co. All these concerns were bought out for spot cash by Lyon & Healy and the public may now share the advantage. In this sale are also a number of Steinway and Weber pianos. In upright pianos neat instruments at $100, $120, $140, $150, $165, $190, $200 and upwards. This is an unprecedented opportunity that will not occur again. Any piano not proving entirely satisfactory may be returned at their expense. Address Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago. Distance is no obstacle, for in proportion to the saving to be made the freight charges are insignificant. Any banker will assure you of the entire responsibility of Lyon & Healy, and their record of 45 years for honorable dealing. Write today so as to avoid disappointment.

Suit has been instituted in the district court here by the heirs of the Griggs estate against the estate of Mrs. Hattie Hines recently deceased to quite title to the property on DeMers avenue, East Grand Forks, near the bridge formerly occupied by the wyholesale liquor establishment and saloon of Harm & Oeschger, recently destroyed by fire. The land is a small triangular piece of ground, consoidered valuable on account of its location The suit will probably come up at the next term of court. Bronson & Collins represent the plaintiffs.

VERDICT OF $5,000

CONGRESSMAN H. STEENERSON WON HARD FOUGHT CASE IN FEDERAL COURT

CLIENT TERRIBLY INJURED WHILE WORKING FOR DULUTH ELEVATOR COMPANY

IVAR WALLIN AS GUARDIAN OF SON BROUGHT ACTION — SEALED VERDICT

From Tuesday's Daily—

The case of Ivar Wallin as father of James Wallin, a minor vs. the Duluth Elevator Co., went to the jury late Saturday in the Federal Court at Fergus Falls and an agreement was reached about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. The verdict was then sealed and was opened in court Monday forenoon. It awards the plaintiff damages to the extent of $5,000.

The boy in whose behalf the suit was brought was severely injured while in the employ of the elevator company, a large scar extending completely across the top of his head and his skull being crushed in to some extent. Physicians were placed on the stand who testified that his mind had been affected by his injuries, as he has since shown little disposition to work and complained of sleepiness and has no aptitude for study, whereas he was an unusually bright and industrious boy before the accident occurred. The defense ridiculed the claims and endeavored to give the impression that he was shamming, but the jury felt that he was entitled to damages. Congressman Steenerson handled the case for the boy and wins a handsome verdict for him.

The case of George A. Post vs. the Northern Pacific railway company, is now on trial. This case is one in which the plaintiff was injured by falling into a coal pit at Dilworth. The suit is for $10,000.

It will be the last case tried this term.

ESTABLISH BANK AT FALLS

M. F. MURPHY OF GRAND FORKS AND W. J. MOONEY OF LANGDON

TO PUT IN FIRST NATIONAL BANK IN BOUNDARY LINE TOWN

M. F. Murphy of Grand Forks and W. J. Mooney of Langdon have decided to establish a state bank with a capital of $25,000 in International Falls to be in operation in the old First National bank building Dec. 1.

Messrs. Murphy and Mooney spent several days in the Falls and purchased two lots on which they intend to build a brick block in the spring.

ROADS TO FIGHT FOR BUSINESS

THREE TRANSCONTINENTAL LINES WILL SOON BE IN BRISK COMPETITION

Transcontinental railroads are beginning a hard struggle with one another for the rapidly increasing freight traffic between the Pacific coast and the markets of the east.

During the dull times of the past year the roads were all making preparations for this great battle but only with the return of prosperity and the increase in industrial activity has the competition begun to be noticeable.

The first move has been made by the Northern Pacific road, which has chopped off 24 hours from the running time of its fast freights between here and the Pacific coast.

The Great Northern will follow suit and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road when completed will add a third direct competitor to the list.

D. D. HORTON MAY LOCATE IN WEST

D. D. Horton arrived in the city from Cloquet this morning and is spending the day in the city visiting relatives and attending to some business matters. Mr. Horton is interested in a picture show at Cloquet and reports business is good. He will leave tomorrow evening for the far west to look up some new locations and if he finds conditions as reported will decide to remain there permanently, and sell out at Cloquet, having had a good offer for his business there.

WINNER IN WORD CONTEST

RUDOLPH SAUGSTAD OF CLIMAX WON INTERESTING MARKET DAY FEATURE

FORMED 331 WORDS FROM "MARKET DAY" AFFAIR WAS A GRAND SUCCESS

From Monday's Daily—

The winner of the Market Day word contest was Randolph C. Saugstad Climax, Minn., Route 1, aged 12 years He had 501 words or combinations submitted of which 331 were allowed. The judge's decision being based on Webster's International dictionary as authority. Owing to a lack of time it was not ascertained how many of the 170 words not allowed are found in the dictionary supplement and in the dictionary of names and noted names in Fiction.

The five contestants submitting the greatest number of combinations are as follows:

	Submitted	Allowed
Randolph C. Saugstad ..	501	331
Clara Hoffman	513	173
Cora Millette	482	208
Mabel Lervin	350	188
Josie Nelson, Climax ...	325	135

It should be remembered that in contests of this nature that the new words formed should be not simply combinations of letters, but actual words found in the English language, Words of other languages not "naturalized" should not be allowed. Abbreviations and prefixes are not words a letter may be used as many times only as it occurs in the original. Many of the recent contestants had their numbers cut down nearly half and some more, because they used the letters more times in the new words than the letters are contained in the original.

There were 58 contestants and the contest was a greater success in every way than was anticipated. The interest was widespread and the Journal had repeated telephone calls Sunday and this morning to find who was the winner.

Randolph Saugstad is a son of Representative John Saugstad of Climax and the manner in which he got up his list is certainly a credit to a boy of 12 years of age, or 20 either. It was written on one long narrow list and folded the size of an envelope and addressed to "The Honorable Word Contest Committee." The words formed begining with each letter were separated and all was typewritten.

Prof. N. A. Thorson who went over the lists had a herculean task and was greatly surprised at the long lists submitted.

RAINY LAKE NOT SOLD

W. H. COOKE DENIES CANADIAN NORTHERN HAS SECURED CONTROL OF ROAD

W. H. Cook, president of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad. and heavily interested in the Virginia Lumber company, upon his return to Duluth Saturday officially denied that the Canadian Northern interests had secured control of the Rainy Lake road or that the Hines interests had secured control of the lumber holdings of the Virginia Lumber company.

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that the Canadian Northern road has secured control of the Duluth Rainy Lake & Winnipeg road," said Mr. Cook. "There is also no truth in the statement that the Hines interests have consolidated with the interests of the Virginia Lumber company in the control of the holdings of that company."

This is the first official statement that has come from the head of the Rainy Lake road and the Virginia Lumber company regarding the many rumors of the purchase of the Rainy.

RAPID RECOVERY OF DR. ROBERTSON

ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL A WEEK AFTER AN OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS

Dr. E. P. Robertson president of Wesley college at Grand Forks, and brother of Supt. Wm. Robertson of the Crookston state Experiment farm who underwent an operation for appendicitis a week ago in St. Michael's hospital, had recovered sufficiently to return to his home yesterday afternoon. He is feeling almost as well as ever and will soon be able to look after Wesley college as usual. He is interested in the fact that the excavation work for the new Larimore hall has been commenced. He will take steps to secure a fund of $100,000 as soon as his health will permit.

FRENCH GETS SLATER'S JOB

WABASHA COUNTY MAN TO BE NEW FOOD COMMISSIONER

SLATER WILL SHORTLY BEGIN HIS SERVICES IN AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL

From Monday's Daily—

Andrew French of Plainview, Wabasha county, will succeed E. K. Slater as state dairy and food commissioner Jan. 1. The appointment was announced today by Gov. Johnson.

Mr. Slater last summer accepted an appointment as assistant director of the dairy department at the state agricultural school, taking effect at the end of his present term.

VESSELS COLLIDE 70[illegible] ARE DROWNED

Miss Helen De Young Weds.

San Francisco, Dec. 1.—The marriage of Miss Helen De Young, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. De Young, to George Cameron, a business man of this city, was solemnized by Archbishop Riordan Monday. The couple will reside in San Mateo. This is the second wedding in the De Young family within a month, Miss Constance De Young having been married recently to Joseph Tobin.

Mercer County, Ohio, Goes Wet.

Celina, O., Dec. 1.—The local option election in Mercer county Monday resulted in a victory for the "wets" by a majority of 227.

TAFT HELPS BEAT CAN.

HE AND BOURNE WIN IN INTERNATIONAL GOLF GAME.

Hayward and Upham Call on President-Elect—Will Be Pennsylvania University Orator.

Hot Springs, Va., Dec. 1.—An international golf game was played here Monday between the president-elect of the United States and Senator Bourne of Oregon on one side and R. S. Borden, Conservative leader of the Canadian parliament, and G. H. Perley, Conservative member of the same body, on the other. The United States won by a score of "8 up."

Secretary William Hayward and Western Treasurer Fred W. Upham of the Republican national committee, called on Mr. Taft Monday on their way west from the Hitchcock dinner at Washington.

"We just talked over the campaign in a merry mood," said Mr. Taft. "Their visit was but a friendly call, having no political or other significance."

The president-elect was Monday invited to attend the annual dinner of the Jewelers' National association at Providence, R. I. He has not decided the matter.

Judge Taft admitted that he was receiving numerous suggestions from many sources as to who should be in his cabinet. "But I notice that very few suggestions are coming regarding the state department portfolio," he added.

Judge Taft was greatly affected by the news of the death of Richard Lindsay in Washington Monday. Mr. Lindsay, an old friend of Mr. Taft as a Washington correspondent, had been with him a greater part of the time during the campaign. After the election Mr. Lindsay came here on the initiative of the president-elect. Before he left here, ill, on Thanksgiving day, Mr. Taft spent some time in his room at the hotel. "Dick was one of those fine men we meet in life who give us a higher regard for human nature," was the sorrowful comment of Mr. Taft.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1.—Announcement was made by the University of Pennsylvania Monday that President-elect Taft will deliver the oration at the University day celebration to be held on Washington's birthday. This day has been observed for many years with great ceremony, and among those who have delivered the oration in later years were President McKinley, President Roosevelt and Joseph H. Choate.

CHINESE POLICIES

Secretary Root and Ambassador Takahira Get Together.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Secretary Root and Ambassador Takahira of Japan exchanged notes Monday afternoon at the state department covering the declaration of five articles which are to govern their policy in China and the Pacific, a full purport of which has been set forth. A final meeting between Mr. Root and Mr. Takahira preliminary to the signing of the note was held, when the matter was gone over finally. The articles will be given to the press for publication Wednesday. The state department is pleased with the manner in which the intentions of the two governments regarding the Pacific and China has been received. The newspaper publications show that there is still some real misconception of the attitude of the two countries, and for this reason Secretary Root says the exchange of notes is useful.

JAPANESE STEAMERS IN CRASH OFF PORT OF CHEFOO.

DISASTER IN DENSE FOG

Both Ships Sink, Carrying Down with Them Many American and European Passengers—Story of Eye-Witness.

Chefoo, China, Dec. 1.—Two Japanese steamships collided off this port Monday afternoon. Details of the accident were lacking, but it was reported that a total of 700 persons had been drowned.

According to the best information available, the vessels were passenger boats and heavily loaded with Europeans and Americans.

The crash suddenly came in a dense fog. The lookouts were unable to see more than a few yards ahead, and could not give the alarm in time for the passengers and crew to take to the lifeboats.

The ships crashed with a mighty impact within two minutes after warning cries had been sent down to those below.

Frantic Rush for Safety.

Instantly there was a frantic rush for safety. Not stopping to lower the boats, scores leaped into the sea. Most of these were drowned.

The vessels sank soon after the collision, taking down with them the passengers and crew who were asleep at the time of the accident.

The catastrophe was appalling, the news agency says, and was so complete that for a time not even the names of the ill-fated ships could be learned. The Japanese government went to work on the case, and expected soon to have the boats identified.

Story of Eye-Witness.

A fisherman who braved the dangers of the fog and plied his occupation during the adverse conditions reported that he heard the crash and happened on the terrible scene as he was making for shore. His description of the plight of the people who sought to escape from the vessels, both of which were passenger steamers, was melodramatic.

Utter Pitiful Wails.

Said the fisherman:

"I heard a crash in the fog, which was somewhat dulled by the distance from where I was fishing, but as I sought to get out of the way of the impending danger I pulled my boat almost into one of the vessels. However, I could not make out the steamer's name because of the dense fog, but I saw an awful scene. Women and children were uttering pitiful wails, and the men were shouting and yelling at the top of their voices.

Flees to Save Himself.

"It was hardly an instant after I happened upon the scene when I heard a man shout: 'She's going down!' I knew that I would be sucked in so with all speed I pulled away, trying to save a woman passenger who was in the water near me. She sank before I could reach her. Although the steamers had collided the impact seemed to drive them back from each other and both sank at about the same moment.

Many Jump Overboard.

"I presume that most of the passengers were below decks but there was a large number who attempted to save themselves by swimming. Most of those who reached the decks jumped into the water before the vessels went down and they were pulled under by the powerful force of the sinking steamers."

FLEET SAILS FROM MANILA.

Battleships Will Make Next Stop at Colombo, Ceylon.

Manila, Dec. 1.—The American battleship fleet under Rear Admiral Sperry sailed promptly at eight o'clock Tuesday morning. The next port of call is Colombo, Ceylon.

There was a series of sports and other amusements on shore Monday for the men, and about 1,500 sailors landed. Admiral Sperry and a number of officers were the guests at a reception given by the Germinal Tobacco Company, and in the evening they attended a reception and ball at Fort McKinley given by the army.

ABRUZZI YIELDS TO ROYAL FAMILY

CABLES MISS ELKINS MATCH IS DEFINITELY OFF—IT WILL NOT BE REVIVED—OBJECTIONS ON BITH SIDES THAT COULD NOT BE OVERCOME—DUKE MAY MAK EANOTHER DASH FOR POLE

Rome, Italy, Dec. 1.—The Elkins-Abruzzi match is now at an end for all time, according to information received from the most trustworthy source. The marriage has been abandoned definitely and there is not likely again to be any question about it.

All efforts to ascertain the exact reasons have been unsuccessful, but it is evident that they are based upon family objections on both sides which cannot be overcome.

This information is confirmed by the fact that the Perseveranza of Milan, a newspaper which is regarded as the mouthpiece of the Italian foreign office, declares the engagement is now off. Simultaneously with this publication the duke of the Abruzzi has dispatched a long cable message to Miss Elkins declaring that he has been unable to remove insuperable obstacles to the marriage.

May Make Dash for Pole Again.

The duke now intends to undertake a long voyage and probably make another dash for the pole. A few days ago he absented himself from Turin so long that it was thought he had gone to France en route to America, but it was discovered that he had gone to the little village of Courmaveur in the valley of Aosta, where he had a long interview all one night with his affectionate guides, Petigaz, father and son, who accompanied him into the polar regions. He then returned to Turin. It is believed the guides were ordered to hold themselves in readiness for another exploring adventure.

Why Marriage Is Dropped.

A final pronouncement is thus put forward by a most credible authority: "It was the duke of the Abruzzi, who decided to abandon the marriage when, after mature consideration, he became convinced it was impossible. Not to speak of certain demands made on the Elkins side, the duke became certain that Miss Elkins' position at court would not be what it ought. Then he concluded that it would be best to abandon the marriage and not expose the young woman to further publicity and press gossip. The Elkins family concurred in the decision and then the duke's cable message closed the affair."

The Perseveranza ends its comments as follows: "Thus there remains of this unpleasant episode only the unpleasant memory of the indecent acrobatic behavior of the yellow section of the American press."

ALLEGED BURGLARS

Federal Officers Make Important Arrests at Hot Springs, Ark.

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 1.—Three alleged safe blowers and post-office burglars whose trail of operation, it is declared, extends throughout the whole of the Mississippi valley, were arrested here Monday, waived examination before a United States commissioner in special session, and half an hour later were locked up in separate cells awaiting their removal to Danville, Ill., one of the places where they are under indictment.

Charles Gallagher, leader of the band, who travels under the aliases of Charles McMullin, "Laughing" Charlie and Charles Martin, was the first arraigned. Joe McCarthy, alias "Big Mack" and William Strong, alias "Yegg" Billie, are the others.

The arrests were made by Chief inspector C. L. Patterson and A. D. Brunsen of the St. Louis secret service office, who have been searching for the men for the greater part of three years. The men made no statements when arraigned.

Insurance Agent Kills Self.

Butte, Mont., Dec. 1.—W. H. True, aged 30, a special agent for the New York Life Insurance Company, killed himself by shooting in a lodging house Monday. His father is said to be a banker in Eureka Springs, Ark., and a brother is a captain in the army stationed at Vancouver barracks, Wash.

The man who amounts to nothing usually resents it when another man does.

CASTRO NOT GO TO PARIS

Otherwise the French Government Will Treat Him Courteously.

Paris, Dec. 1.—The French government is giving consideration to the question as to how President Castro of Venezuela shall be treated upon his arrival at Bordeaux. After the ignominious fashion in which the French minister was expelled from Caracas, the government feels that it would be justified in refusing to allow the president of Venezuela to land, but as Castro is reported to be ill, humanitarian considerations prevent the government from taking such a course.

It is probable, therefore, that a port official will be designated to board the steamer Guadeloupe on which Castro is a passenger, and ascertain his intentions. If Castro desires to be treated at Bordeaux he will be allowed to remain there; if at Berlin, he will be given a passport across France, via Lyons, to the Swiss frontier. But in no case will he be permitted to come to Paris.

President Castro's statement at Basse Terre, which he is reported to have made to interviewers, to the effect that he was proceeding to France to settle a diplomatic matter, was the first intimation the French government had that he had any intention of trying to settle Venezuela's diplomatic differences with this country.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—Neither the Venezuelan charge d'affaires here nor Prof. James Israel has heard anything as yet regarding the report that President Castro of Venezuela is to be operated on by Prof. Isreal when he arrives at Bordeaux.

PLAN TO DIVERT ARKANSAS RIVER

PINE BLUFF CITIZENS DECIDE ON RADICAL DEVICE.

THEIR CITY IS IN DANGER

Approaching Flood Likely to Undermine Big Buildings — Heavy Damage Is Done Near Tulsa, Okla.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Dec. 1.—Fearing that the already weakened banks of the Arkansas river would be unable to withstand the pressure of the water when the full force of the present rise reaches Pine Bluff, it was decided at a mass meeting of citizens held here Monday to divert, if possible, the channel of the river by the cutting through of a narrow strip of land where the river starts a "horse shoe bend" several miles north of this city.

This plan, if successful, while leaving Pine Bluff away from the main channel, would eliminate, it is believed, the danger of an overflow which would cause the destruction of a large amount of property.

The action of the mass meeting followed reports of the coming of a 16-foot rise in the river, the crest of which would probably reach Pine Bluff by Wednesday, and the sloughing off of a large piece of the bank, which has been gradually caving in for several months, following the recent flood.

Big Buildings in Danger.

During the flood of October 4 large warehouses were practically destroyed, and Monday a great crack was discovered in the big two-story warehouse of R. M. Knox, which has been clinging on the brink of the caving bank. That it is inevitable that this structure will go down is the opinion of building experts, and the safety of the Jefferson hotel, a $100,000 structure, and the Jefferson county bank and the courthouse is feared, as the bank has been eaten to within 30 feet of these buildings.

The government fleet arrived at Pine Bluff Saturday and a large force has been hard at work preparing for the construction of revetments, but it is said that this work will take two to three months.

In cutting through the strip of land, about 300 yards, as proposed, it will be necessary to cut through a great levee constructed several years ago. While this would doubtless be in violation of federal laws, the citizens who participated in the meeting have promised to assume responsibility to the government and to property owners for any damage that may ensue.

Damage Near Tulsa.

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 1.—The flood, which was the third this year, did much damage in the vicinity of Tulsa, the Arkansas river being higher than ever before. Bird creek, Sand creek, and the Verdigris river have all risen swept away houses, bridges and fences. No deaths were reported but great damage has been done to oil fields, farm lands and railroads.

The town of Jenks, south of Tulsa, on the Midland valley railroad was partly under water and the railroad tracks were flooded. Telephone and telegraph communication with the oil fields was completely severed. The Arkansas river rose one inch an hour.

Situation at Guthrie Better.

Guthrie, Okla., Dec. 1.—The flood situation was greatly improved Monday with the water receding at the rate of a foot an hour. Only a few blocks in the lowlands of the city were still inundated.

The Santa Fe railroad resumed regular service Monday afternoon, and most of the factories, which sustained serious loss, resumed operations Monday, although a few in the district still under water will be closed down for ten days. There was no loss of life in the flood, but many families forced to abandon their homes are in distress. No accurate estimate of the damage can yet be secured, but it is believed it will amount to a quarter of a million dollars.

Racial Riots in Prague.

Prague, Bohemia, Dec. 1.—The racial riots, which were widespread Sunday in this city, were resumed Monday, the Czechs and Germans coming into conflict in various quarters. The police cleared the streets with swords and bayonets, many persons being injured.

Gov. Magoon Starts for Home.

Havana, Dec. 1.—Gov. Magoon, accompanied by Col. E. H. Crowder, judge advocate at Havana, and Capt. J. A. Ryan of the Fifteenth cavalry, left here Monday afternoon for the United States. Maj. Gen. Barry will serve as acting governor during Mr. Magoon's absence.

"Innocent Bystander" Shot.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1. — Richard Burk, a bystander, was shot in the breast and probably fatally wounded and Andrew Lonergan was shot in the arm, in an exciting pistol fight between Lonergan and George Medway in front of the Bellevue Stratford hotel in Broad street here Monday night.

Liabilities, $254,560; Assets, $182.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 1.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States district court Monday by Archibald Kerr, a salesman of this city. He gave his liabilities as $254,560, and his assets as $182.

DEATH LIST SHRINKING

VICTIMS OF MARIANNA MINE PROBABLY ABOUT 120.

Nearly All Bodies Thought to Be Recovered—Company Sends Carloads of Provisions.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 1.—The squeaking iron bucket, operated in the 500-foot shaft leading to the Rachel and Agnes mines of the Pittsburg-Buffalo Coal Company at Marianna, Pa., since last Saturday, when a terrific explosion in the mines wrecked the up-to-date elevator of the shaft and snuffed out the lives of miners to a number estimated at from 120 up, had carried to the surface, when darkness fell Monday night, the bruised, mangled and burned remains of more than 100 of the victims of the disaster.

The most reliable count of the bodies recovered at that time was 110, two-thirds of which have been identified. The general belief at that time was that not many more bodies would be found. James E. Roderick, head of the state department of mining, said that from data furnished him by the company and reports from his six deputy inspectors he did not believe the death list would exceed 120.

The sale of intoxicants in Marianna has been prohibited by Coroner Sipe. Food in plenty is being distributed. Mrs. David G. Jones, wife of the general manager of the plant, with a party of friends, is administering to the wants of the miners' wives and children. The company has sent in several carloads of provisions and will provide for dependents of victims until other plans are formed.

Henry D. Thompson, one of the victims, was the last of four brothers, all of whom lost their lives in mine disasters, the first one 15 years ago.

2-CENT RATE IS UPHELD

Supreme Court Reverses Ruling of Virginia Circuit Court.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The supreme court of the United States Monday reversed the decision of the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Virginia, holding to be unconstitutional the order of the state railroad commission fixing a two-cent passenger rate on state business, the effect being to uphold the order.

Indictments in Political War.

Philadelphia, Dec. 1.—State Senator James P. McNichol, leader of the Republican organization in Philadelphia, was indicted by the grand jury Monday on a charge of criminal libel preferred by Max Kaufmann, former secretary of Mayor Reyburn. Kaufmann, in turn, was indicted for perjury. The cases grew out of the political war of 1905.

Sunday Afternoon Newspaper.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The Washington Times, a one-cent evening paper, makes the announcement that its Sunday edition will hereafter appear in the afternoon instead of the morning, at the week-day price. This is believed to be the second instance of a Sunday afternoon newspaper in the United States.

MERGER OF TWO BIG BANKS IS EFFECTED

SWEDISH-AMERICAN IS TAKEN OVER BY THE NORTHWESTERN NATIONAL—TWO MILLIONS IN CURRENCY CARRIED THRU THE STREETS — NORTHWESTERN'S RESOURCES NOW $35,000,000—DEPOSITS $29,500,000

From Monday's Daily—

The Northwestern National bank of Minneapolis has absorbed the Swedish American National bank of the same city. The business and good will of the latter institution were taken over at the close of business Saturday. About $2,000,000 in currency were carried thru the streets of Minneapolis under the guard of detectives Saturday night from the vaults of the Swedish-American National on Fourth St., to the Northwestern National on First avenue S. When the Northwestern National bank opens its doors this morning the transfer was completed and its books show deposits of $29,500,000 resources of over $35,000,000, a capital of $2,000,000 and a surplus equal to the capital—the largest totals possessed by any bank between Chicago and the Pacific coast north of St. Louis.

The Swedish-American bank is the second to be absorbed by the Northwestern National in less than a year. The National Bank of Commerce was merged into the Northwestern National in June.

Was a Complete Surprise

The absorption of the Swedish-American National came as a complete surprise to all except those directly concerned in it. Negotiations were in progress quietly for something over a week. Saturday afternoon the directors of each bank met and gave their unanimous approval of the step

In making the announcement E. W. Decker managing vice president of the Northwestern National bank, said that all the officers of the Northwestern National bank will remain in their present positions. N. O. Werner, president of the Swedish-American National bank, is in ill-health and will retire from active business. C. S. Hulbert, vice president of the Swedish-American National altho a large stock holder h asnever been active as an officer and will retire. J. A. Latta, vice president of the Swedish-American National, will become vice president and a director of the Northwestern National. He will be elected at a directors' meeting to be held tonight or Tuesday. E. L. Mattson cashier and O. V. Ostrum, assistant cashier of the Swedish-American National, will become assistant cashiers of the Northwestern National.

Following is a statement of the condition of the two banks.

The Northwestern National: Capital, $2,000,000; surplus $2,000,000; circulation $1,400,000; total deposits $25,700,000.

The Swedish-American National: Capital $500,000; surplus $350,000; deposits $3,600,000.

Dreams of the Blind.

In my dreams I have sensations, odors, tastes and ideas which I do not remember to have had in reality. Perhaps they are the glimpses which my mind catches through the veil of sleep of my earliest babyhood. I have heard "the trampling of many waters." Sometimes a wonderful light visits me in sleep. Such a flash and glory as it is! I gaze and gaze until it vanishes. I smell and taste much as in my waking hours, but the sense of touch plays a less important part. In sleep I almost never grope. No one guides me. Even in a crowded street I am self sufficient, and I enjoy an independence quite foreign to my physical life. Now I seldom spell on my fingers, and it is still rarer for others to spell into my hand. My mind acts independent of my physical organs. I am delighted to be thus endowed, if only in sleep, for then my soul dons its winged sandals and joyfully joins the throng of happy beings who dwell beyond the reaches of bodily sense.—Helen Keller in Century.

The Cheerful Undertaker.

A most amusing thing occurred one evening upon our arrival at a small town in New Zealand. We found awaiting us at the station the local carriage and pair, with the local undertaker as footman. He was garbed in his usual funereal suit of black, but he had substituted a white tie in order to relieve the situation somewhat, and, evidently with a desire to dispel any morbid impressions he might otherwise have created, he commenced to whistle a selection of the most cheerful tunes he knew, while he held the door open for us and helped us into the carriage.—Clara Butt in Musical Home Journal.

WINTER CARE OF FARM MACHINES

DEPARTMENT HEAD AT AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE REVIEWS SUBJECT

SAYS 20 PER CENT IS ADDED TO THE LIFE OF MACHINERY BY CARE

From Monday's Daily—

In discussing "Winter Care of Farm Machinery," Hugh J. Hughs of the department of journalism of the North Dakota Agricultural College gives some excellent advice.

"It is not too late in the season to say a word about the all too common practice of letting the machinery stand all winter in the accumulated dust and grease of the season's work, the bright parts exposed to rust, the woodwork exposed to the sun and rain and cracking effects of the frost.

"Wherever a shelter can be provided, there is no excuse for the neglect of so important a part of the farm equipment. Such a shelter need not be expensive, but it should be proof against rain and snow. If it adds 20 per cent to the life of the average binder or wagon—a very moderate estimate—it is a big money saver, when all the machinery on the farm is taken into account.

"There are, we know only too well, a great many who cannot house their machinery. The average renter cannot afford to build the necessary sheds. The new settler moves and could not build machine sheds at each place, but the land owner who wants to see his tenant succeed and have his farm well tilled should provide the machine shed himself.

"At any rate pull the machinery into a row on a clean and high place, where the snow will not be so apt to lodge about it. Take off all canvases reels and sickles. Protect the binder and mover guards, so that chance injury to stock will not occur. Clean all the bearings take off all the chains clean out the tool boxes put everything in shape to hitch the team on in the spring. Make out a list of new castings needed, get them and put them on. Go over all the burrs and see that they are tight. With a cloth rub mard oil over all polished surfaces, such as plow lays. Turn unused wagon boxes upside down. Remove plow tongues or turn them about so that they will not be broken. Take off all clevises and store clevises, sickles (well oiled), plow lays, binder chains and wrenches, twine and odds and ends where they are safe from rust and the small boy."

Salt Lakes.

The Great Salt lake is gradually drying up, and the inhabitants of Salt Lake City seem quite surprised. They ought not to be. All salt lakes owe their salinity to the fact of their having no outlet, and a lake without an outlet is a dying lake.

Nor is death usually long delayed, speaking geologically. Lakes Koko Nor and Lob Nor were undoubtedly extensive inland seas not so very many decades ago, yet Sven Hedin found them reduced to mere acrid puddles set in the midst of well nigh limitless salt deserts that once were their beds.

The terrible Taklamakan desert, too, in which Hedin nearly died of thirst, was once the bed of just such a lake. So also were the salt deserts of Persia. Northern Tibet is studded with salt lakes in process of desiccation. The Aral and the Caspian seas were at one time far more extensive than is now the case, proving that they, too, are undergoing the inevitable process of desiccation to which all such bodies of water are sooner or later invariably subjected.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Examining Wedding Gifts.

"Women viewing another woman's wedding presents say things which are likely to be misinterpreted," said the bachelor who declares he hates weddings, but always goes when invited, according to the Washington Post, "and other things which no favorable interpretation would make complimentary to the bride or to the givers. It's the way of the sex, I suppose. Now, why is it that the most common remark of the women who are inspecting the layout of silver and cut glass and other gifts more or less useful is, 'What a lot of presents she got?' They don't mean anything unkind, but the inference an uninitiated eavesdropper would draw is that they wonder why she got so many, as if by rights she shouldn't have had half so many. Of course they vary the remark, 'What a lucky girl!' says one as if she would like to add, 'Some persons have too much luck.' And another says, 'I wonder where they all came from,' implying almost as if the bride couldn't have enough friends to make so many gifts and must have sent some of them to herself just to making a showing."

In the Customary Place.

A well known English bishop some time since lost his third wife. A clergyman who had known the first wife returned from Africa and wanted to see the grave. He called at the cathedral and saw the verger.

"Can you tell me where the bishop's wife is buried?"

"Well, sir," replied the verger, "I don't know for certain, but he mostly buries 'em at Brompton."—Detroit Tribune.

FORM $150,000 LAND FIRM

EXTENSCIVE HOLDINGS IN MINNESOTA PURCHASED BY MADISON COMPANY

CONCERN WILL HAVE OFFICES AT MADISON, WIS., AND BEMIDJI

From Saturday's Daily—

A land company with a capital of $150,000 has been organized at Madison, Wis., which will take over the property known as the Samuel Mc Clure and the Clearwater Logging company's lands, in Beltrami and Clearwater counties, which have been held for the past year and a half by the Donald Land & Lumber company.

The new company, which has been named the Northern Minnesota Dairy Farm Land company, will have offices in Bemidji, and also at Madison, Wis., The lands are located in the towns of Liberty, Buzzle, Maple Ridge, Roosevelt and Alaska, in Beltrami county, and Dudley, Copley, Holst, Leon, Sinclair and Lammers, in Clearwater county.

IMPROVED CONDITIONS

RESULTS OF INSPECTION SYSTEM OF DAIRY FARMS REPORTED TO HEAD OFFICE

The state dairy and food commission has received a report from Thomas Monley, herd and barn inspector, touching on the general work accomplished by the inspection system for the four years of its existence. The inspector states that the system of surveillance over dairy farms has done much good, and that the farms are under improved sanitary conditions, and the methods of handling the product have greatly changed for the better. The report includes in detail the resula of 408 inspections made.

Sitting Bull.

To look at Sitting Bull one would say that he was always quiet and self contained. In fact, he did usually keep himself under control, but he was cruel and almost heartless. He had practiced cruelty to animals and men from his childhood and as long as he lived; he was full of passion and often very angry. He was always imperious and insolent toward our generals, the Indian agent and other friends of the great father at Washington, whom he claimed to hate. He had great talent and ability to plan campaigns and battles and wonderful influence in bringing Indians together. Notwithstanding all this, he was afraid of death, and, though he planned the greatest victory which the Indians ever gained over white men, Sitting Bull himself was a coward and disgraced himself even before his own people by running away in the very face of success.—General Howard in St. Nicholas.

How Mayne Reid Won His Bride.

It was through his novel, "The Scalp Hunters," that Captain Mayne Reid won a bride. He was thirty years old when he met a damsel of thirteen, with whom he at once fell in love. The child took no notice of him, but he gave her the story to read. Two years later the young lady was at a public meeting where Captain Reid spoke on behalf of the Polish refugees. "An electric thrill seemed to pass through me as he entered the room," she said afterward, and when the meeting was over she went up to him. "I leave for London on the next train," he said hurriedly. "Please send me your address." "I do not know where," she replied, with some embarrassment. He instantly handed out his card and was gone. A formal little note followed: "Dear Captain Reid—As you asked me to send you my address, I do so." By return of post came the answer, "Only say that you love me and I will be with you at once," and then the reply, "I think I do love you."

A Candid Critic.

"A criticism that has helped me a great deal in my work came from a man to whom I took a picture to be framed," said a young woman who spends much of her time copying in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. "As the picture progressed my friends told me it was fine. Some of the other copyists said it had value, character, good coloring and all those things, and even one of the guards in the gallery got real friendly one day and remarked that it was the best copy of that picture he had seen. I began to think that maybe, after all, my several years of study were beginning to bear fruit. At the framer's I picked out a nice frame, and the framer began to figure on the cost.

"'I'll tell you, miss,' he said, 'that frame will come to $3.98. If I were you I'd get something cheaper for that picture.'"—New York Sun.

Couldn't Scream.

"I was afraid you'd scream when I kissed you."

"I didn't dare. Mamma was in the next room and would have heard me."—Houston Post.

ACTRESS TRIES TO COMMIT SUICIDE

ELEANOR MERRON COWPER IS DYING IN NEW YORK.

SEEKS TO FOLLOW FRIEND

She Was Protege and Partner of James H. Wallick, Who Killed Himself by Shooting Last May.

New York, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Eleanor Merron Cowper, a widely-known playwright and actress, shot herself in her room at the St. Regis hotel Friday and will probably die. She was a protege and business partner of the late James H. Wallick, manager and actor, who killed himself at his home in Middletown, N. Y., and in her act of attempted self-destruction she followed closely the method adopted by Wallick.

Before shooting herself, Mrs. Cowper wrote letters to her lawyer, Judge Herbert B. Royce of Middletown, and to John Hood, manager of the King Edward hotel in West Forty-seventh street, where she formerly lived, advising them of her intention to kill herself. A brief history of her life, largely devoted to recounting her career on the stage, was found in her effects.

Was Wallick's Partner.

In all the voluminous writings she left behind she made no mention of any motive that might drive her to suicide. She received royalties on several plays, had an interest in a big farm owned by Mr. Wallick at Middletown, and was in the best of health apaprently.

Mrs. Cowper met James H. Wallick some six years ago, when she went to live at Middletown with her husband, Theodore Archibald Cowper, an actor. He became insane and died about three years ago. Mr. Wallick was greatly interested in Mrs. Cowper and produced one of her plays, called "A Dairy Farm." He also took her into partnership in his stock farm business.

About a year ago Mrs. Cowper took up a residence in the King Edward hotel. Mr. Wallick appeared there soon after and engaged rooms. They were together all the time and Mrs. Cowper addressed the old manager as "Uncle Jim."

It has been learned that Mrs. Cowper sat up until three o'clock Friday morning in her room writing her final instructions. The supposition is that she shot herself soon after that hour, smothering the report of the pistol—which was a small, old-fashioned weapon—by putting a pillow over her head.

Leaves Sketch of Her Life.

Mrs. Cowper was known on the stage as Eleanor Merron, which was her maiden name. Her mother and sister are living at Portland, Me. She was 41 years old and was born in England, coming to this country at the age of three months with her parents. In her life history, left on a table in her room and addressed "To the Press," she said she went on the stage as a child. Her first engagement of any importance was in a company in Boston, of which Edith Kingdon (now Mrs. George Gould) was the star. She was with Charles Frohman for two seasons, playing in "Gloria" and "Fifi."

"I was a member of Daniel Frohman's stock company in the old Lyceum," wrote Mrs. Cowper, "and succeeded poor Georgia Cayvan as leading lady. My most pretentious appearances at the Lyceum were in 'Merry Gotham' and 'The Gray Mare.'

"I also played Countess Olga in 'Fedora,' Audrey in 'As You Like It,' and was for two seasons with Fanny Davenport, who took a great personal interest in me and promoted me from a very small part to be her leading lady. I have played with Effie Shannon and Herbert Kelcey in all their leading shows, and have played leading parts in the Robert Mantell, Walcott and Tyree companies."

The First Mourning Paper.

The oldest known letter written on black edged note paper as a sign of mourning appears to be one dated Jan. 5, 1683. In Addison's comedy of "The Drummer," 1715, reference is made to the fashion in the words, "My lady's mourning paper that is blacked at the edges." A few years later Allan Ramsay, who died in 1758, speaks in one of his poems of "the sable bordered sheet" as a messenger of sorrow. Mann, writing from Italy to Horace Walpole in 1755, says that it was universally used in Florence at that time. The superior elegance of this Italian note paper, with its narrow margin of black, explains its ready acceptance in this country, where it superseded the quarto sheet with a black border sometimes a quarter of an inch wide. In this way it probably gave an impetus to the fashion. But it is a mistake to suppose, as some have done, that the fashion was introduced from Italy.—London Answers.

HER FEET WERE SORE AND CRACKED

Soles Seemed as Though Covered with Knife Cuts—Could Not Bear Weight of Feet Even on Pillow—Was Long Unable to Walk—Many Remedies Failed—Now Cured.

WILL PRAISE CUTICURA AS LONG AS SHE LIVES

"Some four years ago I had the misfortune to have my feet get sore. The doctors could not tell me what it was. I used everything I could hear or think of but all to no avail. The feet were all cracked across the bottom as if you had taken a knife and cut them every whichway. They would peel up, and, oh, my! how they did hurt when I would try to walk — which I was not able to do for a long time. One day one of our neighbors came to our house and asked what was the matter. I showed him my feet and he said he had some Cuticura Ointment which would heal them up. There was only enough to apply once, but I found it helped me so much that I sent for a set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills, costing one dollar, and to my great joy, my feet were cured and have never troubled me since. I shall praise Cuticura as long as I live for the great help it has been. Mrs. Margaret Primmer, Plattin, Mo., June 30 and July 21, 1907."

EDEN TOWNSHIP BOY DROWNED

Garfield the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicolas Paulson was drowned last Saturday close to his home in Eden township and within view of his mother and others of the family who were unable to save him.

Garfield and a brother of nearly the same age were engaged in fishing thru the ice, close to their home and near the shore. It appears that Garfield decided he could do better if he had a separate hole in the ice by himself in which to fish, and taking an axe, walked further out from land. With the first blow however, the ice gave way and the boy sank in the water above his depth. His mother and sister saw him go down and hastened to help him, the girl herself getting into the water and was only saved from drowning by being pulled out of the lake with the aid of a garden rake. But the body of the boy was not recovered until after life was extinct.

It was a terrible blow to his parents who have universal sympathy in their great sorrow.

Queer English Laws.

"No statute law of England ever can be obsolete," a legal journal says. "Once enacted, it continues in binding force until repealed."

If such be really the case, there ought to be some lively times ahead for several classes of the community. For instance, what will builders have to say to the act which penalizes any person who erects a house without attaching to it at least four acres of land? This was one of "good Queen Bess'" laws, and it has most certainly never been repealed.

By another unrepealed statute, which dates back to the first year of King James I., it is enacted that not more than a penny may be charged for a quart of the best old ale nor more than a halfpenny for a like quantity of small beer. The penalty for each infraction of the act is 20 shillings, so that if it were rigidly enforced it would not need, apparently, a licensing bill to ruin the brewers. Then, again, a Catholic owning a horse is still legally obliged to sell it for £5 to anybody who chooses to offer that sum for it.—London Graphic.

LITTLE CHILD IS DROWNED

ERNEST, 2½ YEAR OLD SON OF MR. AND MRS. E. N. THOMAS THE VICTIM

LITTLE BOY WAS GRANDCHILD OF CITY CLERK A. M. CHILDS

From Saturday's Daily—

City Clerk A. M. Childs this afternoon received a telegram from his youngest daughter, Mrs. E. N. Thomas of Duluth, to the effect that their son Ernest had ben drowned. No further details have been received and Mr. Childs does not know how the terrible accident happened.

The news will be received with the greatest sorrow and sympathy by the many friends of Mrs. Thomas, who grew to womanhood in Crookston, and since her marriage has visited here often, having been here during the past summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas had but two children the youngest being but a year old. Mr. Childs is unable yet to determine whether he will be able to leave his duties long enough to attend the funeral.

DISTRICT MEET OF I. O. G. T.

IN THE PEET PAVING CASE AGAINST EAST GRAND FORKS

Ambrose Tigue of St. Paul, attorney for Peet the plaintiff in the paving case against East Grand Forks was there yesterday and took the deposition of Thos. Lawson of Grand Forks the engineer who made the plans an dspecifications for the paving and superintended the construction for the city. This case was tried before Judge Watts here without a jury and appealed to the supreme court, which reversed Judge Watts' ruling and sent the case back for trial at Crookston about the middle of December and quite a number of witnesses will be summoned from East Grand Forks, including several members of the city council at the time the paving was done.

TOOK ENGINEERS DEPOSITION

G. T. Hagen, Grand Templar for this district left last evening for Fosston to attend a district convention of the Norwegian branch of the Independent Order of Good Templars today at that place and upwards of 25 or 30 delegates from other places are expected to arrive this evening and tomorrow morning. Among these visiting delegates there will be prominent speakers and the occasion will be one of importance to the Fosston lodge.

This district includes Polk, Norman Beltrami, Red Lake and Clay counties The meeting in progress today is the annual gathering of the Templars from this district.

SUPT' YEAGER QUITS FOSSTON SCHOOLS

Information to the effect that Supt. C. S. Yager of the Fosston public schools had tendered his resignation to the Board of Education and that it had been accepted after considerable deliberation on Wednesday, will come as a complete surprise.

Supt. Yeager was in receipt of a flattering offer from Brown's Valley, this state, and after due consideration decided to accept it. Conferring with the local Board on Tuesday, his request to be relieved from his duties here was voted down, but at a meeting of the Board the following morning his resignation was finally accepted, conditional upon his remaining until a successor can be secured to fill his responsible position, which may be a matter of a few days only, when he will leave to assume his new charge.

The sudden termination of Prof. Yeager's work in this section of the state is regretted on all sides. During the many years in which the schools of Fosston have been under his direction they have made remarkable progress in efficiency and importance and are at present time in a high state of excellence. Browns Valley is indeed fortunate in securing his services as there are few more able men engaged at the present time in the work of the educational system of the state.

BIG GAME "SOONERS"

THREE O FTHEM FINED YESTERDAY AT RED LAKE FALLS

CASES AGAINST TWO WERE DISMISSED—STARTED HUNTING NOVEMBER 6TH

From Saturday's Daily—

Yesterday at Red Lake Falls Chas. and Earnest Seegar, Peter and Henry Stouken and Albert Zimpel were hailed before Judge A. P. Toupin at Red Lake Falls charged by Game Warden Wm. Munch with hunting deer out of season. He moved for the dismissal of the cases against Chas. Seeger and Albert Zimpel and the other three plead guilty to the charge and were fined $12 each.

Some time before the big game season opened the members of the party asked Warden Munch if it was against the law to get into the big woods and establish a camp, and they were informed that there was nothing in the law to prohibit such action, but they must be careful and do no hunting before Nov. 10.

Nov. 6th Warden Munch happened in Hickory Township near Red Lake and five homesteaders were ready to swear that the party had chased and shot at a buck on Nov. 6, four days before the season for big game opened. With this array of evidence the accused decided to plead guilty.

HARM DONE BY MUCH GOSSIP

Secrets, Intended to Stay Secrets, Should be told to Nobody—Men Can Keep silent—Women Should Have as Strict a Code of Honor as Men in Keeping Information

A friend of his told a friend of his
In a confidential way—"

That's the way it begins and is the reason that so many secrets are well known by so many people. If you want to be sure that a certain something be known to nobody, do not tell it even to your dearest friend and then it will remain a secret. We are prone to forgot that our dearest friend has also a dearest friend, and the latter has a dearest friend, until the first thing we know, exerybody knows our secret.

It is almost always a mistake for one to tell his private affairs to anybody let alone the whole world. There is a certain dignity about keeping one's matters to one's self, and a loss of dignity when persons have no reserve.

It is strange that part of the world seems to regard a decent reticence as secretiveness and abuses the man who does not tell everything he knows to any chance comer. Persons of good bringing up are always reserved and do not care to blurt out their private affairs in a mixed company, and sometimes they are abused for what is only good manners.

Then at times we meet the other extreme, the woman who has no reticence about anything and tells her secrets and private matters before the whole world. Strange to say she is often defended by persons who ought to know better, and they call her "so honest, and frank" while the reticent woman who considers it much more refined to be a trifle reserved about famidly affairs is dubbed "secretive."

Persons who tell secrets are very foolish folk, and to tell them to newly married women, or to very young girls is fatal. Young wives tell their husbands everything, and very young girls are sure to unfold to their dearest "chum" all the affairs which they have cressed their hearts and promised never, never to tell to anybody.

If you must tell a secret, tell it to a man. This is not intended as a slur upon womankind in general, but it must be admitted that some men—not all—are better keepers of a seret than the generally of women. Not because they are men, but because their minds are naturally upon greater and more vital things and they do not have time to remember all the gossip they hear. So men usually forget the secrets and that helps.

But what's the use of telling a secret at all? If you have surprised any body in a moment of weakness, if you have overheard something not intended for your ears, the honorable thing is never to tell it to anybody. Consider how you would feel if you had revealed some emotion or circumstance in your life which was not intended for anyone to know, and some body gossipped about you and told the thing which should not be told. If we bring home to ourselves these things, we are not likely to be overconfident with anybody but some one of whom we are sure—and they are scarce.

Much scandal and many a tregedy has been precipitated by an unruly tongue and we cannot be too careful when we are inclined to tell everything we know in a moment of confidence.

NEW STAMPS RECALLED

PRINTER'S ERROR RECALLS STAMPS—NEW SERIES HAD NOT REACHED CROOKSTON

WHEN ORDER WAS ISSUED—ALL WILL BE DESTROYED BY GOVERNMENT

From Saturday's Daily—

It has been discovered that an error was made in the new issue of postage stamps lately sent from Washington to the postoffices for sale.

Under the international postoffice rules the denomination of the stamps is required to be given in Roman numerals as these are understood in all countries. On some of the new stamps the value of the stamp has been given in English letters, as "Two Cents" and this error is regarded as being of so great importance that an order has been issued calling in all the new stamps. None of these stamps have come to the Crookston postoffice, but some of those which have been sold at other postoffices have come to Crookston on letters and packages. The wrongly printed stamps will be in great demand by colectors of odd stamps, as they will be very rare on account of so few ever being in actual use.

All called in by the government will be destroyed.

PENSIONS FOR TEACHERS

BACHELOR SENATOR IN IOWA WOULD ESTABLISH RETIREMENT FUND ASS'NS.

C. C. Dowell, the bachelor senator from Polk county, who has served in Iowa's legislative halls for nearly 15 years will this winter introduce a bill to pension schoolma'ams.

He will offer a measure providing for the establishment of a teachers' retirement fund association, in school districts having a population of 10,000 inhabitants or more. Every teacher, when she accepts a position in the district, becomes a member of the association. The school board will be required to set aside monthly a certain per capita amount, which can be loaned only on first mortgages on improved Iowa farms.

MRS. DANEK GETS A DIVORGE

Mrs. Teresin Danek has been granted a divorce in district court here by Judge Watts from Joseph Danek. Cruelty and inhuman treatment was the accusation against the defendant, in that he used violent means to acquire property at Northland township, north of East Grand Forks which was in Mrs. Danek's name. The couple were married a year ago. Mrs. Danek being Mr. Danek's third wife. Both were 65 years of age and it was brought out in court that the marriage was a proposition entirely to secure her property. Attorney Finlayson appeared for the plaintiff.

CAUGHT THEM WITH GOODS

GAME WARDEN MUNCH MAKES ANOTHER KILING IN ROSEAU COUNTY

TWO MEN KILLED COW MOOSE—COST THEM $104—FISH TRAPPER FINED

From Friday's Daily—

Gamewarden Wm. Munch returned Thursday evening from Palmville Township, Roseau Co., south of Wanaska, where Tuesday he arrested Geo. Bengtson and Peter Johnson for having shot a cow moose on Nov. 17. Warden Munch secured the hide and 100 pounds of the meat which he confiscated. Yesterday the two men were taken before Judge Medicraft of Roseau and given their choice between 30 days in jail and a fine of $50 each and costs. They paid the $104 after pleading guilty.

There are mighty few of the violators getting away from Warden Munch this year. He is thoroly on to the ropes and knows his territory like a book. He has a lot of "live wires" strung in every direction, and the hunter shooting game out of season is almost certain to get a shock from some of them.

By his eminent fairness, Warden Munch has secured the co-operation of every true sportsman in the Northern part of the state, and it is this that greatly assists him in his work.

Warden Munch left for Middle River last Monday, and intended being here for Thanksgiving dinner — and thereby hangs a taie. Wednesday after finishing his work he hired an auto and headed for Karlstad intending to come down to Erskine on the Soo and arrive here yesterday morning. After going a short distance a tire exploded. They laid up all night and yesterday morning started for Greenbush intending to catch the freight to Crookston. Another mile out in the country and the same tire figured in more fire works.

About this time Willing William got wrathy. He rode shanks mare a distance of nine miles into Greenbush wearing a big buffalo coat and carrying a heavy grip, and caught the passenger train in last night. When he jumped from the train he rushed into the depot and grabbing the telephone shouted to Ed Ralston at the Grill "2 dozen fried oysters and plenty with the fresh fried spuds. Rush."

Fish Trapper Fined

Last week Warden Munch also arrested Euclid Beaudry of Poplar River township, Red Lake Co., for trapping fish by means of a dam built across Poplar river. Judge Arthur Lanial of Brooks, before whom Beaudry entered a plea of guilty assessed a fine and costs amounting to $21.50 which was promptly paid, Mr. Beaudry's offense having been the result of ignorance of the law rather than wilful violation.

Fat and Disease.

If the Medical Record is right, man is pursuing in the matter of bodily weight what is bad for him, a common trick, and woman pines for a physical ideal that would mean long life if achieved, something rare indeed for women to do. Most men struggle to be fat. Most women diet to be lean. Dr. Brandreth Symonds draws from a study of life insurance weights that people past the age of thirty live longer if below normar weight than they do if at or above standard. Heart disease is as rare among the underfat as it is common with the heavy folk, and this is true also of Bright's disease, apoplexy, paralysis, cerebral congestions and cirrhosis of the liver. Only in pneumonia and tuberculosis do the underweights carry a greater risk. In all the cases which he examined Dr. Symonds found not a single fat man who reached the age of eighty years, while forty-four short weights passed this mark.

The Best Pride.

A titled Englishman while in Newport talked most entertainingly to a group of ladies about ancestral pride.

"Ancestral pride is an excellent thing," he said, "but there are better things. We have long felt in Great Britain that there are better things. I heard the sentiment rather neatly expressed last season by a duchess. Hers is a great family, but she was talking to a young marquis whose family is incomparably greater. He is a rather worthless, lazy, dissipated young marquis, and he boasted to the duchess about his people.

"'I am very proud of my ancestry, you know,' he ended.

"'Yes,' said the duchess, 'and you have cause to be, but I wonder how your ancestry would feel about you?'"

CO. I SCORED BIG TRIUMPH

6TH ANNUAL BALL LAST EVENING PROVED A HUGE SUCCESS

120 PEOPLE TRIPPED LIGHT FANTASTIC TOE—EXCELLENT ARRANGEMENTS

The Sixth Annual Ball given last ev
From Friday's Daily—
ening by Co. I 3rd Infantry M. N. G. in Odd Fellows Hall last evening was the biggest success ever scored by the company, the capacity of the hall being taxed to its fullest capacity. The affair emphasized the necessity of an adequate armory, as had there been more room the company could have made an effort to sell more tickets and the crowd could have been doubled or trebled with little effort.

As it was the affair proved a splendid success. The scene was a most animated one, the members of the company wearing their dress uniforms and certainly looked very natty.

The various committees discharged their duties well. The committee on arrangements consisting of Second Lieutenant P. J. Eide, Musician LeBlanc and Private Ebbighausen had slighted none of their duties, and every detail was looked after in order that those present might enjoy the evening to the fullest extent. Very tasty invitations were issued with the dancing program on the back.

The committee on decorations also did some very clever work, and the hall presented a decidedly military appearance with everything arranged in a most artistic manner. This committee consisted of Corporal Oseth, Sgt. Cottet and Private Lucian. Sgt. Arnold acted as floor manager and in that capacity kept things moving very smoothly, announcing a number of popular extras in addition to the program of 11 numbers. Burkhardt's full orchestra furnished most excellent music.

The armory on the first floor was kept open all evening the drill hall being used as a promenade and the other rooms as resting rooms, and this relieved the congestion of the ball room materially.

Every member of the company from Capt. Westerberg clear down the line made an effort to make the evening one of great enjoyment for all present, and both ladies and gentlemen are enthusiastic over the complete success of the affair. It will mean a great revival in the interest taken in Co. I, and assures the complete success of any future social functions which the company may give in the future. The company is getting in better shape steadily, the attendance at drill is good and the future of the company looks brighter in every way than ever before.

What Crookston should do now is to give the company every encouragement to build a new and adequate armory, and the present winter is a good time to mature the plans. The Commercial Club might well devote its energies to this necessary project.

The Popular Coral.

The dealer held up two strings of coral. They were of equal size, but one was dark and dull in hue, the other beautifully pink and translucent.

"The dark one," he said, "is worth 50 cents; the pink one is worth $500. That is what makes coral so popular. It suits all pocketbooks. All over the world it goes. These strings of rough, uncut beads are for the dead of India. They are put round the necks of the bodies about to be burned in the ghats. These large and blood red beads go to Africa. They are much liked by the natives, whose dark skins they perfectly suit. Here are a lot of coral hands with fingers extended in a V—the gesture that wards off the evil eye. The coral hands are for Italy, where the belief in their efficacy is widespread."—Buffalo Express.

Working Too Hard.

The owner of the farm had been enjoying himself at the county fair, while his hardworking wife stayed at home to see that the farm suffered no loss in his absence.

"Well, Sarah," said the owner upon his return, "I'm about all tired out. Is the cows in the barn?"

"Yes; long since," replied his wife, barely looking up from the task then in hand.

"Is the hosses unharnessed an' fed?"

"Yes."

"Chickens locked up?"

"Yes."

"Wood chopped for mornin'?"

"Yes."

"Wagon heel mended an' ready t' start in th' mornin'?"

"Yes."

"Well, then," concluded the exhausted owner, with a sigh of relief, "let me have my supper. I'm goin' to' turn in. Farmin's beginnin' t' tell on me."—New York Herald.

Cashing Up.

"Have you ever played poker wit your son-in-law?"

"Only once," answered Mr. Cumrox. "It wasn't very satisfactory."

"Did he win?"

"No; he lost. But it merely resulted in my having to write him a check so that he could indorse it over to me."—Washington Star.

DIRECTIONS TO PREPARE A SIMPLE MIXTURE—GIVES DOSE TO TAKE

TELLS YOU HOW TO OVERCOME RHEUMATISM WITH SIMPLE RECIPE

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable the simple and harmless, prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

MINNESOTA ELECTS STORK

BIRTHS HAD PLURALITY OVER DEATHS OF NINETEEN THOUSAND LAST YEAR

The stork was elected last year in Minnesota by a plurality of 19,000. According to the figures compiled by the state board of health the number of births in the state during 1907 was 39,277, and the deaths, 20,317. Minneapolis has the record for the largest number of births in comparison to the area, with 5,382. St. Paul came a close second, with 4,129. In three of the other counties the figures were over 1,000.

Another report on vital statistics shows the figures with regard to the ravages worked by tuberculosis in Minnesota since 1904. There have been 2,000 deaths from the disease in that time, or 10.8 of the total deaths in the state. Contrary to general opinion, the death rate in Minnesota from tuberculosis is about the same as it is thruout all the states. There has been some falling off in the large cities, but as the population of the state is largely rural this does not count for much.

Christopher Easton, executive secretary for the Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, has reckoned out that the 2,000 deaths in the state for the five year period represent 10,000 cases, of which 1,500 were bed-ridden, and that this extent of sickness in the state means an enormous loss to the state both in decreased earnings of the invalids and in direct loss thru caring for the patients.

DR. MARCUM KILLED MONSTER MOOSE

Dr. E. H. Marcum of Bemidji, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Marcum of this city, returned home Wednesday from a ten days' moose hunt in the Battle River country with a party of friends. The party had poor luck colectively, but Dr. Marcum was in the money, shooting a monster moose which dressed 875 pounds and the horns of the animal measured 56 inches from tip to tip. This was the only thing killed and Doc says he pumped 8 bullets into the monster before he dropped him. He will have the head mounted and the hide tanned as a memento of the hunt.

State Treasury In Good Shape

Minnesota's treasury is in much better shape than a year ago, as shown by the statement of State Treasurer Clarence C. Dinehart at the close ofg business Nov. 30. While there is an overdraft of $163,969.09 in the revenue fund, compared with a balance of $4,255.28 a year ago, the October school apportionment had not been paid a wear ago. This time it has been taken care of, and this accounts for about $800,000.

Balances in other state funds are as follows:

Soldiers' relief fund, $47,258.98; funding tax fund, $197,969.56; state road and bride fund, $84,848.15; university campus fund, $231,864.54; permanent school fund $14,717.30; general school fund $201,574.99; permanent university fund $5,119.52; general university fund $75,174.31; internal improvement fund, $50,177.47 internal improvement land fund $3,767.98; internal improvement land fund interest, $1,636.69; swamp land fund, $1,228.27; swamp land fund interest, $1,761.63; hay inspection fund $2,285.68; grain inspection fund, $71,989.90.

The net balance on hand is $827,405.88, compared with $743,057.49 last year.

This is certainly a most gratifying showing.

Corn Fed Stock In Red River Valley

A splendid object lesson is furnished the farmers of the Red River Valley today in the marketing in this city of some corn fed steers by Henry O'Neil, the well known and progressive young farmer east of the city.

Ed Erickson who purchased one of them drove to the O'Neil farm yesterday and wanted to purchase all Mr. O'Neil had to sell, but some of them had been contracted for by Jos. Winfield and were delivered today. Mr. Erickson says the steer he purchased which was but a litle over 2 years old dressed nearly 700 and Mr. O'Neil received a check for $43.75 for the animal, tho he had been feeding him corn but a few months.

Mr. O'Neil has been raising corn for several years, and has made a signal success of it. He discovered that to compete with corn-fed cattle from Iowa and other places, it is necessary to feed corn. He raised as fine corn this year as was ever seen anywhere, and next year will raise still more, having saved a big lot of seed.

The beef he brought in, Mr. Erickson says, is as fine a carcass as he ever hung up in his shop, and it has attracted the attention of every customer.

If Henry O'Neil can raise corn and turn off better beef than is shipped in by either Armour or Swift, other farmers can also do it, and if they would do it such a thing as a meat car being run to Crookston, Grand Forks and other cities of the Valley would soon be a thing of the past.

Readjustment Is Coming

Readjustment of the legislative districts is a problem already engaging the attention of a number of the members of the new legislature. The work of reapportionment was taken up two years ago, but by common consent was put over to the present session, and is it taken for granted that something will be done to relieve the present unequal condition of affairs. There has been no change in the state since 1897. Congress makes a new apportionment of the house as a matter of course every ten years after each federal census.

The reapportionment issue did not enter into the contest for speaker. The new speaker of the house, A. J. Rockne hails from a district that is bound to lose by the change and opposition to the measure is looked for from his section of the state. It is understood that Mr. Rockne will not take a sectional stand, however, and that he will reappoint Frank T. White of Elk River as chairman of the reappointment committee. Mr. White as chairman of the committee drafted and introduced a bill last time, and made his campaign for re-election in the big forty-fifth district with the argument that he should be returned for the purpose of insuring a square deal for northern Minnesota.

The White bill of last session, H. F. 1082 was drawn with especial intention to give every county at least one representative as far as possible. It called for the same number of senators, sixty-three, but increased the house membership by ten, bringing it up to 129. The bill was not carefully considered or revised, but is in shape to form the groundwork for the committee to begin on this winter.

The districts in the northwestern part of the state as marked out by the White bill are given as follows, each district having a senator and the number of reprseentatives indicated:

Fifty-ninth—Clay and Becker, each one.

Sixtieth—Norman, Mahnomen and Clearwater, two representatives.

Sixty-first—Polk county, two representatives.

Sixty-second — Marshall and Red Lake, each one.

Sixty-third—Beltrami, Roseau and Kittson, each one.

The 1905 census will doubtless be used in determining what is a fair division but the 1908 vote is a more recent guide for it. Reference to the total vote cast shows the inequality of the present arrangement. The total vote of the state was 355,263 which would give a ratio of 5,639 votes for each senator.

On the other hand every county in the first and third districts has a senator, and six of them cast the following total vote:

Dodge 2,259; Waseca 2913; Nicollet 2,529; Sibley 3,205; Scott 3,000; Carver 3,277; total 17,183.

The people who elect six senators in those districts cast fewer votes than it takes to elect two senators in the northern districts.

The following table shows the vote cast in each congressional district this fall, incidentally bringing out the inequality of the congressional apportion ment made in 1901. It also shows the number of senators each district has at present.

District	Vote	Senators	Per Capita
First … …	40,510	10	4,051
Second …	33,278	6½	5,119
Third … …	36,117	9	4,013
Fourth …	39,087	6½	6,013
Fifth …	49,738	7	7,105
Sixth … …	39,325	7	5,618
Seventh …	36,028	7	5,147
Eighth … …	42,033	5	8,407
Ninth … …	39,147	5	7,829

The house apportionment is rather more even than the senate. It gives 16 members to the first district, 11 to the second, 14 to the third, 14 to the fourth, 16 to the fifth, 12 to the sixth 12 to the seventh, 11 to the eighth and 13 to the ninth. This is still full of inequalities, however.

The White bill, as now drawn, goes too far in cutting down the first and third distrficts. Its plan would give the districts membership in the two houses as follows:

	Senate	House
First … … … …	6	12
Second … … … …	6	12
Third … … … …	6	12
Fourth … … … …	7½	12
Firth … … … …	9	18
Sixth … … … …	7	15
Seventh … … … …	8	15
Eighth … … … …	7	15
Ninth … … … …	6½	15
Total … … … …	63	129

This cuts the southeastern part of the state down below what it is really entitled to for population and vote. Based on the vote this fall, and figuring on the same total membership as the present legislature, the districts ought to fare in a reapportionment as follows:

	Senate	House
First … … … …	7	14
Second … … … …	6	11
Third … … … …	7	12
Fourth … … … …	7	13
Fifth … … … …	9	17
Sixth … … … …	7	13
Seventh … … … …	6	12
Eighth … … … …	7	14
Ninth … … … …	7	13
Totals … … … …	63	119

This sort of readjustment would take three senators and two representatives from the first district, two senators and two house members from the third district, one house member from the fourth and one senator from the seventh district. In would add two senators and one house member to the fifth district, one house member to the sixth, two senators and three representatives to the eighth and two senators to the ninth district.

Rockne For The Speaker

Two Harbor Iron Trade Journal: A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota has been decided upon as the next speaker of the Minnesota house of representatives. He has served in the house for four terms and is eminently fitted for the position.

Sauk Center Herald: A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota will in all probability, be the next speaker of the house in the Minnesota legislature. This is a wise choice. Mr. Rockne has had several terms in the legislature and is known as a square, honorable man and a hard worker.

Elk River Star-News: The Star News is well pleased over the apparent selection of A. J. Rockne of Goodhue county for speaker of the house of representatives. W ehave watched Mr. Rockne's career as a legislator an dbelieve he will make a square and fearless presiding officer.

Glenwood Herald: Hon. A. J. Rockne will be the speaker of the next session of the legislature. The first part of this week his candidacy was endorsed by the delegations from Ramsey and St. Louis counties. It seems that Rockne had a decided lead over his opponent, L. H. Johnson before these counties took action Mr. Rockne had been a prominent member of the degislature several sessions. He is able and absolutely fair and will give efficient service in the honorable position which will be his when the legislature convenes.

Verndale Sun: Rockne of Zumbrota is the next speaker of the house, having won over Johnson of Hennepin county. This suits the Sun nicely, thak you.

Rochester Post and Record: Mr. Rockne has made an able legislator, is a fine parliamentarian and will do credit to the state and himself.

Barnesville Record-Review: In the opinion of the Record-Review, as intimated last week, the choice is a wise one, and we predict that Rockne will make an A No. 1 man for the place.

Ada Index: A. J. Rockne appears to have the speakership cinched. He has been a house leader and will make a good speaker.

STATE PRESS

Supremacy of the People

Hodlingford Advertiser: The supremacy of the common people is shown in Governor Johnson's great triumph. He was confronted with the hardest proposition possible to be put up in a state political campaign, for in the north (the mining districts) he was represented as the enemy of the mining country, and in the south as the frenid or servile tool of the mining interests. His victory shows that the people have a mind and are competent to think for themselves. They are the true rulers of the state, and the lesson is taught that corporations and their political henchmen are losing control of the state politics in Minnesota. May the good work go on.

Proposes Schmahl

Austin Transcript: The Bemidji Pioneer proposes Julius A. Schmahl secretary of state, as a logical candidate for governor for 1910. In support of his candidacy the Pioneer asserts that altho a resident of the southern part of the state, he has been a strong friend of the north half of the state, is a vote-getter, and, if nominated by the Republican party, it believes he will be elected. The party might look farther and fare worse.

Upholds Kicker

Anoka Union: Kick and the world notices you. Acquiesce and no attention is paid you. Kickers accomplish something. They stir up communities, and make them sit up and ponder. They make sleepy towns wideawake and progressive. They kick for this and that improvement until public sentiment is aroused and the improvements are forthcoming. Would to goodness that Anoka had more kickers who would kick and kick, until the march of progress would reach upward and onward.

THE SEASON IS CLOSED

POOREST BIG GAME HUNTING FALL IN YEARS IS AT AN END

WEATHER THIS YEAR HAS BEEN VERY UNFAVORABLE TO SPORTSMEN

From Tuesday's Daily—

The deer hunting season closed last night.

The hunters will have 5 days to get their game out of the woods but it is unlawful to shoot the nimble-footed inhabitants of the forest after today.

Thus ends one of the poorest hunting seasons ever experienced in Northern Minnesota. Not that the game has been scarce, for, it is claimed, that deer were more plentiful this year than last or the year before, but the conditions have been most unfavorable to hunters and it is estimated that not over one-quarter the number of deer have been killed this year that were killed last season.

A great part of Northern Minnesota is composed of swamp land. The weather has not been cold enough to freeze these swamps, so that once an animal gained the thick timber that usually is found in these places, it was safe. There has been no snow excepting one slight fall which only lasted a litle over a day.

With conditions favorable to the annual killing, it is said by those who make a practice of taking part each season, that the sport this year would have been the best in the history of shooting in Northern Minnesota. But the poor season will give the deer a chance to increase and they should be very plentiful by next fall.

It has been a season in which the thoroly experienced hunter generally killed his limit, but the tenderfoot as a rule has returned empty handed.

Crookston hunters have fared far better than the average. Nearly every one has killed his limit and the people of this city have as a rule got at least a taste of venison or moose as a result of the generosity of the big game hunters, who always divide the result of the chase with their less fortunate neighbors.

ARMY DEFEATS NAVY IN GRIDIRON BATTLE

30,000 SPECTATORS WITNESSED THE GREAT STRUGGLE ON FRANKLIN FIELD

Philadelphia, Nov. 30—In one of the fiercest football games on Franklin field this year, the Army vanquished the Navy Saturday afternoon by the small and narrow score of 6 to 4—a touchdown and a goal against a goal from the field. Thirty thousand persons saw the husky cadets from the Hudson conquer the sturdy midshipmen from the Severn in a contest that never lagged. That the navy boys were surprised at the unexpected strength of the Army is putting it mildly—they were fairly overwhelmed with the power shown by the West Point cadets. The Annapolis boys entered the game practically sure of victory while the West Point cadets only hoped to win.

Little girls and engaged girls do not care about boys at parties.

PEOPLE ARE OPTIMISTIC

E. A. NELSON RETURNS FROM A BUSINESS TRIP TO ILLINOIS

SAYS FACTORIES ARE OPENING—PREDICTS BIG LAND SALES AHEAD

From Monday's Daily—

E. A. Nelson publisher of the Hallock News who is devoting considerable time to the land business returned a few days ago from Illinois where he went to close several important land deals. He said the deals had been pending for some time, and that the closing of them depended upon the way financial conditions shaped themselves. He was pleased to find that a very optimistic feeling prevailed in the manufacturing centers.

Many factories have already resumed operations, and many more will start up on full capacity in the very near future. He states that every one in that section of the country is looking forward to better things and that this will mean a big impetus to the Red River Valley land business. He closed the deals he was interested in promptly.

Transferred to Orr

HOME NEWS

Of Interest to Everyone in Crookston

In every newspaper in the country you will read statements made by people living in out-of-the-way places, who are supposed to have been cured or derived great benefit from some wonderful remedy or "cure-all". But here in Crookston we only publish statements made by Crookston people—the testimony of your friends, neighbors and fellow-townsmen.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Noel Herbert(carpenter, of 338 Hunter St., Crookston, Minn., says: "My back pained terribly and totally unfitted me for any exertion, there being times when I had to be helped about. I at last heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and immediately procured a box at S. A. Wallace's drug store. I started using them and it was not long before I noticed that my back was gradually getting stronger. My trouble son entirely left me and I have not felt a vistage of it since. Doan's Kidney Pills are a most valuable remedy and I give them my endorsement with the hope that others may be convinced of their merit."

The above statement was made by Mr. Herbert in 1898 nearly six years later Dec. 2nd, 1904 he added:

"Doan's Kidney Pills so completely relieved me of kidney trouble six years ago that there has been no return of it. It is a pleasure to again endorse them."

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY

FOR TALL TIMBER—Messrs. Sheffield, Thornton, Brosseau, Final, Ashley, Twite and several more commercial travelers headed for the tall timber out east this morning, the two last named being bound for Bemidji.

RETURNS TO CROOKSTON— Attorney Spencer who moved to Minot several months ago will return to Crookston. His office fixtures were shipped yesterday.—Minot Reporter.

A 15 MILE DRIVE — Chas. Skaug left this morning for Stephen from where he will enjoy a 15 miles drive east. About half of the travelling men who went out this morning had a nice overland drive ahead of them.

CONDITION IS SERIOUS — Mrs. Syckson residing near Fosston was brought to Bethesda hospital Saturday and was operated upon for cancer. Her condition is considered grave, but hopes are entertained for her recovery Her daughter Miss Anna Syckson who teaches in the Samson district south east of the city brought her mother in and returned last evening to resume her school duties.

TRANSFERRED TO RED WING— Capt. Bacon and Lieut. McLain who have been in charge of the local barracks of the Salvation Army for some months past, have been transferred to Red Wing. While here they were very successful in their work. They have been succeeded by Adjt. Carlshed from Faribault and a Lieutenant form Devils Lake.

25 WERE "SHOT"— Yesterday afternoon 25 officers and members of the Young Men's Johnson Club "had their pictures took" in the club rooms by Carl Borghen of Chesterman's Studio and they will have a large number of them finished, some nearly two feet square and others about half that size.

FISH FOR ERSKINE LAKES—Sixteen large cans of bass and croppies were received at Erskine this week from the Minnesota State Fish Hatcheries and half of them were planted in Lake Cameron and the rest in Badger Lake. I. I. Stenerson and O. T. Rovang were largely instrumental in securing these fry and 'ere long people of that section expect to be able to eat fresh fish most any meal during fish season.

HER EFROM TENSTRIKE—Vego Peterson, county commissioner-elect in Beltrami county who resides near Tenstrike has returned home after spending a few days on business. Mr. Peterson resides near the valuable timber claim owned by Otto Burkhardt, proprietor of the Cleveland House of this city, and looks after Mr. Burkhardt's interests in connection therewith. Last winter Ross and Ross cut some timber from the Burkhardt claim, and suit has been instituted to recover damages in the district court at Bemidji. Ross and Ross are trying to have the suit transferred to the Federal court at Duluth but it is not thought they will succeed. Mr. Peterson spent most of the summer visiting in the Old Country but returned in time to be elected county commissioner.

"MAKING GOOD" AS FARMERS— Mrs. F. W. Wethenbee, who is living on a homestead on the shores of Pimush lake, in the extreme southwestern part of Beltrami county was a visitor in Bemidji Saturday evening. Mrs. Wetherbee's husband is the famous Frank Wetherbee who was for many years a commercial traveler for the Noyes Bros. & Cutler Drug Co., of St. Paul. Mr. Wetherbee retired from the road, some four years ago, and took up his residence on the shores of the picturesque Pimush lake, where he has farmed industriously and waxed healthy and independent ever since his retirement from active "road work." Frank and Al. Jester of the Jester farm, are shining examples of what a traveling man can do to a farm when they once put their concerted efforts thereon. — Bemidji Pioneer. Mr. Wethenbee made Crookston for over a score of years selling to Messrs. Wallace, Hillard and Andersen and covered the entire northwest and retired because of ill health.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
Cures Colds: Prevents Pneumonia

From Tuesday's Daily

MISSIONARY HERE— Rev. Hedegaard, the Sunday school missionary has returned from a trip in the country and can be reached by phoning 403-L.

T. D. O'BRIEN RETAINED—T. D. O'Brien a noted legal light of St. Paul, has been retained by Clearwater county as special counsel in the suit being brought by Beltrami county against Clearwater.

ADJUDGED INSANE — P. Anton Berg, formerly in business at Hawley was adjudged insane at Moorhead and taken to the hospital at Fergus Falls. He has been drinking very hard and it is believed rest will help restore him mentally.

PIONEER FARMER DEAD —Knut Gonvick the venerable old man of Gonvick near Bagley, the aged father of Mrs. P. A. Monsrud and M. O. Gonvick died at the home of his daughter on Saturday last. M. Gonvick was a pioneer in that part of the county and one of its most highly respected citizens.

WILL PROVE UP—N. L. Berg one of the prominent farmers near Climax arrived this morning expecting to meet his mother, Mrs. Elena Berg who expected to arrive from her homestead near Roosevelt last evening and will prove up Dec. 3rd. She did not come but will probably be here tomorrow and Mr. Berg will come up again tomorrow.

SHOE MEN BUSY—The shoe men reported the sale of heavy shoes and overshose the slowest for years at this season, but yesterday they did an enormous business and a still bigger rush will be experienced from the country as the farmers come in during the next few days. Despite the storm of yesterday the day was one of the heaviest this fall in drygoods, clothing and footwear lines.

"UNCLE" HARRY PHILLIPS — Dave Phillips, freight conductor on the M. & I. railway running between Bemidji and Brainerd, is again "laying over" in Bemidji over Sunday. Dave is now the proud papa of a fine bouncing baby girl which arrived at his home last week. Conductor Phillips is a brother of Officer Harry Phillips of this city and is well known here.

AT LEAST ONE FARMER — To show his good faith in education Mr. Malm of Big Woods, Marshall County, has sent all his boys away from home to the schools of their choice, Albert to the Agricultural school at Crookston, Willie to Warren and Arthur to Argyle where his sister Minnie had been sent previously. He is dubious as to getting more than one farmer out of the bunch. — Argyle Banner.

MRS. J. C. CUMMINGS DEAD — This community was shocked to learn that Mrs. J. C. Cummings of St. Hilaire who has been ill with pneumonia for the past two weeks, died Saturday morning at 2 o'clock. Drs. Bratlund, of Warren, and Heber of Thief River Falls were in attendance The funeral took place from the residence at St. Hilaire Monday at 2 p. m. The heartfelt sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved husband.

DOC GETS HIS MOOSE—Dr. E. H. Marcum's moose, which he shot last week while hunting near Margie in company with Rev. White of this city and a friend from Illinois, arrived in Bemidji this morning on the M. & I. passenger train. The monarch measured fifty-three and three-quarters inches across the spread of the horns and weighed 870 pounds when dressed The horns were an especially fine set and had thirteen points on each side.—Bemidji Pioneer. We have a special tooth for moose down this way. (Pioneer please copy.)

WAS ENCOURAGED— Paul Marschalk has returned to Warroad from a three weeks' trip to the twin cities. Mr. Marschalk was down looking after the interest of the fishing industries of Lake of the Woods. He succeeded in getting U. S. Senator Nelson and Congresman Steenerson interested in the affairs who have placed the matter in the hands of the Department of Commerce and Labor which will endeavor to bring influence to bear on the Fish Commission to amend the proposed law so as to be favorable to Lake of the Woods and other International waters.

EDITOR ALLEN BANKRUPT—A. B. Allen, formerly publisher of the Battle Lake Review and later of Pelican Rapids Press, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States Court at Fergus Falls yesterday. After leaving Otter Tail Co., Mr. Allen went to Bemidji, where he engaged in the newspaper business. His venture there has not proven a financial success, and he places his assets at $350, all exempt, and his liabilities at $1,853.50. There is only one Otter Tail county firm listed among his creditors, his indebtedness being largely to Twin City paper and type concerns.

TIMELY EDUCATIONAL WORK— Prof. Dunton returned from the Park Rapids educational meeting more than ever impressed with the desirability and timeliness of the industrial school work now being done here. He says that all school men now recognize the desirability of this line of work but that only a few of them have been able to grasp the situation, or to get far enough away from their books to put it into practical operation. He has a plan in view for carrying the work still further, which plan was laid before a meeting of representative citizens last Monday evening. The general plan met with the approval of our citizens and the details will be worked out later. As a result of the work being done here the school now has on the rolls 70 pupils from the nearby country districts. Prof. Dunton left for the south Tuesday evening to interview leading school men in other sections of the state relative to the details of the proposed extension of the work, his expenses being borne by the Commercial Club of this city. —McIntosh Times.

A GOOD SUGGESTION — It was gratifying to se the snow plow out Monday morning. Each ward ought to have its own plow and man so that the walks can be put in shape early in the morning before the teachers and children and girls who work in shops, and stores have to start out in the morning. Wet shoes and wet skirts cause much discomfort and illness. We spend much money in preparing sidewalks and in the past we have had no use of them in the winter The cost of keeping the walks clean and free from snow is not very great if the start is made when the snow first comes. It should be done by the city so that there will be a clean walk in front of the vacant lot as well as in front of the lot that is built upon and in front of the home of the indolent man as well as in front of one who is energetic.—Fergus Falls Journal.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY

HAS TYPHOID—Gus Sommers is confined to his home with an attack of typhoid fever.

SLOWLY SINKING—J. W. Coleman who was moved to the St. Vincent hospital a few days ago is gradually failing and his friends have no hopes for his recovery.

AFTER CULPRIT—Deputy Sheriff Louis Gonyea left last evening for Duluth where he expects to locate a man very much wanted at the present term of court.

QUIET IN MINNEAPOLIS —J. A. McDonald returned this morning from Minneapolis. He says it is rather quiet there, tho the stores look radiant in their holiday attire.

WILL LOOK OVER BANK—J. P. Foote left this morning for Cass Lake where he is interested in a bank and will not return till tomorrow.

FUNERAL TODAY— The funeral of Andrew Erling Peterson of Fanny township was held this afternoon from Chesterman's Undertaking rooms. He had lived with his nephew John Ekblaw in Fanny for many years. He was 67 years of age and had never been married.

BAGGED TWO — R. J. Brown of the firm of Brown & Kaiser, of East Grand Forks passed thru the city yesterday enroute home from Cass Lake where he has been enjoying a week's hunt. R. J. brought back two fine deer with him and it wasn't a very good week for hunting either. We haven't tried the steak yet, but venture the advance assertion that it's all right.

GETTING OUT WOOD—J. H. Hiler, who has a fine timber farm near Erskine, returned home with Mrs. Hiler this morning after attending the funeral of Mrs. Wilson at East Grand Forks. He was accompanied by W. M. Montgomery who will assist him in getting out cordwood this winter. He now has 140 cords of hard and soft wood which he got out last winter.

EVERYONE DODGED THEM — Chief Fadden of Larimore, Chief Overby and Capt. Sullivan of Grand Forks, Officer Leahy of Grand Forks, and Chief Ellingson of East Grand Forks came over this morning having John R. Johnson of East Grand Forks in custody. or apparently they did. The officers were as stoical as Indians and refused to talk. However Chief Ellingson volunteered the statement that the charge was not bootlegging.

OH BIDDY GET BUSY

HEN FRUIT STRICTLY FRESH, WORTH 38 CENTS PER DOZEN IN CROOKSTON

CASE EGGS 32 CENTS—HIGHEST REACHED IN PAST TEN YEARS

From Wednesday's Daily—

"Biddy" and "Old Speckle" are the whole works now. The hen is strictly "Quality Folk." They would not deign to associate even with the festive turkey, tho the holiday season is approaching.

Strictly fresh eggs are worth 38 cents per dozen in Crookston. This is the highest price at which eggs have sold in this city for 20 years, barring perhaps a day or two when on acount of storms farmers could not get in.

Take off your hat to Mrs. Hen. Her fruit is a luxury. Ham and eggs are worth more than a turkey dinner with all the "fixins." The stores are paying 35 cents cash and sell for 38 cents for strictly fresh eggs. Case eggs are selling for 32 cents.

In Minneapolis

Regarding the egg situation in Minneapolis the Journal of that city has the following:

"The controller of the family pocket-book in Minneapolis will have to choose, tonight, when he returns home between ham and eggs for breakfast and cake for supper with a spendthrift indulgence in eggs therefor, or economy and no eggs.

"At this morning's meeting of the Produce Exchange it was decided to anticipate the certain strike on the part of the hens, always incidental with a sudden cold snap, and the price of eggs on Commission row was boosted to 35 cents per dozen — the highest price in the memory of the "oldest inhabitant" with the possible exception of a day or so in midwinter when heavy snows interfered with shipments. Even at this price shipments of eggs are few and far between, and the storage variety are greatly in evidence."

PLEADS GUILTY GETS 1 YEAR

MAN WHO ROBBED LABORER IN SVEA HOTEL TAKES HIS MEDICINE.

From Wednesday's Daily—

Herbert Griffin the man accused of robbing a laborer at the Svea Hotel about three weeks ago of a check for $25 about $30 in cash and a gold watch, did not have his case go before the grand jury. He plead guilty to grand larceny and was brought before Judge Watts and sentenced to one year at Stillwater.

Chief Ellingson finally spotted Griffin when he tried to cash the stolen check in East Grand Forks.

However Griffin would probably have gone scott free had he kept his mouth shut, as the complaining witness has disappeared and cannot be located, and there was no other evidence against Griffin without the appearance of the victim. This is supposed to be a shrewd piece of work on the part of County Attorney Maybury.

CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT— Ed Hitchcock was brought before Judge Sullivan of the municipal court at East Grand Forks yesterday on complaint of his wife, who charges him with leaving her several weeks ago at Bemidji and failing since then to provide for the support of herself and children. He entered a plea of not guilty and the case was set for hearing on Dec. 8th at 10 o'clock.

SALOON BURGLARIZED— Some one broke the back window in Egger's saloon at Perham last night, took one bottle of whiskey off the back bar and about $9 50 which was left in the cash register and made good his escape. Nothing further was missed but the iron box in which Mr. Eggers kept the Sons of Herman books was found on the track west of the depot. It was smashed open but the books were not injured. Moral.

LIGHT PLANT HAMPERED—The sudden change to extreme cold weather checked the flow of the river Monday night the stream freezing all along its course and the flow being diminished to the extent of the amount of ice formed. The electric light plant had to be shut down at about 2 o'clock in the morning. Some water acumulated and the system started up again about 5 a. m., but had to be shut down again before 7 Some water is being accumulated in the pond today, and it is expected that it will be possible to run again tonight. The low water today has necessitated the shutting down of the mills in this city. — Fergus Falls Journal.

STEENERSON TALKS OF COMING SESSION

Some Important Local Measures He Hopes Will Be Passed During The Next Congress. Short Session.

From Wednesday's Daily— ...

Congressman Halvor Steenerson accompanied by Mrs. Steenerson and his private secretary, Fred Dennis and his wife, leave this evening for Washington, D. C., to be in readiness for the next session of congress. Mr. Steenerson was interviewed by a representative of the Journal today as to local matters with which he expected to deal during the coming session, as well as matters of general interest and relative thereto said:

"The coming session of Congress is the short one as it ends by limitation of law on March 4th, and most of the time will be devoted to the preparation and passage of the appropriation bills for the support of the Government.

"I intend to press the Postal Savings Bank Bill before the Post Office Committee and hope that we can get that measure also reported and passed this session.

"Of local interest there are a number of small tracts of pine land in the ceded Indian reservation in this district which were not sold under existing law (Morris Act) because the provision governing the disposal of the timber are so cumbersome and expensive when applied to such small and isolated tracts as to make them impracticable and I expect to secure such amendments as to put these up on the market and make this timber available for local demands.

"There will be no Rivers and Harbors Bill until next session, but when one comes up there will probably be a contest between those representing the big projects and those interested in the smaller waterways. The Propaganda for permanent as distinguished from annual appropriations for waterways seems to limit the scheme to the larger streams only, and this would leave out the Red River and the Red Lake River, and like streams and to this I for one shall strenuously object. The development of drainage in the northwest has raised new problems, for the natural streams have proved inadequate for the additional work thrown upon them, resulting in the damaging of destruction of lands heretofore most valuable. It will be contended that this has nothing to do with navigation but is so closely related to it that we would be justified in taking the position that the problem must be met before we consent to any lavish expenditures for waterways proper.

"The proposition of federal aid to reclamation of wet lands by drainage is still a live one and I shall continue to agitate it, and possibly some practicable and effective scheme may be worked out. It will probably be on lines of more effective co-operation between Federal, State and Local governments."

Of Congressman Steenerson's work the Bemidji Pioneer says:

"Congressman Steenerson states that he will put forth every effort at the coming session of Congress to have the bill passed for the establishment of the Federal building at Bemidji.

"The bill was introduced at the last session of Congress, but on account of the retrenchment at the end of the session, Congressman Steenerson was compelled to abandon active work in passing the bill, as forcible measures would undoubtedly have killed the bill and destroyed any chance there was left for the building for Bemidji.

"Beltrami county friends of Mr. Steenerson will watch the development of this Federal building with much interest."

Bagley Water Tank Bursts

Bands Of Large Wooden Tank Bnrst With Heavy Sound As Tho A Safe Was Blown. To Be Rebuilt.

From Wednesday's Daily— ...

The Bagley city water tank of a capacity of 1,500 barrels burst last evening about midnight the break being caused by the intense and sudden cold snap which swept over this section of the country.

Professor I. S. Hov, superintendent of the Bagley schools was awakened about midnight by a loud report which sounded like the blowing up of a safe. Investigation led to the discovery that the iron hoops which bound the tank had contracted at a greater rate than the wooden tank, owing to the cold and burst, pouring 1,500 barrels of water onto the ground

The city water tank was built in 1906 by the Crowley Electric company of Duluth and was only two years old at the time of its destruction. The structure was built at a cost of $800.

The city council intend to have some of th eold material used again and will rebuild a tank in the near future. During the meantime the city will be furnished water by closing the gate from the water mains to the tank, and supplying the needs of the city by direct pressure.

VALUABLE LAND IS INVOLVED

SUIT ON BEFORE JUDGE WATTS OVER MAHNOMEN COUNTY LAND

A court case is on before Judge Watts today in which John Vig of Fosston is the plaintiff and Albert Lillo the defendant, the title to a valuable quarter section of land in Mahnomen county being involved. W. E. Rowe represents Vig and A. A. Miller represents Lillo.

BROUGHT HOME GAME—A party consisting of Miss Anna Anderson and Miss Hilda Olson and Mr. Sigar Olson and Carl Carlson went up to Noble to spend Thanksgiving. While up there they formed a hunting party and had great success at rabbit shooting, got 115 rabbits in 6 hours. Mr. Lars Engen carried off the medal shooting 36 which was the largest number killed by anyone. After spending their vacation with the Olson's anl Engen's in the most delightful manner returned home on Tuesday evening with their game.

PLANS FOR BIG POULTRY SHOW

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF GRAND FORKS POULTRY ASSOCIATION MEETS

A meeting of the executive committee of the Grand Forks Poultry association was held in the Commercial Club rooms last night to discuss matters in connection with the coming poultry show which is to be held at the Forks on January 27, 28 and 29 These dates were selected because they are the dates fixed for the farmers' institute which has been arranged for, and the two meetings will fit in well together. The institutes in the past have been well attended and have been productive of much good, and the holding of the poultry show at the same time and place will be an added feature of interest and value.

Mrs. L. J. Stevens, from Nebraska City, Nebr., arrived in the city Saturday morning and will spend the winter here, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Ned Cannon.

MARKS NEW ERA IN CULTURE OF CROOKSTON

New Carnegie Library Packed at Dedication Last Evening. Splendid Addresses. Fine Gift From D. H. Turner.

The dedication of Crookston's magnificent Carnegie Public Library building last evening marks an era in the history of this city as the center of education and culture in the Red River Valley. The event was a most happy one, and after the building was packed with people, main floor and basement, hundreds could not gain admission.

The doors were thrown open at promptly 7:30, and Riggs Full Orchestra was in attendance and discoursed fine music till the speechmaking began. All the members of the library board were present as follows:

J. W. Wheeler, president; G. F. Carpenter, secretary; G. S. Chesterman, A. M. Sivertson, Allan McKinnon, O. O. Christianson, J. E. O'Brien, John Moore, O. Mercil, Jr.

Crowd Was Enthusiastic

Pleasure and pride was depicted upon every face present, and a happier gathering was never assembled in Crookston nor a more democratic one. Every walk in life was represented, which augurs well for the future usefulness of the splendid institution.

President Wheeler presided, and while Hon. Halvor Steenerson was the first speaker a few facts regarding the history of the Library from its inception to the present time, a portion of the facts gleaned from the closing remarks by Hon. G. S. Chesterman are given at this juncture together with other facts gleaned from the records.

History of Efforts

Mr. Chesterman was president of the city council in 1900, in which capacity he opened the first negotiations with Mr. Carnegie for a library.

It was just 8 years ago last spring when the first steps were taken by Mr. Chesterman by writing to Mr. Carnegie and he had the active cooperation of S. W. Vance, H. R. Robertson, now of Minneapolis, Miss Elizabeth Lommen, who has been the librarian since the public library was established and many others.

A donation of $12,500 was first secured, and then came a delay of two years in deciding upon a location before the present site on Ash street was selected. The site cost $2200 half of which was paid for by the city and the other half by public subscription.

When the plans were drawn it was seen that $12,500 would fall far short of the cost, and application was made to Mr. Carnegie for an additional $5,000 and it was granted and work on the building was begun the summer of 1907 and was but recently completed.

The building is of light colored pressed brick with brown stone trimmings and is a beautiful structure. It consists of a four room basement and one high story, splendidly lighted and equipped with every modern library convenience, the interior finish and furniture being Mission Finish Oak. The building and equipment as it stands represents an outlay of about $25,000.

The First Library

The present public library was established in 1902 in the I. O. O. F. hall and the first library board was G. S. Chesterman, president; O. K. Berget, secretary; L. Ellington, treasurer and Messrs. J. W. Wheeler, A. A. Miller, Rev. H. P. Fisher, John Moore and Halvor Steenerson and the nucleus of the board has never been changed, tho a few individuals have been changed on account of removal from the city.

The start was made by a great book shower, the W. C. T. U. making the first big donation. The library continued under that management for two and a half years when the city council levied a library tax and it became a city institution, the first board having been named by Mr. Chesterman as president of the council and was practically a reappointment of the old board.

Congressman Steenerson was the first speaker introduced by President Wheeler and spoke substantially as follows:

Congressman Steenerson's Address

Andrew Carnegie was born in Dunfirmline, Scotland, November 25th, 1837, came with his family to the United States in 1848, and settled in Pittsburg, Pa. His first work was as a boy of eleven when he was employed as a cotton weaver's assistant earning one dollar a week, and at fourteen he became a telegraph messenger then an operator and later by successive promotions he reached the position of superintendency of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Pittsburg. During the Civil War he served the Government as superintendent of military railways and government telegraphs in the Department of the East.

Foundation of Fortune

The nucleus of his fortune was made in the organization of the Woodruff Sleeping Car Company. He added to his fortune by fortunate investments in oil lands and then embarked in the iron and steel industry as manufacturer in which he has accumulated the most of his collateral fortune. His title to fame will not rest upon the magnificience of his business achievements, but upon the wise and philanthropic manner in which he has in his own lifetime expended his vast accumulations.

Founded Worthy Institutions

He has founded institutions for the advancement of knowledge and scientific research, to encourage and reward brave and heroic conduct in all walks of life, and to laboring men, and public conveniences including more than fifteen hundred public libraries, in all of which it is estimated he has expended more than seventy five millions of dollars. Some of his latest donations have been to advance the cause of international arbitration and peace in the world, he having donated the funds to erect the Peace Palace at the Hague, where the Hauge Conference of International Arbitration will hold its regular meetings, as well as the fund for the erection of a building for the Bureau of American Republics at Washington.

Fortunate When Dead

When Croesus asked Solon who he deemed the most fortunate man, he replied that no man could be called fortunate until he was dead. That Tollus, who lived while his country was prosperous was surrounded by a family of children and grand children that were not only beautiful but good who died on the battle field in defense of his country just as he had achieved a signal victory was in his estimation to be deemed the most fortunate man. Let us hope that Andrew Carnegie may die under like fortunate circumstances with this difference, that before he dies he will have achieved a signal victory over cruel war, the crime of the ages, and shall have established godlike Reason on its throne to dispense Justice among all nations and people of the earth.

Stewardship of Wealth

It is undoubtedly true that with advancing civilization the stewardship of wealth is becoming more and more recognized and that men of wealth must recognize the duty of their trusteeship in order to retain the good will esteem and regard of their fellowman, the possession of which is the true source of genuine happiness.

Lesson of Carnegie's Life

The lesson of Carnegie's life is an inspiration to the young and the humble as well as source of emulation to the rich and mighty, and will continue as a power for good as long as civilization shall flourish among men.

Let us all join wishing him good cheer and many returns of the day.

A Magnificent Gift

President Wheeler between the addresses read the following communication which was heartily applauded:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Crookston Public Library Board:

We have assembled here this evening to give some expression of our gratitude as a community toward Andrew Carnegie, to whose generosity we are indebted for this beautiful building. To him it represents duty done; to us it means opportunity offered. As a memento of this occasion it being just seventy-one years ago today, November twenty-seventh, that our benefactor was born in far off Scotland. I now wish Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Library Board to present to you as a Carnegie birthday remembrance from my wife and myself these vases and jardinieres with their contents to be forever the property of the Library. These pieces are exact copies of ancient productions of art in copper, and were made to order especially for this building from drawings submitted by us and places with America's leading manufacturer of Antique Art in New York City. As it was our wish to have the artist's work blend in harmony with the beautiful and artistic work found in the construction and finish of the Library Building.

Yours respectfully,

—David H. Turner.

Crookston, Minnesota, November twenty-seventh, Nineteen hundred and eight.

Both the jardinieres and the vases are of hammered copper and very valuable and make magnificent decorations, standing between the massive columns in the four corners of the lobby just inside the main entrance leading to the receiving desk. The citizens on motion of Thomas R. Johnstone unanimously voted to have the secretary of the Library Board exppress to Mr. and Mrs. Turner the hearty appreciation felt for the splendid gift.

A. A. Miller's Address

A. A. Miller delivered a splendid address in which he pointed out the real function of the library, and the difference between the benefits that could be derived from the public library of today and the libraries of the olden days which were only accessible to the rich and learned.

He also dwelt upon the necessity of a strict censorship which should be exercised before books should find their way to the shelves of the public library. He criticised severely the great volume of trash found in book form and the perusal of which did the young reader specially, irreparable harm. He spoke of the wonderful factor the new library could be made if properly conducted, toward making Crookston a center of culture. His address thruout was full of excellent suggestions and his remarks elicited hearty applause.

Prof. McIntyre's Address

Supt. E. E. McIntyre read a paper on "The Value of the New Library From an Educational Standpoint" which was one of the best papers ever heard in Crookston.

He Preferred Mules.

One of the pet hobbies of Senator Christopher Magee was his newspaper, the Pittsburg Times. He kept the paper well to the front, and it was a credit to modern journalism. One morning the Times had been scooped on a railway wreck.

"Senator," asked an intimate acquaintance, "how do you console yourself on the loss of that wreck story this morning?"

"By congratulating ourselves," he answered quickly, "that we are amor the number who missed that ill fated train."

On another occasion as the senator was approaching the Times building on Fourth avenue he noticed a crowd gathered about a wagon which was filled with huge rolls of newspaper. A wheel was caught in a deep rut in the pavement and could not be budged.

"Senator," laughed a friend, "they managed at last to get your paper into a rut."

"Yes," answered Mr. Magee, his eyes twinkling with good humor, "and I'm not trusting to men to get it out again, but to mules."—Philadelphia Press.

Caught Alive.

A New Yorker, a big game hunter of many years' experience, was lion shooting in Uganda. He had excellent luck. Nearly every day he posed in a complacent attitude beside a freshly killed lion, and his photographer snapped him for the magazines.

One afternoon the photographer, who was taking a nap in the hut, was awakened by a loud noise. He rose and looked out. Sprinting toward him from the jungle, hat gone and coattails flying, came his chief, and, with terrible roars and growls, a huge lion bounded at his heels.

The photographer gazed spellbound at the strange and exciting picture. His chief, perceiving him, shouted:

"Quick, quick! Open the door, George! I'm bringing him home alive!"—Washington Star.

Spoiling a Tragedy.

"If you don't marry me," he said desperately, "I shall kill myself."

"And write a note telling all about it?" queried the maid.

"Yes."

"And hold my photograph in your other hand?"

"I had thought about it."

"Well, just wait a minute," she said, "and I'll borrow pa's pistol for you. My, but won't it be romantic?"

But he faded.

BAD FIRE AT RED LAKE FALLS

BIG MILL OF 700 BBLS. CAPACITY PER DAY COMPLETELY DESTROYED

TOTAL LOSS OF $75,000 INS. $55,000 —WILL BE REBUILT IN THE SPRING

From Friday's Daily—

Yesterday morning fire which is supposed to have originated in the elevator or on the 4th floor, completely destroyed the big mill of the Red Lake Falls Milling Co., at Red Lake Falls, together with the big elevator, entailing a loss of $75,000 upon which insurance of $55,000 was carried. The only thing to escape was the electric power plant, which also supplies the electric lights for the city.

The mill is owned by a company of which Marcus Johnson of Stillwater is at the head, and he passed thru this morning enroute to Red Lake Falls. He stated that the mill would undoubtedly be rebuilt as soon as possible, as the water power developed there is one of the best in Northern Minnesota.

The company has a line of about 40 elevators and they will be kept running as usual. This means that the Crookston mill will be kept running full capacity day and night all winter.

The Red Lake Falls mill had a capacity of 700 barrels per day, the largest mill in Northern Minnesota.

The Chinese Hoe.

The Chinese farmer stands second to none in all the world. This is all the more remarkable since he has really so few implements with which to work the marvels he produces. His only implements are the hoe, the plow and the harrow. Beyond these the Chinese farmer never dreams of desiring any other. The first of these tools seems never to be out of his hands, for it is the one upon which he relies the most and is his most effective implement. It really takes the place of the spade in England, though the latter is never put to such extensive and general uses as the hoe. The Chinaman can do anything with it but make it speak. A farmer well on in years can easily be recognized amidst a number of workingmen by the curve his hands have taken from holding the hoe in the many years of toil in his fields. With it, if he is a poor man and has no oxen to plow the ground, he turns up the soil where he is going to plant his crops, and with it he deftly and with a turn of his wrist levels out the surface so that it is made ready for the seed. With a broad bladed hoe he dips to the bottom of a stream or of a pond, draws up the soft mud that has gathered there and, with a dexterous swing, flings the dripping hoeful on to his field nearby to increase its richness by this new deposit.—London King.

Half a League.

The class had just finished reciting "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

"Now," said the teacher, "can any one present tell me the meaning of those words, 'Half a league?' "

Up shot the hand of Thomas Jones, aged eleven, football captain and indomitable fullback.

"Please, sir, it means they couldn't get enough clubs to make up the full league."

Some one had blundered.—London Answers.

Not a Bargain.

"Do you think that Miss Kidder was having fun with me?" asked Chawlie.

"Well, old chap, give me the details," was Awthur's response.

"You see, I had my bull terrier with me, and I said to her, 'That dog knows as much as I do.' And she said, 'Don't you think $4.50 was too much to pay for him?' "—Cleveland Leader.

Paraguay's Sweet Plant.

A herb called by the natives caa ehe, but botanically Eupatorium rebaudianum, grows wild in Paraguay. It is remarkable for its sweetness. Indeed, the native name means the "sugar plant." It grows along the borders of the river Amambahi and attains a height of only about five inches. The smallest bit of this plant when placed upon the tongue produces a surprisingly sweet flavor, which, it is said, lasts for hours. The saccharine power is much greater than that of sugar.—Youth's Companion.

The Sleepless Seven.

"There were seven of the twelve," said one of the discharged jurors in speaking of the matter next morning, "who didn't want to sleep themselves and wouldn't let the rest of us sleep. Whenever we dropped into a doze they came around and shook us till we were wide awake again."

"And you had to submit, I suppose, for they constituted the majority?"

"Yes. They were a rousing majority," said the hollow eyed juror, with a pensive attempt to be facetious.—Chicago Tribune.

A Life Note.

"Life is what we make it," said the philosopher.

"Alas," exclaimed the practical one, "that we can't make it a million!"

We ask Providence to make us thankful for what we receive and then go to figuring on just how much Providence is going to send us.—Atlanta Constitution.

HEROISM OF YOUNG LAD

WM. KLINGER WRITES OF RECENT TRAGEDY AT MAPLE LAKE

GRAND SON HELD MRS. KLINGER ABOVE WATER OVER AN HOUR TILL AID CAME

FRANK NELSON, 11 YEARS OF AGE ENTITLED TO CARNEGIE HERO MEDAL

From Friday's Daily—

Otto Burkhardt yesterday received a letter from Wm. Klinger, who boarded with Mr. Burkhardt for 9 years at the Cleveland House, and who was an engineer running out of Crookston for years prior to the time he was employed by the Maple Bay Manufacturing Co., in which he gives the details of the recent drowning at Maple Lake of his grandson, Melvin Nelson. His brother Frank Nelson is certainly entitled to a Carnegie Hero Medal for saving his grandmother from a watery grave also. The Nelson boys lost their mother some time ago and make their home with their grand parents. The letter follows in part:

Maplebay, Nov. 25, 1908.

"We are having a very sad time at our house just now our little grand son Melvin Nelson broke thru the ice and was drowned. The facts of the case are, the ice had been very rotten and we tried to keep the children off and kept a close watch on them but last Saturday afternoon the 21st, Mrs. Klinger told Frank to go after the mail and Melvin begged hard to go along. She consented but made them promise not to go on the ice. I went to the back of the farm to burn off a slough that I had drained out and knew nothing of the accident until all was over. The water being low, left a good place to walk along the shore so they went to the Bay all right and got their mail and some shoes and when they started they were again cautioned by the Jerde folks not to go on the ice. Frank said he was going the road but they went along the road a way when Melvin ran down towards the lake and out onto the ice. Frank went after him to take him off and when he got up to him the ice broke and let Frank into the water. He had a hard struggle to get on top as the ice kept breaking but finally he got to a stronger lot and got on top and when he looked around Melvin was gone. He crawled back and tried to get Melvin but he got under the ice so he could do nothing. He called for help and his mother heard him. This was when he went down. She ran around the shore and took a short cut across the ice to try and save them. When she was about two hundred feet from shore she went down. Frank in the meantime had crawled up in the rushes and saw his mother go down and crawled on his stomach out to where unconscious. The other boat took Frank in. They hurried them to the bay where Mrs. Gjerde and the neighmors had a heated room hot blankets and rubbed them down, started the blood circulating. There was a bottle of brandy in the outfit and that's what did good work. They then fished out the body. If they had been a few minutes longer or some one had not heard the call for help there probably would have been three instead of one as Frank's hold was fast slipping. He barely had the tips of his mother's fingers so the head boat crew said.

Mrs. Klinger sais she could not have held much longer and she said so to Frank, but the little man encouraged her and said, "what will I do when you are gone", and begged her to hold on and said there would be help soon but that hour must have seemed like an eternity to them. I have just brought them home today. They are still in bad shape but if lung fever does not set in or some other complication, we hope they will be all right soon. The people seem to think here that Frank had great presence of mind and grit to do as he did and I think so too. I am thankful they were saved. He certainly did well for a boy that was just eleven years old the 24th of July last. My son-in-law has not arrived. He and Alvah went up into the pine woods east of Inez to a brother of his. It takes some time to get a letter there but we expect tomorrow they will be here. I do not want to bury the child without his father seeing him. With very best regards to you all, she was. She went down three times and came up in the same place. The last time Frank called to her to give him her hand as he just got there. He held onto her hand and with the other arm she hung onto the rim of ice and she was in the water an hour before she was rescued. The reason they did not get help sooner was they could not be seen from the Bay as they were out of sight behind the point. Frank held on to her all this time laying flat on the ice and calling for help, finally there was a young Mr. Johnson came down the other side of the lake and heard them and gave the alarm. They first tried to get drift wood and poles out but the ice was so rotten that as fast as they got onto it they broke thru and then they went after my boat and carried as close to them as possible and broke the ice with an ax and one of the party shoved the boat along in the meantime there was an other boat started from the bay they tried to shove it on top of the ice and got out about one hundred feet when they broke thru. A Mr. Theodore Nelson lost his hold on the boat and went in over his head but finely he caught hold of gunwale of the boat and nearly upset it. If he had they both probably would have been drowned. After a while they managed to get in one at a time and went to shore. Mr. Nelson was out of the game then as he was too much exhausted. They then carried the boat around the shore and started right with a rope and got as close as they dared and threw a loop over Mrs. Klinger and she then let go of the ice and got her arm thru the loop they then broke the ice and lifted her into the boat, she then became

—Wm. Klinger.

FAST TEAMS PLAY A TIE

The Deans of Minneapolis and the Eckersalls of Chicago met yesterday on Northrup field and fought a tie game the score being four to four. The battle of the teams made up as they were of former gridiron players, was an interesting one and the best exhibition seen in the Twin Cities this year. Special interest was taken in the game here as Kjelland a brother of Dr. J. S. Kjelland of this city played center. The teams lined up as follows:

Deans	Position	Eckersalls
Burns and Fox	LE	Turner, Dartmouth
Vita	LT	Messmer Wis
Christopherson	LG	Overall, California
Kjelland	C.	Harris, Chicago
Dan Smith	RG	Beall, Vonderbilt
Case	RT	McDermott, Notre D.
Broderick	RE	Yates, Swarthmore
Geo. Capron	LH	Roberts, Carlisle
Harry Capron	Full	King, W. Point
Joe Chicken	RH	Metoxen, Carlisle
Rob Marshall	Q	Eckersall, Chicago

The shoe men, drygoods dealers and clothing stores will do a land office business during the next few days. The banana belt weather thus far this winter has made peek-a-boo waists and open work socks plenty warm. Now felt boots and ear luggs will have an inning.

A Personal Appeal

If we could talk to you personally about the great merit of Foley's Honey and Tar, for coughs, colds and lung trouble, you never could be induced to experiment with unknown preparations that may contain some harmful drugs. Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and has a record of forty years of cures. Sold by all Druggists.

It is noticeable that about the time young girls get to be "bad actors" most of them want to go on the stage.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

UP GREENBUSH LINE — Supt. Allen of the Northern Division and Master Mechanic Mills went up the Greenbush line this morning.

WILL LOOK OVER RUINS—J. P. Foote left this morning for Red Lake Falls where he will look over the ruins, of the burned mill and attend to some other business matters.

NICHOLSON UNDER QUARANTINE — Asst. Postmaster Nicholson of the Crookston Post Office is quarantined at his home, one of the children suffering with dyphtheria.

FINE BABY GIRL— Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellis who reside in the J. O. Sundet resident 384 E. Fifth street are the parents of a very fine baby girl which arrived this morning. Mother and daughter are doing well and the proud dad is very chesty.

JOHNNY HAAS HAS SON—There is not a better known dispenser of liquid refreshments in the northwest than Johnny Haas of Moorhead and his friends will read with interest of the arrival of a son at his home on Thanksgiving day. He has been married 6 years and this is his first child.

BEAUTIFUL BRONZE BADE—Second Lieut. P. J. Eide has just received from Adjt. General Wood of the M. N. G. of Minnesota a handsome bronze medal for good work as a pistol shot. It consists of a bar on which is engraved "Pistol Sharpshooter" from which suspends a star in the center of which is the circular target and bulls eye. It is a very handsome badge and the members of Co. I are proud of the record made by Lieut Eide.

G. N. REBUILDING BRIDGE—Extensive repairs are being made to the Emerson bridge. False work is being placed under the whole length preparatory to renewing the iron and steel work, so that the bridge will be safe for the big mogul 350 ton engines While the bridge was originally built for railway traffic purposes, engines and trains were not so heavy as they are now. The real ownership of the bridge is in the town of Emerson but as the municipality still owes the provincial government some $40,000 on it. it is probable that it will be transferred to the Canadian Northern, but reserving the highway traffic facilities It is thought this work has been now begun in answer to the new survey of the Great Northern on the East side of the Red river to Winnipeg which has complained before to the Canadian Northern company that the bridge was not strong enough for their trains.

The citizens of Crookston should not forget the dedication of the Carnegie Public Library this evening to which everyone is invited. The doors will be thrown open at 7:30 and from that time till the close, Riggs Orchestra has kindly volunteered to discourse music.

Beginning about 8:15 there will be addresses by Congressman Steenerson A. A. Miller, Supt. McIntyre, and G. S. Chesterman. The new library will be brilliantly lighted, and the books are all in place, and every resident of the city is urged to be present.

Feasting and merrymaking took up a large share of the time of Crookston people yesterday. Dinner parties were numerous and there were a number of guests from out of town. A good many traveling men came in for the day and they found pleasing menus at the hotels. It was a holiday generally and the skating rinks and theatres were liberally patronized. Matinees at the two theatres drew quite a crowd in the afternoon and there were regular performances in the evening. The weather was ideal for Thanksgiving day. There was enough snow to make sleighing possible.

KILLED FINE BUCK—Messrs. Alfred Christianson and Otto Nelson have just returned from a deer hunt in the big woods and brought a fine buck back with them.

TO LITTLE FORK—Deputy Sheriff Louis Gonyea left this morning for Little Forks and other points to summon some witnesses needed at the December term of the district court.

RETURNED TO DUTIES —Ole O. Hagen who was called from the naval academy at Annapolis by the death of his father, returned last evening to his duties as midshipman. His brother Paul also returned to the University of Minnesota.

OLD TIMER HERE—Bert Duntley one of the old time Crookston boys spent the night in the city and left this morning for Fosston where he will spend the day, leaving this evening for Duluth to spend Sunday. He says business is very good this fall.

ON DITCH BUSINESS—O. L. Hamery, the surveyor left this morning for Hallock to attend to some ditch business east of that place. He has had a vast amount of ditch work in the north valley for the past two years and has a great deal in sight for the coming year.

FROLAND AT GREAT FALLS — Victor Froland for many years a resident of this city, but who left about two years ago is now located in Great Falls, Mont., where he has a good position in a clothing store and is doing well. He has been located there for some time past.

MOVED TO GREAT FALLS—Peter Peter Hervin formerly resiednt engineer of the Great Northern with headquarters in Grand Forks but who Falls, moved his family to the Monrecently was transferred to Great tant city Wednesday where they will make their home.

SUDDENLY TAKEN SICK —John Rose, the popular tonsorial artist at the Sullivan barber shop, at East Grand Forks was suddenly taken ill yesterday and is now confined to his room. it is believed that Mr. Rose has an attack of appendicitis and may have to be removed to the hospital. Mr. Rose worked for 2 years in the Braley and Palace barber shops in this city.

MAYOR DISAPPOINTED— Mayor McPhee feels greatly disappointed at missing the librar ydedication last evening. He went to Stephen yesterday morning and drove to the country expecting to return on the local train last evening. When the local pulled into Stephen his driver was still ten miles east of that place and he was forced to return on the flyer too late for the exercises.

NOT HELD FOR CONTEMPT—R. E. White appeared before Judge Watts last Wednesday on complaint of Attorney Collins of this city for contempt of court. It was alleged that White failed to appear at supplementary proceedings. Evidence in court however, showed that Mr. White had made an attempt to appear, but finding the office of the justice locked at the hour assigned for his appearance, he left and did not show up again. Judge Watts dismissed the case

BURGLAR SUSPECTS — After a spirited chase across the prairies and after two shots had been fired by the officer, two men giving their names as Frank Wolife and Joseph Velthanse, were arrested by Chief of Police A. D. Forsythe, of Barnesville, two miles south of here. The supposition is that they are connected with the robbery of the Patterson drug store here a short time ago when $200 in jewelry was taken; also that they are connected with the recent box car robberies which ahve taken place of late.

ACCEPTS CONGREGATIONAL CALL—Dr. Thos. W. Barbour of Cass Lake conducted services again in the Fosston Congregational church last Sunday evening and at a meeting of the congregation following the services accepted a call from them to take the pastorate of the church there Dr. Barbour who is district superintendent for this denomination, is a minister of marked ability and pleasing personality and the local congregation is fortunate in securing his services. He will hereafter divide his time between Cass Lake and Fosston, preaching at the lake on Sunday mornings and at Fosston in the evenings.

LOOKING OVER ANGUS FARMS—J. P. Foote spent the day at Angus locking over some of his farm properties. The farms about Angus are in the best shape this fall they have been for years.

WILL BUY LAND—E. Fitzgerald, Sr., has arrived from Iowa Falls, Ia., and will spend a month with his son, G. I. Fitzgerald of this city, he of Chancellor and Preferencia fame. Mr. Fitzgerald is greatly pleased with Crookston and will go out on a trip with his son next week to get a better survey of the Red River Valley. He is so much pleased with what he has seen of the Valley thus far that he has determined to purchase some land before returning to his home.

MOVED TO EUCLID —Clyde and Ray Goodwin who have been at Key West for the past few months have moved to Euclid. They drove to the city today to see if any of their friends had been paralyzed with turkeyitis with which they were both seriously effected since Thursday and came down for a prescription from Drs. McCaffrey and Woolery. They found instant relief by the use of their celebrated rainwater decoctions.

NEW TRAINMASTER—The office of assistant superintendent of the Willmar division of the Great Northern has been abolished, and the duties of this position will hereafter be looked after by the trainmaster. Samuel A. Walker, who was assistant superintendent there until the change was made a few days ago left with his family for Havre, Mont., and points on the coast, and after a vacation and a pleasure trip will locate in one of the western cities, probably Spokane. He will engage in business. The trainmaster is J. A. Laird. Mr. Laird had the same position in Willmar at one time, but now comes from Breckenridge where he has made his headquarters while running out of that city to Devils Lake as conductor on 3 and 4.

REDUCED RATE IN FORCE—Agent Lloyd informs us that, commencing last Friday, the Great Northern first class passenger rate from Fosston to the twin cities has been reduced, to meet that of the Soo line, to $5.76 to Minneapolis and $5.96 to St. Paul by way of Crookston. This is the change of which mention was made some weeks ago and will be received with general satisfaction as the majority of travelers find it more convenient to go by way of Crookston other conditions being equal, but as it was the Soo was taking considerable business from along this line. At other stations the change of rates will be proportional. — Fosston Thirteen Towns.

Green Spots in Chile's Desert.

Northern Chile, which is so largely mountain or desert, is generally regarded as a forbidding wilderness, but in spite of its natural desolation the landscape presents a scene of great beauty under the softened hues of sunset, and here and there in the waste of sand and salt may be found by looking for them a number of oases, the most conspicuous of which are Pica and Matilla. These oases are supplied with water from the high Andes, but the particular streams that support their life are not certainly known. It has been found that in various parts of the great Atacama desert the earth underneath the surface layer of sand or salt is sufficiently moist to grow crops, capillary attraction spreading the water through the soil. The rainless Atacama desert is the scene of the greatest industry of its kind in the world, yielding enormous quantities of nitrates, used to enrich the fields of Europe and the United States. The oases play a very important economic role in the industries of the region, supplying vegetables and foodstuffs for the support of the workmen, alfalfa for the cattle and various fruits, and also serving as timber producers for the nitrate works, which require much fuel. There is no part of the world where agriculture is more extensively carried on than in these green spots in the Atacama desert.—Zion's Herald.

Extract of Knowledge.

An article on "Examination Humor" in a periodical called Normal Echoes contains some good "howlers." They are none the less interesting for coming from students in training for teachers. A criticism of William Blake that "as a child he was precocious in poetry, but in later years it developed into dogmatism," is a lesson in the art of being inarticulate, while the remark that "the works of the time were mostly satyrs" is quaint, though obvious. Of course there is boggling over proper names. There is nothing, indeed, so good as the description of Cromwell as "a man with coarse features and having a large red nose, with deep religious convictions beneath," or the case of the "lapsed man" who, having by way of exception attended church, admitted to the rector's wife that he had benefited, for he had learned that Sodom and Gomorrah were two cities, whereas he had always thought they were man and wife. — Manchester Guardian.

LAMPHERE IN PRISON

LAPORTE, IND., MAN SENTENCED FOR ARSON.

Is Given from Two to Twenty-One Years for Alleged Crime on Gunness Farm.

Michigan City, Ind., Nov. 28.—Ray Lamphere, under sentence from two to twenty-one years for arson, was brought to the state prison in Michigan City and began his term Friday afternoon.

He received a visit from his aged mother. Though not with him during the trial, she came from South Bend Friday in order to say good-by to him and cheer him up. The meeting of mother and son was a pathetic one, the mother breaking down and crying as she clasped her son in her arms, but the prisoner bore up well, though there was a mistiness about his eyes which he could not keep back. The meeting was too sacred for even the guards, who turned their heads and stood where they could not hear what was said. Attorney Worden announced that he would make a motion Monday morning before Judge Richter for a new trial, and upon the same being denied, he expected to perfect the appeal. The transcript alone in the case will cost over $500, and as Lamphere's family has no means, and his friends by subscription have provided his defense, the general opinion is that the appeal will never be perfected. Another reason advanced as showing the uselessness of making the appeal is the fact that the case would not be reached in the higher court for two years, and by that time Lamphere would be in position, if his conduct has been good, to appear before the prison board and ask for a parole and then a pardon. If the case should be reversed, the chances are that the state would try him on the Helgelein murder charge, instead of the case just ended, while if no appeal is taken it is likely, according to intimations given Friday by Prosecutor Smith, that the other charges will be dropped. The motion for the new trial will be based upon the claim that Judge Richter erred in giving the jury instructions that it could render a verdict of arson. In a statement Lamphere said that he intended to become an exemplary prisoner so he would get the benefit of all good time and would be paroled after his first two years.

MERGER PLANNED

BIGGEST TILING IN THE NORTHWEST

Over 1,000 Acres Of Land Overflowed By The Marais Northwest Of Fisher Is Drained For $1500.

Drainage Made Easy By Fall Of 35 Feet In Short Distance Of 500 Feet. Tiling 22 Feet Underground.

State Drainage Engineer Geo. A. Ralph returned to St. Paul Sunday evening after spending Saturday looking over some state drainage work in Becker Co., and yesterday inspecting the big tile drain which drains 1,000 acres of land overflowed by the Marais northwest of Fisher, including portions of the Jos. Jarvis and adjoining farms. Engineer Ralph says this is without doubt the most profitable piece of drainage work yet undertaken in comparison to the cost. The work is being done jointly by the state and Polk county. The drain is only about 500 feet long, and of this distance by 300 feet is tiled, but the tiling is the largest ever used in the state and is laid 22 feet underground.

The drainage of that portion of the Marais however will be complete as the fall in a distance of 500 feet from the bottom of the swamp to the Red Lake River is 35 feet. The vitrified tiling was made in St. Louis and weighs 1040 pounds per 3 feet length and is three inches thick and 3 feet in diameter.

The Marais at that point had no outlet but several ditches emptied into it, and as a result 1000 acres were inundated and this summer about 3 feet of stagnant water stood over the land and the farmers entered a vigorous protest.

The work will be completed in 5 days, and will be the cheapest work ever done in the drainage line, costing only $1500. Engineer Ralph states that Capt. Beard of the Standard Drainage Co., is rapidly completing his contract on the Roseau River, the floating dredge having done splendid work the past season and the conditions having bee nvery favorable.

It is understood however that Capt. Beard's screw propeller dredge, for work in the crevasses on which he has been experimenting, is not coming quite up to expectations, but a stiffening of the shaft and a few other alterations are expected to make the new plan very successful on smaller contracts.

MINE DISASTER CLAIMS TERRIBLE DEATH TOLL

NUMBER OF DEAD IS 125 TO 300 MARIANNA, PA., IS SCENE OF LATEST TERRIBLE MINE EXPLOSION—MINE INSPECTOR JUST OUT OF MINE—CAME UP FEW MINUTES BEFORE EXPLOSION OCCURRED AFTER INSPECTION— MINE FOREMAN AND TWO MINERS ON WAY DOWN IN CAGE WHEN THERE IS TERRIFIC REPORT AND CAGE IS HURLED UP, OCCUPANTS BEING KILLED—DISASTER OCCURS JUST ON EVE OF MEETING OF MINING CONGRESS IN PITTSBURG

Pittsburg, Nov. 30—Not less than 125, and possibly 300 men were killed in the explosion in Marianna mines of the Pittsburg-Buffalo Coal company Saturday.

Ten of the bodies were recovered in the main entry and at at the foot of the shaft awaiting the construction of a temporary cage, when they will be brought to the surface.

Others are distributed in 29 rooms or workings in the mine the entrance to which is still blocked by the debris of the explosion. Officials of the company place the number of dead at 125. Only one miner has been rescued alive thus far.

About 50 of the victims were either Americans or English speaking men. The majority of the foreigners were comparatively new arrivals in this country many of them having left families in their old homes.

Steps have already been taken for the relief of the dependents of the victims. Subscription lists have been opened by charitable organizations and newspapers, arrangements made for a collection in the churches tomorrow, and a special appeal for aid for the sufferers will be made by Evangelist Henry Ostrom, who is conducting revival services here.

The mine was considered the most complete in the world. Cause of the disaster unknown.

ESTATE OF PAULUS AWARDED DAMAGES

Paulus Was Mistaken For Deer And Shot By William Roddeau, Near Blackduck. Roddeau Left Country.

Thru the sale by execution of a farm northwest of Blackduck, which sale was made by Sheriff Bailey Saturday $2,200 damages were recovered for the taking of the life of Simon Paulus two years ago at the hands of William Paddeau, who mistook Paulus for a deer.

The killing of Paulus caused considerable excitement for some time after he was shot, and there was a suspicion that there had been foul play.

Paulus went out one evening with a light attached to his head, for the purpose of killing deer by means of "shinging." He failed to return the following morning and a searching party afterwards found his dead body in a small clearing. There was a bullet wound in Paulus' head and his rifle lying at his side with none of the cartridges in the chamber having been fired.

The county authorities were at a loss to account for the exact manner in which Paulus met his death, but there was a well-defined suspicion that he had been murdered.

A coroner's inquest was held but no clue as to the killing was ascertained at that time.

A few weeks afterwards, a letter was received from William Poddeau who owned a valuable timber claim near that of Paulus and who disappeared quietly the day Paulus' body was found. In this letter Poddeau acknowledged that he had killed Paulus claiming that he had also been out after deer the night Paulus met his death and that he mistook Paulus for a deer and fired a shot at Paulus before ascertaining that he had been shooting at a human mark.

In this letter Roddeau agreed to deed all his earthly belongings to the wife of Paulus providing he (Roddeau) was not prosecuted for shooting Paulus.

Roddeau's offer was accepted but the latter never went further with his proposal than the offer made in the letter; and Mrs. Paulus instituted a suit for damages for the sum of $4000 for the taking of her husband's life. Roddeau never appeared to defend the suit, and judgment was rendered in favor of Mrs. Paulus in the sum of $4,000.

An execution was issued against the farm which Roddeau had owned, the execution sale the sum $2,200 was bid for the land by John Thompson, administrator of the estate of Simon Paulus, whose killing was the first crime of the kind in that section of the country.

DECEMBER TERM OF DISTRICT COURT

GRAND JURY ASSEMBLED THIS MORNING WAS CHARGED BY JUDGE WATTS, ORGANIZED AND ARE HARD AT WORK—A BIG GRIST OF CRIMINAL BUSINESS AND 25 INDICTMENTS EXPECTED—COUNTY ATTY. MAYBURY WILL BE GIVEN TILL FIRST OF YEAR TO CLEAN UP CRIMINAL CASES—PETAWAY GRAND LARCENY CASE NOW BEING INVESTIGATED

From Tuesday's Daily—

The December term of the District Court opened this morning, Judge Watts presiding. The grand jury reported and the charge was given by the court after which they retired and organized for work by the election of H. Gendron of Gentilly as foreman and J. O. Johnson as clerk. The Grand Jury is in charge of C. H. Jefferson as bailiff.

Judge Watts after a conference with County Attorney J. H. Maybury decided to give the petit jury which will report next Tuesday to the county attorney till January 1st in order to dispose of all the criminal cases first. The civil calendar was then called and the cases all set for after the first of the year.

The grand jury started first with the case against Alois Petaway the colored janitor of the Merchants National bank is accused of robbing that institution of something like $1,000 and is also charged with having robbed the Guarantee Clothing House of a considerable quantity of goods.

There are many other criminal cases mostly involving grand larceny and it is expected that fully 25 indictments will be returned, tho none will be returned before Wednesday or Thursday evening.

J. Milarky of the eastern end of the county and L. H. Hancock failed to report, there having been an error in their initials and were accordingly excused, and Richard Ohm, also from the east end was excused, being exempt from jury duty as he is a miller. Following is a list of the Grand Jurors who are serving:

PRISONERS SENTENCED AT GRAND FORKS

Judge C. F. Templeton of Grand Forks yesterday sentenced a batch of prisoners as follows:

John Henry who entered a plea of guilty to a charge of murdering Mrs. Ellen Fulton his housekeeper was sentenced yesterday afternoon by Judge C. F. Templeton to life imprisonment.

William Watkins, colored, porter in a barber shop was sentenced to serve four months in the county jail for carrying concealed weapons. He was held for flourishing a gun on DeMers avenue.

Abner Brown, found guilty of criminal assault by a jury, had nothing to say. The court sentenced him to serve ten years. The charge of outraging public decency was dismissed.

Aubrey Cole, who entered a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing a $75 diamond ring from a tray in Frank V. Kent's jewelry store, stated, in answer to the usual question, that his act was not premeditated.

The court stated that he had concluded to suspend sentence and any time the defendant broke the law he would call him in and give him five years.

S. C. Whalen found guilty of violating a milk ordinance of Grand Forks was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs of $27.95. He paid the fine.

George Wallace was sentenced to serve 100 days and pay a fine of $200 for selling liquor at Larimore. In default of payment of the $200 Wallace must serve 100 additional days, making a total of 200.

Sheriff Hanson will take Henry, Brown and Hardy to Bismarck Saturday evening.

NOLAN ESCAPES PRISON CELL

MAN DOOMED TO CELL BY NOLAN'S EVIDENCE REFUSES TO TESTIFY

TWO MEN WERE IMPLICATED IN ROBBING OF BANK AT STEPHEN

From Tuesday's Daily—

James E. Nolan the young man who turned state's evidence against his confederate James E. Raymond last July, and thru whose testimony Raymand was sent to Stillwater for ten years for the robbery of the State bank at Stephen, has been released from jail at Warren and the indictment quashed.

County Attorney Brown could secure no evidence against Nolan except his own confession. While Nolan admitted his guilt he entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment and the state was powerless to convict, under the rule that a person cannot be convicted upon his own testimony without some corroborating testimony.

Raymond refused to testify against Nolan, altho Nolan's testimony sent him to prison for ten years.

The case caused a great amount of interest here, Attorney Geo. J. Cannon defending Raymond and putting up a brilliant defense. He would have been cleared without a doubt had not County Attorney Brown very cleverly secured a confession from Nolan, and it was his confession alone that convicted Raymond, there being no other evidence that was of any moment.

WARROAD COMING INTO HER OWN

REALIZING HER HOPE OF YEARS AND MUCH MORE

Along with the realization of her hope of years comes to Warroad reason to believe that the town is to have more in the way of stimulas to development and growth than its citizens had dared to incorporate into their fondest dreams. The putting in by the Great Northern of five miles of yard and spur trackage here means that the company contemplates developments at this place that our citizens had not anticipated. Besides the house track always used by the Great Northern, there are two sidings the length of the yard, a dock spur a mile long, a "Y" transfer track, and spur to the lake, taking off from the "Y" This spur will skirt the lake shore and touch the river near the government shops on the point, where the sawmill is to be located.

The junction will be equipped with semaphores and signal tower and interlocking switches, so that trains will not have to stop at the junction. A pumping station is to be installed at the river and 1,600 feet of pipe will be laid to the tank and roundhouse at the northern end of the yards.

While the people of Warroad are looking upon these extensive operations and wondering what the Great Northern wants with all these facilities here, comes the word, almost authoritative, that it is Mr. Hill's purpose to build from Warroad to Duluth and Winnipeg in the immediate future.

GREAT SHIPMENTS OF FARM PRODUCE

McINTOSH MAKES A RECORD TO BE VERY PROUD OF

Nine cars of farm produce in car lots and three tons of live poultry by express, were shipped out of McIntosh during the past week, besides an unknown amount which went forward by local freight. These shipments, with a very few exceptions, all went east to the range and timber country. The car lot shipments included hay, cattle, flax and wheat, four of them being cattle, three wheat and one each of hay and flax.

BIG MEET OF ROADMAKERS

FIRST ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MINNESOTA ROADMAKERS' ASSOCIATION

WILL BE HELD IN ST. PAUL DEC. 15-17—PRES. CHESTERMAN IS NOTIFIED

From Tuesday's Daily—

President G. S. Chesterman of the Polk Co., Good Roads Association has received notice from President Geo. A. Nash and Secretary J. H. Mullen of the Minnesota Roadmakers' Association and Secretary Geo. W. Cooley of the Minnesota State Highway Commission of the First Annual Meeting of the Minnesota Roadmakers' Association which will be held under the auspices of the State Highway Commission in the Representative Chamber of the Old Capitol, in St. Paul, Dec. 15, 16 and 17, 1908, commencing at 10 a. m.

It is the desire of the Highway Commission that all persons interested in the betterment of our road system avail themselves of this opportunity to meet and consult on all matters pertaining to Road Construction and Maintenance. Boards and County Commissioners, City and Village Councils, Commercial clubs, and other public bodies are requested to send representatives and take part in the discussions. County Surveyors, Road Superintendents and Road Overseers are especially advised to attend this meeting.

A question box will be a prominent feature of this convention and those who desire discussion on any subject pertaining to Road Work are urged to communicate with the Secretary before the date of the meeting that the matter be given consideration.

The program which will be prepared before the opening of the Convention will provide for consideration of the following subjects: Road Drainage, Construction and Maintenance, Steel and Concrete Bridge and Culvert Construction and Legislation.

Some of the best authorities in this country on Road Building, Road Laws and Steel and Concrete Bridge and Culvert work, have been procured for this meeting and will speak on their special subjects.

FINE SAMPLES OF CORN FED BEEF

HENRY O'NEIL MARKETS A PAIR THAT EXCITE GENUINE INTEREST

Henry O'Neil, the prominent young farmer east of the city today marketed two corn fed steers, Ed Erickson buying one and Joe Winfield the other. The two are as handsome specimens of prime beef as was ever seen in the city. The one sold to Ed Erickson was a little over two years old and dressed nearly 700 pounds and brought $43.75.

Both animals were corn fed and Mr. O'Neil raised the corn that he fed them and will raise still more next year. He had a big crop this year, and those who saw his exhibit, which was a part of the exhibit sent to the state fair by Polk county know that it is as fine corn as was ever raised anywhere.

Mr. Erickson stated to the Journal that he had never handled as fine beef as the one brought in by Mr. O'Neil and he would purchase all he could get like it at top prices. If Mr. O'Neil can make a success of it, so can every other farmer.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

SHUFFLED OFF VIA CARBOLIC ACID ROUTE

J. W. Gilbreath, Well Known Resident Of Fosston Committed Suicide Yesterday Afternoon. Family Tronbles & Heavy Drinker,

From Tuesday's Daily—

Yesterday afternoon shortly before 3 o'clock the body of J. W. Gilbreath was found in the rear of his barber shop at Fosston, cold in death.

He had taken two ounces of carbolic acid diluted in water. He left a note stating that he was worried to death and tired of life. He had been drinking heavily of late and was worried over his family troubles.

Deceased was married but his wife had not lived with him for the past four years and is at present residing at Cloquet. There are also four childresn all grown one son working on a farm near Fosston and another being at Cloquet, the whereabouts of the other two not being known at present.

Gilbreath was 57 years of age. Several hours before he committed suicide he bought a bottle of carbolic acid at the drugstore stating that he wanted it to clean his tools with.

Undertaker Ross Chesterman who was sent up to investigate found it a clear case of suicide and no inquest was necessary and the body was turned over to friends who will bury the remains at Fosston tomorrow. The wife was notified but did not respond.

FIRST REAL WINTER DAY

SNOWFALL WITH NORTH BREEZE RECALLS FACT THAT WINTER IS HERE

FIRST TOUCH OF WINTER WEATHER THUS FAR EXPERIENCED

From Monday's Daily—

This is the first real winter's day experienced thus far the present season the last day of November. It began snowing quite heavily about the middle of the forenoon, and with a good stiff breeze from the north the air was full of swirling snow. However the thermometer is not low and it is not a bad day to be out, many farmers driving to the city.

The present snowfall will make excellent sleighing as there is a fine foundation for good roads, the first snow, with the thaw following making a bedding of ice that will make the sleighs slip easily.

The first of December with the river not entirely frozen over, and the ice still unsafe for skating, and experiencing the first snow flurry of the season is a good enough record for the Red River Valley—and on top of it all the merchants are rejoicing as it is creating a demand for winter goods, for which there has been no use thus far.

MINNESOTA SUITS BETTER THAN CANADA

AN OHIO FARMER WHO BOUGHT LAND IN CANADA RETURNS "ACROSS THE LINE"

The experiences of a farmer named Stevens from Ohio have a significant bearing upon Federation of Commercial Clubs campaign for $100,000 for the better advertisinfg of Minnesota.

While enroute to Western Canada three months ago, state officers who met him accidentally as he was passing through St. Paul, told him of the richness of the soil and the splendid climate of the Red River valley and asked him why he wisned to travel 1,000 miles farther when he could get the richest land in the world here in Minnesota.

He failed to appreciate their arguments and bought Canada land.

A letter received by one of the state officers brings word that he is back in Minnesota, has bought a fine farm in the lower Red River Valley after the sudden sale of his recently acquired Canadian farm, and is more than satified.

"I tried it up there," he says in his letter, "but Minnesota suits me better. I have had the experience. Now I am content to settle down in a good country to stay. Minnesota suits me right down to the ground and if I can't make money here, I can't make it anywhere."

Meaning of Words

Many words which are spelled alike and pronounced alike have different meanings. The word "rare" is an example. It may mean scarce as used to denote something not usually found, or it may mean choice—this is the meaning when we say that golden grain belt beer is a rare beverage, highly prized for its wholesome qualities and tonic properties. It should be kept in every home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

SLIPPED AND BROKE ANKLE

MISS ELLA CHRISTIANSON VICTIM OF PAINFUL ACCIDENT

FELL ON SCHOOL STEPS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON—RESTING EASILY.

From Tuesday's Daily—

Yesterday afternoon while leaving the High School building Miss Ella Christianson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Christianson was the victim of a painful accident, slipping on the steps of the High School building and falling heavily. She got up not realizing her limb was broken just above the ankle, and started down the steps, but fell again and fainted several times before she could be assisted into the building and taken home in a carriage. A physician was at once called and the fracture was reduced and tho the patient was in great pain for a few hours, she rested well last night and is doing nicely today. The break will cause her far less trouble than would have a severely sprained ankle, which would undoubtedly have resulted had not the bone snapped.

Miss Christianson will be confined to her home for three or four weeks and in this conection there is a peculiar incident. She had accompanied her mother to Ada Saturday evening but returned Monday morning as she did not wish to miss school, intending to return to Ada last evening to attend the funeral of her grandmother. In her zeal to avoid missing school, the accident resulted which will keep her from school nearly a month.

ADA PIONEER IS CALLED HOME

MRS. E. A. HELLAND DIED SUDDENLY—MOTHER OF MRS. O. O. CHRISTOANSON

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock Mrs. E. A. Helland one of the pioneer residents of Ada, died suddenly of heart failure. Deceased had been in poor health for some time past, but ate breakfast Saturday morning with the family as usual, suffering a sinking spell shortly afterwards from which she failed to rally.

Mrs. Helland was 79 years of age and is survived by a husband and 7 children, two sons, E. C. who is county treasurer of Norman County, and George who also resides at Ada. The five daughters are Mrs. O. O. Christianson of this city, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Holland of Ballard, Wash., Mrs. Scotland of Rugby, N. D., and Miss Agatha Helland who resided with her parents. Mrs. Scotland went to Ada last evening, Mr. and Mrs. Christionsan having gone down Saturday evening, Mr. Christianson returning this morig but will go to Ada again this evening to attend the funeral services which will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Helland was a pioneer resident of Ada, and the family is one of the foremost in Norman county where they located in 1881. Deceased was a woman of high character and was completely wrapped up in her duties as a wife and mother. Her death has caused deep sorrow both at Ada and in this city where she was well known. The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of all in their hour of affliction.

ST. VINCENT LOCAL CAME TO GRIEF YESTERDAY ON ST. VINCENT SPUR

SMOKER AND DAY COACH BOTH BADLY WRECKED—PASSENGERS SHOOK UP

From Tuesday's Daily—

Yesterday just as the local passenger train for St. Vincent was pulling into St. Vincent over the spur leading from the main track, a broken rail caused a bad spill. The engine and baggage car passed safely over it, but the day coach and smoker went off and took a tumble into the ditch.

There were but few passengers on board and but one was injured at all, and he very slightly, the others just getting a litle shaking up. The two catches however were badly jammed up and are still in the ditch.

Conductor P. C. Keeley and Engineer Matt Milligan and Brakesman Yoder were in charge of the train. A wrecking train left here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in charge of Conductor Darkow and Engineer Hughes and returned this morning with the engine and baggage car at 6 o'clock.

The local work was done between here and St. Vincent last evening by the Winnipeg Flyer which arrived a few minutes late. A special was made up here in charge of Conductor Miller, and left for Moorhead last evening on schedule time.

HITCHCOCK WAS ARRAIGNED

APPEARED IN MUNICIPAL COURT TO ANSWER A GRAVE CHARGE

Ed Hitchcock a former G. N. conductor who was arrested a week ago on the charge of wife desertion and also for keeping company with another woman will appear in municipal court at Grand Forks this afternoon and answer the charges.

Hitchcock has been in jail in Crookston as a result of a complaint served by Mrs. Hitchcock for the past week and was taken over this morning by Deputy Sheriff Gonyea. Attorney Finlayson will appear for the prosecution and Hitchcock will probably have a local attorney to defend him.

Mrs. Hitchcock claims that he deserted her about six months ago in this city and has failed to provide support for herself and two children during that time. Mrs. Hitchcock has been compelled to leave East Grand Forks and go to the home of her parents at Greenbush, but returned to East Grand Forks this morning to testify in the case against her husband.

IT'S ALL OVER BUT SHOUTING

There is no case pending in any court relative to any proposition for the removal of the county seat. Local attorneys today received notice from A. A. Miller, Thief River Falls' attorney, that the last case had been dismissed by him.

The people of Thief River Falls are in just the same situation as they were four years ago when the fight was started—except that there is one puzzle they haven't solved yet.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

The Surprise of Slivnitsa.

"I have never quite made out," says a writer in "Near East," "why the plain of Slivnitsa has come to be regarded as the scene of one of the great decisive battles of the world's history. It did not even decide the Servo-Bulgarian war in 1885. That was decided by Austria intervention. The battle of Slivnitsa is really only remarkable for the comical fact that both sides thought they were defeated, and while Milan of Servia was hurrying home in confusion Alexander of Bulgaria galloped all the way back to his capital before he learned that the tide had turned. Nowadays the village looks sleepy enough, poor and dirty, like most Bulgarian villages, but almost gay when the sun shines upon its red roofs."

The Retort Courteous.

A lady passing through the negro quarter in Mobile, Ala., heard an old woman chanting a dirgelike tune.

"Auntie," she observed, "that is a mournful song you are singing."

"Yassum," was the response, "I knows it's mo'nful, but by singin' dat song an' 'tendin' to my own business I spects to git to heaben."

GRAND JURY FOUND CO. BUILDINGS IN GOOD SHAPE—12 INDICTMENTS

From Monday's Daily—

The grand jury adjourned late Saturday afternoon after reporting 12 indictments, none of which were for very grievious crimes, and none being of a sensational character. They had no special recommendations to make, finding the county buildings in good shape and the prisoners in the jail well fed and cared for.

This morning the first criminal case was called, State vs. Wm. Loomis of Helgeland township charged with having assaulted E. J. Peterson. The two men got in a row over some cattle and came to blows and the prosecution is the result of the tangle.

The petit jurors serving this term who reported this morning are as follows:

SURFACING IS NOW COMPLETED

GREENBUSH EXTENSION TO WARROAD READY FOR TRAFFIC

Over 100 men who have been surfacing the Greenbush Warroad extension of the Great Northern returned last night, most of them proceeding to St Paul at once. The surfacing is practically all completed and thru service will probably be started about the 15th of December but may possibly be postponed till the first of the year. The local passenger will make the round trip from here to Warroad and return the same day, but if the run proves too long it will be divided, one crew making a trip one way each day laying over night at Warroad.

Short of Engineers

The Butte division of the Great Northern road, with headquarters at Great Falls has requested that five engineers be sent there from the Dakota division. Work is falling off to some extent on this division and so a number would just as soon go to Great Falls. Tonight Engineers Chas. Schuyler and J. J. Quigley will leave Supt. M. Nicholson formerly of Grand Forks has charge of the Butte division.

A Gem and Medicine Mine

Mining for precious stones and medicine in combination makes a novel and curious sort of industry in San Diego county in California. The medicine is lithia; the precious stones are tourmalines—a kind of gem that appears to be gaining in popularity. Steadily gaining in popularity, also, is golden grain belt beer, the ideal home beverage. The practice of keeping a case on hand at home is so general that it is well nigh universal. There is no other just as good. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

MAY RETURN TO G. N. RY.

JAMES RUSSELL LIKELY TO TAKE PLACE NOW HELD BY R. W. BRYAN, MINOT

GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT BRYAN TO BE GIVEN PLACE IN GENERAL OFFICES

From Tuesday's Daily—

A rumor is strongly current, and recent events give good color to it, that shortly in official circles of the Great important changes will take place Northern and that General Superintendent R. W. Bryan with headquaters at Minot, will take a new position in St. Paul and will be relieved by James Russell now division superintendent of the Burlington railroad. with headquarters at Aurora, Ill. The presence of Mr. Russell a few days last week in St. Paul and the fact that recent visitors with the family in the east bring news that Mr. Russell was made an offer by the Great Northern some weeks ago, lend strong probability to the story.

Should such a rumor prove true, Mr. Russell and his family will be given a hearty welcome back to western railroad circles. Mr. Russell was connected with the Great Northern some years ago, first at Havre, Mont., as chief dispatcher, then at Larimore and Grand Forks in the same capacity and finally as division superintendent at Minneapolis and Grand Forks. He left the service of the Great Northern and went into the ranching business ten miles west of Larimore. Poor crops forced him to give up his land and he accepted a position as division superintendent on the Missouri Pacific at Atchison, Kan., under the late Russell Harding, then general manager. From there he went over to the Burlington where he has made a record for himself, going at increased salary from division to division on this road until his ability in untangling such meshes as rise from increased traffic together with poor help or mismanagement, have made his services valuable.

It is hardly understood what position Mr. Bryan will take on the Great Northern, but it is thought a position is to be created for him in official circles in St. Paul. Both Mr. and Mrs. Russell and their daughter, Miss Margaret, a student at present at Smith college, are well remembered in social circles in Grand Forks and while if the presnt rumor be true, they will make their home at Minot, it will be gratifying to their friends to have them again in the west.

BRAINERD MAN DISAPPEARS

THAT CITY FACES ANOTHER MYSTERY SIMILAR TO THAT OF HESSEL

Brainerd is apparently face to face with another mystery similar to the case of John C. Hessel of that city, who disappeared in St. Paul Nov. 24. Ed Bomberg a delivery man for Brockway & Parker left his boarding place Thursday evening to meet another clerk downtown. He failed to keep the appointment and no trace of him can be found. He had just received his pay check for the month of November, but so far as can be learned had not cashed it. He was about 23 years of age, tall, slim, dressed in a black suit and long black overcoat with a fur collar and wore tam shoes. No possible reason can be assigned for his disappearance.

A Candid Critic.

"A criticism that has helped me a great deal in my work came from a man to whom I took a picture to be framed," said a young woman who spends much of her time copying in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. "As the picture progressed my friends told me it was fine. Some of the other copyists said it had value, character, good coloring and all those things, and even one of the guards in the gallery got real friendly one day and remarked that it was the best copy of that picture he had seen. I began to think that maybe, after all, my several years of study were beginning to bear fruit. At the framer's I picked out a nice frame, and the framer began to figure on the cost.

"'I'll tell you, miss,' he said, 'that frame will come to $3.98. If I were you I'd get something cheaper for that picture.'"—New York Sun.

NEW CABINET IS SELECTED

GOV JOHNSON DETERMINES ON DEPARTMENT HEADS FOR NEXT TERM

MOST PRESENT INCUMBENTS RETAINED—SEVERAL CHANGES MADE

From Monday's Daily—

New State Cabinet

NEW STATE CABINET

Private Secretary—Frank A. Day, Fairmont.

Executive Clerk—Harvey W. Grimmer, St. Cloud.

Insurance Commissioner—John A. Hartigan, St. Paul.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—John W. Olsen, Albert Lea.

Assistant Superintendent — C. G. Schulz, St. Peter.

Adjutant General — Fred B. Wood, Austin.

State Librarian—John E. King, Red Lake Falls.

State Labor Commissioner—W. E. McEwen, Duluth.

Dairy and Food Commissioner — Andrew French, Plainview.

State Oil Inspector — E. J. Lynch, St. James.

Custodian of Capitol — Thomas Downs, Minneapolis.

Public Examiner—Anton Schaefer, Adrian (holds over.)

Military Storekeeper—W. W. Hatcher, Minneapolis.

Governor Johnson has determined upon the heads of all state departments who will hold office during his third term. In most cases the present incumbent will be reappointed. Several changes will be made, however, and before the governor left last night for the east, to be gone two weeks, the principal appointments were all definitely settled. Some less important ones are hung up and will be decided after the governor's return.

Efforts of the friends of Labor Commissioner W. H. Williams have been in vain, and the only Minneapolis man at the head of a state department will step down and out Jan. 1. The shift predicted some time ago will be made without any question. W. E. McEwen, the present oil inspector, will go to the labor department, and E. J. Lynch, now deputy labor commissioner, will be made oil inspector.

Another Change

Another change is brought about by the retirement of E. K. Slater dairy and food commissioner, who has refused a reappointment. His successor, Andrew French was announced a few days ago.

Public Examiner Schaefer was appointed for a three-year term last January and so holds over during all of the governor's third term.

A feature of the foregoing list is the record made by the department of education. Messrs. Olsen and Schulz are both republicans and were first named to their present positions by Governor Van Sant in January, 1901. When they finish the term to which they will next be appointed they will round out ten years' of service.

The appointments are well distributed geographically. Messrs. Olsen, Wood and French hail from the first congressional district. Frank A. Day and Messrs. Lynch and Schaefer come from the second, Mr. Schulz from the third, Insurance Commissioner Hartigan from the fourth, Messrs Downs and Hatcher from the fifth, W. E. McEwen from the eighth, and John E. King from the ninth.

Come Next Spring

Appointments on the state board of control and the tax commission do not come until spring. Frank L. McVey of Minneapolis will be reappointed on the tax commission, but W. S. Leavitt will not be retained on the board of control and his successor has not been announced. The governor will have six appointments to make on the board of grain appeals, but they do not fall due until August. There are a number of minor board appointments to be made in January.

Two of the university regents come up for reappointments, A. E. Rice of Willmar and Thomas Wilson of St. Paul. It is understood that Mr. Rice will not be reappointed, but Judge Wilson will probably be retained on the board. He is very nearly 80 years of age, but shows no impairment of his powers and is very faithful in his attendance at meetings of the board.

After next April every man in the capitol under the governer will be a Johnson appointee. Several state boards are appointed for six-year terms and there are a few hold-overs from the Van Sant administration. Governor Johnson's third term victory places him in a position to make an absolute cleaning out of all departments and boards except the elective ones.

ENGINE DOES DITCHING STUNT

FREIGHT TRAIN FIGURES IN A WRECK IN SOUTH CROOKSTON YARDS

ENGINE AND SEVERAL CARS OF WHEAT AND BARLEY WENT OFF AT JUNCTION

From Monday's Daily—

Sunday afternoon a freight train consisting of wheat cars most was being "kicked out the South Crookston yards for Barnesville by a switch engine. A brakeman attempted to throw a switch, but it was froze up or refused to work for some reason and as a result the engine pulling the train started off across the prairie and went gamboling about turning a few sommersaults, and several freight cars also did a log rolling stunt and the snow birds in that section will have an abundance of food for the balance of the winter in the shape of barley and wheat.

One Track Blocked

Engineer McNairnay and Fireman Saunders were on the head engine and both jumped when the engine went over and escaped injury. The St. Paul track was cleared so that the trains Sunday evening were not delayed—but the Moorhead track was still blocked this morning and the passengers were transferred around the wreckage to another train that had been made up on this side of the mixup.

Three Engines

It appears that the train was being pulled by engine 1116 with the "goat" ahead and No. 558 pushing behind. This made plenty of power and the engine that started off across the prairie did a stunt at rooting up the turf that would make the average steam plow look like 30 cents. As a matter of fact it made a good start toward digging a ditch thru Lowell Township and if there had been another engine pushing the job might have been completed.

BACK TO THE OLD HOME

MANY LEAVE FOR SWEDEN, NORWAY AND DENMARK TO SPEND HOLIDAYS

During the past two weeks there has been a fairly large outward-bound business for the steamship lines running to the Scandinavian countries or having conections with them. It is a habit with many Swedes, Norwegians Danes and Fins to return home every now and then and this is particularly true of unmarried people.

Invariably they time their sailings so as to reach their homes just before Christmas and usually they remain until the spring work opens and jobs are plentiful. If they could not land before Christmas and participate in the good cheer that is distinctive of Scandinavian Christmas festivities they would not go.

In the rural districts of Sweden and Norway the old custom of celebrating for twenty days is still the custom and to the visitor from the states these twenty days can not be duplicated in busy and thrifty America

Work of all kind except the necessary care of livestock is completely forgotten and the days are one continuous round of pleasures.

The last of the big special excursions from the northwest left Minneapolis last night. There will be about 200 in the party and they will be joined by another large contingent in Chicago. This party is due to sail on Hellig Olav, from New York on Dec. 10. Ten days later the tourists will be scattered all over the Scandinavian countries.

There will be other opportunities for the Swedes, Norwegians and Danes to reach home before the holidays on later boats but the big excursions must leave early this week to enable those who seek the interior districts to reach their destination betimes.

THE JURY DISAGREED

AFTER BEING OUT ALL NIGHT COW CASE REMAINS A TANGLE

LOOMIS PUT ON TRIAL AGAIN THIS MORNING BEFORE NEW JURY

From Tuesday's Daily—

The case of the State vs. Wm. Loomis of Helgeland, the charge being asault on E. J. Peterson after a neighborhood squabble over a stock deal, which was tried yesterday, resulted in a disagreement after the jury had been out all night, and the case has been on trial all day today before another jury. Loomis last July was arrested for assault and fined $1 and costs before a local justice and he appealed from the decision. The case will cost the litigants more than the whole herd of cattle was worth before they get thru with it.

The next case to be called will be that of the state against Steve Scherer, the Grand Forks young man who is charged with grand larceny. The case in which Sherer is involved is that of an East Grand Forks employe of the Northern Pacific who some time since pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing merchandise from the depot in that city, implicating in his confession Scherer, who is the proprietor of the Dutsch'e messenger service, then located in Grand Forks.

According to the confession of Opsahl the East Grand Forks railway employe who was mixed in the deal, he stole certain goods and turned them over to Scherer who in turn sold them. The goods were paid for by Scherer, it is claimed tnd he was aware of the fact that the goods were stolen.

W. H. NORRIE LAID TO REST

FRIENDS OF DECEASED PAY A LAST TRIBUTE OF RESPECT

The funeral services over the remains of W. H. Norrie were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Christ's Episcopal Church, of which deceased had been a prominent member and officer for many years. Rev. Richard Cox officiating. The church was crowded with friends who came to pay a last tribute of respect to the memory of an honored citizen. The floral tributes were very profuse and beautiful, special pieces having been contributed by the M. B. A., A. O. U. W. and the D. of H. The pall bearers were Wm. Nicholson, Geo. Frazer, Chas. Broulliard, Gus Johnson, A. A. Glenn and Wm. Millette, two each from the postoffice force, the M. B. A. and the A. O. U. W.

At the grave the services of both organizations were carried out, the funeral having been under their auspices.

CREAMERY IS IN FINE SHAPE

The Annual Stockholders Meeting of the North Star Dairy Association at McIntosh was held at the city hall there on Tuesday Dec. 1st. The attendance was fair and much interest was manifest. The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed the affairs of the company to be in good shape A motion to pay back all donations and assessments to the parties who donated the same was unanimously carried, the payment to be made out of the sinking fund within the coming year. This will even matters up somewhat and relieve the old guards.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: President, K. N. Newton; Vice Pres., G. S. Moen; Secy., Thos. Jorstad; Treas. C. M. Berg; Directors, Christ Matteson, Chas. McCarty and Olof Stardig.

The Word "Charlatan."

"Charlatan," says a writer in the London Chronicle, "is companion to 'quack' in our vocabulary, and of this word the origin is certainly Italian. It is 'ciarlatano,' merely a chatterer, and describes the traveling doctor in his cart who used to offer in an overwhelming torrent of talk his pills to villagers in the market place. He was a dentist as well as a physician and wrenched out the tooth in public. The genus is not yet entirely extinct."

W. H. NORRIE PASSES AWAY

WELL KNOWN MAIL CARRIER OF CROOKSTON SUMMONED THIS MORNING

HAD BEEN ILL WITH TYPHOID FEVER 11 WEEKS — FORMER G. N. CONDUCTOR

This morning about 7 o'clock W. H. Norrie passed away at his home on Elm street after an 11 weeks' siege of typhoid fever. The fever left him several days ago, but having been in poor health before the attack of the fever, he did not have the strength to rally. The news has caused the most widespread sorrow thruout the city. Mr. Norrie was one of the best known residents of Crookston, having come here in the early days, when in the employ of the Great Northern as conductor, and had a run on the Fosston line for years.

About 15 years ago he left the service of the Great Northern and for a time was in the fuel business, and after that he was named as the first letter carrier after Crookston was given free delivery in 1895, and was therefore carrier No. 1, having been in the service steadily ever since.

Mr. Norrie was known as one of the most popular conductors ever in the employ of the Great Northern, and as a mail carrier he was widely known having carried on several different routes and his cheery words of greeting will be sadly missed by men women and children.

He was in his 50th year, and was an enthusiastic fraternal order man, being president of the M. B. A., Recorder for the A. O. U. W. and a member of D. of H., and carried insurance in each order.

He leaves a wife and six children, two boys having died some time ago. The surviving children are Allan an express messenger on the Great Northern, Erick, driver of the G. N. express wagon here, and Gertrude, Jane Ethel and Margery, the latter being the youngest and ten years of age.

No funeral arrangements have been completed, but they will probably be held under the auspices of the M. B. A., the A. O. U. W. and the D. of H.

DEATH WAS ACCIDENTAL

ERICK E. WICKSTROM BREAKS NECK IN FALL AT BEAUDETTE

After a night's festivity, with evidently a little more than ordinary partaking of stimulants to the extent of excess, Erick E. Wickstrom a recent arrival in the border territory, accidentally met an untimely ending of his earthly career by a fall down the stairway leading to his room over Thibault Bros.' saloon in Beaudette.

Wickstrom came to Beaudette about two weeks ago from Warren, Minn., his former home, and since his stay here, had been working for the Itasca Cedar Co.

Tuesday evening he received his money, and customary at such times, proceeded to celebrate with the boys. It is not definitely known just what time the accident occurred, but unquestionably between the hours of midnight and six o'clock the following morning, he being seen on the streets at the former time, while his lifeless body was discovered the latter time the following morning at the foot of the stairway, his feet up on the lower steps and his body face downward on the ground approaching the stairway. The discovery was made by Ole Lindahl, the roommate of the deceased, who at once gave notice of his gruesome find. The body was left undisturbed until advices were forwarded to Deputy Coroner Lahr at Bemidji after which undertaker F. E. Johnson took the corpse to his undertaking rooms.

Thursday morning Coroner Lahr arrived and upon learning the circumstances concluded that an inquest was unnecessary death being due to accident.

Advices were dispatched to deceased's friends at Warren, and in reply word was rectived from Mrs. Britka, a sister, to hold the body for shipment, and it is presumed that relatives will arrive today to convey it back home for interment. — Spooner News.

BANKS SHOW LARGE GAINS

BIENNIAL REPORT OF PUBLIC EXAMINER DISCLOSES RAPID RATE OF PROGRESS

INCREASE OF RESOURCES AMOUNTS TO THIRTEEN MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

Anton Schaefer, state public examiner, filed his biennial report with Gov. Johnson yesterday. He makes a number of recommendations which he asks to have acted upon by the coming legislature.

Mr. Schaefer wants authority to deny the issuance of a charter to a bank in any locality where the business does not warrant an additional bank.

Articles of incorporation he says, should give the number of shares of stock held by each of the incorporators. The vice president of a state bank, he contends, should be a director also.

All active bank officers he holds should give bonds and in the case of trust companies, the irectors should give bonds.

Unclaimed bank deposits, he says, should be advertised annually.

State Bank Statistics

In the last two years Mr. Schaefer reports the state banks have increased in number from 427 to 607; capital, surplus and profits have increased from $13,414,249.45 to $15,999,325.12; net gain, $3,585,075.67. Time certificates of deposit from $27,795,531.60 to $42,085,050.02, a net gain of $14,289,518.42.

Total deposits have increased from $63,802,427.12 to $73,060,346.28 or $10,157,019.10. Loans and discounts increased from $56,766,474.03 to $67,461,307.92, net gain, $10,694,833.89. Total resources increased from $77,807,108.24 in 1906 to $90,535,430.64 in 1908, net gain $12,728,322.40.

There has been only one failure. Since 1907, 135 private banks have become state banks. Prior to that period there were over 200 private banks in operation.

Legislation Recommended

In his report Mr. Schaefer makes the additional recommendations that the banking law be so amended that he be given an official voice in bank receiverships and that investment, guaranty and bonding companies be brought under the control of the department.

For the two years ending with July 1 the department collected $76,677.64 from errors growing out of gress earnings reports.

Attention is called to the immunity of the express companies from the Minnesota corporation laws, the failure of companies operating dining cars to pay a tax on the revenue accruing from the same and the failure of express and private car companies to pay taxes on interstate business entering or passing thru the state.

COULD MAKE RATES HIGHER

N. P. FREIGHT OFFICIAL DECLARES SOME TARIFFS ARE LOWER THAN STANDARD

Altho a man is inexperienced in the department of railroad business which has to do with the operation of the trains he is qualified to establish rates for the handling of freight and is able to tell whether or not the rates are remunerative.

This is the substance of the testimony given yesterday in St. Paul by J. B. Baird general freight agent of the Northern Pacific. in the rate case which is being heard by Charles E. Otis, master in chancery, at the federal building.

T. D. O'Brien conducted the cross-examination for the state, and asked no questions regarding the numerous exhibits which have been presented by Mr. Baird. A series of computations were made by the witness, under the direction of Mr. O'Brien which showed the rates on certain classes of business. In each instance the rates authorized by the Interstate Commerce commission were higher than those actually in effect on the Northern Pacific.

Mr. Baird has presented a mass of statistics which purported to show the effect of the proposed rates on the entire business of the road, and it was expecetd that the attorneys for the state would delve deep into the mysteries of rate-making, as shown by the exhibits, but Mr. O'Brien seemed satisfied with the statements, which showed that if the interstate rates of the commission were enforced the company would receive more for the transportation of freight than according to the rates that are made by competition.

Don't be ashamed to confess your faults. Only fools and liars never make mistakes.

A FORTUNE IN DITCHES

HALF A MILLION DOLLARS SPENT IN MINNESOTA LAST YEAR

AND NEW PROJECTS ARE FORMING MONTH BY MONTH

From Friday's Daily—

The state drainage commission is preparing a detailed report of the work done during the year for presentation to the next legislature.

Geo. Ralph, state drainage engineer, states that the commission has spent about a half a million dollars on ditches, and general expenses. Thirty ditches have been dug in different parts of the state and preliminary work is beginning on three others, bids for which will be opened about the first of the year.

BALED HAY LUNCH PROVES EXPENSIVE

H. G. EBBIGHAUSEN TRIED A NEW SCHEME TO DRAW CUSTOM

H. G. Ebbighausen had the tables turned on him very neatly yesterday by J. M. Stephens and it is so seldom that a veteran like Mr. Ebbighausen gets caught in the toils that the traveling men and other patrons of The Council are holding their sides with merriment. It appears that Mr. Stephens left his sleigh in front of Ebbighausen's place of business last Saturday. Mr. Ebbighausen was struck with an idea that a baled hay free lunch might make a big hit for Saturday nights business, and inveigled a newspaper man, who had formerly walked in the straight and narrow path of rectitude into helping him steal the hay and lug it into the refreshment parlor.

When Stephens returned he needed no auctioneer to announce who stole the hay, and saying nothing but vowing vengeance he bought another bale of hay and went home.

Yesterday he went before Judge Gossman, had the descendent of Prince Bismarck arrested for hay pilfering, and when he was arraigned his extreme gaiety in the presence of the court resulted in a double fine and costs amounting to some 'steen dollars which were later expended at the Council Buffet for "steins" and divers other wonderful decoctions.

Jim Stephens weakened when he saw his old friend before the bar of justice and with tears streaming down his cheeks pleaded with Judge Gossman not to send the offender to the Hotel de Gonyea for 60 days as was the intention, but to make it a straight fine or a sentence to the reform school. The heart of the court was touched and the offender was let down with a fine with the warning that if he ever swiped any more cow food for his patrons he would be given the limit.

It took Jim, Forgy, and ten more about an hour to "shoot" the fine which the court turned over to them, claiming that City Attorney O'Brien had advised him that a special provision in the new city charter prohibited the court from accepting "tainted" money even in fines.

REVISE THE TARIFF

THE SUGAR PEOPLE:
Oh yes, revise the tariff, gents—
Now really, we insist;
But when you're going over things,
Please leave us off the list.

THE COAL BARONS:
We think the tariff should be out;
It is too high by far;
However, when you come to us
Just leave us where we are.

THE STEEL FOLKS:
Revise the tariff, if you must;
It might be done, we own;
But should our products meet your eyes,
Please let them quite alone.

THE TOBACCO KINGS:
The tariff ought to be revised;
On some things it's too high.
We're satisfied the way it is,
So kindly pass us by.

EVERY PROTECTED INTEREST:
Yes, yes, revise the tariff, sirs;
We know it ought to be,
But fix the other fellow's lines—
We're quite contented, see?

FARGO WILL LOSE RESIDENTS

MANY WILL MOVE TO DILWORTH WHEN FARGO TRAIN IS TAKEN OFF

As there is no interurban line running between Fargo and Dilworth, Minn., and as there is no likelihood of such a line being realized, at least for a number of years, it is evident that a large number of the railroads people now living in Fargo will have to take up their residence in the Minnesota town. The shop train, which now runs between the two towns will be taken off this winter and it is rumored that this train will be removed Jan. 1. However, the officials of the road here say that while they are considering the discontinuance of this train they have not at the present time fully decided when it will be removed.

The office building, which has been under construction at Dilworth for the division offices is now sixty per cent completed and the offices will be moved to that place sometime in the spring.

All this points to the fact that the railroad people cannot live in Fargo and work in Dilworth after the shop train has been removed and there is little choice aside from the two of quitting the employ of the company or of moving to Dilworth.

ELKS LODGE OF SORROW

SPECIAL EXERCISES WILL BE HELD AT AUDITORIUM SUNDAY AFTERNOON

BEGINNING AT THREE O'CLOCK—E. E. McDONALD OF BEMIDJI WILL SPEAK

From Saturday's Daily—

Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the annual Lodge of Sorrow of Crookston Lodge No. 342 B. P. O. E. will be held in the Auditorium at which time a most impressive program will be rendered, the address to be delivered by Hon. E. E. McDonald of Bemidji, a very forceful orator. The general public is invited to attend the services. All Elks are urged to be in Elks Hall in the Fournet block at 2 o'clock sharp in order to march to the Auditorium in a body at 2:30 sharp.

Following is the program:

CROOKSTON WATER LEADS THEM ALL

S. Meyer, the proprietor of the Bird Store which has been operated during the past week in the Old Grill Restaurant adjoining Hillards Drug Store and who will move to some other point after Sunday noon, says Crookston has the best water of any city he has ever visited.

The day he came from Grand Forks six of his gold fish were dead but during his entire stay here not a one has died and all are as lively as crickets and need no looking after at all whereas in most cities they need constant watching to keep them alive on account of the water. He says the Crookston water must be remarkably pure and invigorating as this is one of the best tests known.

He says one tap of such water in Chicago would mean an independent fortune in a year and that it would have Standard Oil Stock beat four ways.

A Personal Appeal

If we could talk to you personally about the great merit of Foley's Honey and Tar, for coughs, colds and lung trouble, you never could be induced to experiment with unknown preparations that may contain some harmful drugs. Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and has a record of forty years of cures. Sold by all Druggists.

BAD FIRE AT ARGYLE

HOUSE OF N. B. HEGNES, PRESIDENT OF THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

DESTROYED LAST EVENING — LOSS $7,000, INSURANCE $4,500

From Thursday's Daily—

While N. B. Hegnes president of the First National Bank of Argyle and his wife were away at a party last evening their splendid residence caught fire from some unknown cause and was completely gutted before the fire department succeeded in staying the flames.

Mr. and Mrs. Hegnes left the house about 8 o'clock and it was 10 o'clock before the fire was discovered. The conflagration then had such headway that all the fire department could do was to save the shell of the house, making the loss almost total.

The loss on the house is about $5,000, on the furnishings $2,000, with a total insurance of $4,500.

ALLEN RETIRES FROM BEMIDJI SENTINEL

MRS. C. M. OPSAHL AND F. O. MELBY HAVE ACQUIRED CONTROLLING INTEREST IN SENTINEL

Bemidji Pioneer: A deal has been consumated whereby Col. A. B. Allen, the veteran newspaper man, retires from active connection with the Bemidji Sentinel and the management of that publication changes hands.

Mrs. C. M. Opsahl (wife of Representative Opsahl of this city) and F. O. Melby (nephew of Mr. Opsahl) have purchased the Sentinel stock formerly owned by Mrs. Allen, which, together with the stock already owned by Mrs. Opsahl gives controlling interest in the Sentinel.

It is announced that Mr. Melby will assume the business management of the Sentinel under the new arrangements, but who will have editorial charge of the paper is not stated; and Mr. Melby says that that portion of the staff has not yet been definitely settled upon.

A. B. Allen the retiring editor of the Sentinel has not yet decided what he will do, altho it is quite certain that he will remain in Bemidji for the present at least.

Mr. Allen under the name of "The Growler" is known largely all over Minnesota.

FEDERAL LID FOR BRIDGE PARTIES

The lid is on the bridge whist party, the euchre party; likewise the cinch party and any other form of game where hand-painted china plates or other favors are offered to the successful players.

In future anyone who wishes to entertain a few friends may not bait them to come out in the cold night by offering inducements in prizes of meerschaum pipes, hand-painted plates, sofa cushions and such like. That is, the host may not send his invitations thru the mails—and get away with it.

A ruling of the postoffice department holds that it is illegal to send invitations thru the mail to bridge parties where prizes are given.. When asked about the decision today, Elias Steenerson, postmaster, said it was merely a new application of the lottery law. That it will be rigidly enforced in future was to be gained from his remarks.

"There is nothing for us to do but enforce the regulations," he said. "It looks as tho the new ruling has hit a phase of the question that has been overlooked for some time."

Penalty is Heavy

A section of the postal regulations approved Sept. 18, 1890 says: "No letter, post card or circular concerning any lottery, so-called, gift concert, or similar enterprise offering prizes, dependent upon lot or chance, and no list of the drawings at any lottery or similar scheme shall be carried thru the postoffice or by any letter carrier. Violators upon conviction shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not greater than $500 or imprisonment for not more than one year."

The A. D. T. boys when told of the new order of things pricked up their ears. "Gee, there's a chance to making a killin' peddlin' invites to de guests," said one. "Ah not much, they'll get busy on de telephone." piped another.

At the postoffice, the officials were not prepared to say whether prosecutions would follow in case the host concealed the fact that prizes were to be given. All that they would say is that no mention of prizes may be made in letters sent thru the mail.

BACHELORS ARE LOOKING FOR COVER

Reported that Trip thru This Section of the Country of Mrs. Leonora Lake Who says Bachelors are Worse than the Drinking Evil—Has Caused Several to Leave for Places of Hiding—Messrs. Foote, Aubol and Bergh Leave City Hurriedly.

Mrs. Leonora Lake of St. Louis one of the leading temperance lecturers of the country, who spoke at a big no-license rally at Lynn, Mass., nearly created a panic among 2,000 ardent temperance reformers when she announced from the platform that she had changed her mind about drink being the worst evil of the country, and denounced bachelorhood as being worse. A storm of hisses greeted her words, but Mrs. Lake kept right manfully to her task. "It is the bachelor who today is the great evil of America," she said. "It is the bachelor who fosters the rum evil. Reformers should drop the rum evil for a while and devote their attention to this one crying need—more husbands." After the rally Mrs. Lake said she had been coming to this conclusion for a long time, and that she had finally decided that it was her duty to speak.

But this is not all. It is reported that Mrs. Lake is headed this way and may pay a visit to Crookston in the very near future. Coupled with this fact is the peculiar co-incidence that J. P. Foote left for Cass Lake yesterday, Deputy Revenue Collector Guy A. Aubol left hurriedly on the St. Vincent train this morning, presumably for Canada, and Albert Bergh left this morning saying he was going to Fosston but may have continued to the big woods, to work in the lumber camps till Mrs. Lake has left these parts.

The man or woman who has friends is the one who treats everybody alike and plays no favorites in the matter of manners. There is now and then some one who, not having enough graciousness to go round saves it for the socially important or the well endowed.

In almost every social set there is a woman of this description and tho it is difficult we tolerate her weakness because we know she cannot help it. She has astigmatism, which makes it impossible to see anybody not very well dressed or of a certain set, and she finds difficulty also in hearing the most brilliant remarks of some one socially unknown but has a laugh always ready for the poorest witticism of the well placed. If she is driving down town, she sits exactly in the center of the back seat going rapidly past her friends who cannot ride, but is horrified to discover Mrs. Summit avenue walking down town because she is tired of her motor, and stops immediately to take her in.

She is often kind and thoughtful for the very poor, as that is absolutely correct and done by the best people. She brings up her daughter to see and know only the best or what she considers the best, and makes an eminent success of herself and her family. Knowing nothing of what life really means, having no deep emotions or feelings of any kind, she is of the greatest value to society as real people would blow everything up in no time, and therefore a wise Providence has arranged that they shall be scarce. There are moments when we feel that a good janitor is of infinitely more account in the great scheme of things, but that is one of our off days, when we do not realize our blessings, among which our rich friends are no small factor. We also sometimes wish there were fewer of her or that the power to snub might be, at times, vested in some one who was real and who could put a woman of this description in her place, but alas, this is no Utopia, and, as a dear old lady said, "them as has, gits," and those who have nothing usually have it taken away from them.

MARTIN STADIG BURIED WEDNESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Svisdal returned last evening from McIntosh from the Swedish Lutheran church four miles west of which the funeral of Mrs. Svisdal's brother-in-law Martin Stadig was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, he having died Sunday at Grand Rapids. There was a very large attendance of his old friends and neighbors and the services were conducted by Rev. Dahle. The pall bearers were Messrs. Chas. Carlson, Erick Erickson, Arthur and Andrew Anderson, Oscar Oppegard, all old boyhood friends, and Arthur Garris, superintendent of the electric light plant at Grand Rapids where deceased had been employed. A. G. Storholm of Thief River Falls a brother-in-law and Mr. and Mrs. Oppegard, the latter a sister, were present. Deceased was a member of the M. B. A. and carried $1000 insurance which goes to his widow.

INDICMENTS RETURNED

GRAND JURY INDICTS TWO BUT NAMES ARE NOT MADE PUBLIC AS YET

EXPECTED THAT TROUBLE IS BEING STIRRED UP IN VILLAGE OF CLIMAX

From Thursday's Daily—

The grand jury is grinding away today, having called a large number of witnesses fro mGrand Forks and East Grand Forks in connection with grand larceny charges.

This morning two indictments were returned to the court, but the names will not be made public till after the prisoners are arraigned which will probably be some time this afternoon or tomorrow.

It is understood that there have been a large number of witnesses summoned from Climax and that some sensations will be sprung from that direction before the grand jury completes its labors. It now looks as though the labors of the grand jury would extend well into next week.

KITTSON COUNTY PIONEER GONE

COUNTY COMMISSIONER JOHN McFARLANE SUDDENLY PASSES AWAY

John McFarlane, County Commissioner for the fourth commissioner's district in Kittson County died at his home in Hampden on Monday morning, aged sixty-seven years and two months.

The deceased was born in Wellington County, Ontario, Sept. 28, 1841 was one of the early pioneers of Kittson county coming to the Red River Valley in 1881 and resided ever since on his homestead west of Northcote. He came with but little of this world's goods but with a determination to work out his success and with a splendid Christian character and with a broad public spirit that made him an ideal citizen who his neighbors delighted to honor. His business dealings were always on the squart and few have gained a farmer estimation of his neighbors than he. Mr. McFaralne was frequently prevailed upon to serve in local positions of trust and honor and during the past four years served as county commissioner for his district and at the recent election was re-elected without opposition, but with him it was always the case of office seeking the man and not the man the office. He was generally in good health but being stricken with typhoid fever a few days ago, the end came more quickly than could have been expected.

The deceased leaves a wife six sons and six daughters to mourn his loss. J. A. and Daniel McFarlane of Antler, N. D., J. D. McFarlane of Benscarth, Mont., Mrs. J. D. Murray, Mrs. T. D. Winters and Mrs. D. W. McKenzie of Northcotte, Mrs. Wooley of Edinburgh, N. D., Peter McFarlane of St. Paul, Geraldine, Lillian, Ernest and Russell at home with their mother.

MILLIONAIRE PAYS FINE

OPPENHEIMER ADMITS THAT HE SOLD IMPURE BLACK BERRY BRANDY

HIS FINE AND COSTS AMOUNTED TO $121.50 IN EAST GRAND FORKS

J. S. Oppenheimer of Oppenheimer Bros., Cincinnatifi reputed to be a millionaire was fined $50 and costs, amounting to a total of $121.50 in Judge T. A. Sullivan's court yesterday afternoon in East Grand Forks. He was arraigned on a charge of selling impure blackoerry brandy to A. O. Lystad, a wholesale liquor agent at East Grand Forks and entered a plea of guilty.

Oppenheimer was brought back from Duluth yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriff Louis Gonyea. He was represented in court by Attorney Freedom C. Massee.

During the day papers were served in an action for $287.50 claimed by Mr. Lystad as damages because Oppenheimer sold the impure brandy to him. Lystad sold it to the saloon men and they were fined. Lystad paid their fines and now he wants the manufacturer to make good. The civil action will be tried in Judge Sullivan's court.

J. S. Oppenheimer of the firm of Oppenheimre & Bros. Cincinnati, importers and jobbers of liquors was arrested yesterday in Duluth on complaint of O. J. Lystad, of the firm of A. O. Lystad, wholesale liquor dealers East Grand Forks, on the charge of violating the pure food laws of Minnesota. The defendant was taken thru the city by Deputy Louis Gonyea, to East Grand Forks this morning and given a hearing in the municipal court today on the above charge. It will be remembered that some months ago E. B. Heiberg of the state pure food commission visited East Grand Forks and purchased blackbtrry from quite a number of retail liquor dealers. Later the vendors were arrested on the charge of violating the pure food laws and after being made acquainted with the analysis of the goods as made by the chemists of the state pure food department, pleaded guilty and were assessed the regulation fine. Lystad & Co., who sold the mthe goods not only refunded the goods, but paid the fines and costs of the dealers amounting to several hundred dollars in the aggregate, expecting to be reimbursed by the Oppenheimers, having purchased the goods on a guarantee that it would pass the pure food inspection.

When Lystad & Co., demanded reimbursement, however, it is claimed no attention was paid to the demand, and when the jobbers were drawn on for the amount the draft was returned with the notation: "Wishing you good luck in collecting the amount." The case is an interesting one.

Oppenheimer gave $200 bonds this morning and it is understood that he will plead guilty this afternoon and pay his fine. On his arrival at East Grand Forks he was also served papers in a civil action for damages by A. O. Lystad and considerable litigation will follow unless he settles with the plaintiff for what he is out by handling the brandy that caused all the trouble.

SANTA CLAUS TO GET HIS MAIL

LETTERS ADDRESSED TO HIM WILL BE DELIVERED THIS YEAR

Following out the usual custom inaugurated by Postmaster Steenerson two years ago Crookston children who send letters to Santa Claus, asking for certain Christmas presents, will be cared for by the charitably inclined people of the city.

All Santa Claus letters received at the local postoffice will be placed together and be turned over to charitable institutions of the city, instead of being forwarded to the dead letter office as has been the custom in the past.

Lists of articles wanted, and addresses of the little tots making requests will be made out, and good-hearted people of the city who are interested will contribute the necessary money to purchase the presents.

Where parents of the children are known to be in good circumstances their letters will be turned over to the parents but where the parents are known to be poor the charitable institutions and friends with money to spare in making others happy will take care of them.

FORMER RESIDENT OF THIEF RIVER FALLS ESCAPES FROM ASPHYXIATION

YOUNG SON SMELLS COAL GAS AND AROUSES HIS MOTHER AND NEIGHBORS

The following taken from the Duluth Herald of last Friday will be of local interest. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horr were former residents of Thief River Falls and are well known here. Mr. Horr in his capacity of traveling salesman for a Duluth concern visits this city every month. Mrs. Horr is a sister of Mrs. J. W. LaBree. The following is the item taken from the Duluth paper:

Mrs. Charles Horr of 822 East 3rd street had a narrow escape from asphyxiation early this morning when she was overcome by gas escaping from a coal stove. Her son, 8 years old, the only other person in the house had evidently had his head covered for he awoke about 4 o'clock and aroused the neighbors.

Mrs. Horr's husband is a commercial traveler for the Zenith Bag company and is on the road. Mrs. Horr and her son retired last night about 11 o'clock, with everything about the coal stove apparently in good condition.

About 4 o'clock the boy, oppressed by the fumes arose and tried to arouse his mother who awakened into a semi-conscious state, but was unable to aid herself. The boy aroused one of the neighbors who opened the doors and windows and summoned a physician.

The physician restored Mrs. Horr to consciousness and she was about the house this morning, tho weak from her experience. The house was filled with the noxious fumes when the boy awakened and Mrs. Horr's friends regard her escape as very fortunate.

CHAIRMAN M'VEY TO BE RETAINED

RETIRING MEMBER OF TAX COMMISSION WILL BE REAPPOINTED SAYS GOVERNOR

Governor Johnson settled one of the most important of his appointments today by announcing that Franklin L. McVey chairman of the state tax commission, will be reappointed at the close of his present term next April.

When the tax commission was first organized in April, 1907, Dr. McVey drew the short term of two years. He resigned the chair of political science at the state university to acept the place. His reappointment will be for six years, which will carry his term forward to 1915.

The tax commission was somewhat of an issue in the recent campaign, owing to the heavy increase in assessed valuation of the iron mines ordered by the commission last year. There have been rumors of a coming change on the commission and these are set at rest by the governor's announcement today.

EMBEZZLEMENT IS CHARGED

A. L. du DOMAIN OF LONDON TAKES MONEY FROM MINOT BOWLING ALLEY

Posing as a member of the church of England and thereby working himself into the good graces of Rev. Elsworth and Rev. Hale, A. L. du Domain is accused of embezzling $78 from the Minot Bowling Alleys.

Mr. du Domain admitted to Judge Murray that he took the money and marked in his bank book the amounts to signify that he had deposited the mone yin the bank. He admits that he took the money and spent it, buying beer at 35c a bottle.

"I did not drink until I came to Minot," said the young man.

Rev. Hale from whom the young man borrowed $5 interceded in his behalf, fearing that a penitentiary sentence might ruin his life. The judge had not decided this afternoon whether he would prosecute the young man or not.

A Proud Record

The Great Northern is rejoicing over the fact that on all its 2,000 miles of track in this state not a passenger has been killed during the fiscal year just closed and only 46 injured. There were however 52 employes killed and 582 injured. A splendid showing as to passengers, but not so good when it comes to the operatives of the road Much of this, of course, was due to the carelessness of the employes themselves and their fellow servants.

CHICAGO TO COAST TRAIN

GREAT NORTHERN AND BURLINGTON PLAN JOINT SERVICE TO PACIFIC

RUMORED THAT THRU TRAINS WILL BE STARTED NEXT SPRING

The officials of the Great Northern and the Burlington will get together the end of the month to make arrangements for thru service which will be established from Chicago to the Pacific coast it was reported in local railway circles yesterday afternoon.

The new service will ultimately be established, it is said, but not this fall. It is planned to reduce the scheduled time between Chicago and the coast more than seven hours to meet the competition of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, when that road is completed in the spring, and with the Union Pacific, for the mail contracts.

With the establishment of thru service from Chicago to the coast the Oriental Limited, which now leaves St. Paul for Seattle, making the trip in sixty hours, will probably leave Chicago and make the entire journey in sixty-five hours it is said.

It is expected that the new service will be established at the opening of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in Seattle next spring. With the entry of the St. Paul road into the North Pacific coast business, it is expected that one of the bitterest railroad wars in years will be started. The completion of the Billings branch of the Great Northern which connects with the Burlington, places the combined systems in a position to compete with the St. Paul on St. Louis and Kansos City coast business. Over this line oto, the officials of the Great Northern on their late western trip announced that thru trains would be run to Seattle from Chicago.

The Journal received a long distance telephone message from Nashua this morning telling of a most sensational suicide that had just taken place there, A. G. Shannon agent for the Soo railway company, shooting himself thru the heart and dying instantly.

The shooting followed a visit of the officers of the bonding company and railway auditor who came up Wednesday evening to check up his accounts. Shannon was only 21 years of age and his wife, who is a girl of 17, is reported to be in a serious condition as the result of the shock. The shooting occurred about 7:30 o'clock in the morning, and has caused intense excitement in that village.

STRANGE LIGHTS IN SOUTHERN SKIES

FOUR SHAFTS OF LIGHT RADIATE FROM THE SILVERY MOON

Crookston people had an opportunity to witness a very odd and very beautiful phenomenon last evening.

The night was very clear, and from the bright half moon four great shafts of light radiated, at right angles to each other. At the ends of the lateral shafts were moon dogs. The shafts of light kept gradually changing and shifting.

People of this section are familiar with the aurora borealis and have seen many wonderful displays of it, but last night's display was entirely different from the aurora, and appeared in the southwestern sky instead of the north where the aurora is generally seen.

RESIGNATION IS READY

REGENTS WILL MEET FRIDAY TO SELECT MR. RANDALL'S SUCCESSOR

The resignation of E. W. Randall, dean of the state agricultural college will be in the hands of the agricultural section of the university board of regents next Friday. The board meets on that date and a successor to Mr. Randall will likely be named.

Mr. Randall has taken up his new duties with the Minnesota Mutual Life Insurance Company as president, but with the stipulation that the college is to have a share of his time until his successor is elected.

While a number have their eyes on the place, either W. H. Hays, assistant secretary of agriculture, or Henry Snyder wheat expert, are regarded as most likely to be selected by the board.

STILL PUZZLING OVER ORDER

LAND OFFICE PEOPLE NOT ADVISED OF PARTICULARS OF NEW STONE

AND TIMBER MOVE ON PART OF THE LAND DEPARTMENT

From Friday's Daily—

Officials of the United States land office have received inquiries regarding the change of the government's policy regarding filings under the timber and stone act. But the officials are as much at sea as the public, for no instructions other than to suspend action on all filings under this act after Dec. 1 have been received. Until the secretary of the interior or the commissioner of the general land office gives out additional instructions filings will be received, but no action will be taken on them. The local officials expect some word within a few days from their superiors at Washington, explaining the telegraphic orders

Judge Montague register of the local office said yesterday that he had no idea what the order meant, unless it was for an appraisement of the land The timber and stone act provides that a minimum of $2.50 an acre may be charged for land taken under this act, and up to the present time, this has been the rate.

It may be the intention of the officials at Washington to dispose of the land according to a higher valuation in case it is worth more. Or, according to local officials, it may be the intention to look over all the land remaining open and prohibit the filing of claims under the timber and stone act, where the land is suitable for agriculture.

At the present time filings will be taken the same as usual altho they will be merely filed away until such time as additional instructions are received from Washington.

LOCAL HUNTERS WERE SUCCESSFUL

MESSRS. PHILLIPS AND HOCH RETURN WITH FINE BUCKS

Messrs. Wylie Phillips and C. C. Hoch who were hunting with Gus Schmidt and a party near Swan River, where they had the most complete camp to be found in the big woods in Minnesota, returned this morning with two magnificent bucks, and Gus Schmidt who remained at Grand Rapids sent another big buck home as a result of the chase. The entire party got practically the limit which they are allowed by law.

Mr. Phillips also returned with a wild cat and a big wolf, both of which he will have mounted. The members of the party had a grand time despite the fact that the weather was not favorable to hunting. They enjoyed the outing and returned as tough as lumber jacks and brown as berries.

RECORD GRAIN MOVEMENT

The month of November broke all records in the movement of grain thru the Cass Lake terminal. The records of the state grain inspection commission show that 6,156 cars were inspected last month, compared with the previous high month of October, 1905, when 5,562 cars were inspected. E. G. Seelye is inspector in charge and is assisted by Messrs. Keating, Hilden, Wright, Messberg, McIntosh, Leiser, Erlandson, Hole, Lange and Habein.

NEW FREIGHT RATES IN WEST

THE SCHEDULES ON THROUGH FREIGHT WILL BECOME EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1

GENERAL TENDENCY IS TOWARD AN INCREASE IN THE RATES

A new schedule of freight rates between the Mississippi river and the coast points will become effective on western railroads on Jan. 1, 1909. Intermediate rates are not affected. While the rates on many classes of freight are lowered the general tendency is along the lines of an increase.

On steel and iron products going west from Minneapolis and other Mississippi points, the rate has been boosted from $1.75 to $1.80 per 100 pounds has been announced on linseed oil to coast points. The rate was formerly 90 cents, but will be $1 after the first of the year.

Minneapolis as one of the largest manufacturing centers of linseed oil in the world will be greatly affected. The tariff on this product to the eastern seaports remains unchanged.

The new schedule of freight rates also provides for an increase of 10 cents per 100 pounds on fruits from coast points east.

While there are several increases in the tariff on class freight, there are also many corresponding reductions.

This readjustment of freight tariffs is in keeping with the increase in rates announced by eastern roads, to take effect Dec. 6. The eastern roads have increased their tariffs on an average of between one and two cents on the 100 pounds.

THREE KNIGHTS HAD FINE TRAMP

MESSRS. WESSEL, ROBERTS AND LEVINS HAD TO HOOF IT

A story has leaked out on Bert Levins, Harry Roberts and Joe Wessel, the candy kid. On Tuesday morning they went to Hallock and startid to drive over to Lancaster on the Soo in an auto. When about 8 miles from their destination the auto froze up, and the occupants came near following suit and finally determined to hoof it the balance of the distance.

This was easy meat for Wessel whose legs are long and taking the lead he strode off at about a 5 mile an hour gait. Levins came puffing along a bad second, and Roberts was straggling about forty rods in the rear, and kept hooting at the men ahead to "wait for me, I'm all in."

When they arrived at Lancaster with their grips they did several things before attending to business, and it took Wessel some time to completely resusciate Levins and Roberts. A team was sent back to haul the auto to town.

Direct And Indirect Giving

The Pioneer Press justly points out the superiority of direct over indirect giving, as illustrated by the wonderful success of "tag day" in the twin cities. While something must be conceded to the popularity of this particular cause and the character of the women who stood sponsor for it, the truth remains that there is enormous waste of cash and effort in the various methods of raising money for charitable purposes.

The church, which should be the leader in moral reform, is much to blame for the prevalence of indirect giving. The churches make it their custom to raise a main fund by a subscription, but in every small church the heaviest subscribers are the women's societies, young people's societies, men's clubs and the like. These subscriptions are in effect indirect. The societies do not have the money in their treasuries. They mean to raise it by entertainments. The church is thus used to a large extent as a money-making institution.

The merit of the entertainment habit is supposed to be twofold. Thru the selling of tickets, persons who would not make a direct subscription to the support of the church are drawn in and interested to some extent. Then, the entertainments bring the people together. But it is still doubtful whether the end justifies the means.

An eastern pastor, serving a church in a little town in Connecticut, a few years ago resolved to try an experiment. He abolished all paid entertainments at his church, all burdens on the women, and said to the men that if they wished the church kept open they must come forward and subscribe the amount estimated to be necessary to run it for a year. The men accepted the challenge of the pastor. They raised and paid into the treasury the necessary funds. The result remarkably sustained the judgment of the pastor. The church was helped spiritually beyond anything that had ever happened in its experience. It became a place of worship unhampered by worldly appeals for cash. The atmosphere of the place changed entirely, and at the end of the experimental year the congregation itself took the initiative by resolving that never should there be an entertainment given within its walls to raise money for the support of the pastor. The new plan put him on a footing of dignity which lent value to his message. It gave the people a new idea of what is the real purpose of a church.—Minneapolis Journal.

The True Christmas Spirit

The Christmas-tide is at hand, and it is not out of place at this time to hesitate in the mad rush and turmoil to reflect as to what Christmas signifies and the character of motives that should be inspired within us by the approach of the holiday season.

As a people we are not selfish. There is nothing stingy about the average American citizen, but is a sad fact, on the other hand, that many of us are not as thoughtful as we should be of others less fortunate than we may be in the possession of this world's goods.

Very few Christmas shoppers put any limit on their holiday expenditures. If they see something they like they get it, regardless of price, and the result is they spend more than they can afford, but probably purchase fewer gifts. The result is that someone who should be remembered, if with but a trifling gift, is over looked entirely, and an expensive present is lavished upon another where a simple gift would have been appreciated just as much and would have been far more sensible.

It is certainly advisable at this season to stop and reflect before making your holiday purchases. Do not forget any one who should be remembered. Then make a business of making your Christmas purchases.

Stop and reflect what genuine joy you may bring to some lonely heart by a simple and inexpensive gift which will indicate that they were not forgotten. And on the other hand reflect upon what sorrow and disappointment will result if you are negligent and forget till after Christmas that you should have remembered, this friend or that relative who, perhaps has had the family circle broken during the past year by the Grim Reaper, and who needs all that can possibly be done to increase their Christmas cheer and make them forget their sorrow.

If there is ever a time when we should be thoughtful, it is just before Christmas. Let everyone make a personal effort to be a "joy producer" and what a happy yule-tide this would be.

It is certainly worth thinking about and the consciousness that we have done our best will make our own Christmas a most joyous one, even if others fail to remember us very liberally. We would never think of that, if filled with the more satisfying thought that we had brought joy to others.

Postal Franks Are Costly

The cost to the government during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, by reason of the transmission free thru the mails of departmental penalty and congressional franked matters, was $42,544,047 according to the annual report of the third assistant postmaster general, made public today.

This figure includes the matter carried by the postoffice department for itself and the postal service. Added to this is $57,000,000 for uncompensated service in the handling and transporting of second class matter of publishers of newspapers and periodicals.

In view of the complaints from commercial envelop manufacturers, printers, lithographers and their organizations against the printing by the department of envelopes bearing business cards, the third assistant sugbests legislation which will permit the embossing of postage stamps upon envelop blanks furnished by the printer or consumer, "thus producing results beneficial alike to the department, the public and the printing and paper trades.

The report denies that the money-order system is conducted at a loss, as has been repeatedly charged.

A whole lot of the "frank" mail is stuff thrown in the waste basket when received and should be eliminated.

The Blessings Of Fraternalism

"And I do not care what the future holds in store for us, it must be that under any plan which an All-wise Providence is carrying out for the eternity of the souls of man, that due credit will be given for all the acts of charity and those of benevolence and good cheer practiced here on earth by our brother Elks. Let the reward be what it may, it must be that we will receive greater or less as we live near or far from the standard of life to which our order is so thoroly pledged and dedicated.

The above beautiful sentiment expressed by E. E. McDonald in his address at the Elks Memorial services held in this city will appeal strongly to every broadminded man or woman who is unfettered by the narrowing influences of creed and dogma to such an extent that there is no toleration for the belief of any other man or sect. The speaker stated that this was an age of Commercialism. This is true, and at the same time it is an age of fraternalism, and the influences of the latter are at the present time to a great extent dissipating the greedy tendencies of the age, doing more in fact than any other single agency.

The practices of charity of the Elks and other organizations, has saved many a disheartened man from failure. He has been sustained and cheered on to success by his fraternal brothers. Likewise the families of the departed have never been allowed to know the meaning of want and suffering for the necessaries.

Some people who know not of what they speak condemn all fraternal societies or "lodges". Nothing could be more unjust and foolish. The man who is a member of the Elks or any other standard organization, and who carries out the teachings of the order cannot help but be made better thereby, and also made a blessing to all his neighbors and associates.

STATE PRESS

Alexandria Post News: A. J. Rockne of Zumbrota will be the next speaker of the house of representatives. The position is one of great responsibilities. To some it has been a stepping stone to higher honors, to others, the road downward. Mr. Rockne has the reputation of a reformer in politics. We trust he may live up to that reputation.

Walker Pilot: Some men will search half the night with a lantern for their stray cow, but when their daughter is out running the streets they will retire at dusk without even taking the trouble to place a light in the front hall.

Lake Crystal Union: It is stated that President Roosevelt will take a hand in defeating Cannon for the election of speaker of the house. It's time something was done or such men as Cannon will be the means of defeating the whole Republican party.

Rush City Post: Dunn could have made the campaign this year and won out, but he generously gave way to the demand for Jacobson and gave him loyal support, but Dunn's time is coming, slow, true, but as sure as fate There never will be success in the Republican party until he is fully vindicated.

Madison Independent Press: To Mr. Dunn is due the credit of bringing out Governor Johnson for a fourth term, and then the United States senate. The governor had better have a care. Robert, be it remembered, brought out J. F. Jacobson for governor.

Fairmont Sentinel: Mr. Bryan will continue the good work of forcing the Republicans to adopt his reforms.

And the world would be just as well off if some stage-struck people were hit by an automobile.

Agitation is the antidote for stagnation.

You may guess what a woman is, but that's your limit.

He isn't much of a baker who eats all the bread he kneads.

And it sometimes happens that a man is married to his boss.

Many a man with wheels thinks he is the whole political machine.

Ever notice how much happier you are when you render others happy?

The more money a man has the more he is abused—and the less he cares.

It takes a wise man to write a letter to a woman that doesn't mean anything.

When a woman writes a letter she puts in all the useless words she can think of.

The average man begins to sit up and take notice when he hears a noise like a silk skirt.

Sailors' Pickings.

Here and there on an Atlantic liner in midocean sailors with pots of paint and huge brushes painted cowls, stanchions, rails, everything they could reach. Suddenly dropping his brush, one of these sailors rushed to a man in a black suit.

"Oh, sir," he cried distressfully, "you've sat down on fresh white paint."

With a roar the man leaped to his feet, curved himself acrobatically and stared at the seat of his trousers.

"But I've got a bottle of benzine in my bunk," said the sailor. "I'll run and get it. I'll have your pants all right in a jiffy."

Soon the pants were all right, and the man ere he strolled jauntily off (a little wet and smelly, perhaps) gave the sailor a quarter.

"That's the third today, Bill," the man said to his mate. "I tell you, what with all this paintin', us jackies do durn near as well on tips as the stewards."

"That's right," said Bill. "I made a dollar myself yesterday with that little bottle of benzine."

The Children's Friend.

Mr. C., a distinguished lawyer of Boston, was on his way to Denver to transact some important business. During the afternoon he noticed in the opposite section of the Pullman a sweet faced, tired appearing woman traveling with four small children. Being fond of children and feeling sorry for the mother, he soon made friends with the little ones. Early the next morning he heard their eager questions and the patient "Yes, dear," of the mother as she tried to dress them, and, looking out, he saw a small white foot protruding beyond the opposite curtain. Reaching across the aisle, he took hold of the large toe and began to recite, "This little pig went to market; this little pig stayed at home." The foot was suddenly withdrawn, and a cold, quiet voice said, "That is quite sufficient, thank you."

Mr. C. hastily withdrew to the smoker, where he remained until the train arrived in Denver.—Good Housekeeping.

Wellington's Tact.

There was an army of generals assembled at Paris in 1814, and when the various Austrian and Prussian generals, who had been beaten by Napoleon came crowding round the Duke of Wellington and expressing lots of compliments to him for having never been beaten by the French the duke pleased them immensely by saying, "Ah, but you know I never met Bonaparte, and I have always looked on him as being as good as 40,000 men.".

Women seem to regard charity work as a stepping stone into society.

The reason the average man can be so satisfied with his brains is he has not any.

The kind of photograph a woman thinks is good of her is one her own mother couldn't guess who it was.

When a girl's hair is a golden halo instead of being just plain red, it's a sign it's her mother describing it.

One of the habits a man acquires by being married is lying to his friends downtown about all the good things his wife gives him to eat at home so that he can't stand the ones in the expensive restaurants any more

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Crookston Citizen Shows How to Cure Them

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Crookston people testify to permanent cures.

N. L. Nelson, sheet metal worker, of 303 Jackson Avenue, Crookston, Minn., says: "Backache and kidney complaint were constant annoyances to me for years. The aching in my back was not continued, but the cause was always there, and it required only a little exertion or a cold to bring on a severe attack. I was suffering more than usual when I was induced to go to Wallace's drug store and get Doan's Kidney Pills. Their use promptly took the pains out of my back and helped me generally. I want to give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for working this wonderful cure."

In an interview given in New York Saturday James J. Hill said: "What this country needs more than anything else is an adequate system of agricultural colleges. The farmers ought to be taught how to farm. The farmers of other countries know more than we do. The land of England has been tilled for a thousand years, but it is producing more wheat to the acre than most of ours is. It's the same in France, Germany, Belgium and Holland, while the little Japanese till their few acres with an intelligence equalled by no other place in the world.

"General dissemination of information pertaining to scientific agriculture would bring a return beside which all other sources of national revenue would seem insignificant. The products of our mines would be as nothing in comparison."

This is along the same line of arguments always used by Mr. Hill and he is absolutely right.

CONTRACT LET FOR $15,180

MINNEAPOLIS BRIDGE AND IRON CO., TO BUILD NEW SAMPSON ADDITION BRIDGE

CITY IN ADDITION WILL BE CREDITED WITH $250 FOR THE OLD STRUCTURE

From Tuesday's Daily—

The joint committee from the city council and county commissioners today acepted the bid of the Minneapolis Bridge and Iron Co., to construct the new Sampsons addition bridge for $15,180 and the city will be credited with $250 which the company pays for the old bridge so the new structure will cost in cash but $14,930.

The contract is being drawn up and will be signed this afternoon. The bridge is to be completed before the river breaks up in the spring.

The city council will ratify the action of the council committee at the meeting to be held this evening and the action of the county board committee does not need ratification by the board before it becomes effective.

GOOD YEAR FOR PHONE COMPANY

RED RIVER INDEPENDENT SYSTEM PAYS DIVIDEND OF SIXTEEN PER CENT

At a meeting of the directors of the Red River Telephone company in Grand Forks yesterday affairs of the company were gone over and preparations made for the annual meeting to be held at Buxton today. The company had a most successful year and the profits amount to 16 per cent. Those who attended the meeting here were: M. F. Hegge, Hatton; O. J. Sorlie, Buxton; T. O. Schjeldahl, Hatton; J. G. Odegard, Northwood; P. M. Paulson, Portland; J. H. Leum, Mayville; W. S. Christian, Aneta; O. S. Estenson, Climax; C. H. Tolan, Mayville.

The company is capitalized at $100-000 and operates the largest independent system, except the North Dakota Independent Telephone company, in North Dakota. Exchanges are operated in the following towns that are also conected by long distance lines: Hatton, Buxton, Mayville, Aneta, Northwood, Reynolds, Thompson and Climax. C. H. Tolan is superintendent of the line.

The company was hit hard by the recent sleet storm and it will cost about $500 to make the necessary repairs. It was the first time in the history of the company that there was any serious damage.

After a six months' chase Officer Quigley Saturday evening arrested John Olson the man who June 8th last stole $85 worth of dresses, skirts, waists, etc., from Mrs. John R. McKinnon from a closet in the McKinnon Block. Mr. Quigley was here last week and Chief Eck reminded him of Olson and on his return to Grand Forks Officer Quigley got busy and in an hour had him in the cooler notified Sheriff Gonyea and he was brought to the county jail Saturday evening. Olson claims he is married and is now living with a half breed woman in East Grand Forks.

Added a Little Sulphur.

WOLVES ARE VERY NERVY

DONALDSON FARMER SAW PACK OF SIX OUT ON PRAIRIE SATURDAY

YOUNG FARMER BOYS PLANNING A BIG HUNT FOR THEIR EXTERMINATION

From Monday's Daily—

A traveling man who arrived in the city Saturday evening from a trip up the north line states that the wolves are getting quite bold up in Marshall and Kittson counties and that Saturday last a prominent farmer entered a store at Donaldson where he was selling goods and reported having seen a pack of six that morning on his way to that place

They have also been seen numerously in other sections of the north country, and the young farmer boys and several from Donaldson are planning on a big wolf hunt in the near future and believe that the animals can be reduced materially in numbers as the result of organized efforts. Thus far no stock has been lost, to speak of, tho one farmer has lost a few sheep.

LUMBERMEN'S CONVENTION — Bruce Harris passed thru the city last evening enroute from Western Canada to Minneapolis where he will attend the Lumbermen's convention. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Harris were at the depot to greet him. He will probably stop off a day on the return trip.

MANY PRAIRIE CHICKENS — Thomas Twite states that one day last week he drove from Twin Valley to Gary, and that enroute several great flocks of prairie chickens were scared up, in one of which there were at least 175 or 200 birds. All the traveling men report that in the timber and brush country there are all manner of chickens, the most that have been seen in many years.

TO BIG WOODS—Sam Deck left last evening for Bagley where he expects to remain the balance of the winter. He will be joined in a few days by John Carroll. "Mulligan Row" promises to be rather quiet during the next few months but the welcoming reception in the spring will be a society note of more than passing interest.

HAD A SEQUEL —It appears that there is a sequel to the baled hay lunch proposition. The fact has been developed that Jim Stephens was not purchasing the hay for his own use, but was acting as a sort of free deliveryman and the police are now after him for running a dray line within the city limits without a license. He claims that the fact that he was making no charge for the service performed puts him beyond the reach of the law.

MAY LOSE LIMB—Frank Wagner is in a hospital here for surgical treatment and it is expected that it will be necessary to amputate one of his legs. Early in the fall Mr. Wagner scratched his foot on a wire. The injury was not a serious one, but complications of such a serious nature set in that the amputation is believed to be necessary.

MISSED HIS TRAIN—Ernest Wilde was guyed unmercifully last night and this morning by his brother knights of the grip. He intended taking the Duluth train last evening and was at the depot early. His train pulled in, but as No. 8 was not in, and the Duluth train generally waits for it, he was putting on a Ward McAllister stunt with a bevy of prominent young ladies in the depot when he heard his train pulling out. Grabbing his grips he made a race for the door and dashed down the platform to the Robert Street crossing before he gave up the chase. This morning to sure and not miss his train he was aboard before the train came to a stop.

SAD MESSAGE — Edward Quee, Bjoin & Carlson's hackman, received a telegram today announcing the death of his father at the family home at Rockford, Ill., and left on the N. P. train to attend the funeral. Deceased was 77 years of age, and had lived in Rock Co., Wis., 25 miles west of Rockford since he came to this country in 1851 till he moved to Rockford 14 years ago. He was a pioneer of that part of Wisconsin and owned the finest farm in that section. He was a very vigorous man, and had survived four severe attacks of pneumonia and a half dozen runaways, as he prided himself on his spirited horses. He is survived by a wife and 13 children, having buried three. Deceased is a cousin of Mrs. Ole Halvorson of S. Main St., this city.

After being out all night the second jury in the case of the State vs. Wm. Loomis, charged with having given E. J. Peterson a left hook in the eye over a brindle cow squabble in the town of Helgeland last summer, reported a disagreement, the jury, like the first one, standing 8 for conviction and 4 for acquittal. The case was then put over till the June term.

The case of two colored men for grand larceny was then taken up and will be finished today.

MAYOR GETS FREAK LETTER

HIRAM STRICKLER WRITES MAYOR REGARDING BURIAL OF GORE UTENSILS

IS LOCATED IN SALT LAKE CITY —MAYOR TO COMPLY WITH REQUEST

From Wednesday's Daily—

Mayor J. D. McPhee has a funeral on his hands. He has not set the date, and cannot do so until he has secured a lot in Oakdale Cemetery or secured a permit from Patrick Connors, superintendent of the city garbage depository for an out of the way corner. He is just in receipt of the most freakish epistle addressed to him during his three terms as mayor, and runs as follows:

Salt Lake City, Dec. 4, 1908.
Mr. Mayor of Crookston:

Sir: A few years ago I was making your city my headquarters, doing all that I could do to build up one of your hotels by urging all traveling salesmen to go there. I was taken ill by the noise in this hotel and the landlord loaned me his gun to go out in the country to shoot some game. I was returning to the hotel when up came a doctor behing me driving at breakneck speed. I offered to give him half of the road and occupy the rest which I was entitled to. I had my gun on my shoulder and when the Doctor would not give me half of the road I pointed the gun straight at him but did not shoot.

"Don't you think, Mr. Mayor, that if I had killed this man that your courts would not have cleared me? Then I bought a small revolver and a knife and was conducting myself decent. Coming down to supper one night two of your policemen told me to halt. I went on about my business into the eating room. They came in after me and when I saw that they was going to arrest me I took out the small revolver and pointed it at them. They jumped on me and with the assistance of a ½ dozen of other men to laugh and scorn at me. Now, Mr. Mayor, this small revolver did not go off, and I only regret that it did not and kill them both. They read no warrant to me, simply jumped on me. Don't you think that the court of your country would have cleared me if I had killed both of them? Next thing they done they took me to your town hall and gave me a trial. I asked for to employ counsel, but the hotel man and the doctor just laughed at me.

This doctor in particular made all kinds of scorn at me when I asked for help.

Now Mr. Mayor your chief of police told me he would take care of my gun and revolver. All I have to say is for you to have this knife and revolver buried in the ground and let God that made us all decide. Please pardon me for being so lengthy with my remarks. Kind regards to you,

Yours,
Hiram Strickler."

Mayor McPhee announced in an official ukase last evening that he would grant the request and directions will be given to that end at once.

NEW RULES CAUSE MORE SWITCHING

REGULATIONS REGARDING INFLAMMABLES ADD TO WORK OF YARD CREWS

Local railroad men say that the new rules of the interstate commerce commission regarding inflammables which are now in force nave added greatly to the amount of switching on railroads and also to the responsibility devolving upon train crews, yardmasters and employes generally in the operating departments of the road. A red, yellow or white diamond label on a package of freight spells "inflammable" or "explosive" to the operatives and that recalls the rules laid down by the commission which have recently gone into effect.

The articles enumerated under the different heads of inflammables, explosives and acids, include alcohol, gasoline, powder and acids, and more than a score of other things closely related to them. Under the new rules a tank car must be at least five cars from the caboose and five cars from the engine, and near the middle of the train; it must not be next to a car containing explosives, or charcoal or cotton; yardmasters and employes must note the position of a tank car in the yard and must be prepared to isolate it quickly in case of fire.

Must Be Watched

Before the car is cut loose from a train the brakes must be tested and the preceding car must be allowed to clear the ladder track, incline or dump before it is cut loose. The next car must be held until a tank car is cleared, and the tank car and adjacent cars must be watched closely for hot boxes. If a package bearing a yellow diamond label is broken in transit the contents must be carefully swept up and removed. If a leaking package contains a liquid with a strong odor the damaged package must be removed if practicable. If necessary, the car must be placed on an isolated siding and the superintendent notified.

When inflammable packages are all unloaded, agents, yardmasters and conductors must see to it that the placards which the car bears are removed. These placards are standard in form, and are printed on thin white paper for pasting to tank cars and on heavy cardboard for tacking to box cars.

HITCHCOCK IS FOUND GUILTY

AFTER TRIAL BY JURY IN MUNICIPAL COURT ON CHARGE OF NON-SUPPORT

WILL BOARD IN POLK CO. JAIL FOR THE NEXT 60 DAYS

From Wednesday's Daily—

Edward Hitchcock, a former Great Northern conductor, was given a hearing in the municipal court yesterday at East Grand Forks on the charge of non-support, and found guilty. He was assessed a fine of $50 and costs aggregating $125 or sixty days in the county jail. He was unable to secure the required amount and was brought to Crookston last night. The case attracted wide attention in the city. The defendant was brought over yesterday morning and was arraigned in municipal court at 10 o'clock and entered a plea of not guilty to the complaint which charged that he had without lawful excuse neglected to furnish food, shelter and clothing to his wife, and two minor children, two and one-half years respectively. The case was set for hearing at 1:30 yesterday afternoon. Hitchcock demanded a jury trial and court was adjourned to the Commercial club rooms.

The evidence indicated that the defendant had been in the employ of the Great Northern railway for some time as brakeman and in September was to be promoted to the position of freight conductor. He had been employed. The only article in the way of clothing he had provided for his family during this time was a cheap hat for his wife. It also appeared that he had devoted some attention to a friend or affinity one Lily Wililams by name, in one of the houses of ill repute and that he had spent considerable money in that direction.

During the same time it appears that his contributions for his family amounted to $15 in July, nothing in August, $8 in September, $35 in October and nothing since. It was further stated that he had allowed his bills to run until his wages were garnished. After the third garnishment in November he was called in by the company, and not being able to give a good excuse he was dischanged. The jury yesterday evidently figured that his excuses as to his family were not lawful and found him guilty. Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock had been married something over three years and had lived in Grand Forks Some time ago it appears Hitchcock sent his wife to visit friends in Minnesota and she has been at the home of a distant relative. Recently her father came down from Greenbush and took her and her two children home again. Mrs. Hitchcock came down yesterday to attend the trial.

C. D. Billings is spending the day here on business from East Grand Forks.

Otto Koeppe left this morning for a trip up the North Line where he will see to it that all the dealers are well supplied with Leaders and everything in the line of satisfactory holiday smoke material.

BOY TORTURED BY AWFUL HUMOR

Almost Covered with Eczema—No Night's Rest for Nearly a Year—Feared Lifelong Disfigurement—All Treatments Failed and Limit of Endurance Seemed Near.

PERFECT RECOVERY IS DUE TO CUTICURA

"With the exception of his hands and feet, my son Clyde (thirteen years old) was almost completely covered with eczema. Physicians treated him for nearly a year without helping him any. While they were very kind and did all in their power, yet nothing seemed to relieve him. And I had tried many remedies sent to me by kind friends but they all failed. His head, face, and neck were covered with large scabs which he would rub until they fell off. Then blood and matter would run out and that would be worse. Many a time he looked as if his ears would drop off. Friends coming to see him said that if he got well he would be disfigured for life.

"When it seemed as if he could possibly stand it no longer, I decided to try Cuticura. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. I used them in the evening and that was the first night for nearly a year that he slept. This may sound exaggerated to you, but in the morning there was a great change for the better. In about six weeks you could not have told that he had ever had anything wrong with him. I treated him twice a day for six months and at present he has a fine complexion and not a scar on his body. This story may seem overdrawn, but neither words nor pen can describe Clyde's suffering and how he looked. Our leading physician, Dr. ——, recommends the Cuticura Remedies for eczema. Mrs. Algy Cockburn, Shiloh, O., June 11, 1907."

Frequent shampoos with Cuticura Soap and weekly dressings with Cuticura stop falling hair, remove crusts, scales, and dandruff, destroy hair parasites, soothe irritated, itching surfaces, stimulate the hair follicles, supply the roots with nourishment, loosen the scalp skin, and make the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp, when all other remedies fail.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

BUILDINGS FALL SHORT

STATE INSPECTOR OF HIGH SCHOOLS FAVORS SUPERVISING ARCHITECT

BUILDINGS NOT PLANNED FOR CONVENIENCE OF TEACHERS AND PUPILS

Minnesota needs a supervising architect for its high school buildings to pass on all plans and require that high schools be built for convenience safety and health of pupils. Strong recommendation to this effect is made in the annual report of George B. Aiton, state inspector of high schools, to the state high school board.

Mr. Aiton says that most school boards fail in planning properly for new school buildings, by their unfamiliarity with the problem and most architects have little idea of planning for the convenience of teachers and students.

Details Lacking

"I make the general statement that so far as solidity of structure and adequacy of heating are concerned our buildings are well put up, but the details of ventilation, of handling air are not well understood by our builders or architects," says the inspector

"Our school rooms lack decidedly in symmetry. Ungainly and unnecessary projections are permitted. There is too litle familiarity with the needs of a primary room, and of the various departments of a high school Many buildings so far as height of blackboard and other arrangements are concerned, are finished off as tho all rooms were intended for classes of intermediate and grammar grades.

Supervising Architect Needed

"We need a supervising architect who is familiar with the actual workings of the school, and who possesses a happy combination of artistic taste and scientific training. Such an official should be on a salary. When a board of education needs more school room, he should be at the disposal of that board. He should make them a visit an dstay on the ground as long as may be necessary to give professional advice. Even his expenses of travel should be paid by the state, so that boards of education should have entire confidence in his disinterestedness. He should act in an advisory capacity only. Working plans and specifications should in my judgment, be prepared as now, by competent architects.

"When called upon, I do the best I can to advise boards intelligently, but soon reach a point where the professional knowledge of an architect is necessary. A competent supervising architect could earn his salary ten times over. All school plans and plans for remodeling ald buildings should be submitted to him for approval."

Trade at Home

The man right here at home is the man who will be most accommodating The home merchant is a friend of yours and he takes pains to please you and to have his service, his goods and prices are right. He often accommodates his customers by sending for what they want if he does not happen to have it in stock, he accommodates them too by exchanging things which they have bought. Sometimes it is an accommodation to exchange butter and eggs for merchandise and it is sometimes an accommodation to get a litle credit from the store keeper. It is a good thing to remember that these are accommodations that you do not get from the catalogue and mail order houses.—Marshall Co. Leader.

No Guarantee

A decision has been rendered by the commissioner of patents relating to labels which packers and others place on their products. The commissioner rules that any label bearing the inscription "Guaranteed under the pure food and drugs act of June 30 1906" in which such inscription seeks to convey the impression that the government is responsible for the purity of the goods, will be refused registration. This shows that no dependence can be placed on slips, pasted on canned goods and other products, guaranteeing purity. — Princeton Union.

New G. N. Branch is Opened

The opening of a new extension 22 miles long from Fernie, B. C., to Michel B. C., and beyond on the Crow's Nest Southern Railway, a part of the Great Northern system, is announced by General Manager Gruber of the Great Northern. The extension is ready for business today. Its four stations are Fernie, Hosmer, Olson and Michel.

WALKED 20 MILES IN RAGING BLIZZARD

Thru a raging blizzard with the mercury hovering low in the tube, three ministers of the gospel, two of them from Duluth all day Monday fought their way across the twenty miles of treacherous ice on Pelican lake.

The party was composed of Dr. E. C. Clemans, district superintendent of M. E. church; Dr. Edward H. Nickolson, superintendent of the Litchfield district; Rev. Thomas Grice pastor of the Asbury M. E. church of West Duluth; Rev. Peter Lightfoot, Indian missionary of Ashawa, and W. G. Armstrong of Cork county, Ireland, who is a guest of Mr. Grice.

These gentlemen returned Wednesday to tell of their exciting experiences, while accompanying Dr. Clemans on his semi-annual missionary trip to the Indians in the wilderness of Northern Minnesota. Twice a year Dr. Clemans holds a conference at the Bois Fort Indian school on the reservation in Koochiching county.

On leaving the Duluth & Rainy Lake road at Gheen on their way to the reservation, they had a walk of 24 miles over broken country before them. Each carried a heavy pack. In describing the journey in, one of the clergymen said: "It seemed to me that we would never get there. For every foot forward we seemed to slip back two, so slippery was the frozen ground but we enjoyed the tramp, nevertheless."

At Bois Fort they held services Sunday morning with the aid of Rev. Lightfoot who interpreted the sermons to the Indians who gathered from miles around to listen to the white man's story of the "happy hunting grounds."

It was on the return trip that they met with their thrilling experiences which sound like romances of frontier life. Remembering the toil of the journey in, the preachers fortunately engaged a number of Indian guides and packers to carry their loads. It was well that they did.

On their return trip instead of returning by way of Gheen they determined to strike out across Pelican lake, for Orrs another station on the Rainy Lake road, which route would save them several miles, if they found the ice firm as they were assured it was by the natives, who had crossed it themselves.

They had been an hour on the lake before a blinding snowstorm set in, accompanied by a fierce wind, which grew into a typical northwest blizzard. They were forced to turn from their direct course across the lake, and seek the shelter of the islands and the shore. It was then that they were thankful that they had hired the Indians, for they would undoubtedly have been lost otherwise.

The snow stung in their faces, making sight more than a few feet ahead impossible. At any moment they ran the risk of sinking thru the treacherously thin ice. And had it not been for the inborn instinct of their guides they would have been in constant peril. As it was they walked blindly ahead mile after mile not knowing the direction in which they traveled or where they were, but placing their lives in the hands of the Indians.

It was a thankful and weary party that that evening, long after dark, trudged into Orrs. They had come miles out of their way to follow the shore line, where the ice was firmer. Tho at no time did their exertions allow them to become cold, they were fatigued almost to despair.

The members of the party which arrived in Duluth last night, state that they would not have missed the experience for a great deal, but they doubt greatly, if they would care to undertake the trip again soon under the same circumstances.

Reforms Arrested

It is said that the reforms never go backward, yet it must be admitted that the progress of reform movements is often stayed and held back for a time. Tho the general tendency is to go constantly forward, events occur now and then that cause a halt in the onward march and even sometimes produce a slight retreat. However, the trend is toward higher and better things and these retreats, whether local, state or national, always stop before the old conditions of things that existed when the reform that was started was reached, despite the lugubrious forbodings of the pessimistically inclined. The election of Harmon in Ohio and the defeat of Folk's senatorial candidacy in Missouri were both setbacks for those who are working earnestly year in and year out for the betterment of American citizenship, but they were not such as to dishearten the reform forces in those states; on the contrary, they will only serve to spur them on to greater efforts to accomplish the great work they have set out to do.—Warren Register.

Von Bulow and Sarasate.

In one of his letters Von Bulow refers to Sarasate as follows: "He has enchanted me beyond measure, particularly in his concert of yesterday, when he played a splendid work, 'Symphonie Espagnole,' by Lalo—played in so genuinely artistic a manner that today I am still intoxicated with it. His playing also of the Saint-Saens concert piece for violin is as entrancing as interesting. It is a shame that he cannot come to see me. N. B. —I have purposely avoided his personal acquaintance. Perhaps he has tried to see me, for over my door stands the notice:

"Mornings—not to be seen.
Afternoons—not at home.

"But perhaps he did not ring the bell. (He never plays under 1,000 francs—he received this sum here at a private musicale.) For secretary he has Otto Goldschmidt, who sent me a pass, which I returned with the remark that for such an important concert I could certainly afford to buy my ticket. Six marks was in no way too much to pay."

Bulow did make his acquaintance, however, as he refers in a later letter to Sarasate coming, quite unexpectedly, to a "conference with Johannes" (Brahms), at which he himself was present.

What's Yours?

It was 1:30 a. m. in the cheap, all night restaurant.

"What's yours?" said the "tough" waiter, arms akimbo.

We gave our orders and in about ten minutes the waiter served my friends, but left me nothing.

"What's yours?" he asked, addressing me.

"Why," said I, surprised and reproachful, "I ordered corned beef and cabbage at least ten minutes ago."

The waiter's jaw became a trifle more aggressive than usual.

"Well," he said grimly, "do you still stick to it?"—Bohemian Magazine.

Judge Ives' Idea Stolen

A few weeks ago we advanced the idea that the Congressional committee of ways and means, sitting at Washington for the purpose of securing data upon which to base a tariff revision, had called every manufacturer and everybody who is interested in such revision, but had failed to call the consumer. The effort was unnoticed by the state press, probably because it came from an obscure country paper. The first of the week just passed, Charles Francis Adams a man of note whose dicta are national and historic, discovered the same fact and voiced it in the great dailies of the nation. The News-Tribune of Duluth early discovered the erudite saying of the great man but failed for more than two weeks to find that a country newspaper of its own state had promulgated the same idea. We failed to copyright our brilliant idea and awoke one morning to find that a great man of national reputation had discovered it.—Cass Lake Times.

No householder was surprised by the news of the butter corner and the prospect that the price will shortly go higher than ever before for a generation, says the St. Paul Dispatch. The present extremely high prices could not be explained in any other way. It means oppression to practically all the people, for it is a very poor and small family that does not use at least 50 cents worth of butter a week or $25 worth a year. If that expense is increased 50 per cent, it will out uite a hole in small incomes. It will compel pinching economy. Even now, the butter costs more than the family's bread half as much as the winter's coal for heating and fully as much as gas for cooking and lighting.

There is the same evidence in extortionate prices of a combine in eggs probably handled by the same people as have engrossed the butter supply. Eggs do not keep well when kept too long, a fact that makes such a corner especially obnoxious.

By such corners in food products made easy by improvement in transportation facilities, the very advantages that should come to the people from cheaper freights are taken all to themselves by greedy monopolies.

But the danger of such monopolies is not alone one of extravagant prices but of ultimate oppression of the dairy interest, in which must be included the smaller creamery men or all those outside of such centers as chicago. Let a few once dominate the business completely and there will be an end of the high prices paid to the farmers and the small creameries. The old story of the monopolization of beef, with low prices for the producer and high prices for the consumer will be repeated as to butter.

Give some people their pick and they will pick flaws every time.

He who thinks only of himself has not any too much to think about.

GREAT SENSATION AT ST. VINCENT

MAN NAMED MORTIMER, WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF THAT PLACE DISAPPEARED THANKSGIVING DAY AND HAS NOT BEEN SEEN SINCE—BELIEVED HE WAS DROWNED IN RED RIVER WHILE CROSSING TO PEMBINA — WAS A NOTED SOCIALIST SPEAKER

From Friday's Daily—

A man named Mortimer whose initials could not be learned and who operated a tailor shop at St. Vincent, has caused a great sensation in that little city by his mysterious disappearance on Thanksgiving day.

He announced that he was going to Winnipeg to deliver a Socialist address, being one of the best speakers that party has in the state, having been sent to the Pacific coast for lecture work a year ago. When he did not return a day or two later as expected inquiries were started as he had always been very prompt about letting his wife know of his whereabouts when it was necessary for him to remain away longer than expected.

It developed that on Thanksgiving Day he had never put in an appearance and it is now believed that in crossing the Red River to Pembina the ice gave way and he was drowned

Yesterday the authorities at St. Vincent started dragging the river but the body had not been recovered up to noon today.

Later inquiries at Winnipeg develop the fact that he had not been there at all and the general opinion is that his body is in the river and will probably not be recovered till spring.

There was no reason for his going away as his home life was pleasant in every way. He was well known and popular and his disappearance has caused a great sensation.

OYSTERS NO NOVELTY

Helen of Troy May Have Eaten Them—Nero Imported Them

"The oyster is the key to that paradise called appetite."

That is what Prof. John R. Philpots says, and he knows more about oysters than all the shuckers from Chesapeake bay to Cotuit says the New York Sun.

Just what we think of oysters as a modern dainty it would be hard to tell, but probably half of the men and women who scan the oyster section of the bill of fare do cherish that delusion. Nevertheless in Nero's time millions of bushels of oysters were eaten annually in Rome.

But even Nero becomes an object of pity to the American when we read that the best of the oysters he had to eat were imported from Britain. Probably the Roman emperors had the same delusion that we have. They doubtless considered that in providing an oyster course at their banquets they were bringing their menu strictly up to date.

They didn't know that in primeval times the oyster shucker was an important personage. This must have been so, for in the remains known as the kitchen middens in Denmark there are thousands and thousands of oyster shells bearing evidences of having been artificially opened. Not only that, but Dr. Schliemann in his search for the ancient city of Troy found oyster shells in the ruins of the prehistoric settlements of Hissarlik.

A writer in the National Magazine says that the oyster is valuable not so much for its nutritive qualities—and these must not be underestimated by any means—as for "its peculiar condimentality and its ready digestibility," For the invalid it is especially valuable for it is the only known food that will not at some time or another nauseate the patient, being unquestionably the most easily digested of all animal foods.

Some reputable physicians, however, have maintained that the use of the oyster should never be permitted any diabetic patient. The Lancet, the most influential medical organ in Great Britain disagrees with this. It says:

"According to our analysis the amount of liver sugar in the oyster was very small, and certainly considerably less than half that found by previous observers. We made a number of experiments on this point, and in no instance did the amount of glycogen in the raw oyster exceed 1 per cent.

"A further examination of the organic portion of the oyster revealed the presence of glycero-phosphoric compounds, which are now used in medicine in the form of lecitline and of the glycero-phosphates of the alkaline metals for the purpose of improving the general nutrition of the nervous system.

"The results on the whole show that altho the actual amount of nutritive material in a raw oyster is small, yet this material comprises all classes of food substances, namely, proteid, carbohydrates, fat and certain mineral salts. Moreover the flesh of the oyster undoubtedly contains these substances in a peculiarly assimilable form.

"Apart from the extreme delicacy of the oyster, and from its peculiarly appetizing flavor, there are, we think reasons on purely dietetic grounds why attention should continue to be given to the cultivation of the oyster which, as the foregoing results indicate, is an excellent article of food."

Interest in the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition to be held in Seattle next summer is becoming wide spread. Many newspapers in the eastern states are devoting considerable space to stories telling of the attractions and benefits of the exhibition and are printing editorials commending the enterprise and the manner in which the work is being carried forward.

The following editorial from the Baltimore American of September 20 1908, is typical of the spirit being shown all over the United States:

"Seattle is in a flutter of pleasurable excitement over the fact that it is further advanced toward its exposition than any other exposition city at the same distance of time from the opening of the gates. Nine months yet remain, and the exposition is so far promoted that it is believed the show will begin with the boards cleared of all the trappings incident to the stage setting. Seattle is therefore, wreathed in a broad smile. It is something to be happy about, that preparations for the great Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition are moving along merrily. Altho a city of but something over a quarter of a million Seattle is broad in hospitality and resources and is fitted to care finely for the multitudes expected to the Coast to see the wonders of the Exposition and to enjoy the matchless scenery of its environs.

The financial situation is gratifying the capital stock of $800,000 has been fully paid in. Congress made an appropriation of $600,000 for its exhibit and its six buildings. There will be found at Seattle the exhibits of all Uncle Sam's dominions. In view of the fact that the exposition is in a Pacific Coast city, the oriental features wil lbe especially strong. It will doubtless be a great exposition and significant of the turn of the tide toward the far west when Asia shall become the doorstep of the United States.

HOMESTEADING IT—H. J. Lomen of Fosston, Minn., son of J. J. Lomen formerly cashier of the Security State Bank was an arrival in this section last week and will remain for the winter to assist his father in homesteading up on the Rapid river. —Northern News of Spooner.

THE SIAMESE TWINS—Says the Bemidji Pioneer: "R. R. Ashley of Duluth, the popular young traveling man who is often mistaken for Ernest Wilde of Crookston returned to the city yesterday afternoon from a business trip to Fowlds and spent the night here as a guest at the Markham hotel."

EAST GRAND FORKS DEATH — Mrs. Elizabeth Haws, a widow aged 70 died yesterday morning at his home in East Grand Forks 611 Washington avenue, after an illness of several weeks. The deceased has been a resident of that city for a number of years and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends. Mrs. Haws leaves three sons to mourn her loss. The funeral took place this aftrenoon from the residence at 2:00 o'clock.

MUCH HAY BURNED—A prairie fire out in Mary, Norman County, last week destroyed fifteen or twenty hay stacks and also the house and barn on the Hoff place valued at nearly $1,000 and also the barn on the Beito place. The heaviest losers of hay were John Rud, John Ellingson and Ole Moen. The fire was started by T. O. Evenson, an old man who owns a forty out in that neighborhood, and was trying to burn off some willow bush. He felt very bad about the fire and has disappeared the presumption being that he had left the country.

NO BURYING THIS WINTER — It is announced that the burial of bodies had been discontinued at the Memorial Park cemetery at Grand Forks during the winter months and from now until the frost is out of the ground, bodies will be placed in the receiving vault at the cemetery. This is in accordance with the usual custom at Grand Forks cemetery.

GRAND FORKS SONS OF NORWAY—The Sons of Norway of Grand Forks elected officers last evening and enjoyed a social session. The officers will be installed at the first meeting in January. The following is a list of the officers elected last evening:

President—A. M. Lodmell.
Vice President—N. J. Salkanger.
Secretary—A. Peterson.
Regent—Chris Hanson.
Treasurer—Peter Standal.
Physician—J. E. Engstad.
Trustee—I. Johnson.
Marshal—K. Kporlian.
Inner Watchman—George Carlson.
Outer Marshal—A. C. Anderson.

HORSES TO WOODS— Will Casmey and Roy Teal arrived in the city last evening and this morning left for the woods with 12 horses belonging to C. Teal, Sr., and Barney Thompson of Euclid. They will haul logs during the winter for Geo. Ross. "Old Hickory" will not go up at the present time but will make several trips during the winter to see how the nags are getting on.

NOT MUCH ACCOUNT —The following which is going the rounds of the press, is a pretty truthful statement of the man who doesn't appreciate his home paper: "When you hear a man sneering at the local paper because it is not big, cheap and newsy as the city papers, you can safely bet he does not squander any of his wealth in assisting to make it better and that generally the paper has done more for him than he has for it. The man who cannot see the benefits arising from a local newspaper is about as much value to the town as a delinquent tax list."

"THERE HE GOES" — A well known resident of Crookston has just returned from his first deer hunt and the old story of "There he goes!" has come with him. After tramping the country day and night for miles near Swan River a deer was sighted. The other three men in the party were all experienced hunters and were bemoaning their luck, as they had not even seen a sign of game. One of the men was known as a wonderful shot and seldom failed to bring the deer home once he was in range. As fate would have it the "tednerfoot" was leading the party at the time the deer jumped up; in fact, he stood between the other hunters and the animal, and in a loud voice he called "There is one!" The fleet-footed animal bounded off at the sound of his voice. With his gun loaded and the other hunters praying that he would either shoot or lie down so they could shoot, he again called back, "There he goes!" The whole party returned to camp empty handed and in a sullen mood. The man who had the "buck fever" has been standing for a great deal of what is called "kidding in earnest" as every time the other members of the party see him they say with a sneer, "There he goes!".

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

We sell Guns and Traps cheap and buy Furs and Hides. Write for catalogue No. 23.—N. W. Hide & Fur Co., Minneapolis.

ON COURT BUSINESS—Atty. A. A. Miller is spending the day at Warren trying a case before the district court which is in session there.

TO SURVEY FARM—County Surveyor Orvis Hinds left this morning for Erskine with a crew of men, where he will survey a farm to determine the most advisable drainage system.

A LITTLE FROSTY—It was 10 degrees below zero this morning the frostiest morning thus far this winter. It modified rapidly however and has not been sharp since 10 o'clock.

HORSES FOR WOODS — Garret Smith was down from Euclid last evening returning home this morning. He is sending nine horses to the woods and Messrs, Aker and Thompson of the same place are sending five to the same camp.

EGGS 40 CENTS—Fresh eggs are now bringing 40 cents a dozen and have oysters on the half shell beat 40 ways as a luxury. It is predicted that next week they will be negotiable at any of the banks at 25 cents each and that those fortunate enough to afford them will deposit them in the safety vaults.

COMPLETING NEVING CREAMERY — Alfred Bergeson of Neving states that the Neving creamery is under construction, that they are laying the shingles this week and would complete it as soon as possible. Machinery has been ordered and will arrive in February so that it can be installed and every thing made ready by spring.

KILLED GRUNDY'S BROTHER—The Minneapolis Journal of Sunday contained a story telling of the capture of Almighty Voice, an Indian who lived up near Prince Albert, Canada. A brother of Dr. Henry Grundy of Thief River Falls was one of the mounted policemen killed by Almighty Voice. This happened eleven years ago.

BEMIDJI WOODMEN ELECT — The Bemidji lodge of the Modern Woodmen has elected officers for the following year, as follows: P. L. Foucault, past venerable consul; J. M. Stafford venerable consul; W. J. McCauley, worthy adviser; Frank Wagner, banker; J. P. Lahr, clerk; J. C. Cobb, escort; F. L. Bursley, watchman; John Neumann, sentry; P. L. Foucault, manager.

MADE 25 NEW CITIZENS— The following are the names of those who were granted naturalization papers at the present term of court in Marshall county now in session at Warren: John E. Dahl, Alvina Anderson, John N. Sordal, Amalia M. Johnson, Kristian C. Ruud, Ellen Nilson, Peter Wagenius, Mansour Isaac, John Deep, Joseph Thones, David E. Frausen, Ernest Olstrom, Christian C. Bernstrom, Lindvoald A. Hagen; Otto Forslund, Lars Torgerson, Reginald Storm, John M. Olson, Hermand M. Kristensen, Ludvig P. Amunsen, Karl M. Ness, Oscar Edlund, Franz Agfiren, Edward Evenson, Carl John Christianson.

REMEMBER THE SISTERS—The glad Christmas tide is approaching and those charitably inclined might well remember that anything in the line of linens and drygoods, jellies, suitable clothing or cash will be thankfully received by the Sisters at St. Vincents hospital. While those who are able to pay for care and treatment they are expected to do so, it should not be forgotten that no one is turned away who is suffering, and that the institution is not run as a money making proposition, but as a refuge for the sick and suffering. The St. Vincent's Hospital is one of the splendid institutions of Crookston, and should receive liberal gifts at this season of giving toward a most worthy cause.

HOME FROM SAD MISSION—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lusian returned this morning from Minneapolis where they were called a week ago this evening by the critical illness of Mrs. Lusian's mother, Mrs. John Sweeney, who passed peacefully away last Sunday afternoon at 12:30 aged 70 years, death being due to a general breakdown. She was buried at Excelsior Minn., on Tuesday last. Deceased was the mother of 14 children, 10 of whom survive her. Eight were at her bedside when the end came the two others being in California and Washington. Mrs. Sweeney was born in Canada in 1832 but moved to Minnesota many years ago. She was a lady highly esteemed by all who knew her, a revoted Christian and death was but the passing into a peaceful sleep.

IS HANDED A PACKAGE—Sam A. Johnson was handed a justly deserved package by the Great Northern station employees at Larimore. It seems that rumor was current that Johnson intended to leave for California within a few days to spend a couple of months with his family and the gang thought it a splendid opportunity to hand him something which they proceeded to do in the way of a new suit of clothes and an overcoat. Mr. Johnson is an old time employee on the Dakota division and one of the most popular railroad men in the state.

GRAND FORKS WOODMEN--The Modern Woodmen of America Camp at Grand Forks last evening elected officers for the ensusing year. Following the election, which was held in the hall of the lodge the members enjoyed a social session. The following officers were chosen:

V. C.—Scott Karnes.
W. A.—J. Nuss.
Clerk—M. W. Day.
Banker—Robert B. Cadwell.
Escort—J. W. Young.
Watchman—W. J. Bird.
Sentinel—J. O'Reilly.
Manager for Three Years—James Coulter.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY.

WENT TO KENNEDY—D. D. Clark of the Palace Hotel left this morning for Kennedy where he spent the day on business, returning home this evening on the local.

NO RECENT OUTBREAKS—J. F. Montgomery spent the night in the city returning to his business at Angus this morning. He states that peace and quietness prevails in the interior of the province, and that no serious uprisings are anticipated among the natives this winter.

SHERIFF ELECT BUSY— Sheriff Elect Daniels who is at present just a common hired man like the rest of us, is busy as a bee these days. He returned this morning from a trip to Climax and went north to Angus and Warren this morning for another batch of witnesses.

TO NORTH DAKOTA—W. R. Low of Walsh & Low went to North Dakota this morning on land business.

RIVER FROZEN OVER — Traveling men report that for the first time in many years the Rainy river was frozen over the first of this week, so that people could walk across below the ferry which was out of commission for a short time. The river is open there all winter as a rule, and is now open, but the cold spell came so suddenly that the warmer water from the lakes above did not have time to get in action.

WILL MEET CROOKSTONITES— In a letter received today Wm. Asselin formerly a resident of this city, now located in Spokane says that the weather there of late has been much colder than usual, and that considerable snow has fallen, which is not usual. He states that he expects to see quite a number of former Crookston residents who are now located at North Yakima, who will attend the big apple show which will be held in Spokane next week and for which most elaborate preparations have been made. Mr. Asselin likes the west and is doing well in Spokane.

DIRECTORS IN SESSION

DINED BY PRESIDENT MISNER PRECEDING BUSINESS SESSION

MUCH IMPORTANT BUSINESS IS DISCUSSED — COMMITTEES NAMED

From Saturday's Daily—

The board of directors of the 25,000 Commercial Club met last evening in the reception room of the Hotel Crookston and the work of the past year was reviewed at length and plans for the future made.

Previous to the business meeting the board was the guest of President H. C. Misner at dinner at the hotel. This social was enjoyed by the directors and the officers of the club; the dinner was served in the customary faultless manner of the hotel, and it was a most fitting and pleasant episode in the history of the present club administration.

After the dinner a conference was held. The report of the Polk County Exhibit Committee was presented by Treasurer Stair, of the committee. After it had been read, it was referred to a special auditing committee.

The fact that the annual meeting of the club was to be held on January 15, brought it before the board and after some discussion it was decided to make this meeting something out of the ordinary. At this meeting the new officers and a new board are to be elected and an elaborate program will be arranged by the club.

The board after reviewing the work done by the Market Day committee instructed the secretary to convey a vote of thanks from the board to each member of the Market Day committee.

It was decided that rooms would have to be secured at once for the regular meetings of the board and the club and a committee, consisting of J. E. OB'rien, J. W. Wheeler, G. S. Chesterman and L. Ellington, was appointed to see what could be done in this line.

The following participated in the dinner and at the business session: President H. C. Misner; vice president J. W. Wheeler; vice president J. E. O'Brien; Treasurer G. S. Chesterman; secretary Thos. R. Brown, Jr. Directors, O. O. Christianson, J. F. Fournet, O. Mercil, Jr., L. Ellington, Sam Rosenthal, J. A. Cowley, J. P. Dotson, J. D. McPhee, Geo. H. Wright, C. E. Kiewel.

President H. C. Misner anounced the appointment of the following committees:

Committee on Audit, Polk County Exhibit—C. C. Strander, L. W. Larson, W. A. Marin.

Committee of Audit, Secretary and Treasurer's books and Accounts—J. E. O'Brien, F. R. Hamel, Ed Peterson

Committee on Arrangements for Annual Meeting—J. A. Cowley, L. Ellington, J. F. Fournet.

RED LAKE COUNTY WEDDING—The marriage of Mr. Scott L. Lamont of Thief River Falls, Minn., to Miss Elizabeth Grace Marquardt of Cooperstown, took place on Thanksgiving day at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Marquardt, Rev. Oscar D. Purinton officiating, in the presence of about 75 guests. The event was one of the prettiest weddings in the history of Cooperstown and will long be remembered by those present. The bride was attired in white crepe de chine over white taffeta trimmed with green myrtle and carried white roses. She was attended by Miss Grace Houghton. The groom was attended by the bride's brother, Otto Marquardt. After the ceremony all sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, which was not to be surpassed. The happy couple were the recipients of a handsome lot of presents. Mr. and Mrs. Lamont left on the afternoon train for Winnipeg to spend their honeymoon ad will be at home at Thief River Falls after January 1.

Marriage Customs in Savage Africa.

The charge which is sometimes brought against white men of "marrying for money" cannot be used against their sex in Africa, for there it is the other way about, husbands having to purchase their wives. When a man has a wife bestowed upon him as an act of charity he feels that she is not properly his own, and she, if she will, can treat him with contempt. This custom of wife purchase, although it is to be decried as tending to lower marriage to the level of a commercial contract, is an incentive to young men to work. Lazy youths cannot compete with energetic ones in the matrimonial market, as they are despised by the young women and rejected by their parents as being unworthy of their daughters.—Wide World Magazine.

TWO THIRDS OF MILLION FOR DRAINAGE IN POLK

Total Of $650,074,29 Has Been Spent In Ditch Work In Polk Co. To Date. $35,000 More In Prospect,

During Six Years Service Of Co. Auditor Hoffard Bulk Of Work Has Been Done. 69 Waterways Built.

From Saturday's Daily—

Up to the present time Polk Co., has expended $650,074.29 for drainage ditches. This amount has been expended in the construction of 69 ditches, three of which were judicial ditches, and in connection with these, just Polk county's share has been figured in the grand total.

The great majority of this work has been done during the incumbency of N. A. Hoffard as county auditor during the past six years, he having Thursday filed his statement with the register of deeds for the 52nd ditch, the last which he will file before he retires from office Jan. 1st next. The 52 waterways cost a total of $458,407.22 and the 17 prior to Mr. Hoffard's term represented an outlay of $191,667.07, showing conclusively the wonderful rapidity in which the drainage work is gaining headway.

In addition to this there are four ditches which have been petitioned for and which will without doubt be established which will cost about $55,000 and all will be completed the coming year.

This merely represents what has been expended by the Polk county commissioners and does not include the vast amount of lateral surface ditching which has been done by the individual farmers, which would easily equal an equal sum, nor does it include the considerable sum which has been expended in tile drainage, a good start upon which has already been made. The tile drainage could not be successfully carried on until the main drainage ditches had been constructed in order to give an outlet but during the coming two years a vast amount of tile drainage work will be done.

The expenditure of two thirds of a million dollars by Polk county compared very favorably with the $1,000,000 which Geo. A. Ralph engineer of the State Drainage Board estimates the state has expended for drainage during the past two years in the biennial report which he is now preparing for submission to the forthcoming session of the state legislature. Polk County has a more complete drainage system than any county in the northern part of the state, and so satisfactory are the results that the system will be complete within a very few years.

EXPENSE BILL NOT LARGE

POLK COUNTY REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE EXPENDED ABOUT $700

BILLS PAID AND A BALANCE OF $4.58 IN THE TREASURY

The expense account of the Republican County Central Committee during the recent campaign has been filed with the county auditor and shows that the candidates assessments and other subscriptions amounted to $694.74.

The total expenditures were $690.16 which leaves a balance in the treasury of $4.58 cents.

The Work Horse.

Work horses should be groomed twice a day.

The harness should be removed as soon as the work is done.

Never give food immediately after hard work. The stomach at that time is in no condition to receive food.

The work horse should have a variety of food.

Upon the clean condition of the skin the health of the horse largely depends.

Horses are frequently troubled with brittle hoof, due to a deficiency of water in the hoof, the result of fever.

Keep a lump of salt in the manger.

Never trot a horse downhill.

Never put a dirty, rough bit in a horse's mouth.

Don't leave a shoe on a horse more than four weeks.

Do not allow the stable to be too tight during the summer time.

Balking is caused by overloading, tight harness or abuse.

Keep the mangers sweet and clean.

The best time to clean the mud off the horse's legs is before it gets dry.

The farm horse should be a walker, the road horse a trotter.

For a horse to masticate four pounds of hay will require over an hour, half an hour for four pounds of whole oats and fifteen minutes for four pounds of ground feed.

The following is recommended as an invaluable hoof remedy: Linseed oil, half pint; turpentine, four ounces; oil of tar, six ounces; organum, three ounces. Shake well.

More Worry.

"It used to be my ambition," said the business man, "to accumulate a fortune and then retire."

"Well," answered the friend, "haven't you realized it?"

"No. I've got the money, but I don't dare retire. I've got to stay awake night and day to keep somebody from taking it away from me."

ELKS HOLD IMPRESSIVE MEMORIAL SERVICES

Earnest And Eloquent Address Delivered By Hon. E. E. McDonald Of Bemidji On Departed Brothers And High Aim Of Order.

Musical Program Included Orchestral And Quartette And Solo Numbers Of High Order. Thanatopsis By Sec. A. J. Kirk.

DEPARTED BROTHERS

Chas. W. Bloom
Chas. G. Rapp
DeForest Bucklen
Emil Anders
W. M. Watkins

Largely attended and very impressive Memorial services were held Sunday afternoon at the Auditorium by Crookston Lodge No. 342 B. P. O. E. brother E. E. McDonald, attorney for the Crookston Lumber Co., at Bemidji delivering a very earnest and eloquent address on the purposes of the order and paid a high tribute to the departed.

Exalted Ruler W. P. Murphy presided. A quartette consisting of Mrs. Wm. P. Murphy, Miss Meda Chesterman and Messrs. A. J. Brager and Andrew Carlson sang several fine selections, Mrs. Murphy contributed a solo, as did Mr. Ross Chesterman. Thanatopsis was delivered by Secretary A. J. Kirk in a very impressive manner. Rev. C. C. Warner offered the invocation, Rev. F. M. McCoy pronounced the benediction and the orchestra rendered several fine selections. About 250 Elks marched to the Auditorium from thier hall in a body. The services were among the most impressive ever held under the auspices of the Crookston Elks. Tho the local lodge has been established many years, and has a membership of over 300, but five members have crossed the Great Divide.

The hall was appropriately decorated with the colors of the order, purple and white and on the platform in addition to those who participated in the program were Past Exalted Rulers J. D. McPhee, Wm. Anglim, and Thomas Morris and James H. Mapbury.

The address of E. E. McDonaid was of such a character that we reproduce it in full below.

Memorial Address

"It is natural that we enter upon memorial exercises of this character some what bowed or depressed with feelings of sorrow. While our order is but in its infancy, yet, many of our brothers have passed beyond. Their acts were distinguished by marked benevolence and good fellow-ship. Their presence ever a blessing; their boundless kindness like warm sun light of Heaven imparting good cheer to all whom they met, and it is not strange that we mourn their absence.

A Beautiful Simile

"Of inanimate creation a beautiful and fragrant flower, perhaps, is most attractive. We gaze long and lovingly upon its beauty and perfection and linger to enjoy its fragrance and wish it could be with us ever. While we grieve at their going, we recall with a peculiar feeling of pleasure their having been with us. In many respects an Elk, who lives in the spirit of goodfellowship and benevolence resembles a beautiful and fragrant flower, but, in many respects they are different. A flower will bloom and fade and pass away, others will bloom beside or succeed it with no appreciable improvement resulting from the existence of the other. Its beauty will pass from view. Its fragrance is disipated with the passing breeze.

Elevating Influences

Not so with those who live in the atmosphere of Elkdom, or come within the influence of its mighty work. Its atmosphere of Elkdom, or come within the influence of its mighty work. Its atmosphere is always preg nant with a lofty spirit of loyalty to our country, protection to that sacred edifice, the home, and the love of friend. No one can live within,—nay no one can occasionally come within, this atmosphere, without being a better citizen, a truer friend, a fonder husband and father, and be surely led in the direction of that life which we are taught to live in order to inherit the Kingdom of Heaven. Its influence is never lost. Its effect is everlasting. Thus, steadily and certainly, is worked by our order the permanent up-building of mankind.

Tribute to the Departed

"It is, perhaps a violation of the cannons of our order to even refer to the good work we are doing, but of the departed friends we may with propriety speak. Their lives were dedicated to charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity. That our order is today, without any claim on our part given a high place among fraternal organizations, is due to the fact that our departed friends lived lives conspicuous for their charity, brotherly love, goodfellowship and good cheer. Someone has said that selfishness is the root of all evil. To live a life of selfishness is to degrade oneself, and thru the unavoidable contamination and contagion degrade others, and the sum total is general degradation.

Meaning of Charity

Had our departed friends lived lives of selfishness, they would have earned the condemnation of the world, instead of the laurel of "Well done thou good and faithful servant." Charitableness is the antonym of selfishness and, we may add, and all that is evil. For to be truly charitable we must be kind and forgiving, liberal and benevolent. What more, so far as our earthly existence is concerned, could we ask, than to live among, only, friends, who were kind and forgiving liberal and benevolent, toward us.

Justice to All

"To be just means to yield to our brother that which is his. They were just. They were charitable and just. These were attributes enough to earn for our order the high esteem and regard it now enjoys. But this was not all; they were benevolent. They befriended the friendless. They upheld the frail, and extended their generous aid to the needy, and took to the grave the secret of their good work. The story of their work cannot ever be told. But, sublime as were their acts of charity and justice, and benevolence they do not compare. in some minds, to the acts or works of goodfellowship and good cheer for which they were so noted.

Cheered the Disheartened

"Goodfellowship and good cheer are the principal characteristics that distinguish our order from others. Many a good person has laid down his burden, discouraged and disheartened, when with the aid of goodfellowship and good cheer he would have seen the rainbow of promise in the near future and continued his battle and won a marked success. How many have failed for want of this asnsstance dan never be told, and those who have been assisted to success by goodfellowship and cheer of our deceased brothers, no one but the men cheered on to success will ever know

Cash is Not Everything

"When you are thoroly discouraged and disheartened, with every hand, apparently against you, what matters it that some Rockefeller or Morgan places a few cold coins in the palm of your hand, 'tis but the prolongation of your misery, but let this or even a less amount be placed in your hand accompanied by the cheer that comes from the true Elk, and a new future appears to your vision and resolutions to renew struggle are formed at once, and the battle that was about to be given up is fought out to victory. It is well that the physician when he enters the sick room should bring with him the necessary drugs and lotions to aid nature in the patient's recovery. But those skilled in the profession of medicine realize that it is as important to introduce into the sick room and infect the patient with a feeling of cheerfulness as it is to administer the drug or apply the salve, and in many, many cases,, a recovery could not be had were it not for this good cheer thus injected into the case.

The Future

"It is the firm and satisfactory belief of some that the hereafter holds for us such a position, surrounded with such comforts and enjoyments as we in a measure have qualified ourselves for, or have shown ourselves entitled to by our conduct here This may, or may not, be so, but be this as it may, we can draw from this the pleasing thought that those true Elks who have already crossed the Great Divide, are now enjoying the exalted position, surrounded by the comforts and blessings which, by their conduct here, in their devotion to their order, and their fellowman, they so richly earned.

The Reward of Charity

"And, I care not what the future holds in store for us, it must be that under any plan which an All-wise Providence is carrying out for the eternity of the souls of man, that due credit will be given for all the acts of charity and those of benevolence and good cheer practiced here on earth by our brother Elks. Let the reward be what it may, it must be that we will receive greater or less as we live near or far from the standard of life to which our order is so thoroly pledged and dedicated.

Helped the Needy

"There are many of us who are young in Elkdom and, of course, know but little of the good work our order is doing, but we had acquired a general knowledge of its beneficent work long before our admission. An Elk will extend necessary aid and cheer whenever and wherever needed, finding in the consciousness of having done right full and satisfactory compensation for his effort, and make no mention of his deed. And how much of this work our departed friends have done no one but "He, who knoweth all things" will ever know, for the recipients of these benefactions have offered to Him on high their thanksgiving.

Greater Works

"What more need I say of our dead —nothing. All over this land today we are joined by those inside and outside our own ranks in paying these tributes to the memory of our dead. I would be pleased to close here, but I know that I can best pay tribute to the dead by urging the living on to greater works of charity, benevolence and good cheer.

Possible Dangers

"If there is in the future any danger in store for our order it lies in the fact that men will join our ranks not with an aim to make life brighter and sweeter for others that may be in distress or unfortunate, but with an aim to be benefitted themselves by such association. In time this would make of our order a financial beneficiary organization, and there would depart that spirit, that has been prevalent from its inception, of charity, benevolence and good cheer.

A Grand Future

"But if our order is to continue with none among its membership but those who dedicate themselves to charity, justice, brotherly love and good cheer, then, will our order continue to prosper and grow far in excess of the anticipations of the early founders or those who have passed away, or those who are now in our midst. Let us be Elks because in so being we are enabled to do the greatest good to others, losing sight of ourselves the while.

Selfish Charity

"What may appear to us as true charity may in fact be the vilest selfishness. To make sacrifices and live a life of strictest discipline, for the sole purpose of securing an inheritance in the future, may be selfishness He who goes out in the highways and the byways and turns from the paths of wickedness the sinner and the wrong-doer, that his soul may be saved, and the sinner given a future inheritance, has unconsciously, perhaps earned for himself the right to such preference in the future as lies in the power of man to earn.

Real Unselfishness

"A story is told of our lamented Lincoln that illustrates the difference between selfishness and unselfishness. Upon an occasion of his going to attend court, riding circuit, as they called it, he was accompanied by several friends on horseback. The country contained some deep and muddy mire holes along the road. In one of these, as they passed, was observed a large and fleshy pig, apparently, about to be overcome by the mud and water. The party rode on some little distance, leaving the pig in its distress when suddenly Lincoln turned and rode back in haste exclaiming "I must go back and help that pig out of the mud." While he was gone his friends commented upon his kind act of unselfishness, and how thoughtful he was for the welfare of the poor pig. Presently Lincoln returned, bearing upon his clothing the best possible evidence of his successful extraction of the pig from the mire, and his friends, feeling somewhat ashamed and rebuked, inquired why he was so solicitious of the pig's welfare, and Lincoln replied that he did not care a fig for the pig, or its welfare or comfort, but that he had in mind his own comfort and peace of mind. The knowledge that the pig was about to drown, and that he could save it, was making him a very uncomfortable man, and he returned to help the pig from the mire, not to relieve the pig but to relieve himself. And so if we would analyze many of our every day acts, which we choose to term acts of charity, we might find that back behind, as the spring there of, was some selfish end to be gained.

Avoiding Self

"It is apparent that to avoid self in our every-day life is no easy matter. We were born, raised and now live under circumstances that make it almost necessary in order to preserve life, to constantly make the battle for self. It is a strife that we are not responsible for and one that is forced upon us. To be able to work for the good of mankind instead of self requires almost superhuman ability. Yet in its essentials and in results this is the work of our order.

An Age of Commercialism

"We are living now in an age of commercialism when the incentive that prompts our every act is to gain for self all that lies within our reach be it prosperity, distinction, pleasure or comfort. This awful struggle might well be termed the carnage of the greedy. To in a measure temper this struggle with justice and mercy is one of the things expected of our order. If we succeed the fact will be established that mankind can be permanently improved by the process of improving others by improving our selves. It matters not from what walk of life we come we are constantly drilled in the thought that we should not part with anything unless we receive in return something tangible of a sufficiently greater value to represent a profit or reward. This tends toward extreme selfishness. It is to the credit of those who founded and early supported our order and those who have gone before us that their lives were pleasantly conspicuous for their kindness and benevolence. They lived as near as man can now live the exemplary life of an Elk. We mourn the absent ones. We rejoice in the rich inheritance they earned during their brief sojourn here.

A Rock to be Avoided

"We hope that this spirit of commercialism that seems to turn the heart of man to flint—this doctrine of the survival of the fittest—will never lay its blighting hold upon our order. Our order is free, may it ever remain. But as our membership increases the danger of the introduction may increase. The larger the membership the greater the gain to him who joins for selfish ends. Let us then be conscious of his admission and finds new members only among those who are willing in a measure, at least to put aside for a time their solf interest that the welfare of all Elkdom and all mankind may be advanced.

"Our order has wisely abstained from permitting the use thereof for business or political ends, and, may it ever be thus. Any departure from this safe course threatens disaster.

A Sacred Emblem

'Our emblem should be kept as something almost sacred. Let us not by any act of commission or ommission permit or encourage it to be degraded or used except in furtherance of the lofty ideals of our order. Let the love of liberty and loyalty to our countrp stand fixed in our hearts Let the interests of self, and self-advancement, give way to the interests of our friend and brother. Let every thought be shaped by a desire to advance the good of mankind and you will advance the welfare of our order and perpetuate the memory of those who have gone before.

A Worthy Origin

"I may be pardoned to speak to those who are not of our order. The order of Elks sprang from, apparently, an insignificant effort. The benevolent and protective order of Elks recognized as one of the leading organizations, pledging its loyalty to our country its protection to the home and its love of friend, was born in 1867 as the result of some oppressive conditions then prevalent in the city of New York. It found its birth place in a humble boarding house in which a few congenial spirits were housed The love of liberty and appreciation of goodfellowship and good cheer brought it into existence. The hearts of a few men thus thrown together, and who founded the order, were bound together by this spirit of good fellowship and friendship, and from that day to this the prevailing, predominant and guiding spirit or our order are the undissolvable bonds of friendship, the firm resolution of each member to make life brighter and pleasanter, "ministering to the sick, relieving the distressed, aiding the unfortunate, and working together for the common good of all mankind."

300,000 Members

"When it was first organized our order was given another name, and upon a Sunday, February 16, 1868, the present name was selected. Of course an organization of this kind with such aims, dedicated to such work, could not but succeed, and now the order has spread to every American city of any note, gathering under its banner over 300,000 men who represent the highest and best type of American citizenship and manhood Though not a beneficial order, it has been said of us, that we extend more in unostentatious charity than any other organization in the world. The order of Elks "Holds high above all other things, as high as hope's great throbbing star above the darkness of the dead, the love of wife and home and friend.'

Parting Counsel

"To those of our order:

"Then let the memory of our departed friends so spur us on in direction of our lofty ideals in life that all our acts will be so tempered with such kindness and benevolence that all who learn thereof will know they are the deeds of Elks."

SHARP AND FOLLOWERS IN DEADLY POLICE FIGHT

RELIGIOUS FANATIC IN CROOKSTON LAST SUMMER FIGURES IN BLOODY BATTLE—ONE KILLED FOUR MORTALLY WOUNDED AND SEVERAL INJURED—PATROLMAN SHOT THRU HEART WHILE SHARP IS FATALLY IN JURED — PROBATION OFFICER AND ANOTHER POLICEMAN A RE SLIGHTLY INJURED—KANSAS CITY IS SCENE OF SENSATION AL GUN FIGHT BETWEEN JOHN SHARP "ADAM GOD" HIS FOLLOWERS AND THE POLICE—RELIGIOUS FANATICS OPEN HOSTILITIES AND WHOLE FORCE IS NECESSARY TO SUBDUE THE M

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 9— Lola Pratt, the child who was wounded while attempting to escape from officers in rowboats, died last night. Sergeant Clark is reported to be at the point of death, while Patrolman Mullane is not expected to live till night.

John Sharp referred to in the following Associated Press dispatch, and his band of followers will be remembered by a great many Crookston people. Sharp, who calls himself the second man Adam, or Adam God, was in Crookston last summer with his wife, five children and another man and woman. The band drew considerable attention by going thru the streets in a small wagon drawn by an old bay horse and singing sacred music, after which they held meetings on the street corners. They were also at Grand Forks, Lancaster and other points in northern Minnesota. One of the most important parts of their evening program was the taking of a collection.

Last summer Sharp started northward, claiming that he was the leader the Doukhobors were seeking. Canadian authorities immediately took the matter in hand, but Sharp by threats of violence and open display of the fact that he and his folowers were armed to the teeth kept the mounted police at bay. The fanatics success fully pursued their way until Sharp learned the Doukhobors didn't propose to have him for leader, and then turned back to the United States.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 9 — In the very shadow of the city hall in this city and less than a half mile from the business center, a riot in which religious fanatics and police were the participants and during which a hundred shots were fired this afternoon, resulted in the death of one policeman, the fatal injury of four and the slight injury of two other persons. The dead

ALBERT O. DALBOW, a patrolman.

Fatally injured: John Sharp, known as Adam God, a street preacher; Lola Pratt, aged 13; Michael Mullane, a patrolman; Patrick Clark, a police sergeant.

Slightly injured: Harry B. Stege, policeman; George M. Holt, probation officer.

The trouble occurred when the streets were crowded with people, While the battle was in progress the participants traversed an entire block the final stages of the fight being enacted directly across the street from an entrance to the police station.

Cause of Trouble

George M. Holt probation officer of the juvenile court, went to Fifth and Main streets to investigate a case of alleged abduction. Near that street corner he came upon Sharp, who surrounded by companions was exhorting to a crowd of street loafers. With Sharp were J. Selzer, a woman and five children. The children ranged in age from 14 to 3 years. The officers' suspicions were aroused by the manner in which the woman attempted to secure money contributions from the crowd and he decided that she and her male companions were not proper persons to have the custody of young children.

Uses Revolver

The woman announced that she and "Adam God" would conduct services at Creighton's or Poor Man's Mission, one block north, tonight, whereupon she and her companions started in the direction of the mission. Officer Holt then inquired as to the identity of the children. The woman replied that the officer "had better attend to his own business." The officer presevered in his inquiries, when "Adam God" whose long flowing beard and hair gave him the appearance of a patriarch, threatened the officer with physical violence. Officer Holt was not armed, but stood his ground, and "Adam God" struck him a heavy blow behind the ear with a pistol, making an ugly wound. Holt then started for the police station for assistance and as he moved away the preacher tried to shoot but was so excited that he dropped his revolver as he attempted to draw it and when he picked it up and snapped it at the officer, the cartridge failed to explode.

Rush for Aid

Officer Holt rushed into the police station and announced that a band of religious fanatics, armed to the teeth was at the very threshold of the police station, and he warned the officers to prepare for trouble. The police sergeant in charge ordered Patrolmen Chas. Dalbow and Harry E. Stege to go out and arrest Sharp and his followers.

The religionists were within 50 yards of the police station when the officers stepped into the street. They gave evidence of being in a frenzy of rage and with profane abuse they served notice on all who chanced to hear them that they would preach "right under the eaves of the police station and the police cannot prevent us."

Open Fire on Police

The officers were not expecting serious trouble and were not prepared for the volley of bullets which met them immediately after they appeared on the scene. Dalbow was killed instantly and a bullet passed thru Stege's arm. Other officers, hearing the firing, rushed into the street, and a general battle ensued.

The officers as they stepped from the building, offered themselves as targets to their opponents of the fight but were unable to shoot without endangering the lives of innocent persons. Lieut. Clark who had come into the street unarmed, was shot in the eye and patrolman Mullane was shot in the back as he hurried into the police station for reinforcements.

Sharp Shot Down

In the meantime a riot call had been sounded and policemen were appearing from all directions. Thoroly aroused the officers closed in on Sharp and his followers, firing as they went, but taking great care not to injure any of the children, and when the firing ceased, "Adam God" lay fatally wounded, shot thru the head and body.

During the firing there was a great scattering of the spectators and when the battle was over the police and their antagonists had the block entirely to themselves.

The seriously injured were taken to hospitals and then the police began to clear the streets of all street preachers, and it is said that the trouble today marks the end of religious exhortations on the streets of Kansas City.

Grand Forks Herald: Cards of invitation are out for the marriage of Miss Florence Mallory, daughter of Mrs. O. E. Mallory of Walnut Street to Charles M. Horlacher of Indianapolis, Ind., the ceremony to occur on Wednesday the 16th at the bride's home at four o'clock in the afternoon. The guests will number only family connections and intimate friends, a few of whom will come from a distance among them Mr. Horlacher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Horlacher of Indianapolis. Immediately after the marriage the young people will leave for Bismarck where a few days will be spent with Supreme Judge and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, before their departure for the new home in Indiana. MOVEMENT ON FOOT TO ORGANIZE MORE COMPACT BASEBALL LEAGUE

THE GOPHER AND FLICKERTAIL STATE FANS HAVE FEASIBLE SCHEME

From Tuesday's Daily—

The story comes from Fargo that six North Dakota towns, with Crookston and Bemidji of Northern Minnesota may have a baseball league in 1908.

Unless there is a possibility of the Northern league breaking into the Twin Cities Fargo will not be with the old organization. The jumps to Duluth and Winnipeg are too long. Winnipeg and Brandon will undoubtedly align themselves with teams in western Canada and Duluth with the Wisconsin State league or the copper country.

Fargo Wahpeton, Valley City, Hinot, Jamestown, Bismarck, Devils Lake Grand Forks and possibly the two Minnesota towns would furnish a compact league.

It is thought there would be little or no difficulty in securing eight of these towns in a league that could be profitably operated with a short schedule next summer.

Considerable interest has been aroused over the plan and a meeting will be calld soon.

GOPHER FARMERS GETTING WEALTHY

1500 CARS OF POTATOES VALUED AT MORE THAN $400,000

1500 cars of potatoes will be shipped from Princeton this year, which is about 900,000 bushels, valued at nearly a million dollars. Most of t he tubers are brought to town in wagons and from farms of 80 acres each.

In the territory from which these potatoes come there are 15 creameries which with the stock raised in connection with dairying. will add another $400,000 to the income of the farmers. With other products added, the total will amount to fully $1,000,000. The land of these farmers is held at from $50 to $60 per acre. Mille Lacs county is one of the more recently settled in this section of the state Not long ago these lands were considered of little value and went begging at $5 per acre.

BIG SAW MILL ON NO. BORDER

INTERNATIONAL FALLS TO HAVE A NEW SAW MILL — LARGE LOG SUPPLY

It is reported on reliable authority that the Backus-Brooks people, who are putting in a big power plant at International Falls will put in a new sawmill in that city in the near future R. S. McDonald representative of the company, E. W. Backus, president of the company and J. G. Miller, who built Shevlin's big mill at Spooner, have been holding a conference and it is thought that steps will be taken for the erection of the mill. The supply of logs on Rainy Lake and its tributaries is abundant only a small per cent having been cut.

EULOGIUM FROM AN OLD FRIEND

John Cromb one of Crookston's ablest citizens died at his residence on the morning of the 10th inst. Mr. Cromb has been a sufferer for many years and has fought bravely and persistently against it. We first met Mr. Cromb about the time the U. S. land office was moved from Detroit to Crookston, in May, 1879, of which office he was receiver and T. C. Shapleigh was register. Mr. Cromb was a careful painstaking officer and had a host of friends. In later years he held the office of mayor of Crookston and for the last twenty years has been the honored president of the Merchant's Bank. Crookston will miss the genial face of John Cromb and will not easily find one to take his place in the offections of her citizens.—Cass Lake Times, Judge Ives editor.

BUSINESS GREAT SAYS TRAVELER

CROOKSTON SALESMAN SAYS CONDITIONS ARE HARD TO IMPROVE ON NOW

PROSPERITY OVER NORTHWEST DULUTH WHEAT SHIPMENTS ESTABLISH RECORD

"Business this fall is excellent" said A. L. Fuller, one of the best known travelers on the road, with headquarters in Crookston when queried by the Fargo Call editor yesterday. "There is a degree of prosperity evident in the northwest this fall, which cannot go unnoticed. There is money in circulation and not a complaint can be made."

Reports come from every quarter, similar to this. That there is more money in the northwest this fall than for years, is the verdict of those who are in positions to know. While a large percent of the wheat has been marketed, yet there are thousands of bushels yet to be shipped. Referring to the wheat shipments, Mr. Fuller referred to a dispatch sent out from Duluth last week, as follows:

"Grain shipments from the Duluth-Superior harbor for the week just closed broke all the world records. The 11,794,000 bushels of grain that were taken from the head of the lakes elevators during the week ending last night was the largest ever made from any port of the world in that length of time.

"The last two days of the week broke individual records. Friday's shipment was 2,000,000 bushels; and yesterday's was 1,737,000 bushels.

"The D. G. Kerr also shared in the record breaking. This big steamer took out a cargo of over 4,000,000 bushels of durum wheat which is the greatest cargo of one kind of grain that has ever been taken down the lakes from this port.

"The reason for the rush in shipping is the expiration of insurance. Policies ran out at midnight last she she she seses shre seseshrdlu u night on the regular insurance, but the elevators kept on working all night, as there is a large fleet of ships upon which the insurance has been extended until midnight next Tuesday.

"Ships were going out yesterday as fast as they could get loaded and kept up till midnight."

HEAVY HOLIDAY TRAFFIC CERTAIN

Early reservations indicate that very heavy holiday passenger business will be done by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific out of Crookston beginning with next week. Both roads are receiving a number of passenger reservations every day from people who are going East and West for the holidays.

A number of Canadians in this city and vicinity will as usual take advantage of the holiday rates offered to Canadian points, while the rates offered to Chicago and from Chicago East, via the Chicago-New York lines will attract a great many from here

Practically all of the Chicago lines have offered rates to Eastern and Southwestern points.

DEATH RELIEVES SUFFERINGS

J. B. COLEMAN OF THIS CITY DIED FROM CANCER LAST SATURDAY

J. B. Coleman a resident of Jeromes addition in this city for several years died last Saturday night at the hospital, suffering from cancer of which he has been afflicted for some time, and was a constant sufferer for the past three months. Mr. Coleman was 55 years of age and leaves a wife and nine children, most of which are grown. He was a scaler for the mill company and after the closing down here he went to work at Thief River Falls. Mr. Coleman was prominent in the I. O. O. F. and will be interred under their auspices tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. Services will be held at the Presbyterian church.

SHIP PACKAGES BEFORE XMAS

EXPRESS AGENT ISSUES TIMELY WARNING TO PEOPLE WHO WOULD SEND PACKAGES

DO NOT WAIT UNTIL THE LAST MINUTE BUT GET GIFTS STARTED EARLY

From Monday's Daily—

"Send your express packages early" say the express agents. "Remember that your's will only be one out of several million Christmas packages that will be sent this year and while it will be given just the same service as anybody else's we can't get it to its destination on time if you send it late or depend upon the same service you get at ordinary times."

Agent Chas. Handy of the Northern Pacific Express Co., said this morning that express packages should be sent a couple of days ahead of the usual time to insure their arriving at their destination by Christmas as there is an awful rush of express at that time and while there would be little or no delay at the sending or receiving office there are chances for packages being delayed at transfer points where the congestion is very heavy.

"People like to get their packages on time," said Mr. Handy, "as if they arrive after Christmas they lose a good deal of their glitter in the receiver's eye. We don't do anything but work Christmas and in a town of this size we have always been able to deliver all the packages that arrived on Christmas day, but it is at the transfer points that the express is delayed. We have a neat little sticker which we paste on the Christmas boxes which tells the recipient that it is not to be opened until Xmas and in this manner the receiver knows that it is a Christmas present and will not open it."

SCHREIBER FOUND GUILTY

FOUND GUILTY OF KILLING FORMER POLK COUNTY RESIDENT

JURY WAS OUT 48 HOURS BEFORE REACHING AN AGREEMENT

From Saturday's Daily—

Duluth, Dec. 12—William Schreiber was found guilty of murder in the first degree here yesterday afternoon at 3:15. He killed Frank Massapust a settler near Ashawa, last February Schreiber tried to cash a certificate of deposit belonging to Massapust, which led to his arrest. The house in which the murder was committed was burned on the night of the tragedy, and the body was almost consumed. The defense contended that the commitment of any crime had not been proved. An acquittal was generally expected. The jury was out 48 hours before reaching a verdict.

(Ed. Note: On page 8 of this issue will be found an account of Massapust's residence in Polk county some time ago.

BOYS RUN AWAY FROM ORPHANAGE

TWO DULUTH LADS START OFF TO MAKE NAME AND FORTUNE

Two boys, John Weatherhead age 15 and Raymond Riley age 14, yesterday ran away from the St. James orphanage at Duluth and have not up to date, been caught, in spite of the efforts of the local police who were soon on the job.

They left at 7 o'clock, and the sisters at the institution are much worried over their continued absence.

Both were homeless boys who were being cared for at the institution. It is believed that the boys wanted to see something of the world.

Robbins of this city and is rapidly advancing as a railroad man.

LAWS CLUTCHES GETS VIOLATORS

GAME WARDEN MUNCH'S VIGILANT DRAG NET GETS MANY VIOLATORS

ILLEGAL OPERATIONS IN CLEARWATER CO. IS STOPPED FOR ALL TIME

From Monday's Daily—

With the conviction at Bagley today of seven violators of the game laws, Wm. Munch the vigilant warden of the state game laws, has brought to the bars of justice, the largest batch that has ever been apprehended in the east country, where it is very hard to catch and convict violators on acount of the sparse settlements and the tendency of the law breakers to shield one another. To make this capture Mr. Munch had to drive about 125 miles during the severe weather of last week.

Those captured and convicted with the amount of their fines were:

J. C. Charles, Adolph, Dave and C. L. Stenlund were found guilty of selling white fish, and each using two more nets than were allowed by law. Their fine was $53 each. L. Halvorson postmaster and merchant at Neving was convicted for having moose meat in his possession. He too was fined $53. Jerome Thayer and Chas Morrow were guilty of using nets not complying with the law and were fined $11.50.

The cases were all tried before Justice Day at Bagley and were proseouted by County Attorney Tietsworth of Clearwater County, who gave the game warden every assistance. The fish were caught in Clearwater lake and the parties convicted are all residents of Clearwater county,

About 1,000 pounds of fish were confiscated and may be sent by Mr. Munch to Crookston and sold for the Game and Fish Commission.

PREPARATIONS FOR YULETIDE

SONS OF NORWAY ELECT OFFICERS AND PREPARE FOR HOLIDAYS

A LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING WAS HELD LAST .... NIGHT BY S. OF N.

From Tuesday's Daily—

The regular annual election of officers of the Sons of Norway was held last night at their meeting in Woodmen hall last night. A large number of the members were present and also much other business of importance was transacted:

The officers elected are as follows:
President—Carl Carlson:
Vice Pres.—G. J. Flaten.
Secretary—H. L. Waage.
Fin. Sec.—Henry Larson.
Treas.—Arthur Anderson.
Regent—Olaf Skodje.
Marshal—Theo. Regeson.
Inside Guard—A. M Lunde.
Outside Guard—Bernard Lein.
Physicians—Drs. Kjelland and Bertelson.

A large Christmas tree with appropriate festivities will be enjoyed some time during Yuletide, and the retiring officers were appointed a committee to prepare for this occasion.

For the grand union festivities to be held at Fargo during the holiday week, the Crookston lodge has elected the following representative citizens to attend: P. J. Tronrud, A. M. Sivertson, Henry Larson and Trigve Randers. The Fargo lodge are figuring on building a large lodge home and wish to have the members of the surrounding lodges assist them in furthering the plans.

The Crookston lodge is now in a flourishing and prosperous condition and see a very optimistic year's work before them.

MRS. GEO. RALPH IS VERY ILL

Mrs. George Ralph, formerly of this city now living in St. Paul is very low, and her friends hold little hope for her recovery. Mr. and Mrs. Will Low have received word to come to St. Paul and they will probably leave this evening. Mrs. Ralph has a large number of friends here who all join in wishing her a speedy recovery.

All things are of a temporary nature so what's the use of worrying?

POPULAR AND PROMINENT

CLIFFORD CARTER'S HOME PAPER SPEAKS IN HIGHEST PRAISE

KNOXVILLE, TENN., SORROWS OVER DEATH—STOOD HIGH AMONG FRIENDS

From Tuesday's Daily—

A copy of the Knoxville, Tenn., Journal and Tribune, received by Donald Prudhomme of this city. It has the following to say regarding the unfortunate death of the late Clifford Carter:

Sad news reached this city yesterday telling of the death of Clifford L. Carter at Crookston, Minn., where he has been for some five years holding a responsible position as manager of the shoe department of the largest department store in that city. Mr. Carter is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Carter, 955 North Fifth Avenue, and a brother of Mr. Hal D. Carter mailing clerk of The Journal and Tribune.

The news reached here early in the afternoon in a telegram to Mr. T. W. Carter, briefly announcing the death of his son, who had been in ill health for some time. His family however had not been alarmed over his condition as his last letter home, received some two weeks since did not mention his illness, and it is supposed that he did not mention his being sick in order that his family might not become unduly alarmed over his condition. He had regretted that he would not be able to spend the holidays with his parents, and brothers and sisters, owing to his duties in connection with the responsible position, and the re-organizatio of his firm, and the remodeling of the store and preparations for the new year.

The remains will be shipped to this city by express and will probably arrive Saturday night, and in that event the funeral services will be held Sunday. Announcement as to the time of the funeral will appear later.

The deceased was well known in this city. He was twenty-nine years of age. He had graduated from the Knoxville high school some twelve years ago, after attending the North Knoxville school several years. He was very popular with a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Following his completion of the schools of this city he entered a business career ,and held a position with the wholesale hat store of S. C. Dismukes & Co., and later went on the road as a traveling salesman for the same firm. For two years he was employed as a salesman for the Harbison Shoe Co., on Market Square where he was employed when he received a flattering offer of a position with a big shoe house in Minnesota. He has made his home in Crookston for the past five years.

LODGE HAS FOUR STATE OFFICERS

MANKATO ELKS LODGE CLAIMS JOHNSON, EBERHART, DINEHART AND SCHMAHL

At the recent election four members of the Mankato lodge of Elks were elected to state offices, Governor Johnson, Lieutenant Governor Eberhart, Secretary of State Schmahl and State Treasurer Dinehart. Congressman Hammond of St. James and Davis of St. Peter and District Judge Pfau are also members of the lodge In view of this great honor the lodge held a Thanksgiving social recently to rejoice with the successful brothers.

FIGURING OUT THE TIME CARD

Whenever there is to be a change in the running of trains, or a new train is to be put on, the trainmen figure out how it is to effect them. The addition of the Warroad extension will make little changes in trains as the passenger will double the road as it does now, but crews will have to be re-arranged. The humor is that no additional crews will be needed, but that three crews will run first in, first out, on the three branches, St. Vincent, Fargo, and Warroad. This is an arrangement no doubt, little relished by those affected, as it will make long hours and leave very little time to them here at home, where the crews will be required to live.

KEELEY NOT TO BLAME

LOCAL OFFICIALS AND DISPATCHERS SAY OPERATOR, IF ANYONE, IS GUILTY

OPERATOR BELIEVED TO HAVE TAKEN NAP AT WRONG TIME

From Saturday's Daily—

Local railway officials do not see any justice in the conviction of Harry Keeley a former well known and popular resident of Crookston, at Missoula on a charge of being responsible for the death of five men who lost their lives in a collision between a passenger train and a freight. As the local men understand the situation Dispatcher Keeley had been misinformed by the operator as to the location of the freight train. Possibly the operator had taken a brief nap and did not notice whether the train had passed. A meeting place was arranged for the freight and passenger train in accordance with Keeley's understanding of the situation and the wreck was a result.

Local railway men stated last night that the blame rests on the operator according to all rules of the company They were very much surprised over the conviction of Keeley, who was well known here, and believe that he will be granted a new trial by the supreme court.

MANY FIRES AT BEMIDJI & HALLOCK

FORMER RESIDENT OF FOSSTON AND HALLOCK SUFFERS A SMALL LOSS

For the second time during the night fire broke out in the barn owned by JJohn Goodman of this city, behind the City Drug store, and almost completely destroyed the structure before the fire department arrived on the scene and extinguished the flames. Mr. Goodman lost a harness, a buggy and some cement supplies which he had stored there, totaling a value of about $200.

K. C.'S SELECT NEW OFFICERS

ORDER IS GROWING RAPIDLY — LOCAL COUNCIL NOT 2 YEARS OLD

Crookston Council No. 1216 Knights of Columbus held an important meeting this week at which officers for the ensuing year were elected. The local council has a membership of 96 and is not yet two years old. It is probable that a big class will be initiated on the second anniversary of the installation of the local council in April. The meeting nights are the 2nd and 4th Wednesday evenings in each month in Woodmen hall. Following is the list of the officers elect for the ensuing year:

Grand Knight, N. B. Moran.
Deputy Grand Knight, A. J. McKinnon.
Chancellor, Geo. J. Cannon.
Warden, Dan Hughes.
Rec. Sec., J. R. Morin.
Fin. Sec., J. J. Flynn.

JOHN CROMB PASSES AWAY AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS

ONE OF THE FOREMOST CITIZENS OF CROOKSTON LAYS DOWN LIFE'S BURDENS PROMINENTLY IDENTIFIED WITH GROWTH OF CITY SINCE EARLY DAYS—ENTIRE CITY MOURNS LOSS OF ONE WHO EXEMPLIFIED THE HIGHEST TYPE OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

From Thursday's Daily—

John Cromb is dead. All Crookston mourns.

After a lingering intestinal illness covering a period of nearly three years, one of the men whose activities have been closely identified with the history of Crookston since 1881 passed peacefully away at 2:45 o'clock a. m. today at his home 401 Hunter street in this city surounded by his four children, aged 65 years and 10 months.

Mr. Cromb came to Crookston in 1881 from Becker county, where he had served several years as county auditor, to assume his duties as register of the United States land office in this city and served in that capacity for several years.

He then became associated with the Merchants National Bank the oldest banking institution in Crookston and Polk Co., and has been president of that institution ever since devoting all his time to that institution till he became incapacitated about three years ago since which time he has not given the business his entire attention. Mr. Cromb has also been a member of the Crookston school board for the past 23 years first serving as clerk, and for many years past has been president of the board, which office he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Cromb was identified with every movement having for its object the advancement of Crookston both morally, educationally and commercially. He was extremely public spirited and contributed liberally to every worthy cause.

He was a man of high morals and the name of John Cromb was synonymous to honesty and integrity in their most amplified interpretation. He had the fullest confidence of everyone and his personality had much to do with the wonderful growth of the banking institution with which he was identified very closely till the last years of its history.

He was an ardent baseball fan, and was one of the main supports of the Crookston Northern League team, as well as all amateur base ball organizations the city has had, but always insisted that the sport be conducted along clean lines, with all rowdyism eliminated. He was largely instrumental in securing the present baseball park.

The loss of no citizen ever caused more sincere mourning than the death of John Cromb. As a business man, neighbor and citizen he was looked upon as having all those qualities, harmoniously blended, which go to constitute the highest type of manhood and American citizenship. It is a byword that John Cromb never had an enemy, and all who knew him was a warm friend.

John Cromb was born in Perthshire Scotland, Feb. 27, 1843, being eldest of three children, a brother James and a sister Alice still residing at the old home. Before coming to this country Mr. Cromb was a railway agent.

Mr. Cromb came to the United States with his wife, first settling at Balmoral, Ottertail Co., Minn., in June, 1869, remaining there till the following spring when he moved to Becker Co., locating in Lake Park township May 20, 1870.

He was appointed as member of the first board of county commissioners by Gov. Austin, at the time Becker Co., was organized in March 1871 and was the first county auditor elected by the people of that county which office he held until the fall of 1881 when he resigned to accept the appointment of Register of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston. He has been a member of the school board for 23 years, a member of the State Normal school board, mayor of Crookston, president of the Merchants National bank of Crookston for over 20 years. Mr. Cromb was also president of the Charter Commission and was one of the most active members of that body.

Mr. Cromb is survived by four children and two grand children, the children all having been born in Becker Co., and they are Mrs. Cecelia C. Boisser of Lake Geneva, Wis., Mrs. Annie F. Brown of Crookston, Dr. John R. Cromb of Fargo, and Mrs. Agnes Gildersleeve of Crookston. The grand children are Arthur Cromb Boissier, and Margaret F. Brown.

Mrs. Cromb died March 13, 1899.

Deceased was a member of Crookston Lodge No. 141, A. F. and A. M. and also belonged to the Crookston Commandery, and was a Shriner, being a member of Zurah Temple, St. Paul, and the funeral services, which will probably be held Sunday will be under the auspices of the Masonic order.

Roosevelt For Presideut Ot University Ot Minnesota

Theodore Roosevelt for president of the University of Minnesota to succeed President Cyrus Northrup. This is the latest development in the university situation.

Regents of the university are said to have discussed the probability of Theodore Roosevelt succeeding Dr. Cyrus Northrop as president of the Minnesota institution and an emissary of the regents, it is rumored, will be sent to Washington to ascertain whether President Roosevelt would accept an offer. That President Roosevelt would come west at the completion of his African trip to assume charge of the western institution is not considered an improbability.

It is said that the name of President Roosevelt was brought up at the meeting of the regents on Tuesday last when the resignation of Dr. Cyrus Northrop was presented to the regents.

The minutes of the meeting do not show that the question of a successor to Dr. Northrop was discussed, but the story goes that the discussion was informal and kept secret among the regents.

Dr. Northrop's resignation was not accepted, and in case Mr. Roosevelt should come to the University of Minnesota Dr. Northrop would remain as president for two years more. The men back of the move to invite Roosevelt to accept the Minnesota presidency are said to point out that the task of directing the policies of the university of Minnesota during the next decade will be one for which President Roosevelt is peculiarly fitted and one to which he could apply himself with enthusiasm.

President Roosevelt has always loved the west and has taken a great interest in the development of the great universities of the west. He is a personal friend of Dr. Northrop and Dr. Northrop has been entertained by him in Washington. As president of the Minnesota institution, Mr. Roosevelt would have ample time to devote himself to literary and lecture work and at the same time take an active hand in the development of the west and the encouragement of educational work in the west.

Rumors have connected the name of President Roosevelt with the presidency of Harvard university, but his friends have stated that Mr. Roosevelt is too much the radical and not enough the trained educator to succeed President Eliot.

The regents at the University of Minnesota would confront a different situation. They favor the selection of an aggressive man who will complete Dr. Northrop's work in the building of the University.

S. M. Owen the onl ymember of the board of regents seen in regard to the Roosevelt possibility denied any knowledge of the movement. —Minneapolis Journal.

One thing is certain, that if such a thing could be brought about it would be one of the greatest advertisements possible for the state of Minnesota. The eyes of not only this country, but the civilized world, and a few of the heathens the president will meet on his African trip, will be centered on Minnesota. He would be worth $100,000 per year as the head of the University of Minnesota.

MURDERED MAN RESIDED IN POLK

GREAT INTEREST TAKEN HERE IN DULUTH MURDER TRIAL

Many of our citizens are interested in the trial of William Schreiber at Duluth for the murder of Frank Massapust last spring. Frank Massapust was a member of the local order of Odd Fellows and last spring word was received here by the lodge officials that he had burned to death in his shack on a claim in St. Louis county. At that time it was supposed Frank had come to his death accidentally but it turned out that he had been shot by Schreiber who then set fire to the shack and cremated the body in order to cover up his crime. Schreiber the man accused of the crime, was a neighbor of Massapust and a strong web of evidence is being woven to prove his guilt. When Frank was here several years ago he stopped at the home of Otto Kankel all one winter and later worked with the N. P. bridge crew on this division for several years. He was well liked by all who knew him and his friends here hope that his slayer will be brought to justice.—Fertile Journal.

FARMER SUFFERS BIG FIRE LOSS

OSCAR OLSON OF MARSHALL CO., LOSES FINE BARN, HARNESS AND HAY

Oscar Olson living on section 28, town of Fork, Marshall County lost his large barn including about 40 tons of hay, all of his harness and a quantity of feed, by fire Thursday morning. The loss is a heavy one as the barn was valued at $1,200 not including the contents, and was insured for but $700. The cause of the fire we have not learned, but seems to be a mystery so far

The total loss is about $3,000.

MANY HORSES DYING IN CLAY COUNTY

Reports come from the southeastern part of Clay county, points southeast of Barnesville, that a, disease has broken out among horses and that many animals on the farm have died. It is stated that first a sore develops on the forelegs of so irritating a nature that the horse licks the sore spot continuously. The licking of the sore carries a small worm, known as bots into the stomach of the afflicted animal and death ensues in two or three weeks. There was an appearance of the disease last spring, but there came an abatement and now it has broken out again, much to the alarm of the farmers and others who own horses. The live stock sanitary board has been advised.

The First Mourning Paper.

The oldest known letter written on black edged note paper as a sign of mourning appears to be one dated Jan. 5, 1683. In Addison's comedy of "The Drummer," 1715, reference is made to the fashion in the words, "My lady's mourning paper that is blacked at the edges." A few years later Allan Ramsay, who died in 1758, speaks in one of his poems of "the sable bordered sheet" as a messenger of sorrow. Mann, writing from Italy to Horace Walpole in 1745, says that it was universally used in Florence at that time. The superior elegance of this Italian note paper, with its narrow margin of black, explains its ready acceptance in this country, where it superseded the quarto sheet with a black border sometimes a quarter of an inch wide. In this way it probably gave an impetus to the fashion. But it is a mistake to suppose, as some have done, that the fashion was introduced from Italy.—London Answers.

A Real Apology.

"When the late Joel Chandler Harris was an editor here among us," said an Atlantan, "I called on him one day and found him very willing to correct an error about me that crept into his columns.

"We talked about newspaper contradictions, public apologies and the like, and 'Uncle Remus' took down a scrapbook and read me an apology that was an apology indeed. It had happened, he said, in a Transvaal paper. I'll never forget it. I agreed with Mr. Harris that it was the finest specimen of the public apology and retraction extant. It said:

"I, the undersigned, A. C. du Plessis, retract hereby everything I have said against the innocent Mr. G. P. Bezuidenhout, calling myself an infamous liar and striking my mouth with the exclamation: 'You mendacious mouth! Why do you lie so?' I declare, further, that I know nothing against the character of Mr. G. P. Bezuidenhout. I call myself, besides, a genuine liar of the first class.

An Anglo-Indian, says an English newspaper, gave the following "character" to his native cook, who exhibited it with much complacency:

"This servant has been with me for six months. It seems much longer. He leaves me now on account of ill health—my ill health."

ENGINEER RALPH DRAFTS REPORT

George A. Ralph, engineer of the state drainage commission, has prepared the draft of the report to be made to the legislature, which draft has been approved by the members of the commission. The report shows wonderful accomplishments in the redemption of marsh lands; that 1907-8 have seen more drainage work accomplished than all the previous work of this character put together amounted to.

Mr. Ralph's report for the legislature is as follows: For the purpose of defraying the cost of constructing drainage ditches under the provisions of the state drainage laws, the state drainage commission was provided with a fund of $200,000, $100,000 of which was to become available Aug. 1, 1907, and $100,000 on Aug. 1, 1908. Under the provisions of this act, the governor was made chairman, and the state auditor, secretary, of the commission. The commission appointed George A. Ralph their chief engineer at a salary of $3,000 per annum, and instructed him to employ such assistants as might be required for the proper execution of the work. Surveys were subsequently made and plans and estimates prepared for state drainage ditches in Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Beltrami, Itasca, Koochiching, St. Louis and Aitkin counties, and surveys, plans and estimates made for co-operative ditches under section 22 of the state drainage laws, in Wilkin, Polk, Wadena, Steele, Nicollet, Wabasha, Todd, Stevens Redwood, Chisago, Norman, Aitkin, Traverse, Le Sueur, Jackson, Kandiyohi and Meeker counties.

Delayed by Litigation.

The unfinished work left over from 1905 and 1906 has all been completed with one exceptiono namely, judicial ditch No. 1, Meeker and Kandiyohi counoties, the construction of which was delayed by legal proceedings.

The report here includes an insert of a tabulated statement showing ditch work accomplished during the season of 1907-8.

This shows that state ditches constructed measure 188.9 miles, with 2,309,967.8 cubic yards excavated, at a total cost of $295,457.73, of which the state paid $152,732.49, and the respective counties paid $142,725.14. These new ditches are draining 177,400 acres of state land, and 163,900 acres of private lands.

In St. Louis county, the state ditch work in detail for the past season was as follows: Township 55, range 17, 13½ miles of ditches, 150,485.9 cubic yards excavated, costing $18,894.25, of which the state pays $11,076.40, the county $7,817.95, draining 12,000 acres of state lands and 8,000 acres of private lands.

In co-operative work (where the cost is overburdensome to country or private property owners under extenuating circumstances) during the past year there have been constructed 146 miles of ditches, 2,169,609 cubic yards excavated at a cost of $178,903.04, of which the state pays $32,500, and the respective counties $1,227. hTe miles of state ditch work of the past year is divided among counties as follows: Marshall, 14; Kittson, 16; Roseau, 26; Beltrami, 5; St. Louis, 39; Koochiching, 38.2; Itasca, 16.83; Aitkin, 38.5. Miles of co-operative ditches were built by counties as follows: Wilkin, 5; Polk, 6; Wadena, 26; Nicollet, 20; Steele, 52; Kandiyohi, 27; Stevens, 10; Redwood, 15; Chisago, 5.

History of Drainage.

Up to 1893, no public drainage work of any magnitude had been done in the state, and very little drainage work had been done by private parties. From the year 1893 to 1900, some ditches were constructed in different parts of the state, principally in the Red River Valley. Since the year 1900, drainage work has been carried on throughout the state on a much greater scale. Each succeeding year brought greater activity in this line, the years 1907 and 1908 being the banner years in drainage work in the history of the state. It is safe to say as much drainage work was done thruout the state in the years 1907 and 1908 as had been done altogether prior to that time.

The policy of the state drainage commission has been to drain only such lands as will become immediately available for agricultural purposes, and lands requiring little clearing or other expense to bring them under cultivation. The work of the commission has to a large extent been confined to localities in the proximity of railroads and trade centers, and of open meadow or marsh lands, avoiding as far s possible far as practicable the drainage of lands wher the life of valuable growing timber would be endangered.

In the construction of ditches, public highways were constructed along the side of each ditch from the earth excavated from the ditch wherever such construction was practicable. When the drainage work contracted for in the years 1907 and 1908 shall all have been completed, there will be 104 miles of graded roaod along the several ditches, constructed from earth excavated therefrom. These roadgrades have been built at small additional cost, the average cost not being more than one-half cent per cubic yard, $75 per mile of road.

The problems of drainage, highway construction, improvement of natural waterways and conservation of the state's natural resources are so intertwined that the solution of each must be worked out with due consideration of the other. The most important element in the problem of highway construction is drainage. No comprehensive plan of drainage can be worked out without taking into consideration the improvement of natural waterways, such as channel corrections, the construction of empounding reservoirs for the regulation and control of flood waters to the end that disastrous floods may be prevented, that our national waterways may be used for navigation to the utmost limit and that the numberless waterpowers thorughout the state may be used with greatest efficiency.

It is estimated that Minnesota had originally 10,000,000 acres of swamp lands, or lands too wet in their natural condition for agricultural purposes. This vast area, comprising as it does about one-fifth of the land area of the state, is fast being transformed from swamp lands to productive farms. Conservative estimates place the area reclaimed during 1907 and 1908 at 1,000,000 acres. Surveys are now being made for a drainage proposition in eastern Marshall county which contemplates the drainage of over 100,000 acres. Another project is under way in western Beltrami county involving the drainage of 75,000 acres.

Tile Extensively Used.

In southern Minnesota, tile, or under drainage, is being put in quite extensively. Plats for the maufacture of drain tile have been and are being constructed at various points throughout the state, emphasizing the fact that there is great demand for drain tile. During the season of 1908 as many as 50 ditch excavating machines were in operation in the state. These machines are mostly of the floating dredge or steam shovel pattern, the average capacity of each being about 40,000 cubic yards per month. The outlook for increased activity in drainage work throughouto the state was never more favorable.

With our increasing population, the area of unoccupied agricultural lands must constantly diminish and the demand for agricultural products must in the natural order of things contantly increase. No one factor plays a more important part in satisfying this demand than drainage. By continuing the drainage of the wet lands of the state thousands of acres of the most productive lads of the state can be added to the wealth producing area of the state each succeeding year and millions of dollars added to her wealth of agricultural products.

Under our present drainage laws, drainage work may be carried on so that the work need not become burdensome to the state or the individual. The moneys advanced by the state for doing the work are all covered back into the state treasury, together with 4 per cent interest per annum for the time the money is used when the lands so drained are sold.

Long Time Payments.

Ditches constructed under the direction of the county authorities may be constructed and the cos of the work distributed over long periods at low rates of interest.

It is recommended that the state legislature make liberal provisions for carrying on the state drainage work, that appropriations be made so that a fixed amount will be available for this purpose each year for a time of sufficient duration to drain all the swamp lands available for agricultural purposes.

It is highly important that extensive topographical surveys of the great river systems of our state should be made. Such surveys would serve a three-fold purpose. iFrst, the securing of data from which complete drainage records can be prepared of the entire watershed of the streams. Second, the securing of the data necessary to determine the proper location and cost of construction of empounding reservoirs required to regulate and control the flood waters of the streams. Third, the securing of data from which plans and estimates for the proper improvement of the channels of natural water courses can be made, such as bank revettment, straightening, deepening, removing obstructions, etc., to the end that navigation of our streams may be facilitated wherever possible, and the greatest efficiency of all water power plants obtained. The run-off waters of these great drainage basins would then become powerful agencies in the development of our great state and not dreadful messengers of ruin and waste, as they are now regarded in times of flood on the Red River of the North, the upper Mississippi, and on the Minnesota river.

INTEREST IN POULTRY SHOW— The First Annual Show of the Northern Minnesota Poultrymen's Association will be held in the McKinnon block in this city Dec. 17 to 21 with Hon. D. E. Hale as Judge. Entries are pouring in from all over the north half of the state. Mrs. F. C. Mitchell the secretary receiving some yesterday from Osakis, Minn., and the number of birds exhibited promises to exceed by far any poultry show ever held here in the past. Liberal cash premiums have been hung up and great interest is being manifested in the show. With eggs 40c per dozen here, the hen is looked up to with respect as well as awe and all birds offered for sale will be readily disposed of at fancy prices.

Points From The President's Message

I believe that it is worse than folly to attempt to prohibit all combinations, as is done by the Sherman anti-trust lay.

In the interest of the public representatives of the public should have complete power to see that the rail-roads do their duty by the public.

There are many sincere men who now believe in unrestricted individualism in business.

The reason that led to the formation of the national government was the absolute need that the union, not the states, should deal with interstate and foreign commerce.

Those who believe in efficient national control do not object to combinations.

The danger to American democracy lies in having the power insufficiently concentrated.

It is eminently right that the nation should fix the terms upon which the great fortunes are inherited.

When a workman is injured, what he needs is not an expensive and doubtful lawsuit, but the certainty of rlelief through immediate administrative action.

Beginning with the supreme court, the judges should have their salaries doubled.

"Class consciousness" is equally noxious, whether in an employers' association or in a workingmen's association.

Our judicial system is sound and effective at the core.

A law may be unwise and improper; but it should not for three reasons be declared unconstitutional by a strained interpretation.

For many of the shortcomings of justice our people as a whole are themselves to blame.

Every executive head who advises violent action, or who advocates ill-considered and sweeping measures of reform, is particularly blameworthy.

Our judges should be held in peculiar honor; and the duty of respectful and truthful comment and criticism should be especially binding when we speak of them.

If there is any one duty which more than another we owe to our children and our children's children it is to save the forests.

ELOPED WITH NIECE; ARRESTED AT FORKS

MARRIED MAN FROM NEBRASKA UNDER ARREST—MONSTER IN CROOKSTON AND TRIED TO SECURE WORK FROM MANAGER BRACELIN—ADMITS THAT HE ELOPED OVER FOUR MONTHS AGO WITH NIECE BY MARRIAGE—MOTHER OF GIRL FINDS HER AFTER SEARCH OF MANY WEEKS—MAN IN CASE WILL HAVE HEARING TODAY— MOTHER WILL TAKE HER DAUGHTER BACK TO HER HOME—GIRL BREAKS DOWN WHEN MOTHER GREETS HER

From Friday's Daily—

E. G. O'Fellas ,who three weeks ago was in Crookston with his alleged wife, and tried to secure work as a lineman with Manager Bracelin of the Northwestern Telephone Co., was arrested at Grand Forks last evening charged with having eloped from Hastings, Nebraska, four months ago with Goldie Alexander, a niece by marriage, his wife being a sister of Mrs. Alexander, mother of the girl who became infatuated with him.

Mrs. Alexander arrived at Grand Forks yesterday morning and Chief Overby did the rest. The girl broke down when confronted by her mother in the jail. They first fled to Minneapolis, then to Fargo then to Crookston and then to Grand Forks.

G'Fellas admits his guilt and will have a hearing this afternoon. He is 26 years old and the girl 18. She will return with her mother as soon as G'Fellas gets a start for the N. D. penitentiary.

GRUBER JOINS THE SOCIETY

GENERAL MANAGER OF GREAT NORTHERN TO QUIT SWEARING

J. M. Gruber, general manager of the Great Northern railway is the latest member of the Non-swearing Knights of America, an organization which is having a wonderful growth in North Dakota. Conductor C. R. Wynn, secretary-treasurer, received a letter at Sherwood containing the application blank and the usual fee of five cents required by the order. He has forwarded a certificate of membership to Mr. Gruber. In his letter Mr. Gruber extended best wishes for the success of the organization. Now that he has set the stamp of his approval on the organization it is expected that it will have even a more rapid growth than in the past.

MANY WERE KILLED ON RAILS

151 DEATHS CAUSED BY MINNESOTA ROADS IN YEAR JUST ENDED

The roads in Minnesota last year caused the death of 151 people and injured 1,720 according to the sworn statements of the roads filed with the railway and warehouse commission. These figures include the report of thirty-four roads for the year ending last July. Six small roads, like the Duluth Belt line and similar short stretches are the only ones which have no injury record.

Only three passengers were killed and 156 were injured last year. As opposed to this is the record of eighty two killed and 171 injured "trespassers and others." The number of employes to suffer death from their work was sixty-six with 1,379 injured. There were no railway mail clerks killed and only fourteen were injured during the year.

THE SWORDFISH.

Overlord of the Sea and the Daintiest Feeder That Swims.

The swordfish is the overlord of the sea. Neither the whale, the shark nor any other giant of the deep can conquer him in private fight or public brawl. Nevertheless he is peaceful in the main and seeks the simple life, amusing himself often with worldwide travel and always with delicate gustatory joys. He is the daintiest feeder that swims, always kills his own game and thereby insures its freshness, wherefore his flesh is a delight to the palate of mankind and wherefore, again, men go forth to kill him for market and thereby at times fall upon adventures that make the hunting of tigers and the shooting of grizzlies pale into pastimes for the weary weakling.

For the bold swordfish is still hunted in mode as primitive as that the Eskimo uses to kill the stupid whale, and often the sting of the harpoon changes this luxurious ocean gastronome into a raging water devil, quick to perceive his advantage, charging with the speed of a bullet and the accuracy of a swordsman up against the lone fisherman in the dory who tries to bring him to gaff. Then must the fisherman measure with exactness the lunge of the monster, avoid it by a marvel of nice sidestepping in a plunging dory, or he will be spitted like a lark.—William Inglis in Harper's Weekly.

GRAND LODGE OF GOOD TEMPLARS

INTERESTING DISTRICT MEETING WAS HELD AT FOSSTON— OFFICERS ELECTED

The District Lodge of the Third District Minnesota Scandinavian Grand Lodge I. O. G. T. met in semi-annual session last week at Woodman Hall, under the auspices of "Hildurleik" Lodge No. 50, at Fosston.

A class of eight candidates received the district or second degree of the order, and various business matters were disposed of during the day.

District Templar reported having visited the various lodges during the year, and that one lodge has been added to the number, being "Hildurleik" of Fosston.

Indications are pointing to a prosperous growth of the order within the district for the coming year. Much pride is taken in the fact that some of the members of the lodges within the district have gone to other states especially to Washington and that they have there organized lodges, each in their territory; so altho we have lost them as members in our district, they have not been lost to the order but rather, the order has been greatly strengthened by our lodges' individual loss.

The treasurer reported a balance of $120.34 in the treasury.

The executive board was empowered to hire emissaries to work within the district with the end in view of organizing new lodges and building up some of the old ones.

Election of officers resulted in the following:

District Templar—G. T. Hagen, Crookston.

District Advisor—Erick Erickson, Sundahl.

District V. T.—Martin Kokkin, Fertile.

District Secretary—Ludv. E. Nogel Fosston.

District Asst. Sec.—Halstein Wold, Fosston.

District Treas.—H. L. Waage, Crookston.

District Chaplain — Betsy Strand, Fosston.

District Marshal—Robert Mattson, Sundahl.

District Dep. Marshal—H. C. Sampson, Fosston.

District Guard——G. A. Kyllander, Sundahl.

District Sentinel—Victor Hoglund, Sundahl.

As delegate to the Grand Lodge meeting to be held at Sandstone in June, 1909, to represent this district, H. L. Waage was elected.

After the installation of officers, meeting adjourned.

At 8 o'clock in the evening the local lodge entertained the District Lodge visitors at a social where a good program was rendered. Refreshments were served and everybody present had a good time. The main features of the program was a short speech by the C. T., Mr. Buck, a "prolog" written for the occasion by Ludv. E. Nogel and several songs by the "Norden" Male Choir.

HARRY KEELEY IN TROUBLE

FORMER CROOKSTON MAN IS FOUND GUILTY OF INVOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER

AS DISPATCHER GAVE FREIGHT RIGHT OF WAY OVER PASSENGER—5 WERE KILLED

From Thursday's Daily—

Harry J. Keeley for years a well known resident of Crookston and who just prior to leaving for the west was in charge of the local grain brokerage house whose offices were at that time located in the Palace Hotel block at Missoula, Montana, was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a jury yesterday. He was formerly a train dispatcher in the Missoula office of the Northern Pacific railroad.

The action resulted from a wreck near Olive, Montana on Sept. 5, when five men were killed. A coroner's jury had previously held Keeley and G. A. Mitchell an operator, on charges of criminal negligence. E. M. Ringer, former chief dispatcher, was also held on a charge of employing incompetent men. Both Ringer and Mitchell is the only one to be convicted.

The jury recommended that he be sent to the state's prison for eight months, and it is understood he will appeal. The most damaging evidence against Keeley showed that he had given a freight train right-of-way over a passenger.

Mitchell was rearrested today at Helena and will face another trial, this time on information charging him with the killing Engineer Thomas Monson one of the five men killed at Olive.

Keeley was a very competent operator, and his friends here believe there must be two sides to the story. The father of Keeley is an engineer running on the Great Northern out of Crookston at the present time.

The unfortunate predicament of Harry, who is married and had one child when he left Crookston, is sincerely regretted by his many friends in this city.

WAYS OF LUMBERJACK GREATLY CHANGED

TENDENCIES TOWARD CUSTOMS OF POLITE SOCIETY—LITERATURE IS WELCOMED

The ways of the lumberjack are changing. Visitors to the lumber camps of recent years have brought back remarkable tales of the passing of the old type of timber wrestler. The new crop is coming in with changed characteristics, they say. The old lumberjacks comment freely on it. Tendencies toward the customs of polite society and an air of unwonted effete cultivation are declared to mark the new regime.

From the lumber camps now comes an appeal for literature. Charitably inclined people are being asked to supply the camps with reading matter with which the woodsmen may improve the long evenings. In some cases small libraries are established in the camps and many of the men acquire more education than they would ever otherwise get thru the reading they do after work at night.

"Can you picture the finish?" asked a resident who used to assist in the destruction of the forests in the old days, in discussing the changing characteristics of the woodsmen. "Can you see 'em sittin' around of an evening, some doin' tattin' while the others reads to 'em from the Ladies' Own Weekly? 'Tis a good thing some of the billies I knew in the old days ain't up there. A fine chance there'd be for learnin' to make handsome chairs out o' flour barrels an' sofy pillers from hair ribbons with a few o' those boys addin' to the gayety o' the evening."

A Personal Appeal

If we could talk to you personally about the great merit of Foley's Honey and Tar, for coughs, colds and lung trouble, you never could be induced to experiment with unknown preparations that may contain some harmful drugs. Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and has a record of forty years of cures. Sold by all Druggists.

Poverty Has Its Advantages.

A man on the wane of life observes that poverty has advantages and adversity its uses. If you are poor you can wear out your old clothes. You are excused from calls. You are not troubled with many visitors. Bores do not disturb you. Spongers do not haunt your tables. Brass bands do not serenade you. No one thinks of presenting you with a testimonial. No storekeeper irritates you by asking you, "Is there anything I can do for you?" Begging letter writers do not bother you. Flatterers do not flatter you. You are saved many debts and many a deception. And, lastly, if you have a true friend in the world you are sure to know it in a short space of time, by him not deserting you.—Huntsville

CLIFFORD CARTER ENDS LIFE WITH REVOLVER

PEOPLE OF CROOKSTON TERRIBLY SHOCKED THIS MORNING BY SUICIDE OF WELL KNOWN YOUNG MAN WHO HAD BEEN AT HEAD OF SHOE DEPARTMENT AT THE NEW STORE FOR THE PAST FIVE YEARS—ILL HEALTH AND WORRY ASCRIBED AS CAUSE OF THE DEED

From Thursday's Daily—

The people of Crookston were horrified this morning over the report that Clifford Carter, for the past 5 years manager of the shoe department in the New Store had committed suicide in his room in the Palace Hotel, the fatal shot having been fired sometime between 6:45 and 7:15 this morning and death ensued about 11:30, the unfortunate young man never regaining consciousness.

Health Had Been Poor

Mr. Carter had been in poor health for some weeks past, and had been unable to work for several days. Yesterday he laid off but last evening after supper he took a short walk with Robert Cram and said he felt much better and left a call to go to work this morning.

Harold Misner, the night clerk at the Palace, called him at 6:45 this morning and Carter stated that he would get right up. Misner thought nothing more about it till a chamber maid came rushing down stairs stating that Carter was lying on the floor in a pool of blood. His door was partially open and the girl had been attracted by the heavy breathing.

Victim Unconscious

Misner called the day clerk, Will Rice, and together they went to the room and found Carter lying flat on his back with his arms stretched out and under the edge of the rug was found a 38 revolver with one chamber empty, and a hole in the left side of Carter's head told the awful tale. They at once summoned Dr. Dunlop who was on the scene in a few minutes but after a cursory examination he stated that death was a question of but an hour or so.

Parents Notified

The remains were at once taken in charge by Coroner Chesterman who immediately telegraphed to the parents of the deceased who reside at Knoxville, Tennessee, and while no reply has yet been received there is no doubt but what the remains will be shipped there for interment.

Has Been Despondent

For the past month Mr. Carter has been feeling unwell, and prior to that time had been far from robust. Usually he was of a very bright and sunny disposition and possessed all those qualities which go to make a young man extremely popular not only as a salesman, but socially and his companionship was much sought after, but for some little time past he had been morose and down-hearted at intervals. Last evening he was with two of the other New Store clerks till nearly 11 o'clock, and they separated than he had been for some time.

Came North for Health

He had left Knoxville several years ago for his health, and travelled north for a wholesale shoe firm for a time, and then managed the shoe department for a Dakota firm for some time till Wright Ruggles & Co. bought out Fontaine and Anglim when Mr. Ruggles secured him for the store here and he has been with the same concern ever since and was a trusted employe, held in the highest esteem by all his fellow employes.

Enjoyed Sports

Deceased was a great lover of all manner of outdoor sports and every year played baseball with one of the amateur teams in Crookston. His disposition was so genial and the spirit of fairness governed his every action to such an extent that he was extremely popular with all the young people of the city with whom he associated.

Significant Statement

Tuesday evening, while sitting in the Palace hotel conversing with Stanley Bond and Jesse Peterson the subject of another recent suicide in this city was brought up and Mr. Carter during the conversation said: "I think he did just right. He wanted to end his misery and did so. I would do the same thing."

Father a Shoe Man

Mr. Carter who was 30 years of age had been associated with the shoe business all his life his father, T. W. Carter of Knoxville, Tenn., having been in the same line of business, and there was not a better shoe salesman in the Northwest than Clifford.

His many friends in Crookston and thruout this territory are deeply grieved over the sad affair, and this is specially true of those who had worked at his side in the New Store.

He left no farewell message of any kind

A man doesn't realize how small the world is until he tries to dodge his creditors.

Perhaps Lot's wife looked around to see how other woman's dress hung in the back.

COMMENTS ON DIVORCE

DIVORCE IS CONDEMNED

REV. FATHER CLEARY THINKS FUTURE OF THE NATION IS MENACED

.."Marriage, a Most Sacred Social Problem" was the subject of a discourse recently at St. Charles' church in Minneapolis by Father J. M. Cleary. "The divorce evil is our national welfare," said Father Cleary in opening his address. "America today," he continued, "is foremost among the nations of the world in the number of its divorces, statistics showing that there is one divorce to every twelve marriages. It is eating into the vitals of our society, breaking up our homes, and despite our unprecedented prosperity is likely to be the death knell of our country unless its vicious progress is stopped. The life of a nation does not depend upon the greatness of its commerce nor the beauty of its streets. It depends upon its people, and society cannot long be sustained if the sacredness of the home be not guarded. Divorce is the greatest enemy of the home which can now be broken up for the most trival excuse that vicious men and women can think of."

Father Cleary also said that in many cases persons give for seeking divorce are altogether imaginary, as they often find that a second marriage does not improve things for them. And Father Cleary is right regarding at least the vast majority of divorces.

SOCIAL OSTRACISM FOR DIVORCEES

BISHOP WEBB DECLARES THIS MEANS WOULD DISCOURAGE SEPARATIONS

"Social ostracism for all divorced persons, that I believe is the only remedy for the growing evil of divorce" said Bishop W. W. Webb, of the diocese of Milwaukee, yesterday, and discussing this evil.

Bishop Webb has been for many years one of the most active and energetic opponents of the divorce evil He early took an advanced stand against divorce, holding that marriage ought not to be entered into lightly, but that once two people were married they were united for life, that nothing should sever the marriage relation but death.

The bishop is not a preacher alone but he puts in practice what he preaches. "Personally," said Bishop Webb, "I never enter the home of a divorced person in a social way, neither do I invite anyone that I know to be divorced to my home. I have lost many dear friends thru the inforcement of this rule. Of course I have sometimes stopped at the home of people who have been divorced, but at the time I did not know they had been divorced.

"Years ago, in an address delivered in Boston, before I was elected bishop, I took the ground that the only way to meet the divorce evil was to socially octracise all such persons."

Weed Pest Remedies

Editor Widsten of the Hendrum Review, takes up a timely subject in his last issue, when he discusses the weed pest. The Review says:

Some provision ought to be made for the destruction of weeds. Wild oats and mustard have been about the worst weeds people here have had to contend with, but in late years the Canada thistle, quack grass and other of the more dangerous weeds have been obtaining a foothold, tho none of them are yet general. Here is the plan we should offer: That the state declare all weeds giving the names of the plants to be so classified—as a public nuisance and provide for their extermination by requiring that each owner of real estate destroy those on his own domain, and making the township authorities responsible for keeping the public highways clean of them. We would have it further provided that if the owners refused or neglected to do this the county or township should have it done and charge it up against the property to be paid in the same way as taxes. And to enforce this each county ought to employ a man for three or four months of each year, and to give him considerable authority so that he could take action where necessary without too much loss of time. This man should be independent of local politics, and should be able to give information as to the best methods of killing the weeds, both in direct answer to inquiries and by writing in the local papers—which are always willing and anxious to help in a cause like that. He should try to accomplish the work by advice, but where it was disregarded should be prompt to prosecute. Any county could spend $600 a year for a man like that. Perhaps some of the advanced students in the state agricultural schools would probably make the best inspectors, but if some of the old, retired farmers, or even some of the, active ones who have boys enough at home to attend to the farm work, can be induced to take up the work they would inspire more confidence. To begin with both kinds might be used and a couple of years would demonstrate which was most effective. And the owners of vacant farms—those which have been under cultivation and gone back—should be compelled to seed it to grass. There isn't so much need for a weed law and an officer to enforce on account of the cultivated farm as there is on account of the vacant farms and the public highways They are the main weed nurseries.

The Penalty Of Being Born

The day will come to all nations when instead of paying pensions to soldiers and supporting huge armaments for the destruction of men and property the millions so used will be paid in pensions to mothers and to the aged, as insurance to laborers and in the employment of the unemployed This is one tenet of socialism which is daily appealing more strongly to the common sense and justice of all Americans.

Under the ideal conditions which the founders of this government held in their visions of the future, all this would be unnecessary. They believed that political equality and equality of opportunity would solve the problem as they will in time when they come. But industrial and economic changes have made the fulfillment of this ideal vastly more difficult and have removed them into the far more distant future.

As Olga Nethersole, the actress, said in a recent address in Chicago, upon this general subject, "We must deal with realities," with conditions as we find them. So long as they are as they are there must be armies and navies and there will be war, but it should be America's object as it is, to make these unnecessary.

It should be America's object to make it unnecessary for women, perforce, to be a material factor in our industrial life. When asked from the audience if she and Sarah Bernhardt did not do more for the world by working than they could by marrying, Miss Nethersole answered:

"A thousand times no. We are not doing much. The mother is the one that does most. Governments should make it easier for women to live proper lives, for, while I believe that the holiest thing in the world is motherhood, I believe that the person who takes life is more merciful than he or she who gives it under conditions in which the child does not have a fair chance."

The supreme responsibility of every government is to give that "fair chance," and if natural conditions are against this, then to so equalize them by artificial means, that every child shall have his opportunity, suffering only as he fails to take advantage of it, but penalizing neither him nor his mother for his entrance into the world.

Her Ideal Of A Man

"A Woman's Ideal of a Man" has been interpreted by a divine as follows:

"An ancient philosopher said that human creatures are plentiful but men are scarce, and Carlyle said, in describing the population of his country, that England consisted of so many millions, mostly fools.

The world needs men today, as never before, who can in some degree at least, come up to the ideal given us by the Man of Galilee, and in the degree he measures up to that ideal will he be a true woman's ideal of what a man ought to be.

"The charge has been made that as a rule the men are not as good and true as the women. This may be a just criticism, but there is this to be said, that if men are not up to the standard, in many cases it is because they receive so little help and inspiration from the women. Always will it be true that the highest type of manhood is attained by contact with the highest type of womanhood. Let the woman herself come up to the standard so far as true living is concerned, and it will mean the illumination and suppression in society of most of the undesirable types of manhood, for it is by her scorn or admiration, indorsement or condemnation, that she is able to create public sentiment, giving favor only to manhood's best.

"The ideal woman demands first of all that a man shall build into his life courage, integrity, truthfulness, honesty, generosity and a large pure love He is not afraid of work, nor ashamed of his station in life, provided he is doing his best. He has learned to control himself and for that reason is the master of ordinary circumstances and environments.

"She also demands that the man shall be as pure in mind and habits as she is herself. She will not tolerate one standard for the man and another for the woman, and there is no reason why she should ot demand of the man who leads her to the altar, a heart and life just as white as her own."

The Minnesota Roadmakers' Association which will be in session at the old capitol, St. Paul, Dec. 15, 16 and 17, will discuss the making of roads under all kinds of soil and climatic conditions. Special attention will be given to the maintenance of roads and the construction of steel and concrete bridges and culverts. The membership of the association includes all men in the state who are directly engaged in the work of building and maintaining roads and bridges Some of the best authorities in the country on road building have been secured to take part in the program. The Red River Valley will be well represented.

Hotel men are beginning to feel the effects of the holiday season. The corridors plainly tell the story. All the old familiar faces of the regular traveling men are being missed. They have quit the road—that is, most of them have—until after Christmas. If they did remain on the road they would find little business anyway. This is not the wholesale season. These are the days when the retailer gets his. And while the retailer is making hay while the sun shines, the hotel man must suffer. He takes his medicine philosophically, however, because he knows there's a good time coming.

Somehow a girl seldom thinks it worth her while to trust a trustworthy young man.

A woman can get even with a man by marrying him or by refusing to do so.

STATE PRESS

Aitkin Republican: To the northern part of the state, the most important matter to come before the legislature at its next session is the reapportionment bill. 'Tis true, there is a disposition to give Northern Minnesota more representation, but nothing should be taken for granted, and every northern county should send a delegation of its most influential citizens to St. Paul while this bill is being considered, to let the legislature understand that the people are in earnest in demanding fair and equitable voice in the house and senate, and to give the northern Minnesota members moral support in demanding justice in the matter.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Governor Johnson has announced that he will reappoint Prof. McVey of the tax commission. The governor is to be commendel for his good judgment in retaining an able and faithful official and to refuse to turn this office over to the hungry politicians.

Madison Independent Press: Once again we are reminded that the speaker of the house should be elected just as the lieutenant governor is, by ballot at the general election.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: The Mineasota legislature is to be congratuluated upon the selection of A. J. Rockne as speaker of the house. Mr. Rockne has shown marked ability as a legislator and no stigma of corporation control is attached to his name Moreover he is one of the best parliamentarians in the state. It is now up to Mr. Rockne to prove his worth by giving the people a show in the make up of the house committees.

Park Rapids Enterprise: Minneapolis has lost the speakership and the state has gained thereby, Hon. A. J. Rockne has the reputation of being a good man in the legislature, he has had large experience and there is a future before him if he deals fairly and [illegible] it is not probable that his friends will be disappointed in him.

Walker Pilot: Wives obtain twice as many divorces as husbands. Many women find that it's a dog's life to feed a brute three times a day and then have him growl between meals.

Walker Pilot: Some folks hate to see their neighbor make a start in life, but they love to see his finish.

WHISKEY MUST BE GRADED

DAIRY AND FOOD COMMISSIONER WOULD HAVE LABELS ACCURATE

MORE EFFECTIVE PATENT MEDICINE AND CREAM LAWS ALSO REQUESTED

A better standard for whiskey with the label giving a truthful statement of its component parts, is demanded by the state dairy and food department. This will be one of its recommendations to the coming legislature, a list of which was today filed with Gov. Johnson.

The department says the whisky on the market today is not what it should be in that the consumer does not always get what he asks and pays for. Samples testel have been everything but good whiskey and because of a defect in the law department has be unable to do anything.

In detail Commissioner Slater says he will ask the legislature for an effective patent medicine law, a measure calling for the weighing of all cream samples, the changing of the oleo law so as to prevent the sale of substitutes resembling yellow butter a law placing the tare weight on all butter packages, the pasteurizing of whey at all cheese factories and the further strengthening of the civil service law.

In the oinspection of local creameries and central churning plants, Commissioner Slater says the law has been enforced without fear or favor tho in the education of those engaged in dairying, favors if anything have been extended to the local creameries as he thinks they are the best for the state.

Mysteries of Civilization.

"You have persuaded the Indian to give up his picturesque headdress and blankets and wear hats and trousers." said the sardonic person.

"Yes; in the interests of civilization."

"And I suppose it is also in the interest of civilization that we pay high prices for these castoff garments of the Indian and use them for wall decorations."—Washington Star.

An Englishman, newly returned from America, was asked if he had visited Philadelphia.

"Oh, ya-as," he replied. "Awfully odd place. Nearly all the people are named Scrapple, and they have a dish they call 'biddle' every morning for breakfast."—Saturday Evening Post.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

THERMOMETER DAMAGE SUIT

THERMOMETER INDICATED 16 BELOW, FARMER LAID OFF IN FINE WEATHER

DAMAGES MAY BE ASKED OF DEALER FOR LOSSES SUSTAINED

From Monday's Daily—

This is the tale of a little thermometer which may be the cause of a law suit between two well-known residents.

The thermometer was purchased by Charles Butler a homesteader in S. Dakota from a drug firm. It developed that it was out of order, and it registered below zero and the following day 16 below. Butler guaged his farm work by the thermometer and noting by it how cold it apparently was, he concluded not to continue his outside work until the weather became warmer. Therefore he and his hired man remained in idleness two days and hugging the stove in the belief that one of the worst "spells" of cold weather of the winter was being experienced.

He now has learned that the temperature at no time had been below zero and therefore believes he is entitled to damages for the time lost by reason of the faulty thermometer.

THE "DOCTOR."

An Important Functionary on Merchant Vessels Is the Cook.

There is one functionary on merchant vessels of all kinds who has very much more to do with the "peace and dignity" of the floating commonwealth than shore folks usually imagine. I refer to the cook, who is sometimes called the "doctor." Why he is given this cognomen is not altogether plain, for his handiwork seldom has any therapeutic value and in the past, at least, has had much to do with sending poor sailormen to a doctor, if not to Davy Jones' locker. In fact, there was a time in nautical history when the presiding genius of the galley was in such bad repute that to call a man a "son of a sea cook" was a most opprobrious epithet and one that would be emphatically resented. In those days (and to some extent today) the cook was covertly despised by the occupants both of the forecastle and the cabin, though the men "forrard" outwardly professed affection for him and apparently were never so happy as when they could wash his clothes or do him various other favors, with the hope of getting sundry "leavin's" from the cabin table or being granted such privileges as "hanging out" in the galley when rough weather at night made the watch on deck grateful for such shelter. In other ways it was found highly salutary to keep in good graces of his culinary majesty, who frequently was a more powerful person in some respects than the "old man" himself. It is almost needless to add that the more skilled as a cook the cook was the more profound was his influence both fore and aft. But he wasn't often much in the way of skill, all the same.—Shipping Illustrated.

England's Prettiest Villages.

After a very careful survey we venture to write down the names of the six English villages that we consider the prettiest in the land so far as our own opinion and wide experience are concerned. The choice is made impartially and with full knowledge and due recognition of the claims of each to its high place. Here are the six: Bonchurch, Isle of Wight; Clovelly, Devonshire; Witchampton, Dorset; Sonning, Oxfordshire; Shere, Surrey, and Clapham, Yorkshire.—London Strand Magazine.

BOUGHT OFF THE BURGLAR.

An Old Banker's Bargain With His Unwelcome Visitor.

"William Winslow Sherman, the old banker, had the coolest nerve of any man I know," said a man who knew him. "Some years ago, when Sherman was an old man and partially crippled by reason of a fall from a horse, he entered his bedroom late at night to find a masked burglar ransacking it.

"The thief had a big gun trained on Sherman in a minute. The banker just waved it aside with a tired hand. 'Put that away,' he said irritably. 'Let us discuss this matter like gentlemen.' The burglar was so surprised he laughed. 'Now, you could hurt me if you wanted to and might get away with some little knickknacks,' said Sherman. 'But you might be caught, and there's a slight probability that you could dispose of my toilet articles profitably. What would you consider a fair cash proposition to go away?' They talked it over in all peace.

"The burglar thought he ought to have $10, but Sherman, after inquiring into the man's habits, said $8 was enough. 'You see,' he said, 'you're a known thief. If this were your first offense, I'd pay your price, but now the police have your picture you ought to be glad to accept any fair compromise and run no risk.'

"The burglar finally agreed to take $8. Sherman pulled out a ten dollar bill. 'Give me $2 change,' said he. And he got it before he paid."—Kansas City Star.

A Life Note.

"Life is what we make it," said the philosopher.

"Alas," exclaimed the practical one, "that we can't make it a million!"

We ask Providence to make us thankful for what we receive and then go to figuring on just how much Providence is going to send us.—Atlanta Constitution.

One Was Enough.

"Papa, why didn't you wear a pair last night?"

"A pair of what, child?"

"A pair of skates."

"What does the boy mean?"

"Why, Bill, the coachman, told the cook that you had a lovely skate on last night when you came home."—Exchange.

QUEER TELEGRAPH POLES.

Made of Adobe In Bolivia—Growing Trees Used In Africa.

The most original telegraph line in the world once extended from the capital of Bolivia, La Paz, to the town of Oruro. In this part of Bolivia there are no growing trees, and wood is so difficult to find that even the ordinary household furniture of the natives is invariably made not of wood, but of dried mud or adobe.

So when the war broke out between Chile and Bolivia and a telegraph line became urgent it was adobe that was chosen for the queerest telegraph poles in existence. These pillars were built on stone foundations and measured about five feet square at the base, with a height of about fifteen feet.

They were placed at intervals of about 361 feet and thus held the wire at a height sufficient to clear the only animals of the country, the llama and the donkey. The total length of the line was 156 miles.

Among other curious telegraph lines is the growing pole line erected in Uganda by an English engineer, who could not find any dead wood which would withstand the white ants and hit upon the idea of transporting growing bark cloth trees to the side of the roads and using them as poles.

In the Dutch East Indies growing trees are turned to account also, but there a wire is stretched across the road between the trees on either side, and the insulator is suspended in its middle, and the line is thus over the road and clear from vegetation.—Chicago Tribune.

Miss Mayme (on vacation)—Oh, auntie, it's a luxury to have nothing to do but just loll in a hammock with my precious Shelley or even the "Vicar of Wakefield-" Elderly Relative—Child, if I hear of any more such scandalous doings I shall write to your mother!—Chicago Tribune.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY

LEGAL BIZ AT BAGLEY—Attorney Martin O'Brien left this morning for Bagley to attend to some legal business for a client in the Clearwater county courts.

FINISHING TOUCHES — Frank Page the contractor returned from Euclid this morning with part of his crew to put the finishing touches on the fine new $3,000 residence he is building for Colman Keeley at that point.

SECURES PATENT—T. A. K. Oren of Borup has secured a patent from Washington for a display reel, that he has invented. The invention is something new in that line and Mr. Oren expects to realize considerable on it.

BE CAREFUL—The Journal would advise its readers to be very careful about their drinking water and the sanitary condition of their surroundings as quite a few cases of typhoid have developed in the city the past week.

SOUTH FOR WINTER— Ike Lederer of St. Paul the well known and popular Elk, will leave this evening for the south where he will spend the winter. He will be in Cuba part of the time and in Mexico part of the time. Mr. Lederer is well known in this city, and has many friends who wish him a pleasant trip.

OLD SETTLER HERE — Judge and Mrs. McLaughlin of Grand Forks spent yesterday in the city. They attended the funeral of Mr. Cromb an old friend, While here they were the guests of their son Mike McLaughlin. They returned to the Forks last evening.

HILLIGOSS WAS HERE—One of the best known pioneers of Minnesota W. J. Hilligoss passed thru the city this morning and while here greeted a host of friends. Mr. Hilligoss in the pioneer days was resident of Fosston but now resides at St. Cloud. He has a very responsible position with the G. N. land department. He has been on the Pacific coast almost all of the past year and is glad to get back to Minnesota.

WOLF BOUNTIES—The wolf season is now on and there are quite a few farmers who are deriving some revenue from the scalps brought in. The bounty on wolves in this county is $7.50 and each one is a material help just before Christmas. Louis Wentzel of Fisher, Fritjhof of Ugen, of Knute, Ludvig Ludviggulsvig, Belgium, David Flemming, Huntsville, Gustav Rud, Fosston, are parties that visited the auditor after bounties today.

When court convened this morning it was to take up the famous robbery case wherein $1,500 of the Merchants bank's money disappeared and the janitor, Pettaway acused. The readers of the Journal are familiar with the details. A battle royal will be witnessed in the courts during this trial. Pettaway has secured good legal counsel. Frederick L. McGhee the brilliant colored attorney of Minneapolis arriving this morning and will in conjunction of local attorneys defend the prisoner. At the time of going to press only nine jurors had been secured from the regular list and the sheriff was instructed to summon a special venire. Sensational evidence on both sides will be sprung, and this will without doubt be the most interesting and important case of the session.

Six railroad men were without jobs this morning at Minot this morning as the result of high life on a freight train on the Dakota division Friday. A freight car came into Minot Friday minus two cases of quart bottles of champagne which the crew claim had been taken by a hobo enroute. The detectives got busy however, and found upon investigation however that the entire crew was implicated and that each man had received his portion of the "extra dry". The matter was reported to the officials who while they will not prosecute fired all six men who made up the crew.

Box car robberies are not as frequent during the last few months as they have been in the past as every effort is being made by the officials to apprehend the offenders and make the offense a serious one.

From Tuesday's Daily

HAS TYPHOID—Earl Hobet son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hobet has been taken down with an attack of typhoid fever. He is doing very well and no serious results are anticipated.

TRAVELING MEN—Among the belated traveling men in the city from abroad who are making their last annual trip are, Henry Wessel, drygoods and Paul V. Rowens both of St. Paul.

GONE TO DULUTH—Rev. Father E. Fayolle of Red Lake Falls was a visitor in the city last night, and proceeded to Duluth to confer with the Bishop of this diocese on some important matters affecting the church.

RECOVERS WATCH—Gene Secord of Grand Forks has recovered a valuable watch stolen from him several weeks ago. The watch was in a pawn shop in that city where some one had hocked it for $2.

SETTING STAKES AT WARREN—Engineer O. L. Hamery went up to Warren this morning where he has a few lines to run, and some surveying that will require his attention for a few days.

RIGHT AT HOME— H. C. Misner went up to Euclid this morning to spend the day with Dr. Chapin who is still on the sick list. Mr. Misner will also visit among the old friends, who cast their lot with the valley pioneers of the seventies.

TOWN MONEYS — The following towns have drawn their monies due them from the November settlement. These funds will be kept in town treasuries to pay current expenses: Huntsville $20.28; Gully $26.62; Hubbard $318.71; Liberty $287.04; Winger $383.12.

DEATHS AT BEMIDJI—John Miller a Cass Lake "lumberjack" died in St. Anthony's hospital in Bemidji Sunday night of pneumonia. Up to a late hour last night nothing had been heard from either relatives or friends Mrs. C. H. Williams of that city died yesterday morning at her home on Irvin avenue after being afflicted with heart trouble for several months.

READY FOR SANTA—The Hon. S. Claus who is due in Crookston one week from Friday will find plenty of evergreen trees on which to hang his presents for good little Minot boys and girls for already several of the dealers are showing Xmas trees. There will be plenty of them on hand as more are coming in every day and even the poorest family can afford to buy one this year. In price they are going to range from forty cents to $2.50 and you can get them all the way from two to 13 feet in heighth.

MAIL CLERKS GET BOOST—Mail Clerks Alwin, Loomis, Morefield and Brauner residing at Grand Forks who have been second men on trains Nos. 1 and 2, Great Northern, have been transferred to Nos. 5 and 6 which have been put in the same class as second on the Limited. O'Brien and Bagon of Nos. 3 and 4, and Fodness and Nelson of Nos. 5 and 6, have been transferred to Nos. 1 and 2. The run on Nos. 5 and 6 is preferable and so the older men in the service get it.

HARRY KEELEY—It was with a feeling of deep regret that the many Barnesville friends of Harry Keeley read in the daily papers the first of the week of his conviction on the charge of involuntary manslaughter at Missoula, Mont., last week. Mr. Keeley got his start in railroading in this city, gradually working himself up in the service. His parents reside here and have for many years, his father being a veteran engineer now running on the Northern Division out of here.—Barnesville Review

STOP THE EXCURSION AT ROSEAU—While Crookston is bewailing the lack of an auditorium, Roseau is complacent over the erection of the spacious opera house with a seating capacity of 1,000. Ole Vaa the owner of this building is having the interior finished the stage and fittings having already been placed and soon the citizens of Roseau will have as fine and commodious a public hall as can be found in large cities.—Roseau Co. Times.

The interest in the Pettaway case that now has the attention of the District Court is increasing. As crowds attending attest. The court room is being crowded to its capacity.

The drawing of the jurymen took nearly all of yesterday as each talisman was put thru a thoro examination by the attorneys, Messrs. O. J. Vaule, N. P. Stone and E. M. Lancaster acting as triers.

After about forty had been examined the following jurymen were chosen to sit in the trial: Christ Coulter, John Carter, Bert H. Cochrane, Lewis Cottet, Pascal Toupan, Thomas Harris, Henry Ronne, E. O. Rude, Hugh McDonald, E. P. Berg and P. J. Bollie.

The witnesses so far examined by the prosecution, are A. D. Stephens, cashier of the bank, Virgil McGregor Asst. Cashier; Ed Gildersleeve Teller. Their testimony was mainly relating to the conducting of the affairs of the bank and the relation held there. and the duties of the defendant Patteway Chief Eck testified to the arrest. Mrs. Denham a colored lady who at the instance of the defendant went, with the attorney for defense and found about $400 that had been hid by him in an old barn on the Billings premises on north Main street.

The main interest in the case is the spicy manner of the cross examination by the defendant's attorney, and the hypothetical questions that are shot at the financiering witnesses.

The case will probably require the balance of the week to complete as it will be a legal battle to the finish, and many witnesses have been summoned who are yet to testify.

The state of Minnesota thru the attorney general today brought suit in the district court against the Great Northern Railway company to recover some $113,115 back taxes alleged to be due on the gross earnings of the road for 1906.

The railroad paid 3 per cent on its earnings instead of 4 per cent, required by law, claiming its territorial charter granted it exemption from the provisions of the law.

Don't Try Uncertain Recipes

It is entirely unnecessary to experiment with this, that and the other recipe. Why waste time, money and patience when you can get from your grocer, for 10 cents, a package of "OUR-PIE" Preparation — Lemon, Chocolate or Custard — for making pies that are so good that when you eat one piece you will want another? The way to please the men-folks is to give them good pie.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY

ATTORNEY ON SICK LIST—W. E. Rowe has been confined to his home the past week, on account of a fever that at one time threatened to develop into typhoid. He is however recovering and will be able to attend to business in a few days.

FINE SON BORN — Mr. and Mrs. Geo Heller are the parents of a very fine son which arrived Sunday morning. George has been peddling Havana cigars about town ever since, and also entertained a party at the Germania hall last Sunday afternoon.

ENGINE DISABLED —The engine on 33 from Duluth last evening was disabled on the Mesabe division and reached the northern division very late, arriving in Crookston about 3 hours late. The report that a side rod broke just east of Crookston and badly injured the fireman was an error.

PATIENTS DISCHARGED — Judge Middlecoff of the probate court at Duluth yesterday received word from the asylum at Fergus Falls notice that H. E. Peterson Francis Jensen, Jack Ward, Nick Buckovino and Robert A. Towe have been discharged from that institution. The patients were all committed from St. Louis county.

MISSIONARY BUSY—Rev. Samuel Hedegard, the Missionary of the American Sunday School Union will hold special services at Mentor tonight and Thursday night at 7:30, at Brooks on Friday and Saturday evenings at the same hour, and also on Sunday afternoon. Next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings he holds services at Erskine, and at Fosston the latter part of next week.

OLD RESIDENT HERE — James Hanson, of the firm of Hanson Bros. the well known and prosperous hardware merchants of Shelly is spending the day in the city on business. Mr. Hanson formerly resided with his parents four miles west of the city and has many friends here. He says business is good this fall and winter and with Taft at the helm he looks forward to a year of unprecedented prosperity as the farmers are all in good shape for a large crop acreage next spring.

WILL GO AFTER PAWN SHOPS —A watch belonging to Gene Secord of Grand Forks which was stolen from the Y. M. C. A. building of this city in September, was found today at a pawnshop there. The pawn shops were all notified the day after the watch was stolen and the time-piece was later pawned, the second hand jewelers neglecting to notify the chief of police of having secured the watch of which they had a complete description. Chief of Police Overby stated today that he would start an investigation to find out why he was not notified.

INTERESTING BOOKLET — Ole Schei, formerly of Thief River Falls sends the Journal a handsome booklet giving some idea of the growth and development of Thief River Falls Middle River and vicinity in the past few years. The booklet is handsomely illustrated and very interesting. Mr. Schei has conducted a department store at Thief River Falls known as the "Golden Rule Department store," for years and has been very prosperous. The business was begun as a general store under the firm name of O. J. Schei & Co., and it increased very rapidly being enlarged to a department store in 1904. At the present time the store occupies 10,000 feet of floor space and is one of the best equipped in northern Minnesota. The booklet was issued by Mr. Huseby, formerly of Grand Forks and now located in Crookston.

Knute Thompson of Grand Forks charged with embezzling $200 from the Home Tea company in that city, was arraigned before Judge Templeton in district court this afternoon and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was given a sentence of one year at hard labor confined to the state penitentiary at Bismarck.

Thompson is a resident of Grand Forks and is a married man, his wife and children also residing there. He was employed as driver for the Home Tea company and was given $10 every week with which to make change. It is asserted that he embezzled this money, charging the same up to customers.

Mrs. McRaney's Experience

Mrs. M. McRaney, Prentiss, Miss., writes: "I was confined to my bed for three months with kidney and bladder trouble, and was treated by two physicians but failed to get relief No human tongue can tell how I suffered, and I had given up hope of ever getting well until I began taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. After taking two bottles I felt like a new person, and feel it my duty to tell suffering women what Foley's Kidney Remedy did for me. Sold by all Druggists.

DRESSING XMAS DOLLS

Every woman delights to dress a doll, for it's hard for even "grown-ups" to withstand the dear doll's witchery.

This year some beautiful wardrobes are being prepared for the gift dolls and fashions are very smart, following closely those adopted by women of wealth.

Evening or opera coats for dolls are as stunningly made as the ones shown in shops for their owners' mammas. Most of these dainty outer garments are decidedly smart, being either of white silk with applique or Irish crochet embroidery, or of light colored broadcloth with hand-embroidered designs as ornaments. They are to be had in both full length or seven-eighths, whichever is more becoming to the little wearer.

Gowns worn under these elaborate wraps are either simple, light dimities prettily made with lace-trimmed yokes, and ruffled skirt, with ribbon girdles for a fitting finish, or they are of Princess models—low neck and arms, and incidentally give them a chance to display the turquoise or coral chains of four strands that are so popular in the toy world this season. Bracelets to match for the same stones are also favorites, tho not so much affected as the necklaces.

A complete rainy-day outfit, including cravenette coat, short cloth rainy day skirt and patent leather sailor or tri-cornered hat, with an umbrella is one of the features of the up-to-date doll's furnishing house.

There are house gowns of wash materials or of silk kimonas, bath robes that any woman would be glad to possess, in adults models, and tiny Turkish slippers for bedroom wear. Extra cloth skirts and shirt-waists, both of white and colored materials made tailor style or for dress occasion, are included in a well-stocked wardrobe for a doll.

Gloves for walking, of heavy pig or dogskin, and long kid ones for afternoon and evening wear, are essential as the dainty plaid and white embroidered handkerchiefs that all dolls must possess nowadays to be considered well gowned.

Foley's Orino Laxative cures chronic constipation and stimulates the liver. Orino regulates the bowels so they will act naturally and you do not have to take purgatives continuously. Sold by all Druggists.

STEENERSON PUTS IN HIS HIS BANK BILL

Would Limit Postal Savings Deposits To $500 Instead Of $1,000.

Representative Steenerson today at Washington introduced a postal savings bank bill which he framed with a view to meeting the objections to the Carter bill now pending in the senate and which he believes will be supported by many members who represent rural districts.

The main points of difference between the Carter and Steenerson bills are that in the latter state banks are included as custodians of postal savings funds. Such state banks as are designated for this purpose will be required, however, to deposit securities as collateral for deposits, such securities to be approved by the secretary of the treasury and attorney general. They include municipal and district bonds on which there has been no default for five years.

The Steenerson bill also provides that postal savings funds may be invested in municipal securities, at the discretion of the department. Mr. Steenerson also has provided that funds shall be deposited in the name of the depositor, and has stricken out the trustee provision of the Carter bill as that might lead to fraud on creditors of depositors.

Depositors are limited in the Steenerson bill to men married women and minors 10 years old and over ,and the limit of deposit is placed at $500 instead of $1,000 as in the Carter bill.

The Steenerson bill was submitted to Postmaster General Meyer who approved and promised his support for it.

WILL OPEN WAR ON TREE CUTTERS

SUPPLIERS OF CHRISTMAS MARKETS DENUDING NORTHERN MINNESOTA

Gen. C. C. Andrews, executive officer of the state forestry board and Santa Claus are at outs.

General Andrews has declared his intention today of opening war on the men who cut down the festive Christmas trees growing in northern Minnesota. General Andrews states that annually 600,000 small trees—mostly spruce—are cut in northern Minnesota not only for decoration by Santa Claus in Minnesota homes, but for general use in northwest states, and eve to supply the Chicago market. General Andrews states that those who cut these trees do not do so in the heavily wooded districts where such cutting thins the forests to advantage but they do the cutting in spots where young trees are growing on either burnt or cut-over lands; that this cutting is a despoiler of nature's efforts towards referestration of these waste lands. The state forestry board meets tomorrow afternoon and it is probable some action will be taken by the board on General Andrew's suggestion to see what can be done towards preventing the agents of Santa Claus from doing further damage in future years.

NEW LAW FIRM AT FERGUS—County Attorney C. L. Hilton has formed a law partnership with County Attorney Elect Anton B. Thompson and the firm will hereafter be known as Hilton & Thompson. The two men will make a very strong firm Mr. Hilton has been practicing law here for the past twenty years, has been city attornew for two years and county attorney for the past ten years and is now leaving for St. Paul to become assistant attorney general of the state. He will return to Fergus Falls occasionally as his duties will permit and assist in the trial of cases and the handling of the general business of the firm. Mr. Thompson has been practicing law at Henning for the past twelve years, and is justly regarded as one of the county's ablest attorneys.—Fergus Falls Journal.

BARNESVILLE POLICE ACTIVE

MAYOR HAS HIS EYE ON POOL AND BILLIARD HALLS IN THAT CITY

Saturday night Mayor Cowell and Officer Flemming of Barnesville visited the pool and billiard halls of the city, on the lookout for minors and school boys. They only found three in their rounds, those three being in the Crawford place and were ejected. The proprietors of the places promised the officers to implicitly obey the law.

A close watch on the boys are kept in all of the places but some of them will slip in. C. A. Baker has a lunch counter and allows the boys to come in and patronize that but does not allow them to hang about or to play and Mayor Cowell believes that the law is being reasonably well enforced.

COURT ADJOURNED TILL JAN. 4TH

TWO CRIMINAL CASES LEFT BUT WITNESSES WERE NOT AVAILABLE

Judge Watts this afternoon after the jury in the Patteway case had retired anounced an adjournment of the December term of court till Jan. 4th. There still remain two criminal cases to be tried, but neither was ready for trial. This permits all jurors and witnesses to be at home for the holidays, after which the civil calendar will be taken up.

County Attorney Maybury made a good record in cleaning up the criminal business in record time.

KELLY GETS ONE YEAR

COLORED ROBBERS BOTH FOUND GUILTY AND WILL BE SENTENCED LATER

This morning James Kelly charged with robbing a man at East Grand Forks of $22 plead guilty and was sentenced to 1 year at Stillwater by Judge Watts. He will be taken down next week.

Yesterday afternoon the jury in the case against Martin Hill and Chas. Depohnette for robbing Martin Olson of $15, north of the G. N. Depot, found them both guilty.

There is nothing on trial today, but the case against Steve Cherer for robbing a man of $50 at East Grand Forks will be taken up at an evening session tonight or tomorrow.

CROOKSTON TO LOSE VALUED RESIDENT

J. A. McDONALD TO LOCATE IN MINNEAPOLIS WITH SHEVLIN CARPENTER CONCERN

The news of the intended departure from the city of J. A. McDonald, who for the past 9 years has been manager of the St. Hilaire Retail Lumber Co's. general offices in this city will be received with genuine regret He announced today that he intended to remove to Minneapolis with his family shortly after the first of the year It is understood on good authority that Mr. McDonald has been given a substantial recognition of faithful services and ability by being given a promotion in the form of a responsible position with the Shevlin-Carpenter Retail Lumber Co., of Minneapolis and St. Paul with a block of stock also

The general offices of the St. Hilaire Retail Lumber Co., of this city, the Fertile Lumber Co., and the Fargo Lumber Co., owned by the same interests will be moved to Minneapolis and Mr. McDonald will remain the general manager as in the past.

The loss of Mr. and Mrs. McDonald and family will be generally deplored as it is such citizens that no city can well afford to lose but at the same time his friends will rejoice in the recognition of real merit.

The management of every great exposition strives to have their fair different from others in many respects working for distinctive features that will be attractive and advertise the exposition. The management of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition which will be held at Seattle next summer are doing this and expect to go further in distinctive features than any world's fair yet held. There is one feature, however, of the 1909 exposition that is so unique that it will mark the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition as radically different from all other events of the kind held in this country. This exposition is to be dry.

The exposition grounds are part of the great campus of the University of Washington. The laws of the state forbid the sale of liquors within two miles of the University and while there was a disposition on the part of the state legislature to make an exception for 1909 and allow liquor sold on the exposition grounds, the directors and stockholders decided that they would forego precedent and have the first "dry" exposition ever held in the United States. This includes all the cafes and restaurants, the resorts on the Pay Streak and all exhibits. Ample provision will be made for liquid refreshments of the non-alcoholic and non-intoxicating kinds and pipes will be laid for bringing water from one of the best mineral springs in the west right into the grounds.

This novel experiment will, no doubt, be watched with interest by all, as there has been much agitation of the prohibition question in the country during the last year. The management have carefully figured the matter out and believe that the fact of the 1909 exposition being "dry" will not only serve as an excellent advertising feature but it will result in the attendance of many people who wish to show approval to the plan. As far as the financial end is concerned, there is no doubt, for it was long since a settled fact that the selling of liquor on exposition grounds brought in little extra revenue.

The average sinner tires of being preached at by other sinners whose specialties happen to be along different lines.

DEATH WAS VERY SUDDEN

NEWS OF DEATH OF FRANK DERESHIA AT TROY, MONTANA

NO DETAILS RECEIVED AND CIRCUMSTANCES AROUSE SUSPICIONS

From Friday's Daily—

A telegram was received yesterday from Troy, Montana, announcing the death of Frank Dereshia son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dereshia of Bemidji and brother of Mrs. Mike Sullivan of this city. No details were given and it is feared he was the victim of an accident or foul play, otherwise he would have communicated with his relatives before he died.

He left Crookston four years ago, for North Dakota, and no trace has been heard of him since till the tragic message today announcing his death. A telegram asking for details was answered briefly to the effect that particulars by mail were enroute here. Deceased was 26 years of age and well known thruout the northern part of the state.

His mother is with her daughter here now, and both are nearly prostrated by the shock.

Unless the letter which is now enroute contains a complete and satisfactory explanation, Mr. Sullivan will go to Troy at once and investigate all the circumstances surrounding the death.

FIRST TRAIN TO WARROAD

DEC. 21 WILL MARK OPENING OF ROAD PROMISED BY JAMES J. HILL

The first regular train over the Warroad extension of the Great Northern road will be run Monday December 21.

The people of Badger, Roseau and Warroad will undoubtedly do some great rejoicing. The people of that section have been waiting for the announcement and now that it has been made by the railroad officials it will be a big relief.

The first regular train will leave Crookston at 8:40 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 21 and will arrive at Warroad at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and arrive at Crookston at 10 o'clock in the evening.

MAHNOMEN CO. HAS TROUBLE

Mahnomen county has been in a peck of trouble since its organization and all on account of the manner in which is was organized Quo Warranto proceedings were once commenced by the publisher of The Tomahawk to annual the county organization, but were dismissed upon a proposition which was submitted to him by certain persons at Mahnomen, who claimed to be acting under the authority of the county attorney of that county, that the case against Wah-we-yea-cumig would be noll'd if the proceedings against the county, were dismissed. The publisher fulfilled his part of the agreement, but the Wah-we-yea-cumig case was not dismissed Now Geo. B. Edkerton a prominent attorney of St. Paul and late assistant attorney general of the state, has been retained to renew the proceeding against the county, and will visit this reservation this week for the purpose of commencing the action.—White Earth Tomahawk.

The stockholders of American corporations with an aggregate capital of $5,800,000,000 number 574,360 while a year ago the same companies had a total of 507,361 holders, an increase during the year of over 67,000. It is estimated that all told there are 1,600,000 stockholders in American rail road and industrial corporations, the number being largely increased during the last year as a result of the distribution of stock, which for one cause or another was liquidated during this period. So far as the actual figures go, it appears that each of the stockholders in railroads owns an average of 119,02 shares, against an average of 136.93 shares a year ago, while the stockholders of the industrial companies own an average of 88.30 shares, against an average of 94.45 shares a year ago. This shows a very healthy condition of affairs.

FUR PRICES THIS YEAR

TRAPPERS IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA ARE CATCHING ABUNDANCE OF GOOD SKINS

THE PREVAILING PRICE THIS YEAR MUCH LOWER THAN LAST YEAR

From Friday's Daily—

A Chicago raw fur house which does a large business with northern Minnesota trappers, has issued its first price list of the season, with an explanation to the effect that as the fur season is just beginning values are not yet fully established, but they are given with as much accuracy as possible.

Taken as a whole, prices for raw furs this fall will not be as high as last, according to the circular in question, which is conceded to be one of the most reliable issued. In a few cases better prices will be obtained but the average will be lower altho in a very few instances has there been any very great reduction.

Mink pelts are not commanding quite so high a figure as they were a year ago. Lake Superior mink, classed as among the best in America bring only $6 to $7 a pelt, where last fall the price ran above $10. The price paid for the best Minnesota and Wisconsin skins away from the lake will not exceed $5.50 and the average probably will not run over $4. To command the highest price a skin must be large, in prime condition and so dark in color as to be nearly black Muskrats are bringing as much as they did last fall. They are selling as high as 31 cents each, which is considered fairly good for that class of fur. Skunks command about the same figure as above. The dealers pay from $1.75 down to 50 cents for skunk, according to their grade. For a while last year exceptionally good skins brought over $2; but not very long.

Marten is another fur in which Northern Minnesota trappers are particularly interested. Marten, mink, muskrat and skunk constitute the biggest portion of the Minnesota trapper's catch. This year it is bringing a fairly good price, $15 to $25 for prize pelts in good condition the price as with the mink depending largely upon the color. A large marten with a prime pelt, but of a light color, will bring only $7 to $12 where another of the same size, with pelt in the same condition only of a dark color will bring as high as $25.

Quite a few otter are also caught in Northern Minnesota. They are selling from $18 to $25 each. The otter is a much larger animal than the marten but its fur is worth no more. Some beaver are left in the state. They are a good deal more difficult to find now than marten, but the very finest beaver skin will not bring more than $8.50

Lynx, at $12 to $15 are unusually high. This is the highest price paid for lynx skins inseveral years in fact.

Prices on other fur-bearing animals trapped in Northern Minnesota are: Grey fox $1.25; red fox, $5.50; fox, cross, $9 to $20; fisher $7 to $12; wolf, timber, $4; wild cat $2.50; weasels, 5c to 40 cents, where two years ago they were $1 each; bear, black, $16 to $20; deer skins, well handled and dry, 40 to 45 cents a pound.

Trapping operations are now well under way in Northern Minnesota. There are a good many men engaged in the business. The rapid settlement and development of the country is every year narrowing the field for trapping operations and it will not be very many more seasons before professionals will have left the state altogether, in search of prolific fields. Settlers and Indians probably will trap as a side line for a good many years yet but fur-bearing animals will not long be numerous enough to make trapping profitable as a business.

It isn't so easy to see how we are going to contrive to give the wage-earner something approaching his share in the profits of our fostered and protected industries; nothing short of that will be either just or permanent.

SHOT DEAD OUT WEST

FORMER RESIDENT OF MARSHALL COUNTY KILLED IN A FIGHT OUT WEST

HIS SLAYER AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE AND WAS ALSO FROM MARSHALL COUNTY

From Friday's Daily—

The following will be of local interest as the two men were well known in Crookston, Jim Rafferty having been a son of Lem Rafferty, manager of the big Woodward farm near Warren for years.

Kalispel, Mont., Dec. 11—Jim Rafferty, a partner of Joseph Gangner the pioneer sheriff of Flathead county, who has been engaged in the saloon business for the past 3 years was shot thru the right lung and instantly killed in his place of business by Ed, Finley, a lumberjack, and as a result of four random shots, Al Renert a West Side butcher is nursing two painful flesh wounds.

Finley and Rafferty are old acquaintances from Marshall county, Minnesota, each about 40 to 45 years of age They quarrelled yesterday and Finley had a mania to finish the argument and took a 25 calibre rifle to accomplish his end. He escaped and has not been captured. The sheriff's posse is on his trail and all the surrounding towns have been notified.

MRS. E. NELSON HAD PAINFUL ACCIDENT

FELL FROM TABLE WHILE PUTTING UP CURTAIN AND BROKE ARM

This morning Mrs. E. Nelson, 203 North Main street, while putting up a curtain made a mis-step on the table upon which she was standing and fell to the floor, breaking one of the bones of her forearm. The fracture was at once reduced by a physician. Mrs. Nelson very fortunately escaped any other injury. She is the mother of Conductors Joe Nelson and James Nelson who are now running on the Canadian Northern.

JAMES RUSSEL TO PORTLAND

WILL BE DIVISION SUPERINTENDENT OF SPOKANE, PORTLAND AND SEATTLE

James Russel, formerly connected with the Great Northern in different capacities from chief dispatcher to division superintendent, passed thru the city last evening enroute west. He goes to Portland, Oregon, as division superintendent of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railroad with headquarters at Portland. A rumor reached Grand Forks a few days ago that Mr. Russell was coming back west as general superintendent at Minot which was disproved by his appearance enrouet west last evening. The road Mr. Russell goes to is connected with the Great Northern and the position is a more lucrative one than the one just left at Aurora, Ill., on the Burlington.

Mrs. Russell will come west immediately after the first of the year and will visit friends in Grand Forks enroute.

NO PRISONER HAS ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE IN LAST TWO YEARS

REPORT FILED CONTAINING SOME VERY INTERESTING STATISTICS

From Friday's Daily—

There has not been a single escape or attempt at escape from the Minnesota state penitentiary in the past two years, according to the biennial report of Warden Henry Wolfer just completed and filed with the state board of control.

From the same source comes the information that since Convict No. 1 was swallowed up behind those cold gray walls at the Stillwater institution in 1858, 210 men and women have been sentenced to pass the balance of their natural lives in the prison. All of the "lifers" but nine who were sentenced for crimes against nature were murderers. Twenty-nine of the number died convicts, 39 received pardons, 49 received commuted sentences, 6 were transferred to insane asylums and there are 87 now in prison. The largest number of men and women in confinement during the past 2 years at any one time was 717 The lowest number of prisoners received in any one year was two, in 1858, and the highest 301, in 1907.

Of the 665 prisoners in confinement July 31, 1908, the end of the fiscal year, 163 were from Hennepin county, 57 from Ramsey, 70 from St. Louis and 40 transferred reformatory inmates.

Stealing "Popular"

The most "popular" crime among Minnesota's lawless element is stealig; 146 serving time for grand larceny in the second degree and 54 for the same crime in the first degree, while 52 are serving for burglary.

As to nativity the American-born convicts lead with 155; the Irish are second with 58; Germans third with 41; Swedes fourth with 36, and Africans fifth with 35.

As to habits 59 prisoners are abstinent when at liberty, 385 drink moderately and 221 are intemperate. As to their social relations, 419 are single 184 married, 11 divorced, 45 widowed and six abandoned.

Minnesota's hospitals for the insane numbered 3,314 inmates on the first day of November, according to reports made and filed with the state board of control by the superintendents. The males outnumber the females, there being 2,020 of the former, as compared with 1,394 of the latter. The following are the figures compiled for the five different institutions where insane are cared for:

Fergus Falls, 908 males, 674 females.
St. Peter 516 males, 482 females.
Anoka 293 males, 120 females.
Rochester 629 males, 563 females.
Hastings 303 males, 118 females.

Conditions are more crowded at the Fergus Falls institution than at any of the others but the new detention wing, which is planned to accommodate 60 patients when completed, will relieve the congestion.

DOCTOR'S ORDER WAS: 'CUTICURA'

For a Bad Case of Eczema on Child —Suffered for Three Months— Disease Reached a Fearful State —Pain and Itching were Terrible.

CURED AFTER OTHER PRESCRIPTIONS FAILED

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20, 1907."

ITCHING CURED

With Cuticura Remedies in Three Days After Six Months of Suffering.

"I suffered fully six months. The trouble began on my arms in little red pimples and it was not long before it was all over my body, limbs, face, and hands. It was so bad that I could not rest night or day and during the six months, I did not get a good night's sleep. I doctored for three or four months and spent at least twenty dollars trying to find a cure but none could be found. Then I saw the Cuticura Remedies advertised, and the next day I purchased some for seventy-five cents at the druggist's. I used them and I was relieved of the itching in three days, and I have never had a sign of any skin disease since. The Cuticura Remedies are the only remedies to use for skin diseases, they have cured me and they will cure others in the same way. J. W. Bloom, R. R. Telegrapher, Holloway, Mich., Nov. 20 and Dec. 29, 1906."

Cuticura Remedies are guaranteed absolutely pure under the United States Food and Drugs Act.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed Free, Cuticura Book on Skin Diseases.

NO CHRISTMAS RATES ARE ON

HOLIDAY SEASON WILL BRING REDUCTION IN SOME STATES

The coming holiday season will witness no change on the part of the railroad officials toward the special rate question in the section of the country where the 2 cent per mile rates is in force. At a recent meeting of the Central Passenger association the tariff committee authorized a holiday rate which amounts to 2 cents per mile each way all over the territory covered by the association. This concession is only nominal inasmuch as most of the states where the association has jurisdiction have 2 cent rate law.

The Western Passenger association at a meeting in Chicago did not even consider holiday rates, all the lines represented at the meeting evidently taking the course pursued by the roads in 1907 and July 4 of this year as final. This means that in South Dakota, Canada and wherever 2 cent laws are not in force the roads will grant the usual fare and a third rate for the holiday season.

APPLE PRICES SOAR SKYWARD

FIRST TIME IN FIVE YEARS THEY COST MORE THAN ORANGES

For the first time in over five years the price of apples is higher than that of oranges.

Fancy Florida oranges are selling on commission row in Minneapolis at $27.5 a box. Apples sell at $2.25 a box. But the orange boxes hold two bushels while the apples are packed one bushel to the box, a difference of 88c a bushel in favor of the apples.

This unusual condition is said to have been caused by excellent crops of oranges both in California and Florida, while the apple crop, tho good is more generally shipped to the smaller cities than in former years, making the big city supply considerably smaller causing a corresponding increase in prices.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM THURSDAYS DAILY

Dr. Duggan of Grand Forks passed thru the city this morning enroute to Greenbush on business.

Mayor Nick Engle and son Gus drove down from Euclid last evening with Will Finlayson the Euclid liveryman.

DR. CHAPIN ILL—Dr. Chapin of Euclid is confined to his bed. He recently returned from Chicago where he went for treatment, and returned greatly improved but overestimated his strength and jumped into the harness too quickly.

BACK ON RUN—St Naughtin, one of the well known and popular conductors on the Eastern Minnesota, and who has been laying off for the past two years, has returned to work again and is running a train between Cass Lake and Duluth and the passengers are glad to again greet him in uniform.

WITH NEW FIRM—D. J. Lewis a travelling salesman who has made this territory for many years was here yesterday. He is now with a new house, the Brown-Forman & Co., distillers of Louisville Kentucky, and is pushing "Old Forester" to beat the band. He will make Crookston every three months hereafter.

SECURED A POULTRY SHOW ROOM — The Northern Minnesota Poultry Assn., has been very fortunate in securing the store room in the McKinnon block on South Main Street formerly occupied by Amundson & Bergets Grocery store for their first annual poultry show which will be held Dec. 17 to 21. This location just south of the Scandia American bank is an excellent one. The room is ample in size ,well lighted and is steam heated so all visitors as well as the fowl will be perfectly comfortable

ERSKINE WOODMEN— The Erskine camp of Modern Woodmen met at their hall Wednesday evening and elected the following officers for the coming year: C. P. Hole, V. C.; E. O. Melsness, W. A.; L. R. Larson, E. B.; Theo. Nelson, Clerk; C. E. Dillon, Escort; C. M. Howe, Watchman; T. K. Berge, sentry and A. F. Cronquist as manager. The camp has added a number of new members during the past year and the prospects for the coming year are very bright and at the end of the year Erskine Camp expects to have a much alive bunch of members enrolled and many wives and children enjoying the protection this excellent society affords.

Six coaches strewn along the side of the track about 30 passengers more or less seriously bruised and cut up, and one man reported to be bleeding to death, is the result of the wreck of the Northern Pacific North Coast Limited No. 1, half a mile east of McKenzie.

The wreck occurred about 12:30 o'clock this morning and was caused by the spreading of the rails. The train was going at about 35 miles an hour when the disaster came and was an hour and a half behind time. Just as the train was on a slight fill of 8 or 10 feet the coaches and sleepers left the track in easy fashion turning over. The engine, mail and baggage cars stayed on the track and were pulled up about 20 rods from the wreck. The coaches were crowded and the only thing that saved a terrible loss of life was the easy manner in which the coaches left the track.

The train lies on its side parallel to the track and the cars are not much injured beyond the loss of trucks. Most of the injured are cut by broken glass and bruised. A special left this city about 1 o'clock, taking all the doctors that could be gathered together to care for the injured. The track is completely torn up, rails and ties being scattered for a distance of 25 or 30 rods, and it will take some time to put it in shape for traffic.

EARLY MORNING FIRE— Yesterday morning a fire broke out in the kitchen of the Timothy Sullivan residence on the corner of Pine and 6th Streets. Mr. Sullivan was at home alone his wife being at Grand Forks visiting her daughter who is the wife of Judge P. McLaughlin. The building was a mass of flames before the department reached the scene and the building and all the contents were burned. Loss about $2,000, insurance $500. Mr. Sullivan is employed by the Great Northern railway in the yards here.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

MADE FLYING TRIP — Elmer Harris and Chas. Rapin went to Grand Forks last evening returning this morning, and did quite a stroke of busines for a short stay.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES —At Viking Chorus Hall in McKinnon Block on Robert Street, Sunday morning December 13th. Subject: "God, Preserver of Man". A cordial invitation is extended to all.

LITTLE GIRL DIES—Myrtle Horken the seven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Horken living five miles east of East Grand Forks, died Monday. Funeral services took place Wednesday afternoon at the home, Rev. Jorgeson officiating.

FERTILE BANK OF AGE — The First State Bank of Fertile is twenty one (21) years old this week, and has been all this time under the same management. It is acknowledged by those in position to know to be one of the best managed banks in the state.

LEADER OF THE FAITHFUL — Alex Thompson of Crookston the general agent for the Minneapolis Brewing company came over from Crookston yesterday. Mr. Thompson is one of the stalwart democrats of Polk county and is a leader of the "faithful" in that end of the state.—Bemidji Pioneer.

BIG TILING COMPLETED— Geo. Roberts who has been in charge of installing the big tile drain which drains 1,000 acres of land which was formerly overflowed by the Marais, located northwest of Fisher. The drain was very short only about 500 feet, but it is 22 feet under ground in place, and has a fall of 35 feet in that distance emptying into the Red Lake River.

TO CIRCLE GLOBE — Hon. C. A. Nye, the prominent Moorhead lawyer started last week on a trip around the world. He will sail from San Francisco, and will visit Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan, China and other eastern countries. He will go thru the Mediterranean sea, returning to America across the Atlantic. He will not spend much time in Europe reserving that for a future trip.

ENROUTE TO DENVER — Fred Nash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nash of East Grand Forks passed thru the city last evening enroute to Minneapolis for a two weeks' visit, after which he will proceed to Denver, Col. where he has secured an engagement behind the footlights and will remain there the balance of the winter after which he will make a trip thru California.

BROKE HIS LEG—Yesterday afternoon while sawing logs for O. H. Bjoin, Albert Simpson sustained a broken leg. With his partner he was rolling a log down from the top of the pile. He thought he stepped far enough back to be out of the way, but the log hit him and the bone snapped just above the ankle. He was taken at once to the home of his son, Sivert South Main street where the broken bone was set and he is resting easy today.

DIVORCE STATISTICS—The government has been doing some investigating as to the causes of divorces and some interesting statistics have been produced. In Minnesota during the 26 years covered by investigation there were 4,192 divorces granted to husbands and 11, 451 divorces to the wives. Drunkenness has been the direct cause of only a small per cent of the divorces. On this account 4.3 per cent of the divorces were granted to the wives and 9 per cent of the total to the husbands.

EGG SHORTAGE HITS N. Y. — People here throw a fit over paying 40 cents per dozen for fresh eggs. Eggs in New York at present are being quoted at top-notch prices, and dealers say the shortage even at this season when the supply is usually limited, is serious. Stocks are being reduced despite the high prices, at the rate of 50,000 cases a week. Fifty to 52 cents is asked for white eggs, while mixed eggs are quoted at from 35 to 42 cents. Low grade eggs bring from 20 to 25 cents, but offerings are light.

PHONE LINE EXTENDED— The Warren Telephone Co., of which Hans Swanson is the manager, has extended the Radium line to Viking and Ellerth connecting at the latter place with a line to Newfolden. The line is already in operation to Viking and by the end of the week will be finished to Ellerth. It will be a great convenience to the people of Warren as well as to those in the eastern part of the county to have telephone communication, and the line will no doubt be well patronized.

Funeral services were held over the remains of Clifford Carter at Chesterman's Chapel this afternoon at 4:30 Rev. Francis M. McCoy of the M. E. church officiating. During the services the New Store was closed, and all the employes of Wright Carpenter &Co., attended together with many other sorrowing friends of the departed. The remains will be taken over the Great Northern on the flyer this evening to Knoxville, Tenn., accompanied by Geo. F. Carpenter.

More sincere sorrow was never expressed than at the services this afternoon. Deceased was a warm personal friend of his employers and all his fellow employes, and with his many friends about the city the deepest regret and sorrow is felt over his sad and sudden taking away.

Good progress is being made with criminal cases in the district court after a dull day yesterday. The jury selected for the trial of Thomas Westre, charged with a hold-up near the N. P. bridge in East Grand Forks was excused today, as an important witness near Blackduck will have to be secured by Deputy Daniels before the state can proceed. J. G. Cannon is defending Westre.

This morning a jury was secured for the charge against Steve Cherer of having received stolen property. He runs a small confectionery stand on the Demers Bridge at East Grand Forks and is accused of having received cigars he knew to have been stolen by an N. P. employe named Opsahl. He is being defended by B. G. Skulason of Grand Forks. All other jurors were excused till Monday morning when the case against A. Pettaway indicted for robbing the Merchants bank for robbing the Guarantee Clothing store and on one other charge will be taken up. This is the most important criminal case for the present term. He will be defended by W. E. Rowe and Chas. O. Longley.

FATHER VERY ILL—Harry Chapin went to Euclid this morning to spend the day with his father who is not improving as rapidly as could be wished and who is suffering greatly.

OLD SETLERS ATTENTION — The members of the Old Settlers Association will meet at the Commercial club rooms in the City Hall tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 to attend in a body the funeral of the late John Cromb.

SUPT. LUNDBERG ARRIVES — Tuesday morning, Prof C. R. Lundberg reached here from Minneapolis and at once assumed the superintendence of the local public schools. Prof. Lundberg has been hospitably received and expresses himself as being very well pleased with Fosston as far as it has been possible for him to know it in this brief time.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

PROSPEROUS FARMER IN — O. Simmons one of the most prosperous farmers in this section who lives on Rural Route No. 3 out of Crookston was in the city today and decided that he could not get along with the weekly Journal any more and changed to the daily. Mr. Simmons has a fine bunch of 20 milch cows and has 56 head of stock all prime animals.

CONDUCTOR MORIN LAID UP— Conductor Morin of the Great Northern is laid up with two crushed fingers, resulting from an accident last Sunday in which a double cellar door played the roll of villain and smashed two fingers on his left hand which may enforce a layoff of two or three weeks more. He has been railroading 30 years and was never injured till the recent accident in his own house.

LITTLE DAUGHTER DIED—Died, at her home in Erskine yesterday afternoon at 1:30 Hulda Elizabeth Carlson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Carlson, aged twelve years, three months and one day. The sad news of the death of little Hulda has cast a shadow over the whole community. The funeral will be held next Monday and the remains laid to rest in the Hauge's cemetery west of the village where she has a sister and two brothers buried before her.

A GREAT SUCCESS—The Minnesota Co-operative Dairy Association which was organized for the purpose of handling the products of the Minnesota co-operative creameries independent of the eastern commission firms, has proven to be even a greater success than its promoters anticipated. The association has handled over two million pounds of butter since May.

SUCCESSFUL FARMER — H. J. Beardmore, one of the successful farmers of Sandsville who is serving on the petit jury here, returned home this morning, as all jurors not of the Cherer case having been excused till Monday morning. Mr. Beardmore will return on the flyer Sunday evening to be on deck Monday. He is a splendid example of those who have made good in the Red River Valley having become wealthy tilling the soil and he tills it too.

ARGYLE WOODMEN—The following officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Woodmen Camp at Argyle on Tuesday evening:

V. C.—E. A. Westin.
W. A.—S. E. Thompson.
E. B.—O. H. Moreau.
Escort—Jas. Dundas.
Clerk—G. L. Demers.
Sentry—A. W. Headrick.
Watchman—Matt Hjelle.
Manager—Dave Dundas.

MARTIN ASSISTANT ATTORNEY —The many friends of John M. Martin formerly of Bemidji, will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed as assistant county attorney for St. Louis county, he to officiate in the territory covered by the iron range district. Judge Martin, who is practicing law at Virginia, is a well read attorney, and will undoubtedly render valuable assistance to the county attorney of St. Louis county.

STEPHENS IDEA IS EXCELLENT

E. A. NELSON OF HALLOCK NEWS COMMENTS ON PLAN RECENTLY ANNOUNCED

BELIEVES THE IDEA OF SENATOR STEPHENS WILL WORK WONDERS IN FUTURE

From Saturday's Daily—

E. A. Nelson of the Hallock News, former State Librarian and now publisher of the News in addition to dealing extensively in Red River Valley lands, and one of the most wide awake men in the northern part of the state is greatly enthused over the plan recently announced by Senator Stephens to encourage better farming, and in the last issue of the news relative to the matter publishes the following:

"Senator Stephens of Crookston is certainly making splendid use of his wealth and time for the benefit of the farmers of that county. If we had more men in this state that would devote their time to the interest of agriculture as Senator Stephens does, we would devote their time to the interest of agriculture as Senator Stephens does, we would see great change from the northwest.

"Senator Stephens does not only believe in boosting, but he backs his boosting by the cash and offers such inducements from time to time to the farmers of Polk county that they cannot help but become interested. On December 22nd, he offers prizes to the amount of one thousand dollars to the farmers of Polk county for the best grain and stock exhibited for the best grain and stock exhibited in that city.

"Mr. Stephens knows that the soil of the Red River Valley can produce results if properly taken in hand but he also knows that in order to get the best results the farmers have to receive some encouragement which they are justly entitled to. Mr. Stephens' plan for developing an agricultural country is certainly unique and it is hoped that others will follow his plan."

G'FELLAS GOT SIX MONTHS

ELOPED WITH NIECE FROM NEBRASKA AND WAS ARRESTED AT GRAND FORKS

TRIED TO SECURE POSITION IN CROOKSTON—MOTHER OF GIRL LOCATED THEM

From Saturday's Daily—

E. G. G'Fellas who eloped with Miss Goldie Alexander his niece by marriage, from Hastings, Neb., and was arrested at Grand Forks Thursday, entered a plea of guilty today on a charge of living unlawfully with Miss Alexander. He was arraigned before Judge C. F. Templeton and received a jail sentence of 6 months.

Yesterday forenoon G'Fellas was arraigned before Judge P. McLoughlin. He waived examination and was held to the district court. He announced then that he would plead guilty just as soon as given an opportunity.

The accused excuses his action in eloping with Miss Alexander by the statement that his wife nagged him and his home life was so unpleasant that he sought sympathy elsewhere. He became infatuated with Miss Alexander and there was an elopement.

Mrs. Alexander and her daughter plan to leave Grand Forks for Hastings this evening.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES

FUNERAL OF JOHN CROMB WILL BE ONE OF MOST IMPOSING EVER HELD HERE

BODY WILL LIE IN STATE AT RESIDENCE FROM 12 TO 1:30 TOMORROW

From Saturday's Daily—

The funeral services over the remains of John Cromb will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 from Christs Episcopal church, Rev. Richard Cox officiating, and the service will be under the auspices of the Masons. The remains will lie in state at the residence, 401 Hunter Street, from 12 o'clock noon tomorrow till 1:30 p. m. with six Knights Templar as a guard of Honor, during which time the remains may be viewed by friends. The casket will not be opened at the church.

The Knights Templar and Blue Lodge of Masons, Order of the Eastern Star, Elks, Polk County Bar Association, Old Settlers Association, Board of Education and City Officials will attend in a body.

The honorary pall bearers will be Messrs. A. D. Stephens, Alden Braley Wm. Watts, J. E. Morrisey, John Moore, M. R. Brown, Max Ericsson and Lorenzo Davis.

The active pall bearers will be Messrs. W. G. Lytle, E. M. Walsh, Frank D. Bell, A. A. Miller, J. W. Wheeler and Lewis Ellington. The floral offerings will be magnificent, coming from fraternal and civic organizations and private individuals.

BLOCKED CROSSING: LOCKMAN FINED

Great Northern Conductor A. G. Lockman, of Grand Forks, was found guilty of violating the city ordinance at the Broadway crossing at Fargo yesterday while in charge of No. 2 by holding the crossing blocked to traffic for almost 15 minutes. Three minutes is the limit provided by ordinance.

Judge Ryan imposed a fine of $5 and costs, which was the minimum amount that the judge could impose under the ordinance.

Six witnesses were examined for the city, among who were four street railway men who testified that one of their street cars was held for 15 minutes by the train and that the street car schedule of the entire city was demoralized for the entire forenoon as a result.

The total amount of fine and costs was $15 which Lockman paid and was discharged. Lockman claimed and the evidence went to prove that he himself was not aware that he was obstructing the crossing, as he believed that his train was clear of the street.

GREAT ARRAY OF EVIDENCE

SHERIFF AND TWO DEPUTIES ROUNDING UP WITNESSES AGAINST PETTAWAY

JURY RETURNED A VERDICT YESTERDAY ACQUITTING STEVE CHERER

From Saturday's Daily—

Sheriff Gonyea is at Fergus Falls, Deputy Sheriff Alex Gonyea is at Wahpeton, N. D., and Deputy Daniels left on the N. P. this afternoon for Grand Forks, all on the same mission, to secure witnesses to testify against A. Pettaway, the colored porter charged with robbing the Merchants National bank of about $1,000 last summer, and who was also indicted for robbing the Guarantee Clothing store of goods. His case will come up in district court Monday morning and he will be defended by Rowe and Longley and the trial will be the most important on the criminal calendar the present term and will probably last several days.

No cases were on today, all jurors being excused till Monday.

Yesterday morning a jury was secured for the charge against Steve Cherer of having received stolen property. He had a small confectionery stand on the DeMers bridge East Grand Forks, and was accused of having received cigars he knew to have been stolen by an N. P. employe named Opsahl. He was defended by B. G. Skulason of Grand Forks.

The prosecution was hampered by the absence of a material witness. The jury was out less than an hour before returning a verdict of not guilty and the defendant was discharged.

OPSAHL IS FINED $200

[illegible] Opsahl, an employe of the N. Pacific at East Grand Forks, charged with stealing cigars and other goods from the company entered a plea of guilty this afternoon and was fined $200 by Judge Watts.

CLIFFORD CARTER'S REMAINS SHIPPED

The body of the late Clifford Carter were shipped last evening to Knoxville Tenn., where his parents live. Mr. George Carpenter or Donald Prudhomme had planned on accompanying the body to Knoxville but owing to the fact that they were unable to make suitable arrangements at the other end of the line, it was decided that the body would be shipped by express. Many friends were at the depot with the casket.

Remarkable Case; Remarkable Jury

Twice 12 Men, Good and True Failed to Decide Whether Wm. Loomis' Brindle Cow's Penchant for Flirting with E. J. Peterson's Thorobred Holstein was Pronounced and Flagrant Enough to Justify Peterson in Using Language Which Resulted in Loomis Delivering Him a Left Hook in the Eye Free of All Charges.—Jury Fully of Age.

A remarkable case at this term of court, tried by a remarkable jury was that of the State vs. Wm. Loomis who was charged with having assaulted E. J. Peterson of Helgeland. Loomis was arrested last summer and fined $1 in justice court after a jury trial. He appealed from this verdict and the case was the first one tried at the present term. The jury after being out all night disagreed, standing 8 for conviction and four for acquittal.

Another jury was impanelled, the case lasted all day, and they squabbled all night and also disagreed, 8 to 4 just as the first jury. The case will now go over to the June term, after having cost Polk county nearly $1000 for the left hook in the eye which Loomis gave Peterson because the latter objected to a brindled bossy belonging to Loomis flirting with a thorobred Holstein in the Peterson pasture which resulted in the fence being broken down.

But the remarkable part of the second trial was the fact that the jury was composed of 12 men whose ages averaged 58 years, and Capt. M. R. Brown, nearly 70 years of age who was the foreman, was serving his first time as juryman, and after being up all night he said it would be his last, as being over 60 years of age it is optional with him whether he serves as a juryman or not.

The complete list of the jury is as follows: Capt. M. R. Brown, E. M. Lancaster, Pascal Toupin, H. C. Scribner, S. H. Bearnes, H. Y. Ruth, A. O. Johnson, Dick Cooper, H. J. Beardmore, Bert Cochrane, C. Bohn and John N. Kirsch. Over half of the jury was over 60 years of age, the youngest 36, the oldest 70, they had been residents of Polk county an average of 28 years, averaged 58 years of age, all were hale and hearty and fit for a fight—and was it any wonder they did not agree?

Andrew Eaton, of the Township of Knute is another old timer of Polk County who is serving for the first time as a juror. He settled 6 miles north of Fosston 32 years ago and has lived there ever since. There were but six or seven families in that section then among whom were Messrs. Hilligos, LaBree, the two Herschbergers, Flesch and a few others. The only road in that section then was the old Pembina trail, which is still in constant use. It was six years later that they were allowed to file on their land. All their trading was done at Beltrami, the nearest station. A few years later the early residents wanted to organize their township and there were two factions and both had different names to suggest. As a compromise Capt. Brown who was chairman of the board of county commissioners at the time, suggested Knute, which was acceptable to both factions and the difficulty was settled at once.

The committee in charge of the 25,000 Commercial club's "On to Warroad" excursion has announced the above schedule of the running time of the "special" which will carray the business men of Crookston thru Red Lake, Marshall and Roseau counties on next Friday.

The schedule as arranged will give an opportunity to the excursionists to stop at almost every town and village enroute to Warroad and at every stop sufficient time will be allowed to make a short visit with the business men and become acquainted with them. A glance at the schedule as arranged will show that the committee has taken into consideration the object for which the trip is made and there is no question but that the time consumed in making these stops will be put to most excellent advantage.

Is Assured Success

There is absolutely no question but that the excursion will be a marked success and the business men of Crookston are worthy of congratulations for the manner in which they have taken hold of the project and the enthusiasm they have displayed in pulling together to make the event a memorable one in the civic life of the community.

The committee in charge of the excursion made a partial canvass of the situation and they disposed of a sufficient number of tickets to secure the special train and at the same time provide funds for the incidental expenses which attend the project.

More Can be Accommodated

It was impossible for the committee to call upon every business man, professional man and citizen, as time would not permit. It called upon a number, who could not be seen, consequently the committee is of the opinion that there are many more who will desire to take in the excursion, but who have not had the opportunity to secure tickets. It is necessary that every one who intends going on the trip ,should communicate with C. R. Winslow of the committee, not later than 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

This should be attended to at once so that they may be included in the special advertising matter which the committee is getting out. This advertising is something different than usually procured and will undoubtedly be a distinct feature of the excursion. If you are going to take the trip, your name should be included on the special card greetings.

Will Receive Warm Welcome

Word has been received from the different towns along the line to the effect that the towns are all anticipating the visit with great enthusiasm and the Crookston people will be given a warm and a rousing welcome. The people of Warroad, Roseau and Badger especially appreciate the sentiment which prompted the giving of the excursion before the regular service has been established. The Crookston special will be the first train with passengers aboard that has ever pulled into these towns and it cannot help but be an event of more than passing importance.

PATTEWAY CASE WENT TO JURY AT 3.20 TODAY

EVIDENCE WAS ALL IN LAST EVENING AND ATTORNEYS FOR STATE AND DEFENSE MADE EXHAUSTIVE AND ABLE ARGUMENTS TO THE JURY TODAY —PATTEWAY CONFIDENT OF ACQUITTAL

The trial of A. Patteway the colored porter at the Merchants National Bank indicted for grand larceny for robbing that institution of about $1,600 early last summer was completed before court adjourned last evening so far as testimony goes, nothing being left but the arguments today, and the jury was charged by Judge Watts and retired at 3:30.

F. L. McGhee, the colored attorney from Minneapolis defended the case and during the session yesterday and today the court house was packed with a crowd such as has never been seen there since the Guilmette murder trial three years ago and scores were refused admission because of lack of room.

McGhee riddled the witnesses for the state unmercifully and his wit greatly amused the crowd and after rapping for order several times Judge Watts threatened to clear the court room if there was another outburst.

This morning County Attorney Maybury addressed the jury for two hours and made a strong and very logical plea for conviction, making the most out of the circumstantial evidence.

Atty. McGhee started his address before dinner and concluded shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon, making a very earnest plea for his client, and showed marked ability as a criminal lawyer.

The state failed to produce any direct evidence against Patteway showing only that defendant had an unusual amount of money for a man in his position, and that it was in silver denominations, and that he had changed much silver for bills at various places but produced a vast array of very strong circumstantial evidence.

On the other hand McGhee showed by a witness from St. Paul that Patteway had left over $800 in cash at the hotel run by the witness shortly before Patteway came to Crookston. It was shown by other witnesses that Patteway also had large sums of money at various places and that before working at the bank had tried to purchase a valuable horse for spot cash but could not agree as to the price.

TO HELP FIGHT WHITE PLAGUE

RED CROSS CHRISTMAS STAMPS RECEIVED BY DR. DAMPIER WILL BE PUT ON SALE IN DIFFERENT STORES IN THE CITY AT ONCE

From Wednesday's Daily—

Red Cross Christmas stamps were received by Dr. C. E. Dampier this morning to the number of 2,000 and he has spent the day in placing them in the different business houses, where they will be offered for sale. This is an opportunity for the citizens of Crookston to help a most worthy cause along at practically a nominal outlay.

The stamps cost but one cent each and they make a most attractive embellishment for Christmas packages. While conveying from the sender of every Christmas package the greetings of the season, it will at the same time bear a message of hope and cheer to the unfortunates who are under the shadow of the dread afflictian

The stamps have been issued by the Minnesota Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis and it is expected that at least 250,000 will be sold in the different sections of the state. This number has been divided between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Rochester, Moorhead, Red Wing, St. Cloud, Fergus Falls, St. Peter, Wabasha, Lake City, Owatonna and Crookston the division giving this city the 2,000 which were received this morning by Doctor Dampier.

The stamp movement is a new one and in explanation of it one of the officers of the state association said:

"There is a new stamp in America. These stamps do not carry any kind of mail, but any kind of mail will carry them. This Christmas stamp has been a feature in the anti-tuberculosis movement. For some years it has been used in Denmark. It was first introduced into this country by Delaware three weeks before Christmas in 1907 when nearly 400,000 stamps were sold. The subject was first brought to the attention of the American people by an article in the Outlook by Jacob Riis, July 6, 1907. The National Red Cross Association has undertaken to furnish stamps this year for use thruout the entire country. Wisconsin expects to sell 1,000,000; La Crosse has undertaken to sell 120,000; Madison 100,000. Minnesota wants to sell 250,000 stands before Christmas for the State Anti-Tuberculosis Association.'

The stamps are exceedingly artistic and are in red and green with a holly wreath and bear the words "Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, 1908, National Red Cross Association." There is no question but that the 2,000 stamps should be disposed of in this city in a very short time and by the people of this city taking hold of the project with enthusiasm, they will have participated in a movement that will be of untold benefit to many who at the present time are without hope. The stamps will be on sale in the different stores thruout the city and every citizen should see that every Christmas package he sends out bears the greetings by means of the Red Cross Stamp.

NO CLUE TO ROBBERY OF SANCTUARY

NO TRACE OF ROBBER OR HOLY VESSELS STOLEN FROM E. G. FORKS CHURCH

No clue to the robbers of the sanctuary of the Sacred Heart church at East Grand Forks has been discovered by the police of that city altho the entire surrounding country has been notified of the robbery, which was discovered last Saturday. Philip Tessier, the janitor of church, discovered that the hold communion vessels, consisting of the solid gold chalice and the two ciboriums one of gold and the other of silver, had been taken from the tabernacle.

The robbery is one of the boldest that has ever occurred in the valley and the police are using every effort to locate the thief and the holy vessels. When Mr. Tessier entered the church Saturday morning to ring the bell, he did not notice anything out of order, but when he returned in the afternoon, he noticed the tabernacle was open and the holy vessels gone.

Rev. Father Green is in the habit of locking the tabernacle, but during his illness, he now being confined to the hospital, a very sick man, the tabernacle was locked and the key placed near at hand, where it was located by the thief. The church is left open on Saturday for the accommodation of worshippers and it is thought that the robbery took place sometime during the morning hours after 7 o'clock.

NECK BROKEN BY A FALL

C. McCOY SUSTAINS FATAL INJURY ON HIS FARM NEAR GRAND FORKS

FALLS FROM LOAD OF HAY AND THERE IS NO HOPE FOR HIS RECOVERY

From Wednesday's Daily—

C. McCoy is dying in St. Michaels hospital as a result of a fall from a load of hay sustained on his farm a mile and a half south of Grand Forks on Monday. McCoy was taken to St. Michaels hospital about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. His neck was broken and the physicians informed his son that there was no chance for his recovery. McCoy made his will during the day and prepared for the inevitable.

McCoy was hauling hay in company with his son on the Blackbird farm, a few miles south of town when the accident happened. His son at once sent for a physician and it was decided a litle later that his only hope was to take him to the hospital.

No Hope of Recovery

A consultation of physicians was held yesterday and it was decided that there was no hope for him.

McCoy is a widower and his only relative in this section is his son.

After the accident McCoy was conscious and he was able to arrange his affairs yesterday. Te talked with his son and friends and said goodbye to all of them. Death is expected any moment.

DEMAND MADE BY OLD SOLDIERS

INMATES WANT CONTROL OF HOME AT MINNEHAHA PLACED IN NEW HANDS

An effort to abolish the soldiers' home board and turn the control of the soldiers' home at Minnehaha over to the state board of control, will be made at the coming session of the legislature and there are some indications that the bill will have good support. When the board of control was first established, it was intended to include the soldiers' home but the inmates objected, as they did not wish to be classed with the penal and charitable institutions.

But the inmates have been making complaints for some time and the G. A. R. has sent committees to investigate and found nothing wrong, yet the complaints continue.

This fall the soldiers at the home made an almost unanimous demand to have the present board abolished and the institution placed under the board of control. The soldiers saw the legislative candidates in that district and made them promise to work for a bill to have this change made.

GRAND SIRE NOLEN DIED LAST EVENING

Judge John L. Nolen, grand sire of the soverign grand lodge, Independent order of Odd Fellows, died at Nashville, Tenn., hospital last night at 11:30. The immediate cause of his death was prostration and heart failure following a surgical operation for gall stones.

Judge Nolen was 55 years old and had practiced the profession of law there for 30 years. He was a native of Nolensville, Williamson county, Tenn. Judge Nolen leaves a widow, four sons and a daughter.

The Need of Fresh Air

Surely we need a fresh air campaign in this country as much as we can possibly need anything. We need a truer understanding of the marvelous benefits of fresh air and also of the benefits to be derived from the use of a good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. A glass at mealtime and before retiring will aid digestion and induce sound, refreshing sleep. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

MONTAGUE PRESIDENT

IMPORTANT SPECIAL MEETING OF SCHOOL BOARD HELD THIS MORNING

IMMEDIATE ACTION NECESSARY ON ACCOUNT OF MUCH IMPENDING BUSINESS

From Monday's Daily—

At a special meeting of the Board of Education called for 11:00 a. m. this morning the following resolutions was unanimously adopted after which the Board adjourned till 11:30 a. m., for the purpose of electing a new member to the Board of Education to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Cromb, also for the purpose of electing a president of the Board. This action was necessary on account of the fact that a number of school orders are due and awaiting the signature of the president. Mr. Ole O. Christianson was elected to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Cromb and Mr. R. J. Montague was elected president of the Board for the balance of the year.

Resolution

Whereas, John Cromb, who died in this city December 10, 1908, had been a member of the Board of Education of the city of Crookston during all the time since August 1, 1885, and during that time had been Secretary of the Board for sixteen years and its President during all the time since August 2, 1902, till the time of his death, and as a mark of respect, immediately upon learning of his death the Board met in special session and ordered the flags of the various schools of this city to be placed at half mast and to so remain until after the funeral and directed that the members of the Board should again meet in special session at eleven o'clock on Monday, December 14, 1908, for the adoption of appropriate resolutions relative to the demise of its President.

Therefore, be it resolved that the Board of Education of the city of Crookston in special meeting assembled at the office of the superintendent of the city schools this December 14, 1908, do hereby, as a testimonial of our respect and esteem for the memory and character of the deceased, adopt the foregoing preamble and these resolutions and order that the same be spread upon the records of the secretary as a part of the permanent records of this school district.

That we feel and know that we but carry out and declare the opinions and feelings of all people of the city who have been fortunate enough to have been familiarly acquainted with the deceased during his lifetime, in stating that his life and career in the city of Crookston during the past twenty-five years has been that of an active earnest and honest man who sincerely desired to promote the welfare of the people; that the members of this Board feel that they and the people of Crooksion have reason to be deeply grateful to the deceased for his work during his lifetime in the cause of education in this city and deeply deplore his death.

The Christmas Dinner

In spite of the fact that the word dyspepsia means literally bad cook, it will not be fair for many to lay the blame on the cook if they begin the Christmas Dinner with little appetite and end it with distress or nausea. It may not be fair for any to do that—let us hope so for the sake of the cook! The disease dyspepsia indicates a bad stomach, that's a weak stomach, rather than a bad cook, and for a weak stomach there is nothing else equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It gives the stomach vigor and tone, cures dyspepsia, creates appetite, and makes eating the pleasure it should be.

At the meeting Sunday of Wheatfield Lodge, No. 463, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen of Grand Forks the folowing officers were chosen:

F. M. Funge, master; M. L. Doyle, vice master; M. Traufler secretary; George Boyd, financier; R. E. McLaughlin, Journal agent; F. C. Whittaker, warden; R. T. Cady, conductor.

MORTAL REMAINS LAID TO REST

LAST SAD RITES OF HOSTS OF FRIENDS AND BROTHERS IMPRESSIVE

ESTEEM OF THE DEPARTED JOHN CROMB SHOWN BY LARGE CONCOURSE

From Monday's Daily—

All that was mortal of one of the city's foremost citizens was consigned to the grave yesterday afternoon amidst the presnce of a large concourse of loving relatives, friends and associates. The funeral of the late John Cromb will live long in the memory of every citizen, as a demonstration of the regard which a life devoted to the interests of other commands.

The funeral was by far the largest that has ever been held in the city and at the bereaved home and the church fellow citizens desired to render their last tributes to the man whose life was so intimately connected with the history of the municipality.

In the morning at 8 o'clock a special celebration of the Holy Eucharist was held in Christ church as a requiem, the members of the family all attending. At 12 o'clock the body was removed from the undertaking rooms to the home, an escort composed of six knights of Constantine Commandery, Knights Templar accompanying it. From this time until 1:30 o'clock the body lie in state and a constant stream of friends and associates of the deceased viewed the remains, and paid this mark of respect to his memory.

Removed to the Church

The remains were then taken to Christ church the procession from the house being lead by the local lodge of Elks, who were followed by the Old Settlers' Association, the School Board, the Bar Association, and the different bodies of Masons, the Knights Templar forming the guard of honor.

The church was filled with citizens who desired to witness the beautiful Episcopal services for the dead and hundreds were unable to gain admittance. The exercises were conducted by the Rev. Richard Cox and thruout they were impressive. A quartet rendered the beautiful music which accompanied the services, this portion of the exercises having been arranged for by Professor Powers, of the local schools.

Beautiful Floral Tributes.

The casket as it reposed at the chancel was banked with the beautiful floral tributes that had been sent by the different societies, lodges, civic organization and personal friends and associates, as their tribute to the memory of the departed. The beautiful emblems were very elaborate and demonstrated the loving respect in which John Cromb was regarded.

Services at Cemetery

As soon as the services were concluded at the church the journey to the grave was started. The funeral procession was lead by the members of the Old Settlers' Association and they were followed by the different lodges and societies participating in the services. After the hearse carrying the remains a large number of carriages carrying relatives and friends followed.

After a short service conducted by Rev. Cox had been concluded the Blue Lodge took charge of the body and the beautiful and impressive service of the Masons was conducted by Worshipful Master Tom Morris.

The lodges and societies participating in the last sad rites of the deceased were: the Blue Lodge, the Knight's Templar, the Chapter, the Elks, the Order of Eastern Star, the Old Settlers' Association, the Polk County Bar Association, the School Board.

The following acted as pall-bearers:

The honorary pall bearers were Messrs A. D. Stephens, Alden Braley, Wm. Watts, J. E. Morrisey, John Moore, M. R. Brown, Max Ericsson, and Lorenzo Davis.

The active pall bearers were Messrs W. G. Lytle, S. M. Walsh, Frank D. Bell, A. A. Miller, J. W. Wheeler and Lewis Ellington.

MISTOOK MAN FOR DEER DIED OF BROKEN HEART

Chas. Wingren, Who Shot His Companion While Deer Hunting Grieved Over Unfortunate Affair.

The following telegram from St. Paul tells of the sad ending of a regretable accident in the history of hunting in northern Minnesota, where in the carelessness of a homesteader resulted in the death of a neighbor and close friend.

"St. Paul, Dec. 22—The state board of control yesterday received news of the death at his home in Koochiching county of Charles Wingren a paroled prisoner. He died suddenly of heart disease. The board thinks it was due more to his troubles than anything else.

"Wingren while hunting last March killed a man, mistaking him for a deer and was arrested under the law which designates such errors as manslaughter. It was plainly an accident and tho friends tried to induce him to make a fight for his liberty he insisted on pleading guilty and was accordingly sentenced to the reformatory.

"Wingren was at once released on parole and was sent back to his family His health failed rapidly, however, and it is said that he died of a broken heart. He has a wife and seven children."

At the time Wingren killed his companion, Judge C. W. Stanton was county attorney of Koochiching county, and that gentleman appeared before the pardon board the same day that Wingren was sentenced by Judge McClenahan. Judge Stanton secured an order from the board whereby Wingren was placed on parole and allowed to return to his home and resume the labor of supporting his family. The death of Wingren is a sad termination of the shooting incident. Wingren was exonerated by his companion before the latter died.

MENTOR SUEFERS FROM DISASTROUS BLAZE

Four Business Houses, Warehouse And Dwelling Burn. Total Loss Nearly $15,000 Small Insurance.

From Tuesday's Daily—

Last evening at 9:10 fire was discovered in the Victor Weidecamper general store at Mentor and by 10 o'clock when the fire was gotten under control that store with A. M. Coffey's hardware store and Jens Olson's feed store, Coffey's warehouse, a barber shop and a residence in the rear were in ashes with contents, and the bank building and others were only saved by hard fighting. Hose was sent down from here on the Duluth train, but arrived too late to be of service, tho the Mentorites appreciated the prompt response made.

The fire is supposed to have started from a stove in Weidecamper's. His loss on stock is about $4000, partly insured; Coffey's loss on stock is about $3,000 partly insured and Olson's loss on stock $1,500 with no insurance. The loss on the above three buildings was about $4,000, while the barber shop, warehouse and small dwelling were worth about $1,500, making the total loss between $14,000 and $15,000.

The loss is a severe one to Mentor, but it is understood that all those burned out will rebuild at once. No one was injured. The fire fighter worked valiantly or the loss would have been much greater.

PEDDLER ROBBED OF HIS LIFE'S SAVINGS

Highwaymen Beat Him To Death And Take $3,500. Brutal Murder. Montreal Peddler The Victim.

St. John, N. B., Dec. 22—As he was carrying the savings of thirty years of endeavor to a bank, Patrick Green of Montreal, a peddler, was beaten to death Saturday by highwaymen who escaped with a valise which contained $3,500.

Green who was about 50, was walking from Plaster Rock to St. John. He had been in the habit of carrying his earnings with him, but on the advice of his friends he decided to deposit his money in a bank. There is no such institution in Plaster Rock and Green started out to walk to this city.

As he was crossing a small foot bridge over a stream he was attacked from the front by a highwayman. He turned and fled and as he reached the end of the bridge another bandit sprang from a clump of bushes and felled him with a club.

Green made a desperate fight to retain his savings as the handle of the valise was found tightly clutched in his hands. The robbers fled with the money. Green was found by pedestrians and the police of St. John were notified. The rifled valise was picked up in a field near the scene of the crime. No trace of the murderers has been procured, altho Green, before dying gave a good description of his assailants.

JUDGE WATTS FILLS VACANCIES IN THE CITY CHARTER COMMISSION

Judge Watts has named Senator A. D. Stephens and Judge L. E. Gossman as members of the Charter Commission to succeed the late John Cromb and Hon. P. M. Ringdal, the latter now being absent from Crookston practically all the time attending to his duties as member of the State Board of Control.

The new members have both qualified and Judge Watts could not have done better than in the selections he has made to fill the vacancies.

BAGGAGE SMASHERS MAY REFORM

Are the glorious days of baggage smashing soon to be a thing of the past? Will baggage men ever treat trunks and kindred receptacles with tender care? This is all going to come to poss according to the general baggage agents of the Twin Cities. At a meeting the other day plans were discussed for the betterment of the service. Baggagemen who in the past have shunted trunks with careless abandon, agree that there should be a change. So if you see the baggage hustler gently easing your trunks to the pavement, careful least he destroy the varnish finish, be not overcome—don't call the ambulance or ask for a sanity commission. The reform wave has struck the baggage man, that's all.

TR'GIC DEATH OF TWO IN N.D.

Minneapolis, Dec. 22—A heroic fight to build a home for himself and his aged wife on the plains of North Dakota has ended with the death of Peter Peterson, 65 years old, and slender chance for the recovery of his wife. Last Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Peterson retired as usual in their home shanty near Esmond, Pierce county, North Dakota, and the discovery of the clogged pipe of their coal stove tells the tale of the tragic end. They were overcome by the fumes.

A MIGHTY FINE XMAS PRESENT

H. E. NESNE GIVES STONE CUTTERS 9 HOUR DAY WITH 10 HOURS PAY

The stone cutters in the employ of the Crookston Marble Works have just received a very fine Christmas present from Manager H. E. Nesne in the form of a formal notice to the effect that in the future they will be expected to work but an eight hour day but will draw pay for ten hours as before.

Mr. Nesne decided that ten hours was too long a shift for that class of work, and hereafter the stone cutters will not have to report for work till 8 o'clock in the morning instead of 7 as in the past.

This is in line with the rules of the large marble works in the east and the consideration shown his employes by Mr. Nesne is deeply appreciated by all the men.

A Shining Mark.

A lady, grievously tormented with a corn on her toe, was advised by one of her friends to anoint it with phosphorus, which in a weak moment she did but forgot to tell her husband before retiring at night. It had just turned 12 when the husband awoke and was startled to see something sparkling at the foot of the bed. He had never heard of a firefly in the locality, nor did he ever remember seeing such a terrible looking object as the toe presented. Reaching carefully out of bed till he found one of his slippers, he raised it high in the air and brought it down with grea force upon the mysterious light.

A shriek and an avalanche of bed clothes, and all was over. When at last he released himself from the bed clothes he discovered his wife groaning in a corner of the bedroom, but she had got rid of that phosphorated corn. —London Graphic.

CONCERTED ACTION TO IMPROVE FARM METHODS

SENATOR STEPHENS BANQUETS 50 FARMERS AT HOTEL CROOKSTON AND OUTLINES HIS PLAN TO DISTRIBUTE PRIZES AMOUNTING TO $1000 TO IMPROVE GRAINS, STOCK, ETC., IN POLK COUNTY—ADDRESSES MADE BY LEADING FARMERS OF THE COUNTY WHO ENDORSE THE PLAN OUTLNIED

From Tuesday's Daily—

About 50 farmers from all parts of Polk County gathered today in the city upon invitation of Senator Stephens who banqueted them at dinner at the Hotel Crookston, after which cigars were distributed and the Senator briefly outlined his plan to distribute $1,000 in cash prizes to the farmers of Polk County next fall for grains, and improved stock, the central idea being to encourage more scientific and practical farming in Polk county.

His plan is to give a first prize of $100 divided into three prizes of $50 $30 and $20 for the best results obtained from not less than ten acres, provided 100 must enter the competition yield and quality to be taken into consideration.

2nd prize, $100 divided the same, 100 farmers at least to enter, each one to raise at least 5 acres in competition.

3rd prize, $100, divided same, under same conditions for best five acres of barley.

4th prize, $100, divided same, 50 competitors, for best 2 acres of potatoes.,

5th prize, $100, divided the same, 50 competitors for best 5 acres of corn.

6th prize, $100, divided the same, 50 competitors at least, for best five acres of clover.

In above samples of grains with sworn statement of yield corroborated by neighbor or thresher, to be delivered next November.

7th prize, $100, divided into $50, $30 and $20 prizes where farmers of four townships will purchase four Holstein bulls and rotate them season after season from one township to the other, for the best calf raised, either sex.

8th prize, $100, divided the same, for the best Percheron colt raised either sex, from thorobred sire.

9th and 10th prizes of $100 each for hogs and sheep under terms to decided upon by the farmers.

Addresses were made by many of those present and there is no question but that a spirit of progress has been started which will work wonders in Polk County.

A Favorite Sundae

A college favorite sundae for evening gatherings is merely plain vanilla ice cream served in glass cups with chocolate sauce, into which chopped nuts have been stirred, turned over it. A favorite beverage for the evening refreshment is golden grain belt beer. The pure, wholesome qualities of this beverage has made it the one most popular among particular people. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

Bouncing Betsey.

There is an old fashioned flower called "Bouncing Betsey," which every one should love for one trait. We have noticed that it grows on all neglected graves, as if trying to cover up the fact that some one who once lived is forgotten. It may also be found in corners of old fashioned gardens, where it grows and blooms and protests against being pushed out entirely. There are some dear old fashioned people who suggest "Bouncing Betsey."—Atchison Globe.

EASILY PREPARED, AND CURES WEAK KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

Here is a simple home made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe Try it:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and four decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

$26,000 FIRE AT HAWLEY

DEPARTMENT STORE IN A TWO-STORY BRICK BLOCK IS BURNED OUT

DEFECTIVE FURNACE SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN THE ORIGIN OF FIRE

A fire which is believed to have started from a defective furnace burned the Ritteman block at Hawley about 8 a. m. today. The ground floor of the building was occupied by the Eld Mercantile company as a department store. The building and all its $12,000 on building and $14,00 on the contents were destroyed. The loss is stock. The insurance is $10,000 on the building and a like sum on the stock.

The block was of brick and two stories in height. The upper story had just been remodeled for lodgerooms. None of the societies had moved in and that part was vacant. The town has no fire protection, but the absence of wind and the thick walls of the building served to confine the fire to the place of its origin. The main walls of the building are standing and may be utilized in its reconstruction.

Foley Independent: Some of the brethern are clamoring for a candidate for two years hence who will be able to unite the different factions of the Republican party. While we are not sure as to just what they want, we take it that they are looking for sort of an emulsion candidate. In other words, one who represents a blend of water and oil. If that is what is needed we may as well give the Democratic party a ninety-nine year lease, for it will take fully that long to wipe out the old scores. If the "houdah" is occupied by any one but the true-blue we may as well commence to save our money for another tombstone.

As a rule naughtiness does not come to naught.

SPLIT HOOFED ROADSTER

AFTER MAKING A 35 MILE TRIP IN ONE DAY EXCITES INTEREST IN CROOKSTON

FRED IVERSON ARRIVES WITH A LOAD OF SKUNK OIL FROM THE NORTHEAST

Less than 25 years ago about as many farmers drove to Crookston behind ox-teams as behind horses and mules, but for many years past the appearance of an ox-team on the streets has been a decided novelty and scarcely more than one or two a year are seen of late years. The appearance on the streets last evening of a single steer, hitched to a sort of sled, known as a "jumper" or "go-devil" in native parlance, soon attracted a big crowd, and when the driver, Fred Iverson a former resident of Crookston stopped in front of a drugstore and lugged in the oil from 20 skunks, worth $20, and stated that he had driven from a relative's farm 12 miles northwest of Thief River Falls to this city, a distance of 35 miles since morning, stopping enroute for a wolf hunt which delayed him three hours, the incident was deemed very much out of the ordinary.

A 35 mile drive would not be a very bad one for a team of horses with a fair load, and Iverson's steer walked into the city with head up and no signs of fatigue and seemingly proud that he was upholding fallen dignity of steerdom.

Mr. Iverson is of the opinion that the passing of the ox is to be deplored. He says they are kept more cheaply, require much less attention have greater endurance and can cover pretty near as much ground in a day, and do it day after day, as a horse.

He announced that after attending to some business here he would proceed north to Warren a distance of 30 miles with his split hoofed roadster and from there back to the farm near Thief River for another skunk killing, and expected to bring in a batch of wolves also next time, as he believes he can locate the den of the one he wounded yesterday but failed to capture. He says there is big money in skunk shooting up that way, and the receipts are clear profit and will yield a good income for the settler or farmer who wants to keep busy during the winter months.

A ruling of some importance has been made by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Olsen regarding the use of public funds by boards of education in rural districts in the construction of barns at the school houses and the decision was not made until after a consultation with the attorney general. It is the opinion of the department of education that public money may be used in housing horses employed in transporting children to and from public schools. The question was raised in a school district in Lincoln county and the attorney general holds that school boards may provide the necessary funds for the purpose.

This is in line and in encouragement of consolidated districts in rural communities, as the consolidated district may provide proper barns to shelter horses that are driven in by children coming from a distance to the school. It would seem to be good reasoning and the entire state will agree that the provision is a wise one, as it will better equip districts for accommodating pupils who may reside some distance from the school house.

Something the dentist's success depends on the number of snags he runs up against.

BIG YIELD NEW OATS

HENRY BEARDMORE RAISED 70 BUSHELS PER ACRE OF A NEW VARIETY

THEY TESTED 45½ POUNDS TO THE BUSHEL AND ARE COMERS

From Thursday's Daily—

Henry Beardmore, one of the prominent Polk County farmers from the northwest corner in the town of Sandsville, who has been doing jury duty, returned home this morning where he will remain during the holiday adjournment and was well pleased with the rapid disposal of the criminal cases.

Pleased with Stephen's Plan

Mr. Beardmore is very much pleased with Senator Stephen's plan to entertain several farmers from each township in Polk county and distribute prizes amounting to $1,000. The meeting will be held here Tuesday, December 22, and Mr. Beardmore will be one of the representatives from Sandsville at the meeting and thinks the idea will result in great good.

Very Prolific Oats

Mr. Beamore for years has made a practice of selecting the choicest seed grains of all kinds, and has introduced many new varities which have yielded well.

Last spring he secured 4 bushels of Regenerated Swedish Select oats bred up by a large English firm which has 20,000 acres in England used exclusively for the production of seed grains. He sowed the 4 bushels on 2 acres and threshed 140 bushels of oats that tested 45½ pounds to the bushel, and a sample of this was sent to the recent International Grain Exhibit at Omaha, but has not received returns as yet. Such weight and such a yield is remarkable and all the oats raised will be needed this year.

Mr. Thomas, who resides near Warren, sent an exhibit of Barley to Omaha also, and received 3rd prize, which is a good showing for an international contest, and Mr. Thomas did not exercise extraordinary care in selecting the barley which he sent

MAKES SPECIALTY OF DOCTORING DOGS

According to a well defined report "Krabbe Klark" is now doing a dual stunt these days. In addition to his regular stunt on the Grand Forks, Crookston, Cass Lake run, he has purchased a complete set of instruments needed for alleviating the modern ailments of dogs. While it is understood that he will not turn any worthy dog down, and will operate on a yellow mongrel for ingrowing toenails if necessary, still he will make a specialty of lap dogs and poodles with a special course of treatment for swaybacks.

He will have offices at Cass Lake and Grand Forks on week days and has leased the Crookston Cracker factory where he will hold forth on Sundays till larger quarters can be secured. His kit of instruments includes a carving knife big enough to amputate the leg of an elephant at one fell stroke. He carries this with him at all times for emergency calls.

It was in Denmark that the idea of the Christmas stamp originated and like many other good things originated in Scandinavia, it has been taken up enthusiastically elsewhere. Sweden was the first to follow Denmark's lead, and four years ago the sale of the first issue of Christmas stamps for the benefit of the anti-tuberculosis work yielded more than $30,000. The four series of Swedish stamps have yielded about $70,000 in all.

The Christmas Charity stamp has been taken up in America by the Red Cross society and Crookston this year for the first time has opportunity to make use of the pretty red stickers on its holiday packages.

The beauty of the idea must appeal to every heart. In the midst of general giving amongst those united by kinship and friendship the bright little stamp is a reminder of the unfortunate ones, to ameliorate whose condition this voluntary tax is laid on Christmas cheer. The great fight against tuberculosis, the most tremendous battle in which humanity is now engaged, must be kept going. The humble litiel stamp may be turned by widespread generosity into a mighty engine of war for its maintenance.

Says Tariff Benefits Workman.

Washington, Dec. 17. — Edward Brush, vice president of the American Smelting and Refining company, testified before the house ways and means committee regarding the lead schedule of the tariff. He claimed that the duty on lead is for the benefit of the miner, but also said that there would not be any lead produced in this country if the tariff is taken off.

AL. PATTEWAY FOUND GUILTY

OF GRAND LARCENY IN SECOND DEGREE BY JURY AFTER A LONG STRUGGLE

WILL APPEAL CASE—TWO OTHER NEGROES ARE SENTENCED

From Thursday's Daily—

Shortly before 12 o'clock last evening the jury in the Patteway case agreed on a verdict finding the defendant guilty of grand larceny in the 2nd degree for robbing the Merchants National bank of which he was the janitor of about $1500 last May. Patteway was brought into court for sentence this afternoon, but Attorney C. O. Longley asked for a stay of sentence pending preparations for an appeal which was granted and the case will be fought out in the supreme court. If the verdict is sustained Judge Watts can sentence Patteway to a fine as low as $1 or send him to the penitentiary for 5 years.

Martin Hill, for robbing a man named Olson was sentenced to 3 years at Stillwater, and his pal, Chas. Depohnette, was sentenced to the reformatory at St. Cloud and both will be taken away next week.

James Kelly, convicted of beating and robbing a man in East Grand Forks who was sentenced to one year at Stillwater, will be taken down tomorrow night.

Maybury Congratulated

With the conviction of Patteway, County Attorney Maybury has finished his last criminal case as prosecuting attorney of Polk county after four years of successful service, and he has received hearty congratulations for securing a conviction with nothing but circumstantial evidence to work on, and some of that flimsy. And coupled with this was the fact that Patteway was most ably defended by F. L. McGhee whose plea yesterday afternoon resulted in a tear bath of the court room floor in which the entire audience which packed the room contributed.

Just how much abuse and slander a big man should take from a little one before spanking him has always been a matter of dispute, as has been the measure of dignity which is lost or found by resenting persistent insults.

There are a good many small dogs who consider it a prerogative of their size to viciously snap the heels of large dogs. There are a good many men of wealth and power who, behind these breastworks, assume the privilege of throwing ripe eggs at their "inferiors."

There are men whose every spoken or written word is an insult ,and whose arrogance is in itself almost unbearable. Again, there are many good and self-respecting people who consider any breach of the peace or reply in kind a loss of dignity, and that especially a man in official position must bear in silence all that comes his way, no matter how unjust and contemptible.

President Roosevelt frequently grieves these because he absolutely refuses to turn the other cheek, but answers with which ever fist is otherwise disengaged. But on the whole most people like his rough and ready tactics and can see no reason why a president of the United States should simply stand as a target for whatever any evilly disposed person may choose to aim at him.

The armor of conscious honor and goodness is much of a myth and rather guards "mollycoddles" than the strenuous. The Roosevelts at least are not built to be sunk simply because of custom or tradition, and few blame the President for his latest reply as to the Panama canal canards

The rights of the French were bought at a price agreed upon by congress. It was much less than half the price demanded as the lowest French figure. It was that fixed by this government thru a commission of engineers as fair. It was accepted by both the old and new Panama companies, the latter growing out of the reorganization of the former.

Only the property and the franchise were bought, not the companies nor their stocks. They settled their differences in the French court, and these did not concern this company further than as effectig the title.

An American holding company was at one time organized to take over the claims of both companies, but this was soon abandoned, and when the amount was paid it went directly to France thru the banking house of J. P. Morgan and was disbursed in Paris. It was paid out to more than 226,000 individuals, who all called personally and receipted for their payments.

For any Americans to have received a considerable amount in any way was almost impossible under these conditions. To accuse Mr. Taft and members of his family of having been in such a conspiracy and by implication to involve President Roosevelt was nothing less than outrageous.

PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

W. F. HUNT THE RAILROAD PROMOTOR AGAIN VISITS CITY THIS WEEK

HE STATES THAT SURVEYORS WILL START WORK ON THE 1ST OF JANUARY

From Friday's Daily—

W. F. Hunt the promoter of the proposed railroad to run from Thief River Falls to Roosevelt, was in the city the first of the week. Mr. Hunt came to Thief River Falls over the proposed line with H. Robbirstad, a civil engineer, who says that the proposed road can be built at a very small expense as far as grading is concerned.

To the News Mr. Hunt stated that a majority of the organized townships thru which the proposed road is to pass have already voted sums of money from $200 to $400 to assist in making the survey and that a free right-of way has been guaranteed. On the 1st day of January Mr. Hunt says that the surveying party will leave Roosevelt and run the line to Thief River Falls. Some of the homesteaders are so earnest in seeing the road built that they will at once commence the work of grading after the lines have been established.

Mr. Hunt says that he has been given positive assurance that as soon as the road has been surveyed, the right-of-way and terminal ground secured, that he can secure a loan of sufficient amount to do the grading, buy and lay the steel and purchase the necessary equipment. He believes that there can be no question but that the road will be a paying one from the start.—Thief River Falls News.

The action of the University of Minnesota in fixing 65 years as the retiring age for professors has started a small blaze of discussion thruout the country and it is notable that almost every comment that has come to The Herald's notice has been hostile to the idea.

Before the Carnegie foundation made it possible to retire university professors in comfort such a plan would not have been thought of, probably, and it is a little difficult to see just why it should have been thought of even with this refuge open for the superannuated professor.

There is something about a life of mental activity, unaccompanied by physical dissipation, that seems to make not only for longevity but for the retention of mental powers to a late period in life. If all the educators and scientists in the world had always been put upon a shelf at the age of 65 the world would have lost a vast amount of valuable service. In fact, it is impossible to fix an arbitrary age at which mental activity and power may be presumed to have become so materially lessened as to warrant retirement. One man might become worn out at 50, while another might be immensely useful at 80—tho both cases are admittedly uncommon.

The impression seems to be abroad judging by the comments that are being heard, that the Minnesota university has made a serious mistake; and there seems to be good reason to accept that view. The New York World says: "If Cato learned Greek at 80, was it necessary that his instructor should be fifteen years his junior?" The World also gives some instances that go to show that 65 should not mark the termination of lives of mental activity: "Dr. Walcott Gibbs gave up the Rumford professorship of chemistry at 65 but only to fill a larger place in science. When Professor Shaler and J. K. Paine died, each past 65 the feeling was general that they had died untimely. Harvard did not retire Prof. Goodwin until the age of 70, and Charles Eliot Norton at 71. Prof. Sumner of Yale is in harness at 68. The late Daniel C. Gilman was in active service when past 70 as president of the Carnegie Institution. Harvard's president is 74 the age at which President Northrup of the University of Minnesota, which seeks to impose to this limit on intellectual usefulness, has just resigned." And the World might have added that the university which seeks to impose this limit on intellectual usefulness has refused to acept President Northrup's resignation.

If a university were free, both by rule and by custom, to retire any professor when it is clear that his work can better be done by a younger man, that would seem to be sufficient. It is fully as bad to retire at an arbitrary age men who are manifestly good for wears of usefulness as it is to retain men whom age and decrepitude have made unfit to continue at work.—Duluth Herald.

SUFFERED WITH ECZEMA 25 YEARS

Limb Peeled and Foot Was Like Raw Flesh—Had to Use Crutches, and Doctors Thought Amputation Necessary — Montreal Woman Writes of Cure Seven Years Ago.

BELIEVES LIFE SAVED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off, but I said I would try the Cuticura Remedies first. He said, "Try them if you like, but I do not think they will do any good." At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bottle of Cuticura Pills. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor could not believe his own eyes when he saw that Cuticura had cured me and said that he would use it for his own patients. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three boxes of Ointment, and five bottles of Resolvent, and I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. I have lots of grandchildren, and they are frequent users of Cuticura, and I always recommend it to the many people whom my business brings to my house every day. "RUN I AM GOING UP"

THE SUICIDE YELLS WHEN HE TOUCHES OFF BOX OF DYNAMITE

HORRIBLE METHOD SELECTED BY HOMESTEADER TO END HIS LIFE

From Friday's Daily—

"Run for your lives. I'm going up" were the last words shouted by a Deer River homesteader yesterday according to reports brought in by a traveling man who arrived on the train from the east last night.

Then there was a terrible explosion and Claus Carlson's dramatic method of taking his life in a tent, about two miles north of Deer River, horrified his friends and gave the coroner something to do to gather up the fragments of human flesh.

Carlson who was 28 years old recently received a letter from Sweden telling about his sister committing suicide by blowing herself up with dynamite. This is supposed to have preyed on his mind to such an extent that he chose the same unusual method.

It was about 7 o'clock yesterday morning when Carlson gave the warning quoted above to some acquaintances who were in the same tent back of Carlson's home in which some lumbermen's outfit was stored. He was seated on a box of dynamite and was deliberately lighting a fuse running into the explosive. He did not have to give a second warning. The men tore themselves away and then came the explosion. The tent and contents were blown to pieces, while Carlson's body lacerated almost beyond recognition was hurled fifty feet.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM THURSDAYS DAILY

CIVIL PAPERS — Deputy Sheriff Orin Daniels made a trip to Fisher last evening returning on the late train, where he served some civil papers.

RETURNED TO ST. PAUL — Attorney F. C. McGhee left last evening for his home at St. Paul after defending A. Patteway in a most able manner.

ON HOLIDAY TRIP—H. G. Posey who has been railroading out of this city for some time past has left for St. Paul and from there will go to Superior where he will remain for the holidays, returning to work here about the first of the year.

HAPPY HANS HERE—Chief of Police Hans Ellingson of East Grand Forks came over on the Northern Pacific yesterday afternoon on some court business, returning last evening. He has been in Crookston a good portion of the time during the present term of the district court as it was owing to the good work done by himself and force that several of the crooks have been sent over the road.

JOLLIES GENIAL JOE—Joseph F. Koelmel of Crookston was among the traveling men who registered at the Markham yesterday. Mr. Koelmel was for many years engaged in the saloon business at Crookston and while acting as the manager of the "Little Gem" he made many friends in northern Minnesota. "Joe" is now traveling on the road for a wholesale house and is doing very well.—Bemidji Pioneer

THREE FIGHT CANNON— Three Minnesota congressmen, Charles A. Davis, A. J. Volstead and C. A. Lindbergh, took part in the insurgent caucus called to consider plans for revising the rules of the house. The insurgent movement is headed by Representatives Hepburn of Iowa, and promises to become formidable at once. Twenty-five Republicans were present at last night's meeting and another caucus has been called for Tuesday evening. The fight on the rules is not to be delayed until the organization of the next congress but is to be started at once, according to present plans. It is proposed to amend the rules, if possible, so that the speaker must recognize the members in order of their rising, instead of arbitrarily as he does at present.—Fergus Falls Journal.

WILL WINTER IN CANADA—Thore Thoreson, one of the pioneer valley boys raised in western Polk county spent yesterday in the city with friends and left this morning for Kaslo, British Columbia, where he will spend the winter with an aunt. His sister spent the summer there and was much pleased with the country. They may take a claim before returning. He had the Daily Journal sent after him to keep in touch with the homefolks.

A LIVE WIRE — Robert Balfour, one of the live wires of Euclid, spent Tuesday night in the city on business, returning home yesterday morning. He says the New Years Eve Ball to be given at the Woodmen Hall at Euclid Dec. 31, is going to be a hummer. It needs no argument to prove that to a resident of this city, as Euclid is noted for successful dances. Many fro mhere will drive up if the weather is not too severe.

"KING OF NORWAY" HERE — L. B. Larson, one of the well known traveling salesmen of Crookston a few years ago, then travelling for Nichols and Dean, wholesale hardware, arrived this morning from Billings, Montana, and will visit here for a while. Mr. Larson was referred to as "the King of Norway" while making this city headquarters, and the knights of the grip all hailed him by the same title this morning as he stepped off the train and many travelers stood gaping about as they heard the salutation shouted, as tho they expected the real king of Norway was here.

BOUGHT ELLENDALE PAPER— A. M. Beveridge editor of the Lakota American and formerly connected with Grand Forks and Crookston papers, has just completed a deal for the purchase of the Ellendale (N. D.) Record. The transfer becomes effective with the first issue in January, which will be in charge of the new proprietor. He has tendered his resignation as editor and manager of the Lakota American whichtakes effect January 1.

Mr. Beveridge is a thoro newspaper man, knows the business from one end to the other and will doubtless make a success of his Ellendale investment.

NAULT MAKES A HIT—The moving picture machine at the opera house is an exceptionally good one being devoid of the flicker usually found in moving pictures and Mr. Joseph Nault is an adept at running it and Ada people are fortunate in being provided with this real good clean cheap and instructive amusement and those who go show their appreciation by regular attendance. — Norman County Herald.

UNDERWENT OPERATION—Atty. E. O. Hagen has just received word that his brother Chris in the accounting department of the educational department at Manila, has just recovered from an operation for appendicitis. He was taken sick Nov. 1st but being in good health was in the hospital but ten days and was back at work in 17 days, a remarkably rapid recovery.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

AMONG PINES — Otto Koeppe spent yesterday at Wilton and other places on the east line seeing that the boys all had a goodly stock of fine holiday cigars.

ENGINEERS GO WEST — C. P. Hughes, H. M. Woodrand and Ray DeWitt left this morning for Great Falls where they will be employed as engineers on the Great Northern railroad.

MADE TWO TRIPS—H. F. Brown is recovering slowly but steadily from a bad attack of rheumatism. He has made two trips on the road, having just returned from Bemidji and other points.

BOUGHT GOOD QUARTER —Alexandre Brossoit has bought a quarter section of land of Wm. Anglim of this city, in the town of Tamarack, Marshall county. Mr. Brossoit worked this piece of land last summer and realized 19 bushels to the acre.

TO ERECT NEW BUILDING—The Theo. Hamm Brewing company of St. Paul will erect a four-story brick steel and tile store building, for Emporium company, east side of Robert street and south side of Eighth street in that city at a cost of $225,000.

THIEF RIVER FALLS MASONS— At a meeting of the Masonic lodge at Thief River Falls Monday evening the following officers were elected.

W. M.—W. B. Fuller.
S. W.—W. A. Wyman.
J. W.—Dr. Heiber.
Secretary—Herman Peterson.
Treasurer—T. L. Melgaard.

PLASTERING FINISHED — John Green yesterday finished the plastering of the Franklin School building and the balance of the work will be rushed as rapidly as possible. The fine new building will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks. The system of heating and ventilation is said to be the most complete and modern in the northwest.

HUSTLE THEM ALONG— "Send your express packages early" say the express agents. "Remember that yours will only be one out of several million Christmas packages that will be sent this year and while it will be given just the same service as anybody else's we can't get it to its destination on time if you send it late or depend upon the same service you get at ordinary times."

BOOSTING FOR "DAD"—J. C. Sabin of the firm of Griggs, Cooper & Co., the oldest traveling man making this district, and who sells to more of the trade than any other man making this territory, left Argyle Monday evening for St. Paul to spend the Christmas holidays. We know of no transient in our "dictionary" who will receive more wishes for a Merry Christmas than will Mr. Sabin."—Argyle Banner.

DR. WATSON INJURED— Dr. N. M. Watson the well known Red Lake Falls physician is said to be in a critical condition, the result of an accident. While stepping out of a sleigh at Red Lake Falls he slipped and fell to the ground. Mr. Watson did not believe that he had been at all seriously bruised and continued to attend his duties but is now in a critical condition. It appears that in the fall he sustained an internal injury. Dr. Dunlop of Crookston and Dr. McDonald of Minneapolis have been in attendance and the many friends of Watson in this city hope that he will soon recover.

MRS. O. T. TANBERG INJURED— Mrs. O. T. Tanberg, came near being killed at Red Lake Falls a few days ago. She was walking down the big hill on the north side of the river which leads to the bridge and two young boys were coming behind her running a race down the hill. Mrs. Tanberg stepped aside to let one of the boys pass her, and did not see the other boy stepping into his path. When the two met Mrs. Tanberg was thrown into the air and sustained a severe bruise on the back of her head For nearly three hours she was unconscious and for a time it was feared she would not live. She is now getting along nicely however.

CRAWFORD AN INVENTOR — Archie Crawford after several months work has just completed a Christmas novelty which has "Pigs in the Clover" and "How Old is Ann" beat a mile on the first heat. Full details will be published later after patents have been applied for and it is expected to put the device on sale before Christmas this year. It is a combination vegetable and china device, guaranteed to set the purchaser crazy within a week and promote suicide. It will make a great hit with the troublesome mother-in-law. and also promises to greatly encourage the raising of green peas in this section and may result in the Northern Pressed Brick Co., adding a pottery plant at once.

GET PENSIONS — Congressman Halvor Steenerson has secured the granting of two new pensions for worthy applicants residing in this district. One was granted to Eugene Dady of Warren, who will get $12 per month, from Oct. 22, 1908. He was a member of Company C. Eighteenth N. Y. volunteer cavalry, and this is the first pension he has received. The other claim for a pension was from Bella S. Campion of Angus a widow of William Campion of Company A, Thirty-eighth Wisconsin Volunteer infantry. She has been granted a pension of $12 per month dating form May 16, 1908. Mrs. Campion is spending the winter in Los Angeles California.

A meagre report was received from Argyle last evening to the effect that a mail sack thrown from the Great Northern Flyer yesterday morning had been lugged off a short distance by robbers, cut open and the contents rifled.

It is not known what is missing but it is believed that the robbers in some way know that there was to be some heavy registered shipments in that mail, and secured quite a haul. They left no clue. The sack was found by Jack Sinclair.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

SLIGHTLY CHILLY—The thermometer took a sudden drop last evening [illegible] instruction of the weather clerk and with a brisk north wind made a close personal relationship between one's coat collar and his ears.

ENJOYED COUNTRY LIFE—Rev. Hollowell who preaches at the Baptist church Sunday morning and evening, returned yesterday from a two days' visit at the R. E. Smith farm south of the city. He leaves Sunday evening for his home at Northfield for a week on business after which he wil lreturn to his duties here for a month or more.

PROMINENT FARMER HERE — E. Johnson one of the prominent farmers of Angus, who purchased the F. McLennan farm at that place one of the finest in northern Polk spent yesterday in the city attending to some business matters and joined the family of Daily Journal readers. While in the city Mr. Johnson completed the sale of 40 acres of fine hay land west of his main farm to Frank Taus. Mr. Johnson while one of the new farmers i nthat section is making good.

DISPOSING OF CHURCH PROPERTY—Rev. W. S. Ward and Pastor Evangelist D. K. Laurie of the Presbyterian church spent yesterday at Fisher where they went in connection with the disposal of the church property at Fisher, the congregation having disbanded three years ago there. The pews will be shipped to Roseau for the new Presbyterian church just erected there, and the church building will probably be sold to Hamilton Bros. of Fisher.

WOMAN WEDS WILY WILEY

NOW SHE IS SORRY THAT SHE EVER MET FORMER REAL ESTATE DEALER

MR. TINDOLPH SAID TO HAVE MADE $5,000 OUT OF AN UNSUCCESSFUL MARRIAGE

From Friday's Daily—

Wiley Tindolph well known to the people of Thief River Falls, having been one of the first real estate dealers there, and well known in Crookston also, is in trouble—or at least he had made trouble for the aunt of F. H. Conger. Wiley married last May and altho the marriage does not appear to have been a success, the former Thief River Falls real estate dealer appears to have made a profit of $5,000 out of the deal, even if his heart did suffer some pain.

A short time ago Chief of Police A. W. Lang of Thief River Falls received a letter from F. H. Conger, of the firm of Auld & Conger Co., manufacturers in rofing slate, etc., of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Conger was inquiring as to the character of Mr. Tindolph. The following letter to Mr. Lang will explain itself.

"Mr. A. W. Lang, Chief of Police, Thief River Falls, Minn.

Dear Sir: Referring again to my inquiry of December 2nd on Mr. Wiley Tindolph, in your city off and on for some years back, I wish to state that this party married my aunt in May of this year and in October she left him and returned east. During the brief time mentioned he inveigled her into deeding her property to him absolutely without any consideration whatsoever; later he compelled her to give him $1,500 in cash and notes for $3,500 before he would deed the property back.

The above mentioned facts which are exactly true are self explanatory. You can obtain considerable data on this party from almost any of the citizens of Vincennes, Ind. I might state in closing that the information given in this letter is not confidential as you are at liberty to use it as you see fit or to refer anyone desiring further details to me.

Yours very truly,
—F. H. Conger.

GUS WARNKE OPENS RESTAURANT

Gus Warnke has leased the restaurant at the rear of the R. J. Berg block on South Main street, the restaurant facing Market Street near the city scales, and served his first meal at noon today. Mr. Warnke has had valuable experience in that line of business, has boarded for many years himself and knows what his patrons want and will give them a good service at all times. The location is an excellent one and he will have a big farmer trade as well as local patronage and should do a fine business from the start. He was kept busy today and believes he will make a grand success of the venture and in this his wide acquaintance in the city and surrounding country will materially assist him.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Some of the state Republican newspapers complain because Governor Johnson went to Washington as a member of the conservation congress, and because he stopped by the way in response to invitations to deliver addresses. Were the governor a Republican these same newspapers would devote no end of space to extoll his rare virtues and would defend his absence from the state in that capacity as bringing great glory to the man and the commonwealth he represents. Mr. Johnson is a Democrat, but he is a man that is much bigger than any of the Republican editors of the state that assail him on such silly grounds.

Brainerd Dispatch: Adam Bede told a Washington newspaper correspondent that he had secured "more appropriations for lake harbor improvements in his district than they have had before since the birth of Adam, and more than they will get again before the death of the devil." Referred to Congressman Miller.

SCHOOL TAX IS LOW HERE

DESPITE SPLENDID FACILITIES COST TO TAX PAYERS LESS THAN AVERAGE

ONLY ONE CITY IN NORTHWEST WHERE LEVY IS LOWER THAN IN CROOKSTON

As a matter of comparison with this city, it may be of interest and value to note the assessed valuation of property and the school tax rate on the same of some of our neighboring high school towns. These figures are taken from the report of the state high school inspector for the year ending July 31, 1908. In some of these cases the school district includes more property than the municipality, and in all, it is likely that the assessed valuation was increasel by the assessment of property last June.

	Assessed valuation	Rate mills
Crookston	$1,595,000	20
Thief River Falls ..	$ 542,000	26

OTTERTAIL PIONEER HAS PASSED AWAY

VINING MINN., BANKER AND POLITICIAN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

A telephone message from Vining Otter Tail county announces the death of Andrew T. Lund, following a long illness. Mr. Lund was born in Norway and was 60 years of age. He came to t hat county in 1879 settling at what is now Vining. When the railway came thru and the station was established it was first known as Lund, but the name was changed by direction of the postoffice authorities.

A thriving village grew up and he established a private bank, which was later incorporated as Lund's State bank, he and his seven sons being the stockholders. He was a candidate for the republican congressional nomination, state senate and the Minnesota house, at different times. His death was due to Bright's disease

GRAND CENTRAL HOTEL PLAN IS PRAISED

CROOKSTON HOTEL HAS PROPER RETURN CARD ON ENVELOPES TO MAKE EFFECTIVE

If you send a letter in a hotel envelope and the envelope contains only the card of the hotel in the upper left hand corner, in case that letter is not called for in five days, it is forwarded to the dead letter office at Washington.

"This is a protection to the sender of the letter, and it is surprising how many hotels have their envelopes marked 'Return in five days to Blank Hotel, Grand Forks, N. D.' for instance," said a Grand Forks post official in the Grand Forks Herald.

"The matter was brought to my mind this morning," continued the official, "by the receipt of an envelope which was a model in this respect. This envelope contained the following in the upper left hand corner:

" 'Return in five days, John Jones, Grand Central Hotel, Crookston, Minnesota.'

"All of this 'card' was printed with the exception of the name of the sender, which had been written in by him the hotel man having left a blank space for that purpose when he had his envelopes printed.

"In case the person to whom the letter was addressed could not have been found in five days, it would have been returned to the Grand Central hotel at Crookston and they would have been able to hand it or forward it to Mr. Jones but had Mr. Jones' name not been on the envelope and the person addressed was not know at the local post office. It would have gone to the dead letter office.

"The suggestion has been made that if the traveling public would start an agitation to have hotelkeepers leave a blank space in the card on their envelopes that the hotel man would be glad to make this change in their cards."

Gov. Johnson's official plurality is 27,779. This is the figure reached by the state canvassing board. According to the count completed at noon yesterday. John A. Johnson democrat, received 175,136 votes, and J. F. Jacobson, republican 147,357.

GREETINGS TO NEW NEIGHBORS

SPECIAL TRAIN CARRIED 100 CROOKSTONITES OVER NEW EXTENSION TO WARROAD

GREETINGS EXTENDED TO THE TOWNS NOW CLOSELY CONNECTED WITH THIS CITY

From Friday's Daily—

This morning the special train to run over the recently completed extention from Greenbush to Warroad and under the auspices of the 25,000 Commercial Club of Crookston left at a few minutes past 7 with 100 of Crookston's progressive business and professional men who went to extend greetings to the towns along the newly completed route and congratulate them over the consummation of their hopes for close connections with the outside world by rail.

A liver lot of excursionists never left the city, and a better or higher mission they could not have. The idea of the trip was one of the happiest that was ever evolved for the mutual benefit of the new towns as well as Crookston, and will serve to start a feeling of mutual interest which will be of inestimable value to all concerned.

The train was in charge of Conductor Steve Withey and Tom Gorder did the honors as brakesman, while engine No. 235 which pulled the train was in charge of Engineer Chas. Smith and Fireman Oscar Rustad who jerked the coaches so fast on the way up that only a few of the high places were touched.

The longest stops were made at Roseau, Badger and Warroad, where big crowds awaited the Jollifiers and hearty greetings extended, but shorter stops were made at every point en route either on the up or down trip.

There were sundry and divers wireless messages received during the day, and the wind from the northeast was loaded with music so that the Crookston band was evidently playing without intermission excepting for short intermissions for refreshments in the baggage car.

The bulletins as they were caught at the dispatcher's office read something like this:

"Greenbush—White Seal Klewel and Hamm Rasmussen running a foot race with both hands full, doing the honors."

"Enroute 60 miles an hour. Withey stopped train to pull Squaw straddle of moose out of artesian well."

"11:55 A. M.—Badger taken without resistance. Whole populace present to see covered cars."

"Tom Brown will recover. Resting easy now in baggage car."

"Pure Food Johnson tried to sell pint of ice cream at Roseau and was arrested by Warden Munch for trying to make a killing out of season."

12:35—Love feast starts at Roseau Pipe of peace lit by President Misner and R. J. Bell took second draught"

"Warroad succumbed at 1:40 p. m. amid booming of cannons. Excursionists received with open arms and restocked their personal bread baskets"

DROPPED DEAD WHERE HIS SON WAS SHOT

John Doran one of the pioneers of Eglon township near Barnesville and father of the Doran boy who was accidentally shot to death by a boy companion this fall, dropped dead yesterday within four rods of the spot where his son was killed. He had gone after his mail, and his failure to return resulted in a search.

The Christmas Stamp

Don't forget to put the Christmas stamp on all your holiday letters and packages. When you can contribute to a splendid cause at a cost of only a cent the opportunity is too good to be overlooked.

When you buy a dollar's worth of Red Cross stamps, you contribute 5 cents—less the cost of making the stamps—to the National Red Cross society and its fight against consumption, and you contribute 95 cents to the local anti-tuberculosis society. Not only that, but by affixing the stamps to your letters and packages, you advertise the cause and help to attract public attention to it. The stamps are neat and attractive, and they will ornament your mail while advertising a great crusade for the relief of afflicted humanity.

Put the Christmas stamp on every letter and every package you send between now and New Year's day, and if you have some left then, keep on using them until they are gone.

One-Sided Right Of Appeal

Attorney General Bonaparte supports one of the endeavors of President Roosevet by recommending in his annual report, that congress should provideby law for appeals by the government from interlocutory rulings of the inferior courts in criminal prosecutions. The attorney general cites the $29,000,000 fine imposed upon the Standard Oil company as a case in point. The court of appeals may be right or be wrong in its holding that errors were committed by Judge Landis in the trial before a jury. Whether the appellate court is right or wrong, the defendant insists that its decision should be final. If the decision had been otherwise, the same defendant would have been prompt, of course, to make an appeal It is thus clear that the government must be unimpeachably in the right at all stages of the litigation. in order to prevail while the slightest error is fatal to the exercise of justice Right and wrong both fight on the side of a defendant who has money enough to continue the contest.

The unpleasant situation all comes about from the perversion of a brief clause of the federal constitution that no man shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense. That has been taken to mean that any ruling of a court favorable to the defense in a criminal trial must stand, for erroneous tho it may be, the defendant would be in jeopardy if he had to contend upon any technical point of law twice, after prevailing once. We can now see how a general statement in the constitution intended for the protection of the people can be and often is used against the public.—St. Paul Dispatch.

"A Solid North."

The visit of 100 of the business and professional men of Crookston on a special train to the towns along the new extension of the Great Northern from Greenbush to Warroad yesterday, who also visited all the towns along the line from this city to the end of the line, is a long stride in the right direction. The start has been mdae towards a "united Northern Minnesota" and now that the ice has been broken, the benefits of such a condition of affairs will soon be manifest on every hand.

The people of Crookston went to extend greetings to the people of Roseau county who have just realized their dream of years for railway communication with the outside world. Hampered by isolation they have shown wonderful thrift and energy and have developed the county to a wonderful extent under such a heavy handicap.

Now with a railroad which runs from one end of the county to the other there is no limit to the possibilities of this great commonwealth. The villages are thrifty and progressive already, and will certainly grow rapidly in the future.

The bond of friendship that has existed in the past will be doubly strengthened as a result of the excursion of yesterday. The interests of this section, and Roseau county are identical. What means prosperity for one will mean prosperity for the other. They should and will work hand in hand with this idea ever uppermost.

The more Roseau County prospers, the more Crookston and this section will prosper and vice versa.

Now that the proper start has been made, Crookston as a city and every resident as an individual should strive to do his full share toward making the bond of friendship still stronger as the years roll by.

Breeding Snobs

If there is one industry in this country that is more profitless than any other, to the nation or to the world to its originators or to its intended beneficiaries, it is the making of snobs, says the Duluth Herald.

A snob is about as useless an object as the eccentricities of human life can possibly produce. If the snob has any use at all, it—we must insist upon the neuter gender—is as a horrible example of what not to be.

Yet there are fond parents, tragic ignorance of what they are doing, that are deliberately turning their children into snobs, and thereby making for them a future full of hate and scorn and uncharitableness and selfishness and lovelessness and final ignominy.

For instance, the playground movement has reached Baltimore, and has had considerable development there. One unpleasant outcome of it is that sundry wealthy Baltimore people are engaged in providing a playground exclusively for their children. Presumably admission to it will be governed by the commercial rating of the parents. Children who cannot get a proper certificate for their parents from Dun or Bradstreets will have to step aside, and do their playing in the streets or in the playgrounds provided for the recreation of the children of the plain people.

We are informed just how much money parents will have to possess in order to gain admission for their children into this manufactory for snobs. The dividing line between the "plain people" and the "upper classes" varies in various communities according to the scale of wealth. In New York no doubt, the minimum would be very high. Baltimore is rather a wealthy city, and it will probably be pretty high there too. If such a thing were proposed in Duluth it would not be so high, probably as in either of these places, even tho Duluth has quite a number of fairly rich people. It really does not make much difference what arbitrary amount is fixed. If it were $20,000,000 in New York, $5,000,000 in Baltimore, or $50,000 in Oskaloosa, the result would be the same. It would turn children that might, under proper conditions, have become pleasant, useful and admirable citizens, into insufferable snobs.

Beyond any question, the time will come when rich people will learn that the mere possession of money does not life anybody anywhere. It provides better clothes, better food, better housing, but it does not even provide more happiness than a competency. It provides better opportunities, it is true, but they are accompanied by greater temptations, chief of which is the temptation to useless idleness, to a life based upon the belief that having plenty, there is no need to work or to perform any useful service.

Nothing can come out of such an arrangement as these Baltimore families contemplate but bitterness and harm. It means narrowness of vision for the innocent little people to whom only god is intended. It means to implant into their growing minds the shameful notion that there is something about wealth that ennobles and that puts its owners above the "common herd." To say nothing of the arrogance of it, of the effect of flaunting the self-conceived superiority of the rich in the faces of the poor, it will work great mischief with the children of the rich.

A man may reform himself because of his love of a woman, but no love of hers can ever do it for him.

The mere fact that a man doesn't pay his bills is no sign that he owns an automobile.

STATE PRESS

Damphool Official

There was a fire in the little town of Bridgburg on the Canadian side of the Niagara and teams and apparatus were sent over from Buffalo to aid in putting out the blaze. Since the flurry over the outbreak of foot and mouth disease the importation of animals to Canada from this side of the line has been prohibited. The Canadian customs officials evidently construed their instructions literally, for they halted the Buffalo fire teams and held them and the department jogged back and let the town burn, which served it jolly well right, under the circumstances. We have read of a queen of Spain roasting before the fire because it was not etiquette for her to move her own chair back, and there was no one present to do it for her, but that was in the dark ages. It seems that some red tape is tied as tightly now as it was then.—Grand Forks Herald.

The Agriculturist: The Secretary of the Interior has promulgated new regulations under the timber and stone act. This act provides that timber and stone lands shall be sold at the minimum price of $2.00 per acre and heretofore since the act was passed in 1878 they have been sold at a flat rate of $2.50 an acre. The Secretary now rules that they must be appraised according to their actual market value and hereafter sold at the appraised value with $2.00 as the minimum. If they are not worth $2.00 they cannot be sold, but they may be sold as high as fifteen or twenty dollars if they prove to be worth it, or even more.

The Minnesota Dairyman: The opinion that has erroneously prevailed in some quarters that farm life is monotonous, slow, uninteresting and unremunerative, may not obtain at the present time for the owner of a good farm home may and ought to be the most happy, independent and contented person on earth; always employed with work of his own planning and choosing and is his own boss; has his paper, magazines and other mail delivered at his door every day by his good Uncle Sam; his telephone reaches the leading cities, business and professional, in the county and county seat, and even to the larger market centers; he is in touch with the world, while he partakes and drinks of nature's blessing at the fountain-head. Given a liking for the occupation, equal ability, natural and acquired, and the farm and farmer will win every time.

Stillwater Mirror: A Pittsburg firm is making a specialty of glass grave "stones" which show portraits of the deceased blown in the front. This is liable to lead some silly and sentimental persons to shuffle off just to have their "ugly mugs" preserved in glass.

McIntosh Times: This is the critical period of the year for the local creamery. Stand by your home institution and do all in your power to induce your neighbor to do likewise.

GIRLS ARE TAUGHT TO BUY AND COOK

Four Thousand Being Educated in City's Schools—Points on House-keeping Given to the Young Women in the Domestic Science Course Which Has Been Extended So that Valuable Knowledge Can be Obtained

Minneapolis people are going to know something of economical living. About 4,000 girls are learning how to buy so as to get the most for their money and how to cook what they have bought so that it will give their families the greatest amount of nutrition, and while these 4,000 are learning another 4,000 are preparing to take the advanced course in domestic science in the public schools.

Until a year ago the course was one year only but it was changed to two years, and the first class under the new course has just about finished the first half year's work and has learned how to combine proteids, carbohydrates and fats so as to make a proper meal.

On a Scientific Basis

The girls have learned that if they buy oatmeal in bulk they can provide a meal for a family of six for 2 cents Already a number of girls of 13 do all the buying and cooking at home and are as proud as peacocks as they have a right to be.

Even when the amateur cooks don't do all the cooking nor all of the buying, they are able to furnish expert advice when consulted and usually report with much pride that they have made half a dozen or more dainties a week to the delight of their parents, who realize at once the advantages of a public school education.

Extension Helps Them

The change of the course of study from one year to two has enabled these very young women to learn more of the hygiene and sanitation of the kitchen, details in regard to food values and the cost of living, the making of menus and methods of service that could not have been crammed into a one-year course which was already as full as it could be.

There are sixteen centers of domestic science in the public schools and about 240 pupils taking the advanced course in each. They began a year ago by learning how to boil water, and when they finish next June they will know almost everything there is to know about the kitchen.

CHRISTMAS SERMONS

Christmas sermons at the Congregational church by Rev. C. C. Warner the pastor, were on "The Christmas of the Magi, or Men and Their Master," and at night, "The Christmas Message of the Master's or the Birth of Christ in Art."

An outline of the morning sermon follows:

What is Christ to the Wise Men, the strong men, the successful men of the American Twentieth Century? Such it seems to me the Magi may represent. And as they so the men of today should keep this holy feast, for the Christ they adored is the master of manhood, the king of modern men.

I. The Magi Seeking Jesus. Their visit was most significant. The round of cares the rush of toils, the tremendous burden of everyday responsibility do not perfectly satisfy either the Magi or the American. The soul now and then sees a star, beholds a vision of a king, hears a call from the skies. Conscience bids men seek a savior.

They had faith. So has the farmer, the merchant. Exercise it towards the greatest needs the highest ends of life and being. He who like the Magi, seeks Christ shall find Him as surely as did they. The stars in their courses help him.

II. The Magi Worshipping Jesus. Reverent adoration at His lowly throne was their first act on finding Jesus. Today his name is above every name. The reality of Jesus' reign, his power, goodness, and grace, only the ignorant or wilful deny. Surely nothing is more fitting than to bow in worship before Him.

Especially do we Men owe a new worshipfulness. Too long we have been absorbed in material affairs and have left religion to the women and the children. But there has come an awakening call. The Missionary Century has closed with widespread training in Christian Endeavor. Conscience has been strengthened. Intelligent vision and growth in trained power are other results. The youth of yesterday are coming to their own and already a new movement is upon us. God grant that it prove the mightiest in force and achievement. It is the Men's brotherhood movement.

Jesus Christ was a Man—the Divine God-man. The great names in Church history are men. It should be the same today. Awake to your duty, your characteristic leadership, your place as men in the church of today. (There followed an appeal preparatory to planning for the organization of a local brotherhood.)

III. The Magi Giving to Jesus. From the first advent joy until the end of time giving will be the precious privilege of the Christmas-tide. We have in the church our Lord loves an opportunity of immediate ministry to Christ. Let us make our offerings in church support gifts indeed unto our Master.

A vastly more important devotion is the gift of ourselves. Living sacrifices outshine, outvalue, and outlast all other gifts. Every one of us can make such offerings.

Finally serve Christ with manful energy and effectiveness. To win the manhood of today make the church robust and practical. Give it your goodwill, your appreciation of the problems of life, and your sense of personal responsibility.

A celebration of the Christmas in this spirit-seeking, worshipping and Giving to the Christ, will prepare a Happy New Year.

TAFT AND HAMMOND HAVE A CONFERENCE

PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL LEAGUE OF REPUBLICAN CLUBS CALLED TO GEORGIA TO CONSULT WITH PRESIDENT-ELECT—MANY QUESTIONS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE WERE DISCUSSED—HAMMOND IS NOT OUT FOR A JOB

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 22—President-elect Taft conferred today with John Hays Hammond, president of the National League of Republican clubs, and received suggestions which will be given serious consideration respecting new fields of future usefulness for that organization. Mr. Hammond who arrived here today with Mrs. Hammond and two of their sons for an extended stay, Mr. Taft said, was invited by him to come. He added there were many things he wanted to talk over with the eminent mining engineer, including political conditions and appointmets. The two have been friends since their college days when they were class mates. Mr. Hammond was emphatic in saying that he was not a candidate for either the cabinet, the diplomatic corps or any other position under the new administration.

MORE SURPRISES IN INSURANCE WORLD

COMMISSIONER OF INSURANCE OF STATE OF COLORADO WILL TAKE PRESIDENCY OF THE PROVIDENT SAVINGS LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF NEW YORK—RITTENHOUSE IS TO TAKE ACTIVE CHARGE OF THE WORK ON JANUARY FIRST NEXT

New York, Dec. 22—Something of a surprise was sprung in life insurance circles today when another change in control of The Provident Savings Life Assurance society was announced together with the issuance of a statement that at special meeting of the directors, E. E. Rittenhouse, commissioner of insurance of Colorado had been elected president of the society to succeed Arthur C. Langham. The control of the organization it was announced, has passed from Mr. Langham's hands to those of Judge Nash Rockwood. Commissioner Rittenhouse was present at the meeting of the directors and formally acepted the presidency. He will take charge of the affairs of the Provident about January 1st, 1909.

FRATERNAL ORDERS 1909 OFFICIAL ROSTER

A lively social and business session was held last evening by the Royal Neighbors of East Grand Forks in Gies Hall. The meeting was largely attended by the members of the lodge the young people being admitted later in the evening to the social session dancing party which followed. The lodge is in a very flourishing financial condition and plans great things for the coming year in the line of social activities. Probably no organization in the city has done more to raise the social standard in East Grand Forks than the Royal Neighbors and according to present plans the same feature will predominate with the order during the coming year. The officers elected Monday evening to serve for the coming year are as follows:

Oracle—Mrs. Mary Boese.
Vice Oracle—Mrs. Katherine Bogenrief.
Recorder—Mrs. Ina Coons.
Chancellor—Miss Eva Zenzel.
Receiver—Mrs. Maggie Dangerfield
Marshal—Miss Celia Langan.
Assistant Marshal—Miss Clara McGuire.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY

TYPHOID FEVER — Mrs. A. P. Kirsch was taken to St. Vincents hospital this afternoon, suffering with typhoid VISITING COUNTRY—Ole Sundet left this morning for Badger where he will remain for a couple of weeks a guest at the home of E. A. Meiers.

TO VISIT OLD HOME—R. G. Bartlett and L. M. Bartlett and two children left last evening for the old Bartlett home at Eau Salle, Wis., where they will spend the Christmas Holidays. Mrs. Barelett left this morning for Bemidji where she will visit home folks during the absence of her husband and children.

DEATH OF W. A. DOLL—A telegram received yesterday brought the sad news of the death at Durango, Col., of W. A. Doll, a brother of Chas. Doll, of East Grand Forks. The deceased was 46 years of age. He was at one time a resident of East Grand Forks, leaving Polk County some 14 years ago.

EUCLIDITE HERE—Frank Hutchinson drove down from Euclid this morning with his wife and is spending the day here attending to some business matters. He has just ordered a fine covered rig from McKinnon Bros., which he is having made to order, and it will be one of the very best in the entire north country.

DIED—At his home with his parents at Cass Lake last Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, Leonard, the son and only child of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Latendress, after a short illness aged 7 years. The remains were accompanied Tuesday morning by the sorrowing parents and relatives to Red Lake Falls, where funeral services were held and the body was laid in its last resting place.

MID-WEST TO MAKE CHANGE—It is stated that the Mid-West a weekly publication of Grand Forks will be made a weekly agricultural paper on the style of the Orange Judd Farmer. It is pointed out that there is no strictly farm paper in North Dakota and it is hoped to build up one that will be a success. It is also stated that the last issue of the Mid-West will be the last of the publication in that form.

EDITOR WIGHAM HERE—Editor Wigham of Mahnomen spent Saturday in the city on business returning home last night where he says business is rushing. While here he engaged Miss Emma Rogne, a graduate of the Crookston Business College as stenographer for his offices and she leaves this evening to begin her work there. Miss Rogne has made her home with Mrs. W. L. Davies for several years past and is splendidly equipped for her work with Mr. Wigham.

JOHN MORRISON JR., SILENT—John Morrison, Jr., the 'heap good white chief" of the Red Lake Indian reservation was among the cheerful visitors at the Pioneer office yesterday. John refuses to commit himself concerning the experiences of one G. M. Torrance, who was hunting big game near the agency during the late hunting season. But John smiles knowingly, we wot that he knows a few things that would make good reading. Someone has said that the genial attorney forgot to take along his compass and was looking for the north star, one afternoon, in order to find the agency, but, of course, that is very likely purely malicious.—Bemidji Pioneer.

The passenger service from Crookston to Warroad was started this morning, Conductor Miller, Brakeman Burk, Engineer Jim Keeley and Fireman Tom Hunt being on the points.

The train leaves Crookston at 8:40 arrived at Warroad at 3:10 leaves Waroad on the return trip at 3:25 and arrives at Crookston at 10 p. m.

There will be three train crews headed by Conductors Miller, Byrnes and Keeley who will run on the Fargo-St. Vincent and Warroad runs, first in, first out.

From Tuesday's Daily

Mike Toska was over from Fisher last evening and spent the night here

H. F. Brown is peddling Christmas cigars out on the Fosston line today.

Milburn Griffiths left this morning for Erskine and from there goes to Plummer on business.

DAY AT BEMIDJI—Manager Frank Bracelin, district manager for the Northwestern Telephone Exchange Co., left this morning for Bemidji to look over the exchange there.

LIKES LOCATION—Ed Garvick returned from Fisher yesterday after spending Sunday with his family. He is pleased with his ew venture there, and is doing a good business.

FULL BLOODED JERSEY— Nels P. Boe of Roseau this morning received a shipment by express of a thorobred yearling Jersey Bull from the Stillwater Stock Farm. The animal will go north tomorrow on the Roseau County Limited.

WILL VISIT AGED MOTHER — E. N. Bergerson, the well known dairyman and farmer who runs the old Childs' farm south of Crookston, left this afternoon for his old home at Creston, Ia., where he will spend a month visiting with his mother who is 82 years of age, together with other relatives.

THEY LOOK FOR IT—Hans Bjornrud, one of the progressive farmers on R. R. No. 1 out of Climax sends in a check for the Journal for another year and says: "We couldn't get along without the Journal. We look for it every morning as regularly as the little folks look for their oatmeal and cream—and relish it just as much."

WENT TO FORKS — Conductor Losier and Brakeman Frank Adams and Bill Gibson have left for Grand Forks and for a time will run on No. 403 between Grand Forks and Breckinridge. They have been running between here and Cass Lake for some time past. Something like a tear could be seen in Conductor Losier's eye as he left, and it is said another one to match it can be found decorating the eye of some one else—left behind for the time being.

Hoarse coughs and stuffy colds that may develop into pneumonia over night are quickly cured by Foley's Honey and Tar, as it soothes inflamed membranes, heals the lungs, and expels the cold from the system. Sold by all Druggists.

The weather thus far has been very moderate, and now that the "divide" has been passed, the back of the winter is broken.

PRESENTS MAY GO ASTRAY

POSTMASTER SAYS MANY PEOPLE DO NOT WRAP PACKAGES CAREFULLY ENOUGH

"People have not yet become educated so that they will properly wrap Christmas packages before sending them thru the mails," said Postmaster Steenerson today. "It should be remembered that the packages are roughly handled, and when the wrapping is only thin paper and the name is not properly written the package stands small chance of reaching its destination in safety. Many of the packages are tied with common cord which is not strong enough to withstand the strain."

The Christmas rush is now assuming big proportions and all day today there was a line of people waiting at the window to have the Christmas packages weighed.

Mrs. McRaney's Experience

Mrs. M. McRaney, Prentiss, Miss., writes: "I was confined to my bed for three months with kidney and bladder trouble, and was treated by two physicians but failed to get relief No human tongue can tell how I suffered, and I had given up hope of ever getting well until I began taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. After taking two bottles I felt like a new person, and feel it my duty to tell suffering women what Foley's Kidney Remedy did for me. Sold by all Druggists.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY

Attorney W. A. Marin is at Red Lake Falls today on business.

Deputy Sheriff Orin Daniels is attending to some official business at Winger today.

Fred Strobble spent yesterday in the city from Angus, returning home this morning.

OLD TIMER HERE— Tom Nesbit of Grand Forks is circulating among friends here today and attending to some business matters.

CHAS. LOHN IMPROVING — Reports from Bethesda Hospital are to the effect that Count Reporter Chas. Lohn who was operated upon for appendicitis a few days ago ,is getting on nicely, gaining strength rapidly.

CITY WARRANTS READY— City Clerk Childs states that there are many city warrants awaiting claimants at his office and he would like to have owners call for them and get their cash at once.

ON PROBATE BUSINESS—Attorney J. A. Hendricks of Fosston one of the prominent east end attorneys, is spending the day in Crookston attending to some probate matters before Judge Merken.

HABEAS CORPUS CASE— Judge Watts is at Red Lake Falls today called there to sit in a habeas corpus case which will be argued before him and which is being opposed by the county attorney. He will return tonight.

FINE SON ARRIVED — Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rundquist are the parents of a very fine son which arrived at their home yesterday. Mother and child are doing well and Papa Rundquist is thinking of lowering the rates for the Minneapolis Tribune he is so happy.

OLD TIMER HERE—Jack Goodwin one of the pioneers of Polk county now located at Kew West spent yesterday in the city attending the meeting of farmers calld by Senator Stephens, and drove home today. Mr. Goodwin is hale and hearty as ever and was loaded with his usual bunch of Sunday school stories.

PLEASED WITH NEW LINE — Deputy Sheriff Andrew Johnson returned to Bemidji last evening after a trip to Beaudette where he took prisoner for a hearing. He came down on the new Warroad line which he says is a great thing in making cennection with the border country towns. Formerly they had to go up via Winnipeg to transact all official business and the trip was a tedious and tiresome one.

DATES FOR INSTITUTE— Prof. Hoverstad of the North Dakota Agricultural college has fixed Jan. 29 and 30 as the dates for the Farmers' Institute in Grand Forks. The program will be announced later. The Grand Forks Poultry association will have a show there at the same time.

AUTO MAN HERE—G. F. Burgess, of the Burgess-Whitcomb Auto Co., of Grand Forks is spending the day in Crookston and called at the Bjoin & Carlson Garage. Mr. Burgess looks forward to heavy sales the coming season, and believes it will be the best ever experienced in the northwest. They have a very fine fire proof garage at Grand Forks located opposite the Court House.

LABORERS "SHOT"— About 150 laborers who have been working on the Warroad extension arrived in the city last eevning and left last evening for Minneapolis on No. 6. They constituted about the finest line of "packages" seen in Crookston for many moons, some of them being so drunk they had to be carried bodily on the train and stacked up like hog carcasses—and some of them were little better than an average porker.

Nearly 1,000 Pianos at a Bargain

Lyon & Healy of Chicago, known everywhere as the world's largest music house, are doing a remarkable thing. They are rebuilding their great establishment and offering an enormous stock of pianos to make room for carpenters, painters, etc. Lyon & Healy offer all these pianos on such extraordinary terms that hundreds will buy now who otherwise might wait till next year. In short, here is a chance to get a much better piano for any sum you have in mind than you could ordinarily obtain.

Write today for the list of pianos in this piano sale, which is an event entirely unprecedented in the history of piano-selling. Address Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago. Four distinct plans of easy payments for those who do not wish to pay all cash.

Judge Watts yesterday pronounced sentence on two colored men, Martin Will and J. DeJourant who robbed a man at Crookston some months ago and then fled to East Grand Forks where one was captured and the other was captured later in Larimore. Hill was sentenced to the penitentiary for three and a half years and DeJourant received a reformatory sentence.

Nothing pleases a stingy man more than to hear himself spoken of as being charitably inclined.

NEW LITERARY AT STATE FARM

Owing to the present literary society at the state farm becoming too large, and to give more students an opportunity to participate in the debates, a second society was organized among the first year students, numbering 18. About 30 to 40 new students will be added after New Years.

The subject for debate last Saturday night was: Resolved that boys derive more benefit from an agricultural school course, than do the girls. The question was debated by members of the different sexes for their side. The girls won out—of course.

Volume XXIX.

The Sheaf this week begins its 29th volume. There would be room for a great deal of philosophizing on account of this occurrence, but we are too busy to do anything of the kind. The older we become the more work seems to be pressing upon us, the years roll around more quickly, and we are forced to watch constantly for the goal ahead of us. Let the past with its troubles and cares be forgotten. With renewed courage and hope we turn to the future. The present only is ours, and each succeeding week the Sheaf will do the best it can to fulfill its mission is a live paper.—Warren Sheaf.

ROSEAU COUNTY AN EMPIRE OF WONDERFUL RESOURCES

Excursion Of The Commercial Club Proves Revelation To All Who Attended.

The Crookston business and professional men under the auspices of the Crookston Twenty-Five Thousand Commercial club yesterday invaded Roseau county and a happier thought was never conceived than the one carried out to cultivate a closer business and social relationship between this city and the new territory just connected with Crookston by the new Great Northern extension from Greenbush to Warroad.

The excursionists, 100 strong, left yesterday morning at 7 o'clock and their special train pulled into the depot here shortly after 10 o'clock last night, strictly on schedule, and a jollier more satisfied excursion party never existed.

A Grand Success

The trip was a success beyond all anticipations. At all villages along the line the excursionosts received a most hearty welcome for, while the excursion was primarily in honor of Greenbush, Badger, Roseau and Warroad which are most affected by the extension, all the towns on the line received attention and were serenaded by the band and the hand of good-fellowship extended.

Enthusiastic Receptions

At Greenbush, Badger, Roseau and Warroad the reception given the people from Crookston who went to extend congratulations on completion of the extension, the people turned out enmasse and the visitors were deeply impressed with the great appreciation which was evinced by the people to whom they wished to extend greet and the villages of Roseau County. Their interests are mutual and they will be found fighting side by side for the best interests of Northern Minnesota. They will work for a better development along all lines, and working together they can accomplish wonderful things.

Much Surprise Expressed

For many the trip of yesterday presented the first opportunity to view one of the richest portions of Minnesota. Many had thought of Roseau in the backwoods because of lack of railroad connections, but they were most agreeably surprised to find magnificent farms with splendid buildings and great stock barns which support the numerous prosperous creameries which dot the entire county, telling a tale of prosperity which was in evidence on every hand.

Villages Prosperous

The visitors were also surprised at the wonderful thrift and progressiveness of the villages. Every resident seemed optimistic and looks forward to a bright future. With such a feeling prevailing, a county of unsurpassed fertility and resources that await the magic touch of human endeavor and wishes for a prosperous future now that their one great dream of years for railway communication from one end of the county to the other had been realized.

Means Much in Future

The seed of friendly business and social relations sown yesterday cannot but bring forth a wonderful harvest in the future for both Crookston ergy, there is no limit to the possibilities of the great county of Roseau, which is really an empire in itself.

Royal Welcome

The first stop was made at Red Lake Falls where greetings were exchanged and the run made to St. Hilaire where Editor Ives met the train with other leading citizens. Short stops were also made at Sandridge and at Middle River, Editor Carr being on deck at the latter place with others.

In Roseau County

Strathcona is the first town in Roseau county reached, and the citizens were out enmasse to extend greetings The run to Greenbush was then made where the xcursionists marchd up town headed by the band and called on all the business men. The local photographer took a picture of the crowd, the train whistled and the run to Badger was made.

Enthusiasm at Badger

At Badger the school children swelled the crowd of citizens and joined in the hearty welcome. The children marched thru the train hurried greetings were exchanged and the train pulled out. On the return trip the city council of Badger met the train all marched to the hotel where an informal reception was held, addresses being made by Messrs. J. W. Wheeler E. A. Mills and W. A. Marin.

Great Showing at Roseau

On the trip up the stop at Roseau was short, but the people of the county seat turned out enmasse to welsome the Crookstonites. On the return trip however a longer stop was made at Roseau, excursionists headed by the band and reception committee marching to the new opera house where an orchestra entertained them and champagne was served with refreshments. Editor Medicraft acted as toastmaster and addresses were made by Martin O'Brien, Mayor Bell, Prof. Robertson, Senator Stephens, Israel Sjoberg and Representative Mattson. The entire affair was a love feast.

Warroad Visited

After the first stop at Roseau the run was made to Warroad where the excursionists partook of a sumptuous dinner and then scattered about the city to see the sights.

Warroad it is predicted will soon be one of the greatest summer resorts in the northern part of the state. With th Canadian Northern and Northern Pacific both entering that place, the finest fishing in the world a splendid location an devery natural advantage the thriving young city has a glowing future ahead. Many returned with some fine fish which they secured there for a mere song.

A three year old pet moose here made a hit with Mayor McPhee and others. Some of the building are very fine, the great store of the Warroad Mercantile Co., being as fine as can be found in Crookston or any other place in the north half of the state.

....

Homeward Bound

The return trip was then started, with stops at several places for a final greeting. The train was held at Thief River Falls where a splendid supper was enjoyed at Hotel Rushford after which the party scattered and called on business and professional men for a half hour before the run to Crookston was made.

Train Crew Made a Hit

Conductor Withey made a hit with the entire party. Every courtesy was extended and he disseminated information like an animate dictionary. Brakeman Gorder did likewise and the engineers, C. E. Smith and "Bill" Wilkinson, always tooted the whistle till all were aboard.

The management of the Great Northern is also entitled to much credit for making the trip a pleasant one and the furnishing of fine equipment.

Committee Praised

The committee in charge of the excursion, Senator A. D. Stephens, C. R. Winslow and C. E. Kiewel received most hearty congratulations and praises from all sides for the excellence and completeness of their work, and the members of the Crookston band was duly thanked for their excellent services.

Thus endeth an affair which was a success beyond every anticipation.

CHICKEN SHOW BIG SUCCESS

THE CHICKEN FANCIERS GREATLY ELATED OVER FINE SHOWING MADE

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE BY JUDGE HALE WAS EXCELLENT—SCORES MONDAY

From Saturday's Daily—

The first annual show of the Northern Minnesota Poultry Association opened Thursday for a four days' session, closing Monday evening is a success beyond all expectations. Judge D. E. Hale of Wayzata started scoring the birds Friday morning and will finish this afternoon, and at the conclusion of his splendid illustrated lecture last evening in G. A. R. Hall he stated that the birds averaged very high, some of them being as fine as he has ever seen in the northwest.

400 Birds Exhibited

There are over 400 birds on exhibition, and over 30 exhibitors, coming from all parts of Minnesota and North Dakota, and many more different breeds than were ever shown here before. This association was organized last year, prior to which the Red River Valley Poultry Association had held exhibits here for many years and may hold one later this winter, but it is believed that the new association has been so successful that the members of the other will affiliate with it, in fact most of them have already.

Best in History

The show rooms this year are the best ever seen here. The association had uniform exhibit coops manufactured and painted an attractive blue, by F. C. Mitchell which vastly improves the general appearance of the exhibit. Financially the show is a great success also, the exhibit rooms having been crowded with spectators from the opening notwithstanding the fact that an admission of 25 cents is charged.

Owing to the splendid educational value of the show, however the Commercial club another year will make arrangements to have the admission free, in order to stimulate as much as possible the interest in improving poultry breeds of all kinds, and with eggs at 40 cents per dozen interest is now at fever heat.

Saugstad's Good Record

Representative John Saugstad of Nielsville broke into the chicken business at this show with a vengeance. He entered 24 birds and thy have attracted widespread attention from all being in magnificent condition. They consist of white rocks and white leghorns, and the fact that he has been awarded 16 single entry prizes shows what strides he has made in the business, tho he started but a year ago.

Pullet's Great Record

Supt. Brown of the poultry department at the State Experiment Farm who is also President of the Poultry Association is one of the busiest men about the show hall. He has one pullet which has a record of 214 eggs last year which is a top notch showing. His barred rocks are beautiful.

Students Coming Monday

On Monday the 68 students and some of the faculty from the agricultural school will march to the city to inspect the chicken show which Mr. Brown says is the best ever seen in Northern Minnesota.

Presents for the Children

On Monday two trios of white rocks will be given away to some of the boys and girls who attend the show. To find out all about this, call at the show rooms and the secretary, Mrs. F. C. Mitchell will explain.

Some of the out of town visitors at the show are as follows:

A. L. Moore, Blackduck; J. Saugstad, Nielsville; Iver Forseth, Climax; A. Finseth, Oslo; Geo. Wise, Edmore, N. D., Rob. Grimer, Northome; Pierre Dufault, Gentilly; Lambert Roesch, Ada; J. A. Roesch, Ada; Wm. Wigham, Mahnomen; P. O. Estenson, Climax; B. L. Bowen and wife, Mallory; B. Danielson, Fisher; T. E. Logan, Fisher; Geo. Wise, Fisher.

IMPORTANT DECISIONS OF SUPREME COURT

JUDGE WATTS SUSTAINED IN FOUR ORDERS BY THE SUPREME COURT—CHAS. CARLSON'S VERDICT AGAINST G. N. FOR $1700 STANDS—CONGRESMAN STEENERSON LOSES CASE, E. GRAND FORKS WINS PAVING SUIT—LANDLORDS NOT LIABLE

From Saturday's Daily—

The Supreme Court of Minnesota yesterday handed down four appeal decisions in which important verdicts from Polk county were sustained.

The verdict received by Charles Carlson of Sampsons addition who was checking clerk at the Crookston transfer of the G. N. here and recovered damages in the sum of $1759 for injuries received by having a frozen hog fall on him which seriously injured his leg was sustained. In the nose of the hog a sharp steel prong had been left and did the damage. Steenerson and Loring were the attorneys in this suit.

The suit of Congressman Steenerson to recover land formerly belonging to the rear of his lot on which the Guarantee Clothing Store is located was lost.

In another appeal suit against E. Grand Forks the verdict favoring that city in the famous paving case was sustained and in the fourth appeal case it was held that a landlord under certain conditions was not liable for damages. The syllabus in each case which explains the cases, follows:

The Steenerson Case

Halvor Steenerson, appellant vs. Louis Fontaine and William Anglim respondents.

Syllabus: A resolution passed by a city council as to which all the formalities of an ordinance had been complied with, becomes a legislative act and it is immaterial whether it be called an ordinance or a resolution

Upon the vacation of a highway, absolute title to land covered by it reverts to the owner of the fee, who may not be the abutting owner.

An ordinance vacating a highway over land conveyed by an owner of the fee to a city for highway purposes and none other is not void because the right of the abutting owner to use the street vacated had not been condemned.

The informal repeal of an ordinance vacating a highway will not operate to repeal an ordinance previously enacted with the formalities required by law and to divest the interest of a purchaser from the owner of the fee after title had accrued to such owner upon the enactment of the ordinance.

Here the proprietor deeded the east 100 feet of a certain lot to plaintiff's grantor. Subsequently he deeded, for a nominal consideration, to the city the westerly forty feet of said lot, "for road purposes and no other use." Afterwards the city passed a formal ordinance vacating the westerly forty feet of said lot and of other lots lying south of it. Subsequently an informal resolution amended the original by exempting from its operation the said westerly forty feet. It is held that the owner of the easterly 100 feet was not entitled to an injunction to restrain the improvement and use of the westerly forty feet by one who had after the vacation obtained a quit-claim deed thereto from the original owner of the premises.

Affirmed. —Jaggard, J.

M. E. Thornton, appellant, vs. City of East Grand Forks, respondent.

Syllabus: Action to recover for work and materials done and furnished by the plaintiff's assignor for the defendant, in the execution of a paving contract, as evidenced by estimates allowed an dissued by the defendant's engineer and common council. Held, that the plaintiff's alleged cause of action accrued on the 10th day the month next after the estimates were allowed and issued, that the time limit of the statute of limitations applicable to this case is two years as provided by laws 1895, C. B. S. 347 and, further, that it conclusively appears upon the face of the complaint in this action is barred.

Order affirmed. —Start, C. J.

Damage Verdict Sustained

Charles Carlson, respondent, vs. Great Northern Railway company, appellant.

Syllabus: Evidence considered, in this, a personal injury action, and held that it is sufficient to support the verdict for the plaintiff, and that the award of damages is not so excessive as to justify any interference with the verdict.

Order affirmed. —Start, C. J.

Landlord not Liable

J. A. Erickson, respondent, vs. Theodore O. Propp, appellant.

Syllabus: A landlord, under a lease expressly exempting him from any abligation to the tenant to make repairs or improvements upon or about the leased premises during the life of the lease, is not liable to the tenant for damages to his goods occasioned by the imperfect condition of the leased premises and may recover the rental agreed upon.

Oral evidence of a previous agreement by the landlord to repair was not admissible.

Affirmed. —Jaggard, J.

THIEF RIVER PAPER HAS PIPE DREAM

There is a rumor in circulation in railroad circles that this branch of the Great Northern from Warroad to Tilden Junction is to be sold to the Northern Pacific and that trains will be run thru to Minneapolis and St. Paul by way of Winnipeg Junction. There is said to be good foundation for the rumor. If this new plan went into effect it would prove quite unpopular in Thief River Falls unless train service was still maintained between this city and Crookston. — Thief River Falls News.

SUPERINTENDENT SAVAGE HERE

Rev. E. P. Savage of the Children's Home Society of Minnesota, which was organized in 1899, and which in all has taken care of and found homes for 2840 children in the state, including 28 from Polk county is spending the day in the city, and has received generous subscriptions from the people of Crookston as usual. Two children have been received from Polk County the past year, one Ethel Strangler from East Grand Forks was taken very ill after being taken to the Home but recovered and has been placed in a splendid family. The little Johnson girl from East Grand Forks has also been adopted by a good family.

Rev. Savage goes up the North line tomorrow to prosecute his work, always receiving hearty support from this portion of the state from which the society has taken many little waifs and placed them in fine homes where they are growing to useful manhood and womanhood.

ARTHUR DAHL BOUND OVER

HELD TO GRAND JURY ON THE CHARGE OF GRAND LARCENY IN 2ND DEGREE

STOLE CLOTHING FROM THE McKINNON FLATS LAST SUMMER—$750 BONDS

From Saturday's Daily—

This morning after a hearing before Judge Gossman in municipal court Arthur Dahl was held to the district court under $750 for grand larceny in the 2nd degree charged with having stolen a quantity of dresses, skirts and other wearing apparel from a closet in the J. R. McKinnon flats last June.

Deputy Sheriff Gonyea and Asst. Chief Quigley of East Grand Forks searched the Dahl residence at the latter place and most of the clothing was found. It is believed that Dahl will plead guilty rather than wait till next June for a trial.

FINE PROGRAMS IN CITY SCHOOLS

The city schools closed today for the holiday vacation and this evening's trains will take many of the teachers and others to their homes or the homes of friends.

This afternoon there were many very fine Christmas programs rendered in the various rooms, some rooms joining with others and the exercises were thoroly enjoyed by many visitors.

VAST RESOURCES OF ROSEAU CO.

WARROAD EXTENSION OPENED

Roseau

A Brief Sketch of County of Wonderful Possibilities of which Roseau Village is the County Seat. Splendid Developement without Railway Facilities Acomplished through Energy of Progressive People. Great Future Predicted now that new Avenue of Commerce has been Completed through Heart of Great Commonwealth.

Briefly stated, the history of Roseau county is as follows:

Organized December 31, 1904 from Kittson county territory, to which two years later was added about 15 townships from Beltrami county. The area of the county is about 47½ town ships running east and west 60 miles and north and south 32 miles. Roseau county borders on Canada and the Lake of the Woods on the north and for natural drainage has Roseau, Warroad and Two rivers with their tributaries.

The Wonderfully Rapid Development

The rapid growth and development is best evidenced from the fact that at the time of its organization it contained a population of 3,500 had 15 school districts and 13 organized townships with an assessed valuation of $74,000. Roseau county now has a population of 15,000, thirty-five organized townships, 91 school districts five organized villages, Greenbush, Badger, Roseau, Warroad and Roosevelt, three modern equipped flouring mills, six paying creameries and numerous sawmills, with an assessed valuation of over two million and a half.

Attractions for Home Builders

With a magnificent county adapted to all lines of farming, good soil, good water and right conditions, Roseau county has proved to be the land of good results for the home[illegible]. There has never been a [illegible] urated for the se[illegible] c. farming country [illegible] been no rail road [illegible] the settlement [illegible] the improvement [illegible] the advent of the railroad g[illegible] ping facilities [illegible] ty a great [illegible] may be looked for.

Worked Hard [illegible]

To the energy [illegible] ceasing work of [illegible] village of Roseau [illegible] may be given the credit [illegible] after patient endeavor [illegible] of the Great Northern railway, just completed from Greenbush thru Badger, Roseau to Warroad. In 1895 to the appeal of the citizens of Roseau James J. Hill replied that he would build no more railroads in Minnesota. He repeated this from year to year until 1904, when in a speech at Crookston, he declared that he would extend a branch road into Roseau county. Time and money was spent by Roseau citizens, without stint, to bring every influence possible to induce the Great Northern to give them railroad facilities, and the general public can well imagine the joyous feeling now prevailing among the people of Roseau county that at last they have the aid of a great traffic highway to develop one of the best all around farming sections in the state of Minnesota, the soil of which grows the best tame grasses in the world, a county that is destined to lead all others as a butter producer.

Much Drainage Work

It is due to the citizens of Roseau to say that it was the enterprising business men of that village who in 1895 began the aggitation of state aid for drainage of state lands in the county and who continued the work until as a result the state has spent over $100,000 and redeemed more than 100,000 acres of the richest land to be found anywhere.

Roseau Substantially Built

Crookston visitors were surprised to find the village of Roseau so substantially built. The double room 50 foot front postoffice building and 100 foot deep by fifty wide, two story and basement store of Sjoberg Brothers, built of concrete and the fifty foot front First National Bank building of brick are features of the business houses in Roseau while more than a dozen residences cost to exceed $5,000. Roseau has been progressive all right in the face of adverse conditions as its wonderful growth attests considering the lack of railroad accommodations.

Roseau County's Magnificent Highways

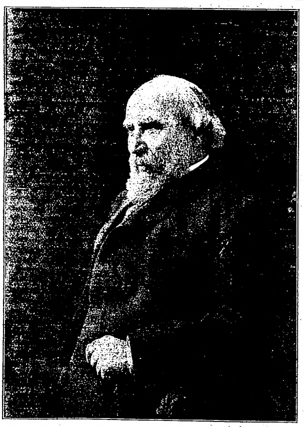
The same progressive spirit which has marked the course of the citizens of Roseau instilled the farmers to a betterment of conditions and while the state has spent its $100,000 to redeem its wet lands, 18 townships have been bonded in sums ranging from $6,000 to $8,000 to raise money with which to build good roads, and as a result Roseau county has good highways and in that line is ahead of any other county in the state.

Interests are Mutual

The business men of Roseau recognize the necessity of getting on the map and establishing friendly business relations with the outside world and the boom given it by the Commercial club of Crookston and its newspapers is, greatly appreciated. The visit of the citizens of Crookston to Roseau by special train, the wide advertisement of the fact and the relations established between the business men of both towns will bring results, for which the good people of the Queen City will be held in kind remembrance by Roseau.

Peek at the Future

The editor of the Journal was informed by R. J. Bell, president of the village council of Roseau also president of the Roseau Commercial Club and a member of the Board of Education and also editor of the Roseau County Times, that now with the railroad, Rosau would undoubtedly put in a water and light plant and build a new school house, costing in the neighborhood of $30,000. Among other enterprises contemplated is a hospital and the erection of substantial buildings on the fair grounds. Roseau already has an opera house of ample proportions and seating capacity which when completed fully will be a credit to the village. Concrete walks and crossings will be put in along both sides of the main business blocks next year, the streets of which are built of gravel. The village has under consideration the erection of two new steel bridges to span the river and will put in a system of sewerage.



JAMES J. HILL

Who promised the Roseauites a railroad before January 1st and who more than kept his promise.

Greenbush

Greenbush is no longer the end of the line. That city must now take its seat on an equal footing with the rest of the cities on this branch of the Great Northern. Greenbush has been somewhat of a puzzle ever since its birth in 1904. Many people did not wish to invest too heavily there for as a terminal it might be all right but should thero ad be extended it was doubtful if this city could make good. And of course one of the great questions before the inhabitants of Roseau county, including Greenbush, was, "When will the road be extended" As long as this question was unsettled, so long would much of the business be unsettled.

Conditions will Change

What influence the extension will have on Greenbush remains to be seen. There is no doubt but that the elevators, hotels and livery business will decrease, but the loss in this respect will be more than paid for by the settled conditions that will prevail from now on. In addition there to will be the increase of business thru out the whole county of which Greenbush is bound to get part. Accordingly it is fair to say that Greenbush will be benefitted by the extension as well as the rest of the cities on the line.

An Interesting History

The career of Greenbush tho yet in its infancy has been interesting. The townsite was surveyed and trains established in the late fall of 1904. With but some exceptions all the buildings seen today were erected or begun that winter. There was a scramble for room and a hurry to get agoing. As a result many of the buildings were made far from substantial. Since then they have of course been repaired and made over so that the tar paper shanties are no longer to be seen. But meantime the hurriedly built chimneys and the always dangerous stovepipes made the danger of fire immenent.

Fortunately the fire protection was always ample and has already up to this time saved the city from disastrous fires in several instances with but one exception.

One Disastrous Fire

During the cold spell last winter the water in t he tank froze and this was not discovered till a fire broke out in what was then the Kukowski block. This fire caused really more than a money loss. The Kukowski block was the pride of the city. It was a two story double front building, and one of its features was the hall on the second story. Greenbush used to pride itself in having the best hall in the county. Besides this block three other business places burned to the ground on one side of it, and the bank building across the street from it. Only the able work of the bucket brigade saved the city from total destruction. These business places have not all been rebuilt

Many Business Institutions

Today Greenbush has two banks, the State and Farmers and Merchants The third one was absorbed by the State Bank not long ago. This bank suffered in the fire above mentioned an dhas now a concrete modern building. The other bank has moved its building to the rear of the lot and has the foundation laid for a modern brick building to be erected in the spring. Of general stores there are the following: Olaf Hildahl, O. Dalby, Grivi Bros., Nelson Bros., T. E. Thompson. These stores handle everything from butter and hair pins to mattresses and ox harness, the different lines not being as yet classified This is not the fault of the merchant. It is the experience in most new towns. The people want it, and the merchant has to cater to the trade. As to hotels and restaurants, there are any number. Of saloons there are only four. We use "only" advisedly, for there use to be six until recently.

All City Attachments

The miscellaneous lines are all represented, such as drug store, harness and shoe repairing, blacksmiths, tin smiths, photographer, barber, milliner, painter, etc. Two churches occupy their respective places, and a four room concrete school house has been erected. Two telephone systems have wire and poles all over the city, but only the McMahan system is operated, the other one being yet in an unfinished state. The farmers line was built last summer, and is rapidly branching out connecting the farming community and the city.

A Thriving Creamery

Last but not least is the creamery which was recognized as an early necessity. This is doing good business, and is rapidly increasing in patronage. The city is also represented professionally both legally and medically.

Highways and Ditches

In general it may be mentioned that the business men of Greenbush recognize that ditching and roads are the salvation of this country, and as a result have co-operated with the farmers in establishing these to such an extent that there is now leading into the city a fairly substantial road in all directions.

Fine Farming Country Surrounding

The surrounding country is a good farming country, but owing to the amount of land still owned by speculators, the farms are not inhabited as they should be. This accounts for an empty house here and there. This has been a detriment to the county, as land buyers are apt to think that the land has been abandoned, when in fact it is held for a big price. But those that do farm have discovered that dairy and stock pay. Whereas formerly a farmer saw money only in the fall when he marketed his grain he now sees a check every month either at the creamery o rat the stock yard.

A Sign of Prosperity

The Greenbush Tribune contains liberal amount of advertising which is always a sign of prosperity in a city. Besides this, we could not help but notice a feeling of general contentment among the business men which is also a sure sign that a city is fonging ahead.

Will Supplant Autos

As many as six automobiles used to meet the trains and take passengers to all parts of the county. The Great Northern will now supplant these to a large extent. Greenbush together with the rest of the cities on this branch of the Great Northern no doubt will see a change as the road extends and this change will surely be in the line of an increase in the amount of business transacted.

Shameful But True

Plainview News: If the old brindle cow should get out many a man would walk the streets half the night looking fo rher, but let a 12-year old son or daughter fail to show up and the parents retire for the night without an anxious thought. We dare not be hopeful over the future of the human race as long as the father and mother thinks more of rounding up a $20 cow or a $3 shoat than they do of corralling their sons and daughters at reasonable hours in the evenig.

In Good Hands

It seems that Senator A. D. Stephens of Crookston will probably be made chairman of the senate committee on appropriations when the state legislature convenes in January. If he lands the job it is likely that the interest of northern Minnesota will be better taken care of than in the past. —Plummer Pioneer.

Princeton Union: Mr. Bryan characterizes the presidential election as "the mystery of 1908." There is no mystery about it Mr. Bryan. You were simply running on the wrong ticket.

St. Cloud Times: Harrima says that in fifty years the coal will be gone. However, we can't repress the throb of joy at the prospect of no more rises in the price of it.

A Personal Appeal

If we could talk to you personally about the great merit of Foley's Honey and Tar, for coughs, colds and lung trouble, you never could be induced to experiment with unknown preparations that may contain some harmful drugs. Foley's Honey and Tar costs you no more and has a record of forty years of cures. Sold by all Druggists.

Badger

On the new Greenbush-Warroad extension of the Great Northern Railway line the first place is the flourishing village of Badger. This place was first settled in 1891. It has since grown steadily until at the present, it enjoys a population of 400 inhabitants. Its nearest railroad point until three years ago was Stephen, at a distance of sixty miles.

Progressive Embryo City

The village is prosperous to say the least. It has at present nine gene ral stores, each carrying large stocks of merchandise, one hardware store, one drugstore, two banks, one newspaper, two hotels, three restaurants, four saloons, three confectioneries, one meat market, one physician one dentist, one attorney, four real estate dealers, one barber shop, one tailor ,one harness shop, one shoe repair shop, one photographer, two millinery stores, one dress making shop, three implement dealers, one machine shop, two lumber yards, one pop factory, one grist mill, two feed mills, two saw mills, one concrete manufactory, one creamery doing a yearly business of $30,000,00, five livery barns, two stock buyers, telephone exchange, and farmers' telephone lines, excellent graded school, four churches, three fraternal orders, fire department with incorporated relief association, a commercial club of which all the business men of the village are members.

A Veritable Garden Spot

The country tributary to the village is a well developed farming and dairy country, destined to be the best diversified agricultural community in the northwest. All the small grains are grown successfully, and even corn has been doing well. The soil and climate is very well adapted for the raising of clover, timothy and all kinds of tame grasses, and it is a marvel to strangers to see the production of grasses best fitting to dairying interests. As a country for raising vegetables the territory cannot be surpassed.

First Creamery in County

In view of these facts, dairying will command the best attention of the future and the fact that the first creamery in Roseau county was first established in this village, only emphasizes that the immediate country is the nucleus of the dairying business in that section of the country. For further evidence of this fact the mere statement that this creamery, during the past year, has paid its patrons the sum of $30,000.00 is sufficient. The future, alone, will reveal the dairying possibilities that this vicinity is capable of producing. The farmers have organized an elevator company, with its headquarters in this village but, as yet, have not built an elevator there, altho they have one at Greenbush, but next season will see the erection of one with a capacity of 30,000 bushels.

Land Can be Secured Cheaply

The price of land in this favored district at the present time, is quoted at from $10.00 to $30.00 per acre, but as this will be greatly advanced after the railroad has commenced operations, it will not be surprising to soon see as good prices paid there for land as is paid in the southern part of the state.

A Splendid Showing

When the nearest railroad point was sixty miles from the village and the farmers still doing well with their produce after draying their products that distance, speaks well for the productive qualities of the soil. Besides the growing of the small grains the cattle raising industry occupied the attention of the incoming settlers, and to see the grass fed cattle of this region was sufficient to bring in numerous outside buyers.

Building Wagon Roads

The several townships are now occupied in road building and in a very short time every section line in the vicinity will be found graded. There can be no question but that the influx of new settlers into this region will be very large during the coming season.

Rejoice Over Railroad

At the time of the building of the railroad thru the village during the latter part of October, the people were very enthusiastic, and promptly provided the laborers with a cheerful welcome and a "good time" which they hoped would not soon be forgotten by the true workers.

SHERACK

Mr. A. G. Horn drove to Grand Forks last Tuesday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Osteroh and daughter Miss Amber visited with Mr. and Mrs. B. Tiedemann last Saturday.

Mr. Claus Sohl one of Euclid's leading business men visited in this vicinity last week.

Mr. Henry Tiedemann drove to Grand Forks last Monday. Henry daughter Miss Amber B. Tiedemann seems to drive to town quite often of late but he knows whether he drives seventeen miles to see the town or a certain young lady.

Miss Julia Byington left some time ago for Lemmon, S. D., where she will visit her sister Mrs. E. Short till spring and will then join her parents at Basset, Neb., where she will make her future home. She leaves many warm friends here who regret her departure but all join in wishing her luck and happiness in her new home.

The young people of this vicinity are having advantage of the fine evenings for the merry voices and chimes of sleigh-bells can be heard in every direction.

Messrs. Frank and Tommy Kotek and sister Miss Rose visited with Mr. and Mrs. B. Tiedemann last Monday.

Mr. C. Hiedemann and Claus Sohl drove to Grand Forks last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. August Sensky and family of Fisher and Mr. Adolph, Albert and Miss Alma Horn and Mr. Art Casmey and Claus Sohl took supper and enjoyed a very pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. Tiedemann and family last Sunday evening.

Mr. J. W. Baars celebrated his birthday last Tuesday. He received many congratulations from friends and relatives in this vicinity all wishing him many more yet to come also a long and happy life.

FALL TERM ENDS TODAY

WINTER TERM AT SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE OPENS TUESDAY, JAN. 5

40 NEW STUDENTS MAKING AN ENROLLMENT OF OVER 100 CERTAIN

From Wednesday's Daily—

The fall term of the state school of Agriculture closed today with appropriate exercises The winter term opens January 1st and already applications have been received from 40 new students which will bring the total attendance up to over 100. The past term has been a very successful one, and Stephens Hall will be filled with students after the new year.

The work of the school has been highly gratifying to all who are closely watching its progress. The greatest interest is manifested in what is being accomplished by people all over the valley, and this is evidenced more and more as time passes and the number of enthusiastic visitors spread the news of the great work being done there.

It is the concensus of opinion that the school will exert a tremendous influence for better and more successful farming, and that is this way the cash value of every farm in the valley will be materially increased from this influence alone in the next few years.

DRINK CURE FARM AT WILLMAR

BOARD OF CONTROL LOCATES NEW STATE INSTITUTION ON FOOTE LAKE

VERY LITTLE COMPETITION DEVELOPED TO SECURE FARM

From Wednesday's Daily—

Willmar secures the newest state institution, the state hospital farm for inebriates. The state board of control by resolution passed late yesterday decided to locate the farm on Foote Lake, a short distance from Willmar. The exact location depends on proper water supply and sewage disposal, also on securing a spur track from the Great Northern. If all these matters are adjusted the board will purchase a tract of 343 acres on the Northwest shore of the lake, about two miles from Willmar. It is under option for $70 an acre.

The board had little trouble to determine the site, as the Willmar offer was considered by far the most advantageous. There is about $40,000 on hand and the expense of buildings and maintenance will be borne from the 2 per cent tax on liquor licenses provided in the law.

There is now no state institution in the seventh congressional district and the new one at Willmar will give every district in the state at least one institution.

Location of the hospital farm has been delayed while funds have accumulated from the license tax, and also by the suit brought to determine the constitutionality of the law. The law was upheld in a case coming up from Morris, which refused to pay the tax in order to make a test case.

2 POSTOFFICES ARE ROBBED

Martin C. Fosness of the St. Paul department of postoffice inspectors received the following telegram last night from J. B. Spangler, Steele, N. D.: "Postoffice held up, come at once."

Inspector Munroe, Duluth, also wired Mr. Fosness this morning: "Kimberley P. O. robbed last night, no particulars, will go there."

Mr. Fosness in commenting on the news of the cases of the postoffice robberies, said: "We have been suffering for the past two years from a regular epidemic of postoffice robberies in the Northern part of this division. These epidemics come and go at intervals with astonishing regularity like the sun spots. Just now the storm center is in the Red River Valley. An astonishing number of cases of postoffice robberies are coming in from this portion of our territory."

Holiday passenger traffic is taxing the capacity of the railroads out of Crookston. Last evening it was necessary to attach an extra coach to No 8, making nine passenger coaches on that train packed to the bell-cords. All other trains are loaded every trip, the train arriving from Warroad last evening and returning there this morning having three coaches packed full.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

OFFICIALS NAME DEPUTIES

LITTLE BIRD WHISPERS WHO WILL ASSIST COUNTY OFFICERS ELECT

FOUR WELL KNOWN PEOPLE WILL ASSIST IN HANDLING COUNTY BUSINESS

From Wednesday's Daily—

Deputy Sheriff, Pat Sullivan, E. G. Forks.

Deputy Treasurer, H. O. Anderson.

Deputy Auditor, James Hanson.

Deputy Register of Deeds, Miss Louise Mossefin.

According to a little bird, which has never in the past given us a wrong "steer" the above is about the slate decided upon by the various officials elect who will take office on Jan. 1st.

The selection of Pat Sullivan for Deputy Sheriff will meet with general approval and Sheriff Elect Daniels could not have made a choice giving more widespread satisfaction. Mr. Sullivan has been river boss for the Grand Forks Lumber Co., for about 12 years, is level headed, acquainted from one end of Polk county to the other, as well as in surrounding counties, is immensely popular with every one and is amply capable of "taking into camp" the worst crook that ever came down the pike. Here's to "Black Pat."

Treasurer Elect Flaten has announced definitely that he will name H. O. Anderson as deputy. Mr. Anderson until recently was bookkeeper for L. W. Larson and prior to that with Larson-Carpenter & Co., and is splendidly fitted for the duties which will devolve upon him and his many friends will be highly pleased to learn of his certain appointment.

Co. Auditor Elect Welte will name as his deputy the present clerk in the same office, James Hanson. Mr. Hanson has been in the office for several years, is thoroly competent and well fitted to discharge the important duties of deputy auditor and his popularity about the city will be certain of creating a feeling of lively satisfaction among his many friends.

Register of Deeds Elect T. A. Thompson has announced that his deputy will be Miss Louise Mossefin, and that she will take up the duties of the position immediately upon the installation of the new regime. The announcement has met with unqualified approval. Miss Mossefin is eminently qualified for the position which has been given her, as she is an experienced abstractor, having been employed in the office of the Stair-McConville company for the past seven years.

GOOD NEWS

Many Crookston Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

'Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Crookston are glad to learn that prompt relief is witin their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Joseph Gundlach, cigar maker, living at 319 Broadway, N. Crookston, Minn., says: "I endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for kidney trouble. For a considerable time I suffered from pains in my back and through the loins. To this was added a weakness of the kidneys. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and resolved to try them, getting a box at Wallace's drug store. They proved to be just what my case needed and soon the backache was eradicated and the kidney secretions were regular and normal. I advise any sufferer from these troubles to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CLEARING AWAY DEBRIS OF MILL

Marcus Johnson who spent yesterday in Crookston, proceeded to Red Lake Falls today to note the progress being made on clearing away the debris of the big mill recently burned there. He states that the grain has all been removed and that the site will be cleared of all wreckage in about two weeks. Work on the new mill will be started as soon as possible, and the new structure will be rushed to completion in record time and will be one of the most modern mills in the state.

GROWERS ASS'N ORGANIZED

BY THE FARMERS OF POLK COUNTY AS RESULT OF MEETING YESTERDAY

WILL CO-OPERATE TO MAKE SENATOR STEPHENS' PLAN A SUCCESS

From Wednesday's Daily—

The farmers who gathered from all parts of Polk county yesterday as guests of Senator A. D. Stephens at a banquet at the Hotel Crookston, before adjourning yesterday afternoon effected the organization of the Polk County Growers' Association by the election of J. M. Stephens as president and T. R. Brown secretary. The decided to work heartily in accord with the plan of Senator Stephens to give $1,000 in prizes to encourage better farming methods and better stock raising in Polk County, and will endeavor to see that all conditions are complied with.

A resolution was passed asking Senator Stephens to work against the proposed appropriation of $100,000 for use of the Immigration Bureau, and have the money appropriated for the encouragement of farmers to produce better crops and thus give the state what they believe would be better advrtising.

KEELEY GETS EIGHT YEARS

WELL KNOWN DISPATCHER WHO WAS FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

AS A RESULT OF RAILROAD ACCIDENT IS SENTENCED AT MISSOULA, MONT.

From Monday's Daily—

Harry J. Keeley the former Crookston resident who was recently found guilty by a jury at Thompson, Missoula county, Montana, of involuntary manslaughter in connection with a wreck on the Northern Pacific was formally sentenced by District Judge Henry L. Myers of Missoula county, to serve eight years in the penitentiary.

His attorney immediately filed a motion for a new trial, and pending the decision of the court, Keeley was remanded back to the custody of the sheriff without bail.

OLSEN TO A CERTAINTY

J. W. Olsen, dean of the state agricultural school, is regarded in some quarters as a certainty. The university board of regents will meet Dec. 29 and it is said that the matter will be settled then.

When Mr. Olsen's candidacy was announced some weeks ago it was reported that he had five members of the board favorable to him, and it is now said that two more have been forced into line by the state administration. This with his own vote will be sufficient.

The university board is democratic or at least is controlled by the administration, and it is not believed the administration's wishes in the matter will be disregarded.

KEYSTONE

Mrs. Simon Aeschlimann left last Friday evening for Roanoke, Ill., to visit her daughter and son also other relatives and friends. It is a long time since Mrs. Aeschlimann visited her home state and it is needless to say that she is anticipating a very pleasant visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brantl and daughter Mary, called on Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brantl last Sunday.

John and Miss Emma Giese, Lewis and Miss Lydia Aeschlimann and Miss Agnes LaGrave called on Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Aeschlimann one evening last week.

Persida Aeschlimann spent two weeks at the Key Stone farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jerrick and son called on the Brantl family last Monday.

Mr. Henry Ehnen is assisting Mr. Thomas Sticka who is drilling a well at Simon Aeschlimann.

Earl Capes who left for Illinois some time ago to work for his brother writes to his friends here that he does not like Illinois and is longing for Minnesota. Earl knows when he has a good thing and no one will blame him for prefering Gophers to Suckers.

Mr. B. C. Kock and Mr. John Kutzley of Tremont, Illinois were visitors here last week.

GIRL SHOOTS HER COUSIN

ACCIDENTAL DISCHARGE OF RIFLE KILLS FORMER CROOKSTON LAD

SAD ACCIDENT IN FAMILY OF A FORMER EMPLOYE OF J. E. MORRISEY

From Monday's Daily—

Fred Trumbore the 17-year old son of H. H. Trumbore, a plumber employed by William Lowe of Glendive, Montana, died late today as the result of a gunshot wound accidentally received Sunday morning.

Trumbore and a young woman cousin had gone out in the foothills near town to do some target shooting. While the young woman was in the act of cocking the 22 calibre rifle her thumb slipped off the hammer and the gun was discharged the bullet hitting Trumbore above the right eye and penetrating the brain. The girl hurried to town to secure assistance and Doctors D. J. Donohue and J. H. Hunt were summoned.

No inquest was held as the cause of death was clear.

The boy was a member of the 8th grade class in the public schools at Glendive and had been a resident of Glendive a little over a year. He went to Glendive with his parents from Fergus Falls in October 1907.

The News will be received with great sorrow in Crookston, Mr. Trombore having been a resident of this city for several years, having been in the employ of Jas. E. Morrisey. He was a member of the Crookston Band, being an expert snare drummer. The family will have the deep sympathy of many friends here.

CARPENTER $2,000 SHORT

WIFE LEAVES FOR MINNEAPOLIS TO INTERCEDE FOR EMBEZZLER

TELEPHONE MAN GOES WRONG—FORMERLY LOCATED AT CROOKSTON

From Monday's Daily—

D. K. Carpenter, assistant superintendent of construction of the Northwestern Telephone company, with headquarters in Fargo, and having charge of nearly all the North Dakota work of the company, is missing and a charge of embezzlement has been filed against him. Carpenter is charged with the theft of $2,000 of the company's funds. It was reported that the amount might reach $5,000. This is considered improbable. The warrant for Carpenter's arrest was sworn out in Fargo a week ago last Friday, but the fact was kept secret so that he might be caught.

Carpenter's wife was in Grand Forks yesterday, arriving from Bemidji, where she had learned that her husband is wanted. She declares that she does not know where he is at the present time. She is anxious to arrange matters with the company, and left last night for Minneapolis, where she will see the head officials. Her former home is in Minneapolis and she will remain there for the present Mrs. Carpenter arrived in Grand Forks yesterday morning. She is deeply grieved over the troubles of her husband.

May be Hiding in Woods

Carpenter left about a month ago for Ferris, Minn., where he had a claim. Following his departure there was an investigation of his accounts and it was found that he was a defaulter. He had charge of accounts of large construction crews and converted a large share of the same to his own use.

It is believed that Carpenter is hiding somewhere in the vicinity of Bemidji or in the Iron range country. For years he was a resident of Crookston and he knows a good deal about the northern Minnesota country.

The sheriff from Bemidji was in Fargo yesterday to consult with the authorities there.

District Manager Blakely of the Northwestern Telephone company, was in Minneapolis yesterday and so no statement could be secured from him. Travelig Auditor G. U. Barck, of Minneapolis, was here early in the week, but he has also returned home It is understood that he uncovered the Carpenter shortage in the Fargo office.

J. P. FOOTE IS MAKING $10,000

J. P. Foote is about the busiest man in Crookston today—making $10,000—which would make almost any person work overtime.

He is signing new crisp bills in that amount as president of the First National Bank of Cass Lake, and the task is no small one, but if turning a piece of money into legal tender only required a signature, many people would like to indulge in the pastime.

SAUK RAPIDS FATHER FINED

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF NOT SENDING HIS BOY TO SCHOOL —MINNESOTA

FACTORY INSPECTOR IS LOOKING UP THIS CLASS OF CASES

From Monday's Daily—

Aug. Kutzurik of Sauk Rapids was arrested Saturday for violating the laws relating to sending children to school.

Kutzurik pleaded guilty to the change before Justice Coates at St. Cloud and the minimum fine of $1 and costs was imposed. August Kutzurik a 15 year old son of the man, had been out of school all fall and was employed in the saw mill.

When Geo. Walz became factory inspector he learned that the boy had not received proper education and notified the father to send him to school. The father sent the boy for one day and believing that he had met the requirements put him back to work.

PHILANTHROPIST MAKES OFFER TO LADS WHO WILL SIGN PLEDGE

To every boy in Iowa who will take a pledge to use neither tobacco nor liquor. Samuel Saucerman, a wealthy Des Moines resident, will give $1, a cent a day for three years, and another dollar at the end of the three years

The new organization Mr. Saucerman is perfecting to help boys is to be known as "The Trimmer Band" He demonstrated his earnestness when he had deposited $5,000 in the name of "The Trimmer Band."

Each boy must deposit with his dollar, 50 cents to show good faith starting his bank account with $1.50. Each boy will receive 1 penny per day for three years, and at the end of that period he will receive an additional $1. This will give each $12 if he has not saved one cent himself.

The pledge each boy takes on joining the Trimmer Band is to abstain from the use of tobacco and liquor and to taboo gambling and profane and slang language.

MORTIMER'S BODY STILL MISSING

John T. Mortimer a resident of St. Vincent who is supposed to have fallen into an open place in the ice on the Red River between St. Vincent and Pembina has not been found yet. An expert diver from Winnipeg, who is in the employ of the Dominion government, has been employed and has searched the bed of the river in the vicinity of the open place without success. It is now proposed to search a net across the river between St. Vincent and Emerson in hopes that the body may be recovered. Mr. Mortimer was a prominent man of St. Vincent, of good habits and was at one time quite prominent in political circles in Manitoba.

ESCAPED THE EARTHQUAKE

MRS. McCANNA AND MISS FEENEY WERE JUST OUT-THE

ZONE OF DISTURBANCE WHEN AWFUL CALAMITY CAME

From Monday's Daily—
Mrs. S. A. McCanna formerly of McCanna, North Dakota, now of Minneapolis and her niece Miss Agnes Feeney of Rochester, Minn., who were thought to have been among the earth quake victims, are both safe. They had sailed from Toarmina, Italy a few hours before the shock and were outside the earthquake zone.

Charles McCanna of McCanna, a son of Mrs. McCanna stated last evening over the long distance telephone that he had heard nothing from his mother since she left New York for Italy on Dec. 5. She was due to arrive in Rome Dec. 20 and expected to visit all points of interest there and in Italy.

According to the Associated Press, Mrs. McCanna and Miss Feeney left for Taomira. That city was in the earthquake zone. While it is possible they may have escaped, it is more probable that they were victims.

It is believed that had Mrs. McCanna escaped she would have cabled her son, Charles.

Well Known There

Mrs. McCanna is the widow of Simon McCanna who was a well known resident of Grand Forks for many years. She has five children. The oldest, Charles, looks after their extensive farm interests at McCanna. George is attending the University of Minnesota. Two other children are attending an educational institution in Virginia and another is at an academy in Illinois.

Mrs. McCanna resided at McCanna for many years. Nine years ago she moved to Grand Forks and resided there for five years. From there she moved to Minneapolis. There she resided for the past four years.

Has Many Friends

Mrs. McCanna occupied a beautiful home on Reeves avenue at Grand Forks and her hospitality was enjoyed by many friends on numerous occasions.

It is the general hope that she will be found safe and sound, altho her friends are fearful she is a victim of the terrible satastrophe. She is believed to have been the only person from North Dakota in the earthquake zone at the time.

FOUR ECLIPSES DUE THIS YEAR

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF SUN JUNE 17 —OF MOON NOV. 26—BOTH VISIBLE HERE

The new calendar shows that there will be four eclipses in 1909. Two of these, a total obscuration of the sun and a total lunar eclipse, will be visible to the United States.

1. A total eclipse of the moon on June 3rd, visible to South America and Africa, and in a part of North Africa and in a part of North America, Europe and southwestern Asia.

2. A total eclipse of the sun, June 17th, visible to North America as far south as a line drawn from San Francisco to the mouth of the Rio Grande river and from the northern and eastern portion of Asia.

3. A total eclipse of te moon on November 26-27, visible to North America and the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and in part of South America extreme western portions of Europe and Africa and the eastern portions of Asia and Australia.

4. A partial eclipse of the sun on December 12-13 invisible to the United States. Visible to the southern tip of Australia the southern portion of New Zealand and t he southern polar regions.

The new calendar shows that the first Sunday in Lent occurs on Feb. 28, Easter Sunday on April 11th.

Australia's First Theater.

The first recorded production of a play in Australia took place in June of the year 1789. It was called "The Recruiting Officer." The proceeds of the first pay night (some £20) went to the family of a man who had been drowned. In January, 1796, a rough and ready playhouse was opened, and the public had to pay a shilling a head for admission. The payments were made in kind, wheat, flour or rum taking the place of the usual currency.—London Standard.

RUGBY BA CLOSES DOORS

IRREGULARITIES CAUSE DIRECTORS TO TAKE ACTION TO SECURE RECEIVER

CASHIER JONES GONE —FEARED PROSECUTION IT IS STATED

From Tuesday's Daily—
The affairs of the First National Bank of Rugby, of which Andy Jones was cashier, are in a bad tangle according to information received in Grand Forks last evening. The doors of the bank were closed yesterday by Dr. I. M. McBride assistant cashier, acting upon order of the directors and the comptroller of the currency has appointed George W. Swords of Minot as receiver.

Cashier Andy Jones has been gone for a week and the officials of the bank state that they have not heard from him and do not know where he has gone. They believed when he went away that he was going east to seek to straighten out the tangled condition of the bank's assets.

Notes Are Irregular

The immediate cause of the closing of the bank was the fact that some notes were presented for payment that were not of record at the bank. The notes had been given by Jones as a private individual and had been indorsed by him as cashier.

Just how badly the bank is involved is problematical. If the bank is to be held responsible for all the paper issued by Jones it is feared that it will come out of the receivership in bad shape.

The bank had a capital stock of $25,000 and its last statement showed deposits of $200,000.

IRELAND IS ON THE SCENE

ST. PAUL ARCHBISHOP REPORTED TO BE ON HIS WAY TO EARTHQUAKE SECTION

A current report is to the effect that Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul has been requested by the pope to go at once to the scene of last Monday's earthquake as his personal representative, in order to ascertain the fate of a number of Americans and it is said that the prelate will comply at once with the request of his holiness.

The archbishop left St. Paul the first of last December for an extended visit in Europe, going direct from New York to Rome where he was received in audience by the pope.

STATE LEGISLATURE CONVENED TUESDAY

The Thirty-sixth Minnesota legislature convened today. There is no United States senator to be elected and for the first time the members will be on salary instead of per diem.

Legislative reapportionment is one of the big problems of the session. There has been no reapportionment since 1906. Other important questions to be taken up are:

A system of county agricultural schools under state aid.

An act to prohibit brewers from owning or controlling saloon licenses

A public utilities commission, after the New York plan.

Extension of the direct primary law to restore some features of convention system.

Liberal appropriation for state immigration board to use in advertising the state.

Railroad and tax legislation will not cut as prominent a figure this year as in past sessions.

The establishing of a proposed sixth state normal school, for the location of which the city of Bemidji will put forth strenuous efforts.

Disappearing Home Life.

The flat dweller ought not to keep a dog, prefers not to keep a cat, cannot have a garden, has no chance of keeping house, has no possible place for memories and, most emphatic of all, has no use or accommodation for babies. Although it may be possible to make homes without kittens or babies or flowers or memories or cupboards, the spirit of home is hard to woo and win without any of them.—Fortnightly Review.

There is but one virtue—the eternal sacrifice of self.—George Sand.

ST. PAUL SUICIDE IS IDENTIFIED

MAN WHO ENDED HIS LIFE NI ST. PAUL WAS WILLIAM DAVIS

The suicide whose body was found late Thursday afternoon in an outhouse at Indian Mounds Park, has been identified as William Davis a former inmate of the house of the Little Sisters of the Poor, Wilkin street.

The identification was made by Edward Farrell, 612 Fauquier street, who called at the morgue. He said that Davis was 76 years old and had lived at his house for some time, having left the home of the Little Sisters of the Poor about a year ago.

Davis left the Farrell home last Monday, telling Mrs. Farrell that he might be away a few days. That was the last seen of him alive. His wife from whom he had separated, is living at Minot, N. D., and Coroner Miller has notified her of the suicide.

OLSEN DOESN'T WANT THE JOB

DECIDES HE WILL ACT AS DEAN OF FARM SCHOOL TILL AUGUST ONLY

SELECTION HAS CAUSED TROUBLE—NEWSPAPERS WERE VERY CAUSTIC

J. W. Olsen state superintendent of public instruction, has decided that he does not want to be dean of the state farm school after all. He sent a letter yesterday to John Lind, president of the board of regents, declining to acept the position permanently, but willing to hold it until a real successor to E. W. Randall is appointed.

Under the condition, however, will Mr. Olsen consent to serve as dean more than this school term.

Mr. Olsen's action comes as the inevitable result of the fact that his selection to the position was regarded thru out the state as dictated by political considerations rather than by his superior fitness for the office. Some of the staunchest supporters of Gov. John A. Johnson were extremely disappointed in the way that Mr. Olsen had been pushed thru to head one of the most important educational institutions in Minnesota.

Make Personal Protest

Some Duluth men, for instance, who have stood by the governor thru thick and thin revolted when they learned that the kitchen cabinet proposed to utilize a state educational institution in the furtherance of its scheme to gain control of the state inevery possible way. Some men from the Zenith City came to St. Paul to make a personal protest against the selection Reports indicate that the same feeling of indignation was general thruout the state. In the face of the strong disapproval uttered everywhere, there was nothing left for Mr. Olsen to do except to decline the position.

Gov. Johnson was at the meeting last week when Mr. Olsen was elected Mr. Olsen was at the general meeting but retired when it came to voting There were four regents, it is said, who were opposed to Olsen. It is claimed however that Gov. Johnson had given his word to Mr. Olsen that he would receive his election. Gov. Johnson, impelled by such a promise, it is said, made his wishes known so strongly to the fire regents who were known to favor the election of W. M. Hays, that there was nothing left for them to do except bow to the will of the chief executive of the state.

The fact that the governor in his ex-officio capacity should attend the meeting and use his influence so strongly aroused considerable feeling even among some of Gov. Johnson's most ardent admirers and they expressed marked surprise that he should have conducted himself in such a manner, instead of leaving to the unbiased judgment of the board the filling of so important a place as that of dean of the agricultural school.

FORMER RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

MRS. S. O. SAWYER PROMINENT IN BAPTIST CHURCH, DIES IN WISCONSIN

It will be with deep regret that many old friends and neighbors of Mrs. S. O. Sawyer will learn of her death at Augusta, Wis., a few days ago. Mrs. Sawyer with her husband resided for several years on what is known as the Truax Farm northeast of Crookston, and Mrs. Sawyer was very prominent in the Baptist church She leaves a husband and two sons, Ralph aged about 25 and Verne who is about 16 years of age. Mr. Sawyer was about 56 years of age and a woman loved and honored by all who knew her.

FORTUNE AWARDED TO J. BOTTINEAU

LONG LEGAL WAR RESULTS IN VICTORY FOR SON OF PIERE BOTTINEAU

INDIAN LAND CASE SETTLED BY DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SUPREME COURT

From Monday's Daily—
The following from Washington, D. C. will be interesting to people of this section. Mr. Bottineau is a son of the late Pierre Bottineau and his brothers and sisters reside at Red Lake Falls the family being well known thruout the northwest.

Judge Barnard of the District of Columbia supreme court handed a fine Christmas present to John Bottineau of Minneapolis who is known in the northwest as "Turtle Mountain John."

In a decree Judge Barnard awarded Bottineau $23,000 as his share of a fee in recovering from the government payment for 10,000,000 acres of land in North Dakota.

Several years ago "Turtle Mountain John" came to Washington with a contract from his tribe of Indians to secure payment of their claim.

The government offered to settle for $1,000,000 but Bottineau refused and later turned the matter over to a former member of congress from New York as attorney. This man went out to North Dakota and made a new deal with the Indians whereby they agreed to accept $1,000,000.

Bottineau, however, had a contract with the ex-member of congress for a percentage of any fee which might be allowed and brought suit against him for $50,000. The case has been pending for some years, Bottineau appearing as his own lawyer.

The decree just rendered is a decided victory for the old man. Several years ago Bottineau was a justice of the peace in Minneapolis.

ALL BUTCHER SHOPS TO CLOSE AT 6.30

WILL KEEP OPEN EVENINGS ONLY ON SATURDAYS—LASTS TILL NOV. 1

The butchers of Crookston at a meeting held yesterday reached an agreement to close their places of business at 6:30 from this time forward till Nov. 1st with the exception of Saturday evenings when they will remain open till all their customers have been attended to. This is in line with the recent action taken by the general merchants of the city, and is a good move. There is no reason why the butchers and their employes should be kept from their homes every night in the week, and prevented from enjoying public and social gatherings, as any one wanting anything in that line can just as well order it before 6:30 as later. The new plan will meet with hearty public approval. It is high time Crookston was adopting metropolitan closing hours. The same amount of business will be done, and the business men and clerks will not have to be slaves 12 months in the year as under the old late closing system.

PASTOR'S SUCCESSFUL RUSE.

When He Made an Age Distinction All Women's Hats Came Off.

The Rev. Dr. E. Trumbull Lee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Walkinsburg, a fasionable Pittsburg suburb, the other Sunday morning requested that all the women of his congregation remove their hats before he would proceed with the services. There was much grumbling, and scores declined to make a move toward removing their hats until the minister said:

"The request, of course, does not apply to elderly ladies, but I wish all the younger women to remove their hats."

In less than a minute every woman in the church had her hat on her lap.

Hole in New French Coin.

The French chamber is to be asked shortly to sanction the minting of some new nickel coins to the value of about $15,000,000. There will be two new pieces of five and ten centimes, and these will have a hole in the center, after the manner of Belgian nickel coins. The names of the new coins and their weights are still under consideration. The hole in the center will effectually prevent any confusion with existing silver.

It takes an awful lot of self control to enable a man to go up in the attic every time he feels like swearing.

POLK COUNTY GOT CORN PRIZE

SPLENDID RESULTS OBTAINED FROM PROF. HARRINGTON'S CORN CONTEST

FIRST ATTEMPT TO MATURE MINNESOTA NO. 13 A GRATIFYING SUCCESS

From Tuesday's Daily—
Much gratification is felt here over the fact that Polk Co., received the 17th prize in the corn contest which was held last week in St. Paul in view of the fact that there were 150 entries most of them from the southern part of the state, and 38 prizes awarded, making Polk County's showing better than the average of the prize winners. What is still more significant is that this is the first time Minnesota No. 13 corn was ever sown in this county with the idea of its maturing. Early last spring, Prof. L. P. Harrington gave samples of this and other varieties to the students leaving the Crookston branch State School of Agriculture, for their homes. Six of the best samples returned from this contest at the State School this fall were selected to send to the St. Paul contest and of the six the one grown by Julius Jacobson of East Grand Forks won the prize for Polk Co.

Next spring Prof. Harrington will issue samples on a still larger scale with the idea of further stimulating the interest in corn raising. The work of the State School of Agriculture along this line has been of a most efficient character, and already corn raising is receiving attention in every part of the county. The fact that prize winning corn can be raised here will serve to still further stimulate the industry, and the fact that this was the first attempt to mature it in this section, demonstrates that after it is acclimated once, the maturing will be a much more simple matter. Minnesota dent is a fine yellow dent corn.

The work of Prof. Harrington and the school of Agriculture along this line will meet with most hearty public approval. It is the biggest kind of an advertisement for Polk county to win a prize against such competition from old corn sections of the state, and marks a new era in the prinze cereals which this section can successfully produce. Prof. Harrington is certainly the right man in the right place.

"CAVAIR FROM LAKE WINNEPEG"

SPLENDID CHRISTMAS SOUVENIR ISSUED BY THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

For the past eight years the Winnipeg Free Press has presented as a souvenir during the Christmas holidays some handsome gift illustrative of the wealth and resources of Canada. Beginning in 1901 with a miniature sack of "No. 1 hard" Manitoba wheat, it presented in 1902 a miniature sack of reindeer pemican made at Fort McPherson, a Hudson's Bay company post sixey-five miles within the Artic circle accompanied buy an illustrated booklet bound with a deerskin thong. In 1903 the souvenir took the form of a gopher's tail mounted, as a "good luck bringer", in 1904 a pen made from a quill of a Canadian wild goose; in 1905, a flint and steel; in 1906, a pipe of peace—all these accompanied by booklets containing Indian legends on the subject. In 1907 the souvenir was a little barrel of flour made at the Hudson's Bay company's mill at Vermillion 400 miles south of the Artic circle, from wheat grown in the Peace River country.

The Free Press celebrates Christmas of 1908 by sending out a tin of "caviar from Lake Winnipeg" accompanied by a booklet giving an account of the history of caviar and a Cree legend of the sturgeon, given in print for the first time. Caviar is the roe of the sturgeon prepared as a table delicacy and none finer is produced than that which comes from Lake Winnipeg whose fishing grounds are guarded by the mythical monster l'Eturgeon Royal, the great sturgeon of Cree tradition. The Winnipeg Free Press is, in many respects, the greatest newspaper in Canada, and under the direction of Manager Macklin and Editor Dafoe it has achieved a deserved reputation for ability and enterprise.

All Aboard for the Annual Trip on the Water Wagon

"I'm going to have a good time tonight, for I'm going to be a lowly kid for the next year" said a certain young man last evening.

This is the day that nearly everyone is making some resolution for the new year. Some people have penetrated to the depth of their weakness, and have foresworn making resolutions. It is probable that at some time in the past, they made a resolution to never make another New Year's resolution.

But nearly everybody in town has some little resolution tucked away in his or her breast. The men who have the water wagon resolution in their bonnets are most frank about telling about it. Then somebody laughs and they get angry.

Most people select two or three of their most glaring habits and forswear them at least for a short time. It is the cautious resolution maker who usually keeps his resolution. Those people who are going to quit every bad habit they have upon the first of the year are the ones who usually keep these resolutions for about two days.

One man was found in the class which labors in the woods and upon the drive who has really resolved to save money.

This chap will certainly have a large field to start his new and original experiment upon. At the time he told of the resolution, he had 15 cents between him and that gaunt feeling that makes a bun look like a banquet.

However he was brave in the face of adversity. He remarked with grim resolution that there would be no more easy money come-ons in his, that he wasn't coming to Crookston $100 strong, and leave the town with a headache and a plug of coarsecut.

A driver was found who has made a resolution that he won't run his horses up hill. That is one of the very best resolutions that has been made.

There is a rumor that there is a waiter who has resolved not to accept any tips during the course of the new year. This story seemed incredible. After thoro investigation, it was decided that this resolution was made upon the impulse of the moment.

It is also said that one of the lady clerks at one of the department stores had resolved to stop chewing gum. However this report is unofficial and its authority cannot be vouched for.

There are all kinds of resolutions, but the trouble is to get people to be honest with you.

Other typical resolutions made are as follows:

J. E. Morrisey will learn a new tune to whistle.

Tom Young is going to lower the pressure on his vocal organs.

Chief Eck will forswear lute-fisk till Lent.

Alderman Snyder will join the Geo. Washington "Lie Not" club.

John Kirsch will resign as business agent of the "Merry Widows' Club."

Mike Palen will use no more black dye on his whiskers.

Carl Reidesel will stop pinching his feet with small shoes.

Alex Thompson will stop wearing Scotch plaid underwear.

Mike Kalad will stop playing the roll of Beau Brummel.

Tom Casey resolved not to be interviewed.

C. H. Zealand resolves to have another base ball league.

Nault and Simmons of the Amusement Trust resolve to give the people a run for their money.

Capt. Vondenbeck will eat sauerkraut but twice a day this year.

"SO WOULD I."

AMUSING STORY OF SENATOR KNUTE NELSON

Knute Nelson senator from Minnesota, lives east of the Capitol and entirely away from the social swim.

Every evening about dark, when the weather is fairly good, Senator Nelson may be seen plodding along East Capitol street to No. 649 just like a government clerk who wants to save car fare. He makes a queer looking figure, with his derby hat pulled away down over his ears his baggy trousers flapping in the breeze and his funny little bunch of chin whiskers pointed out in front. There could not be a more perfect representative of the typical farmer, even to the big hunk of tobacco in his cheek.

The other evening it was raining pretty hard and the Minnesota senator climbed on a car at the corner of Delaware avenue and B street northeast. The car was jammed with people, and it was all he could do to squeeze himself onto the step. He hung on with one hand as best he could could and swung around curves in great shape, apparently enjoying himself to the limit.

There was another man hanging on the same step. Just after the car had given an unusually severe lurch this man scowled and remarked to Mr. Nelson:

"I only wish I was a member of Congress and I would see that these street car companies gave better service."

"So would I" growled Senator Nelson.—Washington Star.

Suspected Of Insanity

There are still some traces of medievalism in our attitude toward the insane. We haven't altogether gotten rid of the idea even in this enlightened day, that the lunatic is an enemy of society, when he is really an invalid. We have made much progress, it is true, from the day when he was imprisoned, maltreated and killed by slow torture. We have substituted hospitals for asylums, and have provided care and expert treatment at public expense, says the Minneapolis Journal.

The weak point in the present system, however, is the method by which a person suspected of insanity is apprehended, examined and committed. Someone, a friend or relative, files information against him, an officer seizes him as gently as possible, but sometimes with violence, nevertheless and he is brought into the probate court after a night or more spent in jail like a common criminal. Here he is formally charged with insanity, as if it were a crime, and sits listening to the testimony of his family and his friends. After this terrible ordeal—terrible, indeed, for a man whose reason is tottering, and who faces the blackness and despair of lunacy—he is adjudged insane and taken to the state hospital by deputy sheriffs, or he is declared sane and released but with a fearsome stigma fixed upon him, a suspicion that causes the world to on him askance and causes him to doubt himself.

In either case, a great wrong has been done the sufferer by the state. If he is mentally ill, his case has been aggravated by the discussion of it in open court, and the force with which he is often handled. If he is not insane, the mistake may in the end make him so. And there is the chance that he may be mistakenly committed by the court, and may prove, under treatment, only temporarily affected.

In the light of these considerations, the proposal of the Minnesota board of control that detention hospitals be established in connection with each of the state hospitals for the insane, is an advanced and enlightened suggestion. The scheme outlined by the board in its recent report must commend itself to every thoughtful person. These detention hospitals would serve as places where doubtful cases could be observed and treated without the stigma and the nervous strain involved in a probate court examination.

A man who felt within himself the approach of unreason, could submit himself without publicity to expert examination and treatment. Cases are by no means infrequent where a man, fearing he would commit homicide, has asked the authorities to lock him up. Such a desperate step is usually taken after a long struggle with self, and in the deadly fear of lost self-control. If he knew that sympathetic and skilful physicians of the mind were at his disposal in a state detention hospital, and that the fact of his going there would be kept inviolably secret, he would not wait until the last desperate moment before giving himself up, and he might be saved from himself and restored to sanity.

Similarly, a suspect could be persuaded by his family and his physicians to subject himself to observation and treatment. Judges of probate, in doubtful cases could avail themselves of the detention hospitals. The probability of recovery would be greatly enhanced by early treatment under unexciting conditions. The plan outlined by the board provides proper safeguards against the abuse of the hospitals and the unwarranted incarceration therein of any person. No red tape is to be unwound when the superintendent concludes that a detained man is not insane or has recovered from his malady; the door is opened and he goes free.

The project is one that ought to commend itself in principle to the legislature.

ST. VINCENT HOSPITAL

SPLENDID RECORD MADE DURING THE PAST YEAR BY THE SISTERS

210 PATIENTS CARED FOR AND OF THESE BUT 4 OR 5 DIED

From Friday's Daily—

The past year has been very successful and useful one for St. Vincents hospital and the Sisters have earned the thanks of the entire community for their faithful work in caring for the sick and injured.

The records show that during the past year 210 patients have been cared for there. Of these 97 were surgical cases, 34 typhoid fever, 9 diseases of the eye, 14 accidents, and 44 various other diseases such as cancer tuberculosis, rheumatism, stomach and nervous troubles, etc.

Of all these cases there were but four or five deaths which is really a wonderful record, as the condition of many of the patients when they arrived there was nothing short of desperate, but the skillful and kindly care they received at the hands of the self-sacrificing Sisters worked wonders aided by good medical care.

Considerable charity work was done by the Sisters, as the institution is operated for the uplift of humanity and the relief of suffering, and not as a money making proposition.

The Sister Superior and others connected with this splendid institution, desire to thank the kind and thoughtful friends who remembered the hospital on Thanksgiving and Christmas days, and a list of them will be published in the Journal later.

COMMISSION OFFICE CLOSED

CROOKSTON CUSTOMERS MORE FORTUNATE THAN THOSE AT FORKS AND FARGO

The commission offices of Geraghty & Co., in Crookston have been closed together with all that concern's offices, pending a settlement of financial difficulties. Grand Forks and Fargo customers were quite heavy losers owing to their dabbling in railroad stocks which took a sudden tumble. The Crookston customers however, are about $8000 to the good as a result of their dealings thru the firm. Jim V. Thompson the local manager, is still in Crookston and will remain here for a while. He has not definitely decided upon his future movements.

EDITOR CARR TAKES A PARTNER

V. A. GREER TAKES A PARTNER BUYS A HALF INTEREST IN MIDDLE RIVER PIONEER

R. D. V. Carr the well known Middle River editor makes the announcement that he has sold a half interest in the Middle River Pioneer to V. A. Greer, a former well known Crookston land man, and the paper will be published by the two in the future. In addition to publishing the Pioneer, the new firm will engage in the real estate business to quite an extent and expect to dispose of much land in the vicinity of Middle River in the near future. Mr. Greer has been engaged in the real estate loan and insurance business at Middle River for some time past and the two will make a strong team.

KINGSTON BROWN BROKE COLLAR BONE

Kingston Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Brown while wrestling with his brother this morning fell and broke his collar bone. Last week while skating a playmate threw a stick in front of him and he fell cracking the bone, and the fall today completed the fracture and he will be laid up and have to carry his neck in a sling for the next two weks.

Thief River Falls Press: A recent investigation has disclosed the fact that a Pullman car porter is paid $25 a month. But think what he saves by not having to pay for his berth each night.

Litchfield Independent: Governor Johnson has been in the East recently in attendance on the "conservation congress." He is attracting no little attention, and has gained in popularity since his recent third successive election.

The actions of some men remind us of a comic opera without a plot.

LID ON TIGHT AT SPENCER

CITY COUNCIL PASSES A DRASTIC ORDINANCE—DANCES AND RINKS TABOOED

TOWN DADS EVEN GO FURTHER AND BAR CLAIRVOYANTS AND PALMISTS

ACTION FOLLOWS A SERIES OF SCRAPS IN CONDUCT OF A SKATING RINK

From Friday's Daily—

The city council of Spencer Ia., at its last meeting passed an ordinance making it unlawful for any person firm or corporation to conduct any public dance hall or skating rink within the limits of the city.

Not satisfied with opposing dancing and skating, the council went further and said: "It shall be unlawful for any fortune teller, palmist or clairvoyant to ply his or her trade within the limits of the city for hire." The penalty attached to the violation of these ordinances by the town dads is severe. The ordinance, which is No. 109 of the revised code says: "Any person who shall violate this ordinance shall upon conviction be fined from $1 to $100 or serve from one to thirty days in the town bastile."

The passing of such drastic measures was brought about after a series of ructions which followed the operations of a skating rink within the city limits. J. S. Johnson early in the fall secured a license to operate a skating rink.

Last week Johnson was arrested and fined $10 and costs for having struck Mrs. Anna Brown, the cashier at the rink. Mrs. Brown and Johnson had been having difficulty over the amount of wages due to Mrs. Brown and the fight resulted. The mayor, William Wells, also decreed that as additional punishment Johnson's license to operate the rink should be revoked. But the mayor lacked the power to revoke the license already paid for and so the city dads got together and passed the ordinance, making it a misdemeanor for any one to operate a skating rink.

The ordinance has stirred the town from top to bottom. The interpretation of "public dances" is coming in for its share. The question that is most asked is who will be punished in case a dance is held. The city dads are quoted as saying that not only the person running the dance, but the dancers themselves will be arraigned and fined.

Spencer is the town where some time ago the W. C. T. U. caused all of the drug store licenses to be revoked. The town is noted for having fourteen churches to a population of less than 4,000.

NO PAPER ON SUNDAY MORNING

RECENT PLAN ADOPTED BY ST. PAUL DISPATCH DISCONTINUED

In a signed announcement in the St. Paul Dispatchh today C. H. Grasty who recently purchased an equal interest from George Thompson in that paper, announces the discontinuance of the recently projected Sunday morning edition of that paper. Mr. Grasty says owing to the fact that the Dispatch did not have the Associated Press service for its Sunday morning editions and that it could not get it and the further fact that there seemed to be an inherent antagonism toward the Sunday morning newspaper, are the chief reasons for its discontinuance.

Mr. Grasty says concerning the Sunday newspaper:

"Personally I am not a very strong believer in the Sunday newspaper. I think it has a vogue beyond its merits and that the impossible editions, with its multiplicity of pages and its display of 'stunts' and specialties, will either disappear or give place to a saner journalism."

JUDGE WATTS SUSTAINED

ACTION IN DIRECTING A VERDICT FOR THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD

IN DAMAGE SUIT BROUGHT BY FRED MAGEAU UPHELD BY SUPREME COURT

From Friday's Daily—

The Supreme Court of Minnesota has sustained the action of Judge Watts in directing a verdict for the Great Northern n the damage suit brought by Fred Mageau in which plaintiff asked for $10,000 damages for the loss of his wife, who he claims died as the direct result of injuries received enroute to Crookston in a wreck at Barnesville. The decision rendered briefly is as follows:

Fred H. Mageau, as administrator of the estate of Clara Mageau, deceased, appellant, vs. Great Northern Railway Company, respondent.

Syllabus: In a personal injury action, held, that there was no substantial evidence to sustain the verdict and that the trial court therefore properly ordered judgment for the defendant, notwithstanding the verdict for the plaintiff.

The opinion of a physician, that the death of a person was due to one disease instead of another—both diseases being caused by the action of germs and manifested by similar external symptoms—based upon general observation without a post mortem or microscopal examination, is too conjectural, theoretical and uncertain, standing alone, to sustain a verdict.

CLAIM AGENT WHO LOOKS AFTER THIS DISTRICT OF N. P. GOES UP HIGHER

After holding the position of general claim agent of the Northern Pacific for twelve years, J. F. Newton has resigned and will in the future make his home in Tacoma, Wash. Mr. Newton according to officials of the Northern Pacific has been in ill health for some time and it is said that he is seeking a change in climate and will retire from active railroad work. He is to be succeeded by W. F. Every, who has been Mr. Newton's chief clerk for a number of years.

The change takes place formally on Jan. 1, but Mr. Newton has already left for Tacoma.

J. S. Taylor who was formerly district claim agent for the Northern Pacific with headquarters at Fargo, has been appointed assistant claim agent, a position just created.

There's always room for one more in the crowd at the bottom.

ITCHING HUMOR ON LITTLE BOY

His Hands were a Solid Mass, and Disease Spread All Over His Body —In Four Days the Child was Entirely Cured—Mother Strongly

RECOMMENDS CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"One day we noticed that our little boy was all broken out with itching sores. We first noticed it on his little hands. His hands were not as bad then, and we didn't think anything serious would result. But the next day we heard of the Cuticura Remedies being so good for itching sores, etc., that I thought I would get them. By this time the disease had spread all over his body, and his hands were nothing but a solid mass of this itching disease. I went to the drug store and purchased a box of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, and that night I stripped my little boy and took the Cuticura Soap and lukewarm water and washed him well. Then I dried him with a soft bath towel, and took the Cuticura Ointment and rubbed him thoroughly with it. I did this every evening before I put him to bed and in three or four nights he was entirely cured. You have my permission to publish this because anybody who suffered as my baby did ought to know of the Cuticura Remedies. I will surely and gladly recommend the Cuticura Remedies, for they are a godsend to all suffering with skin diseases. Mrs. Frank Donahue, 208 Fremont St., Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 16, 1907."

MAY GO TO A HALLOCK MAN

THE VACANCY CREATED BY THE PROMOTION OF PRESENT

SUPT. C. G. SCHULZ MAY BE FILLED BY E. A. NELSON

From Friday's Daily—

The story is in circulation that E. A. Nelson of Hallock might be appointed assistant superintendent of instruction to succeed C. G. Schultz, who becomes the head of the department.

Nelson was state librarian under Gov. Van Sant and was strongly identified with the Collins faction in the republican gubernatorial fight of four years ago. Following the defeat of Collins, his sympathy, it is claimed, was with the democratic candidate. Nelson is regarded as a republican and conducts a newspaper at Hallock.

Gov. Johnson stated that he would appoint Mr. Schulz to the head of the department, but that he was not interesting himself as to who would be assistant superintendent.

This appointment he said, rested entirely with Mr. Schulz.

E. E. MC'DONALD GETS FINE PRESENT

The Crookston lodge of Elks has presented E. E. McDonald of this city with an elegant silver water set, as a small token of the esteem and appreciation of the services which Mr. McDonald rendered the lodge on Memorial Sunday December 6, when Mr. McDonald delivered the Memorial address at the services of the Crookston lodge.

The water set is of a very elaborate design and on one of the pieces of the set is engraved the following inscription: "Compliments of Crookston Lodge, No. 342, B. P. O. E."

At the time Mr. McDonald delivered the address at Crookston the daily papers of that city were very profuse in their declarations that the address was the best ever delivered there and Mr. McDonald was extended the hearty thanks of the lodge for his very able effort.—Bemidji Pioneer.

The St. Paul Review observes in effect that a gubernatorial probability may be developed at the coming session of the legislature. Maybe. Meanwhile "Pudge" Heffelfinger's friends are not altogether idle; one hears of Ripley Brower several times in a while and there are those who vow and declare that Sam Iverson is slated.—Duluth News-Tribune. And then there is Senator Stephens whose friends expect him to make a noise that sounds like "governor."

INTERESTING REPORT OF STATE ENTOMOLOGIST

State Entomologist Frank L. Washburn has just completed his sixth annual report of the work of his department and it is a document of the greatest interest to every agricultural district in the state. Mr. Washburn was present in Crookston at the meeting of the Red River Valley Horticultural Society and while here also attended the banquet of the commercial club.

His letter of transmission of his report to the governor outlines what has been accomplished by the department and it is as follows:

State Experiment Station,
St. Anthony Park, Minn.,
December 1st, 1908.

To His Excellency, John A. Johnson,
St. Paul, Minn.

Dear Sir: The state entomologist has the honor to present herewith his biennial report of the years 1907 and 1908. As will be remembered by you, it was suggested for the sake of economy, and to better the work of this division, that a printed report from the entomologist should be issued only once in two years, not annually as heretofore, and that from time to time as occasion demanded, press bulletins or press notices, circulars, or station bulletins, should be issued to meet the wants of the farmers, horticulturists and others, the law being complied with by filing with you annually on or before December 1st, a typewritten abstract of work accomplished, and an account in detail of all expenditures incurred in discharge of the work. This plan met with your approval, and appears to give excellent results, besides effecting a saving in this department of several hundred dollars annually. The bringing to the notice of farmers and others important information regarding insects at just the time when it is needed, by means of press notices, circulars and press bulletins, is better than waiting for the publication of a report.

General Insect Conditions.

The years 1907 and 1908 have been average years as regards insects depredations, though in some instances certain species of insect pests have been prominently in view. The occurrence of the "Green Bug," so-called, created a great flurry here a year ago this summer, and the Entomologist did everything possible to get the exact facts before grain growers, and to allay a scare which was, in a large measure, artificial.

In the springs of 1907 and 1908, black flies, small two-winged insects belonging to the family Simulidae, frequently called Buffalo gnats or Turkey gnats, were much complained of. Milch cows fell off in milk; stock of all kinds in pastures located in affected reigons and at work in the field, were driven wild; in certain instances young poultry was killed, and farmers and others lost in consequence. By means of press articles, and by mailing to parties concerned, from this office, a pamphlet on "Insects and Insect-like Animals Affecting Stock," it is to be hoped that some measure of relief was afforded.

Our 1907 mail brought in many inquiries regarding plant lice, for the most part on grain, said inquiries being largely occasioned by the alarming rumors of the presence of the "Green Bug." In almost every instance, when specimens of these grain lice were sent to this office, they proved to be a native form, Macrosiphum granaria, present with us in varying numbers each year, and causing little or no damage.

The Hession Fly worked upon grain in 1907 and 1908, showing, as was expected, some increase in the depredations in the latter year.

Native grasshoppers, noticeably the common red-legged locust or grasshopper, the two-striped locust, and the lesser migratory were abundantly present in some portions of the state in 1907, causing some injury to grain and closer. Last year complaints reached us from Kanabec, Otter Tail, Isanti, Wright and Itasca counties. This year, 1908, they have been still more numerous. Accounts of their depredations have increased. They have, the present season, worked in Otter Tail, Norman, Chisago, Sherburne, Wadena, Anoka, Meeker and Stearns counties, affecting principally clover and alfalfa and pasture lands. The outlook for next year, unless farmers take certain measures, is not particularly reassuring, since our native forms, when very abundant, can be exceedingly destructive. Press Bulletin 32, containing an account of preventive treatment, was issued in September. A copy of this will be mailed to any farmer upon request. In this connection it is interestnig to note that grasshoppers by consuming pastures may materially affect the price of milk.

Wire worms, controlled largely by proper farm practice, have been destructive in certain localities, one farmer known to us, feeling obliged to disk his corn and sow flax, since the former plants had been destroyed by these pests. Just across the line in North Dakota wire worms were reported as having destroyed, in one locality, one hundred acres of grain.

This office has been appealed to in both 1907 and 1908 for suggestions leading to relief from the presence of ants in household and garden. Lawns have been injured and in some places ruined by the White Grub. The irritating Harvest Mite, Leptus irritans, although nearly invisible to the naked eye, has, tiny as it is, placed a ban on picnic parties, ladies and children particularly being subject to attack. Frequently the work of this tiny mite is thought to be "rash" or "hives." Red blotches appear on the skin, accompanied by an almost unbearable itching, which lasts for several days.

The Apple Leaf Hopper, Empoasca mali, has been active in nurseries possibly not so bad in 1908 as in 1907, and hac, at the request of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington, been made the subject of special work by the entomologist under the Adams fund. Various other apple tree insects have been in evidence, and numerous complaints of the Plum Leaf Gall Mite have been received.

Shade trees have suffered materially in different localities from a number of pests. Elms have been affected with lice which are peculiar to that tree. Some oak trees were devastated, notably in Otter Tail and Wadena counties, by the Oak-leaf Caterpillar. The Stalk Borer (different species of Papaipema) has again injured flower gardens.

The Fall Web Worm has been locally destructive and one the increase. Press Bulletin 28, issued from this office in November, 1907, deals with this pest. In 1908 oak trees suffered from the Oak Tree Pruner. Box elder and maples have been attacked by a Maple Twig Borer, reared to the moth stage in the insectary, which may prove to be a new species. Young ash trees in at least one nursery have been destroyed by the hundreds through the work of one of the Stalk Borers, Papaipema furcata, this caterpillar boring in the soft center; and large ash trees in one locality have been riddled by a boring Sesiid, Aegeria Fraxina, tunneling in the solid wood. As we go to press, also, cuttings from birches which have been killed through the work of the Birch Borer, Agrilus anxius, have been left at the office. The Poplar Beetle, Lina scripta, has been in evidence, eating the leaves of these trees. A borer in locusts, Cyllene robiniae, has also been very troublesome.

In connection with shade tree pests we have been frequently consulted by the forester of the Minneapolis City Park Board, Mr. C. N. Ruedlinger, and have extended to him, and through him the park board, all the assistance possible.

Grapes have, as usual, suffered from the attacks of various insects, the fruit being attacked by a grape fruit worm, and the leaves by the Grape Vine Flea Beetle, Haltica chalybea, and the Grape Phylloxera, Phylloxera vastatrix, specimens of the latter being sent us from both wild and cultivated vines at Albert Lea. This latter pest has been present with us on wild vines for some time, and in the event of its becoming abundant on cultivated plants, may call for strenuous action on the part of the grape grower. It is a form of louse which works on both roots and leaves of grape vines, and has called for special legislation in some countries.

The Codling Moth and Plum Curculio have, as usual, been busy on apples and plums, as well as two or three species of plant lice, and we list a small beetle known as Scirtes tibialis, looking like a flea beetle, seriously injuring the leaves of plums, its first reported occurrence in Minnesota.

Crown Gall.

This infectious plant disease, attacking raspberries and blackberries, particularly the former, was noticed by us here in abundance for the first time in 1907, though it has been known to occur here before. Its source has been traced to a few nurseries apparently, where owners have promised us to stamp it out as far as they can. The disease is of such a serious nature, and so destructive to raspberries that a special illustrated publication was issued regarding it. From a legal standpoint a nurseryman is not entitled to a certificate from the state entomologist as long as this disease is found upon his stock.

One strawberry grower has reported (1908) the presence of the Strawberry Root Louse, Aphis forbesi, in his fields. As this is the first time its occurrence here has been known to us, this department is keeping in touch with the case, and making it an object of special study.

Special Experiments.

The office of experiment stations at Washington has suggested the life history of the Apple Leaf Hopper and of the Grain Plant Louse, Macrosiphum granaria, as special problems for this division of the experiment station. To these it has added Bruchophagus funebris, an insect which seriously affects the production of clover seed. The life histories of these three pests have never been completely worked out, and during 1907 and 1908 the entomological force has made special effort in this direction. Most gratifying results have been obtained from work with the first of these, Empoasca mali, and progress made with the other two.

Work with the "Green Bug" has been continued, both in field and insectary, and this louse is found to be quite generally distributed over the state, but by no means in dangerous numbers. It has been discovered that eggs passed successfully through last winter here, and hatched in the spring. A number of other grain plant lice have also been exhaustively studied.

Work with the Cabbage Maggot has been continued during 1907 and 1908, our attention in the latter year being principally given to treatment of radishes to prevent its attack. In the summer of 1907 one man devoted almost his entire time to the studying of means of protecting cabbage and cauliflower plants from the attacks of this pest. Results of this work, embodied in advice and suggestions, were mailed to all market gardeners in April, 1908, as Circular No. 9 from this office, "Remedies for the Cabbage Maggot." Several parasites new to science hve been reared from this pest.

Plum Curculio.

In 1907 and 1908 experiments were carried on by Mr. Ruggles, an assistant in this department, to test the value of spraying plum trees with arsenate of lead, and have proved conclusively that a large per cent of fruit can be saved by spraying at the proper time with this compound.

Comparisons of Liquid Spray and Dust Spray.

During the two years just past these two widely different agents have been tested upon the Russian orchard at the experiment station, which orchard was courteously placed at our disposal by the horticultural division. This work was directed against the Apple Scab, the Plum Curculio and the Codling Moth. The results largely favor the liquid spray as being more advantageously used than the dust spray.

Hydrocyanic Acid Gas.

Experiments with this dangerous but effective medium, made by combining cyanide of potash with sulphuric acid, have been continued, to get further data as to the time elapsing between the dropping of the charge into the acid, and the giving off of the gas; also the distance into a mass of meal or bran to which this gas can penetrate effectively.

Office Publications.

In addition to various communications to the state press, from time to time as occasion demanded, the following publications have been issued from this office during 1907 and 1908:

1907—"Three New Hymenopterous Parasites of Pegomyia 'brassicae'" (technical).

Nov., 1907—Press Bulletin 28, "1. The Fall Web Worm a Menace in Minnesota. 2. Autumn Remedies for the Stalk Borer in Flower Gardens."

Feb., 1908—Experiment Station Bulletin No. 105, "The Importance of the Study of Entomology; How to Collect and Preserve Insects."

Feb., 1908—Circular No. 6, "Crown Gall in Minnesota."

Feb., 1908—Circular No. 7, "Mediterranean Flour Moth."

Mar., 1908—Special Report to the Governor, "The So-Called 'Green Bug' and Other Grain Aphids in Minnesota in 1907."

April, 1908—Experiment Station Bulletin No. 108, "The So-Called 'Green Bug' and Other Grain Aphids in Minnesota."

April, 1908—Circular No. 8, Press Bulletin No. 31, "Sugestions to Those Contemplating Spraying."

April, 1908—Circular No. 9, "Remedies for the Cabbage Maggot."

May, 1908—"A Comparative Study of the External Anatomy of Plant Lice," by R. A. Vickery, Assistant (technical).

Sept., 1908—Circular No. 10, Press Bulletin No. 32, "Insects Affecting Grain and Allied Crops Duding 1907 and 1908."

Oct., 1908—Circular No. 12, "Destruction of Lawns by the White Grub."

Nov., 1908—Circular No. 13, Press Bulletin 33, "Some Destructive Shade Tree Pests."

Nov., 1908—Circular No. 14, Press Bulletin 34, "Spraying for the Plum Curculio.'

Lectures.

The following lectures upon insects and kindred subjects, illustrated in most instances with stereopticon, were given in the months and at the places named: April, 1907, Lake City; December, 1907, Pelican Rapids; January, 1908, Hope Chapel, Minneapolis; February, 1908, Twin Valley; July, 1908, Spicer (Chautauqua series); November, 1908, Crookston; November, 1908, Meadowlands.

Correspondence.

The entomologist's mail has been increasing each year. Its character is, to a certain extent, indicated by the insects listed under "General Insect Conditions," for there were numerous inquiries in connection with these. In 1907 there were approximately 1,500 letters, and in 1908, 1,767 letters. The bulk of this correspondence occurred between June 1st and September 15th of each year, the period when insects are most active, and consequently when the heaviest demands are made upon the entomologist.

Nursery Inspection.

In 1907 fifty-four nurseries were inspected, and certificates granted their owners. In 1908 this number was increased to fifty-nine. As a rule, we find Minnesota nurseries well cared for and free from serious pasts. A careful watch, however, will be kept for Crown Gall.

Insectary.

The insectary is proving especially valuable in our work. We have reared several parasites, some of them new to science, and from various pests, notably the Cabbage Maggot, and have also been enabled to make careful study of life histories of grain insects and other injurious pests, and to so work upon these in the dead of winter as to really double the quantity of work which was done before the building was erected. In 1907 four hundred and sixty separate experiments were carried on in the insectary, and in 1908 to date, four hundred and fourteen. Experiments now running embrace such subjects as the Bee Moth, Clothes Moth, Confused Flour Beetle, various plant lice, notably those affecting grain; the Wheat Stem Maggot, the genus of Stalk Borer known as Papaipema (we have already found that seveal species occur here), the Oak Pruner, Maple Borer, Elm Borer, Birch Borer, Apple Leaf Hopper, Bruchophagus funebris and other insects affecting clover, etc. We regard the insectary as not only a very valuable, but an actually necessary adjunct to the work.

Acknowledgments.

In conclusion, it gives us pleasure to acknowledge our appreciation of the favorable conditions attending our work during the past two years. We have been fortunate in the matter of assistants. In addition to Mr. A. G. Ruggles, permanent assistant, to whom the department is indebted for originating and installing, during the past two years, numerous valuable filing devices, we have had during the summer of 1907 Mr. R. L. Webster and Mr. George G. Ainslie, both close observers and useful workers in field and insectary. Mr. R. A. Vickery served in the insectary from October, 1907, and during the earlier part of the summer of 1908 was working almost constantly in the field under our direction. These three men have recently accepted government positions in the bureau of entomology. In July, 1908, we were fortunate enough to secure the services of Dr. H. J. Franklin, a graduate of Amherst, and a skilled expert in insectary work. He came to us with the best of recommendations, and his work since he has been here substantiates the favorable report which preceded him.

The director and the different divisions of the experiment station have been particularly kind in granting favors which facilitated the work of the entomologist. Our state press has been a means, always generously at our disposal, when it has been necessary to bring information regarding an insect pest quickly to the notice of farmers and other citizens.

Our thanks are especially due various specialists at Washington and elsewhere for naming for us species belonging to their several groups.

Finally, we wish to acknowledge the kindly interest in the progress of the work shown by the governor of the state during the past two years.

Respectfully,
F. L. WASHBURN,
State Entomologist.

A Religious Author's Statement

For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

CUT THIS OUT AND SAVE IT

SAYS MANY CAN BE MADE HAPPY AGAIN BY PRESCRIPTION GIVEN

TELLS HOW ANY ONE CAN PREPARE SIMPLE HOME MADE MIXTURE

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice will be highly appreciated by those who suffer.

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

GENERAL MANAGER PROMISES DRASTIC ACTION IF CROSSINGS ARE BLOCKED

Great Northern trainmen will be careful about blocking crossings in Fargo hereafter. There has been a good deal of agitation concerning the blocking of crossings and the matter was brought to the attention of the president and general manager of the road. The following reply was received from President Louis W. Hill:

"It is not our wish to obstruct crossings or to do anything of this sort in any community."

General Manager J. M. Gruber sent the following reply:

"Mr. Bryan states there have been four cases of the blocking of the streets at Fargo called to the attention of the superintendent during the past thirty days, and in each case the employes at fault had their records marked.

"If any further cases come up the conductors or the men at fault will be given suspension and if that does not have the desired effect more severe action will be taken.

"There is no reason why trains, especially passenger trains, should hold a crossing for thirteen minutes, and the practice, as stated, will be broken up. The switching crew at Fargo is not causing the trouble, but it is due mostly to trains 405, 537 and 538."

KEELEY GOT BUT 8 MONTHS

FORMER CROOKSTON OPERATOR WORKING HARD FOR A NEW TRIAL

EVIDENCE SHOWS THAT OPERATOR AT ANOTHER STATION WAS AT FAULT

From Friday's Daily—

Information received direct from Thompson, Montana, is to the effect that Harry J. Keeley, formerly of this city, and recently convicted of involuntary manslaughter, having been dispatcher when a collission of two trains caused the death of several trainmen, was sentenced to 8 months instead of 8 years as press reports had it.

Keeley, according to the evidence, wired orders to the operator at Perma for the passenger train to meet a freight at Olive, a blind siding. The passenger had already passed Perma when the operator got the message, but he failed to notify Keeley of this and the head-on resulted. His attorney is fighting hard for a new trial and it would seem that he should surely get it.

Naturally the trial has cost Keeley a good sum of money, and as he has a wife and son it is understood that Keeley's many friends here, especially among the railroad boys, are going to give him a lift financially, and the cause is certainly a most worthy one as from the evidence he was not to blame in any way for the accident.

HERE'S A STRANGE BASEBALL TEAM

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 31 — Unless there is something to happen to change the plans of Warden Mudd of the local penitentiary he will organize behind the prison walls early next spring the most unique baseball team on record, for no member of the team will be eligible to play who is not 65 years old or over. The team, too, will be made up almost entirely of men serving life sentences, and practically all of them murderers. The positions of the men on the team will, of course depend upon the speed they show in their "workouts" or preliminary practice, but as the lineup now stands, the average age of the team is 73½ years. They will call themselves "Colts" and when Acting Governor Cox, an enthusiastic "fan" comes over to the capital next summer to hold down the executive's chair while Governor Wilson is up in Michigan fighting off the hay fever, a game is going to be played for his especial benefit. The members of the team and the line-up as now planned follows:

C. C. Cook, 86, Whitley county, murder, catcher.

William H. York, 86, Anderson county, murder, pitcher.

Edward Vurns, 80, Boyle county, forgery, shortstop.

William Joseph, 67, Jefferson county, murder, first base.

Calvin Rains, 77, Clinton county, murder, second base.

William Freeman, 73, Owsley county murder, third base.

Rubin Collinsworth, 66, Perry county, hog theft, center field.

Thomas Depew, 80, Pendleton county, poisoning, right field.

W. T. Bryant, 66, Montgomery county, horse theft, left field.

The Railroad Committee

Gossip at the state capitol has it that Speaker Rockne will place Mr. Congdon of Duluth at the head of the railroad committee. It is a hobby with The Journal that the railroads should be treated fairly in Minnesota but it does not believe that the public interest is served by placing at the head of the railroad committee one who has been as closely allied with railroads as has Mr. Congdon.

The railroads are great builders of business and population. The state should adopt a broad policy toward them. Speaker Rockne will do himself proud if he will give to the service this winter a railroad committee composed of the broad, fair-minded men of the house, a committee, the chairman of which is neither a member who has had strong railroad affiliations, nor a radical who thinks railroads are without rights.

These remarks are not intended to reflect in any particular upon Mr. Congdon. He is one of the wealthy men of the state, and he should make a valuable member of the house. It merely occurs to us, that from the standpoint of fair play, his appointment to the chairmanship of the railroad committee might prove to be a mistake. Perhaps the gossip presaging such appointment is without foundation however.—Minneapolis Journal

Taking the Postoffice out of Politics

Washington dispatches indicate that Frank H. Hitchcock will be obliged to resign his place as chairman of the Republican national committee before he can be confirmed as postmaster general in Mr. Taft's cabinet. Senators, we are told, will insist that the executive of the great postal department shall not also be the executive head of a great political party, says the St. Paul Dispatch. There should be no controversy over this question. If Mr. Hitchcock is fitted for a cabinet position, as no doubt he is, he will refuse to make that position an asset of any partisan organization. Probably in no post connected with the government of the United States has partisan activity such sinister import as in the postal department. Thousands of employes scattered in every city, town and country district of the nation furnish the material for a political machine of tremendous proportions and crushing effectiveness. The temptation to make use of it ought not to confront any cabinet officer, as it must confront him while he remains also the head of a great political party.

Presidents and cabinets in their partizan zeal are too apt to forget that they are officers of all the people of the United States. Safeguarding party interests by high officers has contributed as much, at least, as any one other cause to American misgovernment in city, state and nation. The higher up the offensive partisan activity, the more dangerous to clean and efficient government. Ward heelers, in high place or low, weaken public service about in the same degree that they strengthen the party machine. Chairmen of county or city committees at the head of city departments are still tolerated in our happy-go-lucky municipal housekeeping. But ward-heeler methods in cabinet positions will hardly meet the approval of the tolerant American public.

It is hoped that partisan management and the management of the postal department will be so thoroly diverced that never again can the change be brought forward that this great service supported by the whole people has been made an instrument for the nomination or the election of high government officers. The spirit as well as the letter of the merit system must be obeyed. If it is to be genuine in any place it must be binding upon the highest as well as the lowest officer of our government.

Condition Must Be Met

As the calendar year closed it was brought home to the Treasury Department and to Congress that there has been a serious shrinkage of the national purse. Since the fiscal year began on the first of July the nation has spent sixty-five millions dollars more than it has collected and this is the showing for only six months of the year. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates that the deficiency will be one hundred and fourteen millions for the entire fiscal year. Last year this deficit amounted to only fifty-eight millions and the preceding year there was a surplus of forty millions. But from a financial point of view the worst is not told in these deficits. Congress is nerved to an expensive program.

No matter how hard the watch dogs of the treasury in the House and in the Senate may bay and growl and show their teeth a raid is determined upon, and appropriation bill are bound to swell and indeed it will be a false economy to postpone river and harbor improvements, the canalization recommended by the President, and by the convention on water transportation recently held in Washington.

These and other national enterprises will cost millions, perhaps billions. They come high but we must have them. They are economical necessities and it is easy to figure that they will return the country a splendid interest on the investment.

The government will simply have to resort to other sources of taxation to raise funds for theseimprovements. A tax on bank checks and on deeds conveying real estate and a few luxuries will easily fill the national exchequer and if to this should be added as was the tax during the Spanish war of a dollar a barrel on beer the nation will have enough to improve the waterways and the roads, to increase the army and navy and to carry on without deficit the multifarious affairs of government.

There is evident anxiety at the White House with reference to the reported conditions on the Isthmus. It has been rumored for some time that the Gatun dam is a failure and altho these rumors have been repeatedly denied they persist and the fact that the President has asked the President-elect to go to the Isthmus, putting at his disposal two war ships and appointing six distinguished civil engineers to accompany him is ground for foreboding with many in reference to the final success of this stupendous undertaking.

Application

Waste hours are seldom set down on the balance sheet, when a man examines his record in relation to the position he holds. He simply decides that he is as smart as his neighbor who is at the head of a great enterprise. He overlooks the important fact that the neighbor used more than the ordinary working hours of a day for work, while he used only six to eight hours. The neighbor put three times as much in a day as the man who complained of results. The man who covers ground at the ratio of three to one will have a wonderful balance in his favor after twenty years. The two young men starting at twenty years will find this out by the time they are forty.

Application helps to equalize talent, and this is overlooked too often. We are endowed with from one to ten talents. Manifestly, the man who possesses one talent cannot overtake the possessor of ten talents. He can, however, level up with the man of five talents who wastes his time. The law is that increasing talents will be given to him who works for the increase, while the man who wastes his talent will close the race a loser.

Application is a great factor for success. It lifts one higher than one can get otherwise. It is synonymous with persistence. It is yourself in action. As one writer expresses it, "Don't think, because your plan or idea has no precedent, or because you are young or inexperienced, that you will not get a hearing."

One can read the history of the world in odd moments, that would otherwise be idle moments. And out of such study ideas will come that will push one ahead.—Minneapolis Journal.

Somehow a man who has no vices gets on your nerves much harder than one who has no virtues.

No matter how much sense a man has he forgets it all when he gets in a political argument.

STATE PRESS

Princeton Union: "Big Counties Pay the Bills" is the caption of an article in a city paper relative to state taxes. Seemingly Ramsey, Hennepin and St. Louis counties pay the major share of the state taxes. But the state auditor's table under the heading of "Total Payments From the State Treasury to Counties," does not show the $700,000 paid out to the state university and the scores of thousands of dollars paid out to office holders in St. Paul and Minneapolis annually, almost every dollar of which is expended in the Twin Cities, nor does it show that the great bulk of the land, timber or mineral the proceeds of which is expended in the Twin Cities, nor does it show that the great bulk of the land timber or mineral, the proceeds of which go to swell the permanent funds, is located in the sparsely settled northern counties of the state. St. Louis county pays more taxes, directly and indirectly, into the state treasury and gets less back from the state than any other county. Hennepin and Ramsey get back a great deal more than they pay into the state treasury.

Of Interest to Everyone in Crookston

In every newspaper in the country you will read statements made by people living in out-of-the-way places, who are supposed to have been cured or derived great benefit from some wonderful remedy or "cure-all". But here in Crookston we only publish statements made by Crookston people—the testimony of your friends, neighbors and fellow-townsmen.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

Noel Herbert(carpenter, of 338 Hunter St., Crookston, Minn., says: "My back pained terribly and totally unfitted me for any exertion, there being times when I had to be helped about. I at last heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and immediately procured a box at S. A. Wallace's drug store. I started using them and it was not long before I noticed that my back was gradually getting stronger. My trouble son entirely left me and I have not felt a vistage of it since. Doan's Kidney Pills are a most valuable remedy and I give them my endorsement with the hope that others may be convinced of their merit."

The above statement was made by Mr. Herbert in 1898 nearly six years later Dec. 2nd, 1904 he added:

"Doan's Kidney Pills so completely relieved me of kidney trouble six years ago that there has been no return of it. It is a pleasure to again endorse them."

A FEROCIOUS EARL.

Alexander of Buchan, Known as the "Wolf of Badenoch."

During the restoration of Dunkeld cathedral the workmen unearthed the remains of Bishop Sinclair, one of those who assisted in the building of the cathedral, and of the notorious Alexander, earl of Buchan, whose ferocity won for him the significant title of the "wolf of Badenoch." A memorial marks the spot where the "wolf" was buried, and it has often been a subject of remark by visitors that a man who plundered churches and in various ways showed his hatred of the clergy should have been laid to rest side by side with bishops and other high ecclesiastics.

Alexander, earl of Buchan, was a younger son of Robert II. of Scotland. During the closing years of the latter's reign the chief powers in the state were delegated to his sons, the earls of Fife and Buchan, and after the accession of Robert III., an amiable but weak prince, this unfortunate delegation was allowed to be continued. The Earl of Buchan ruled over the northern part of Scotland with an authority little less than regal. He has been described as scarcely better than a savage—cruel, ferocious and relentless. Among his exploits was the destruction of the magnificent cathedral of Elgin. He carried off the chalices and vestments, polluted the shrines with blood and finally set fire to the noble edifice, the houses of the canons and the town itself. He also laid waste a large part of the country.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Trying to Make a Hit.

Judge—Do you acknowledge the charge brought before the court of throwing your wfe to the ground and knocking her head repeatedly against the floor? Prisoner (evasively)—I was only trying to make a hit with her, your honor.—Judge.

THE FIGHT FOR FAME.

Man's Heroic Effort to Clutch the Priceless Jewel.

His way was in a bloody lane where clanking caissons splashed along, his goal the line where blazing guns laughed out their song of death. On, on, on he went. His ears were filled with sounds of quick commands, bugle blasts, discordant drums. No fluttering fear was in his heart, no thought of home, no specter of the dread despair that waited at the hearth if he never came again. To him there was no terror in the saber's flashing blade, no warning in the bullet's deadly hiss. Youth trod all reason underfoot; ambition saw all glory overhead. On, on he went to woo and win his bride, the priceless jewel—fame!

Another in a garret sighed for fame. Crusts were his portion and his raiment only rags. Hermit-like he toiled alone, nor cold nor hunger ever daunted him. He marshaled all his hosts, and visions came and went. On, on he toiled. In the snowflakes that drifted in and touched his hands he read a message from the world without, all white, all cheerless. Still as a chrysalis his fancy wove and spun and made its garments wondrous, then burst in splendor on a waiting world.

Both fought the fight, each in his way, one for a heroic shape of bronze, one for a speechless marble face, each for the epitaph, that all the ages in the dust of time might know "he did and died."—Wade Mountfortt in Era Magazine.

A Wedding Decoration.

Whether it was a mistake or a joke or simply an example of bad taste is a question that is still puzzling most of the passengers. But no matter about that. It certainly was a floral masterpiece. Full four feet it stood from the ground, in the form of a cross. Roses white and roses red composed the body of the cross, and dainty white blossoms and green leaves formed the trimmings. In the center the word "Peace" was spelled out in rosebuds.

Everybody in the car admired the offering, and when the boy set it down on the floor all leaned forward to examine it more closely. At length one old gentleman stood up and readjusted his glasses in order to get a better look at it.

"That is a mighty pretty posy you've got there," he said. "Who, may I ask, is dead?"

The boy giggled.

"Nobody 't I know of," he said. "This ain't for a funeral; it's for a wedding."

The old gentleman sat down heavily.

"Good Lord!" he said. "What idiot ever ordered 'Peace' inscribed on a wedding decoration?"

The rest of the passengers smiled, and many of them, being married, wondered as well, but nobody ventured an explanation.—New York Times.

Death and Snuff.

A certain Margaret Wilson of Westminster, who was an inveterate snuff taker, enjoined that a quantity of Scotch snuff should be placed in her coffin. She also ordered that the arrangements connected with her funeral should be as follows: "Six men to be my bearers who are known to be the greatest snuff takers in the parish of St. James, Westminster. Instead of mourning, each to wear a snuff colored beaver hat, which I desire may be bought for the purpose and given to them. Six maidens of my old acquaintance to bear my pall, each to carry a box filled with the best Scotch snuff, to take for their refreshment as they go along." Snuff was also to be thrown on the threshold of deceased's dwelling before the cortege passed out, snuff was to be strewn on the ground at every twenty yards in advance of the coffin, and the officiating clergyman's fee was to be proportionate to the quantity of snuff he consumed during the ceremony.—London Globe.

GLOUCESTER.

The Greatest Fishing Center in the United States.

Everything smells of fish in Gloucester. It is not an odor to which any of the natives object. Nor do visitors find in it anything of which to complain, for it is the pungent ozone of the sea, the smell of fish freshly caught. Gloucester has really never known anything else, for since its beginning, approaching three centuries ago, it has always had fishing for its chief industry, and today it is the greatest fishing center of the United States and, according to the belief of many, of the world.

When a two masted schooner, laden to the gunwales with its cargo of fish, comes into the wharfs the fish are carried in great tubs. Over these stand a company of experts, men who have cleaned hundreds of thousands of fish and who can make the quick cuts and do the scraping with incredible speed. Running to each tub is a hose, and after the waste has been removed an instant under the high pressure of water from the hose cleans out the fish completely and makes it sweet and ready for the next step in the operation. Codfish is dried and salted before being sent to the market, and the work is also done on the wharfs. Here are ranged hundreds of tables exposed to the bright sunlight. The cleansed fish are piled up in such a manner that the warm rays get a most admirable chance at them.

From the open air drying tables the fish are shifted to the boxing and packing establishments, which are also located along the water front, and they are made ready to be shipp... all parts of the world.—Springfield Union.

PROVED A POET.

A Youthful Experience of John Greenleaf Whittier.

John Greenleaf Whittier used to declare that at a very early age he knew himself to be a real poet and would often relate, writes Mrs. Abby J. Woodman in her "Reminiscences of Whittier's Life at Oak Knoll," an amusing experience when he was a student at the Haverhill academy. Mrs. Woodman gives it in Mr. Whittier's own words:

There is but little doubt that at the age of twenty I felt myself to be a real poet, somewhat unknown to fame, but sufficiently acknowledged as such by the committee directing the dedication of the new academy for them to invite me to read an original poem on that occasion.

Robert Dinsmore, an old Scotch farmer in Windham and a writer of rhyme and doggerel verse, was also invited to do the same. The honor of leading the procession which marched through the streets of Haverhill to the new academy was given to the two poets.

I often laugh when I recall the scene to memory. The hale old Scotchman, short and plethoric, his uncertain step and bearing slightly exhilarated by a generous draft of old Scotch whisky before we started, was somewhat of a contrast to me, a rather tall and slender Quaker lad in Quaker hat and coat and half frightened out of my wits by the honor heaped upon me.

However, we delivered our poems all right, and I am thinking that must have been the time when I was dubbed "the Quaker poet,"

Nowhere with more quiet or with more freedom does a man retire than into his own soul.—Marcus Aurelius.

LOTS OF CARS FOR RAILWAY

NORTHERN PACIFIC INVESTED HEAVILY IN ROLLING STOCK IN PAST YEAR

BETTERMENTS INCLUDE MANY PASSENGER COACHES—THIRTEEN LOCOMOTIVES ADDED

From Saturday's Daily—

During the year 1908 the Northern Pacific ordered many large additions to its equipment of rolling stock. The year, while perhaps not the heaviest in additions, was one of the greatest and equipment of all classes was greatly augmented.

Not all of the equipment ordered during the year has been received. Part of the orders of the past few months are to be delivered during the spring months of 1909 in time for the additional service which is to be established in conjunction with the Burlington from Chicago to the Pacific coast.

All the new equipment will be of the latest design and of the largest capacity used in its class. The following is the detail of the additional equipment: 500, 50,000 pound capacity refrigerator cars; 500, 50,000 pound stock cars; 700, 80,000 pound box cars 80, 100,000 pound Rodger ballast cars. The passenger train equipment was augumented by the addition of eight combination mail and baggage cars, eight combination baggage and passenger cars, twenty-four combination baggage an dexpress cars, three parlor cars, twenty-seven day coaches twenty combination smoking and first class cars and two open parlor cars.

To the motice power were added 13 locomotives. Three of these are what is known as the Atlantic type and ten of the Pacific type.

KILLED BY A SNOW PLOW

FREEMAN WALES, NORTHERN PACIFIC ROADMASTER, MEETS SUDDEN DEATH

Freeman Wales, roadmaster on the Fargo division of the Northern Pacific road, was killed yesterday in Hastings, N. D. He was struck by a snowplow which was clearing a cut. Details of the accident are lacking. The body will be brought to Minneapolis at 6:50 a. m. tomorrow, the funeral notice will be given later.

Tickets are Legal

According to the statements of a railroad official, there can be no question as to the legality of the commutation tickets to suburban points in Minnesota that are sold by the railroad companies. The law simply states that the rate must not be more than 2 cents per mile an dthere is nothing to hinder the companies from selling tickets at as low rate as they please. The mileage books are sold at the rate of 2 cents per mile, and are issued for the convenience of the commercial travelers.

E. C. Dugan Leaves G. N. Road

St. Paul, Jan. 2—E. C. Dugan who for a number of years has held the position of chief clerk in the engineering department of the Great Northern has resigned to engage in business for himself. He has ben succeeded by P. J. Rock formerly voucher clerk in the same department.

A noted lecturer announces his retirement from the platform, due to his recent marriage. He will now pose as the audience.

Bargains in Used Steinway Pianos

If you know of anyone who wishes a very good piano at a moderate cost he will be interested in the fact that just at the present time the well-known music house of Lyon & Healy Chicago, have a large salesroom entirely filled with used Steinway Uprights These Steinways embrace a wide variety of styles. All of them, of course, are genuine Steinways, and all of them are in fine condition, but there is a great difference in the cost.

Besides these instruments Lyon & Healy are also now offering at a great Rebuilding Clearing Sale, the pianos formerly owned by the Thompson Music Co., the Healy Music Co., and the big Thearle Piano Co., as well as their own stock. You can secure a fine instrument at 20 to 40 per cent less than usual prices.

These pianos will be sold either for cash or upon very easy monthly payments. Freight on an upright piano is only a matter of a few dollars. All of these instruments are fully guaranteed to be exactly as represented. The opportunity to secure one will undoubtedly be taken advantage of by the shrewd buyers in this vicinity.

A letter to Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street Chicago, will bring full particulars.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY

FINAL SORROWING—C. W. Final left for a trip out on the east line this morning and was grieving because business would not permit of his returning Wednesday evening for the big Elks doings.

CLIMAX BUSINESS MAN— R. H. Johnson, the hustling proprietor of a dray and transfer line at Climax is spending the day in the city on business and will return home this evening. He is one of the best boosters Climax can boast of and has many friends in Crookston.

ON WESTERN TRIP—Messrs. Jos. Larivière, Henry Wilder and Salem Mageau left last evening for Minneapolis where they will join Wm. Samson and together the party will proceed on a western trip, going first to Omaha and later proceeding to Twin Falls, Idaho and other points in the west on a sight seeing trip.

A BLAZE AT LAMBERT— Word was received in this city that the Paquin saloon in Lambert had burned to the ground four days ago. Mr. Paquin had been in the building at about 10 o'clock that day to fix the fire in the stove before going to church and then having closed the drafts. It was an air-tight stove and the supposition is that it exploded. The village has no fire protection. Mr. Paquin carried no insurance, consequently he suffered a total loss.

TO THIEF RIVER FALLS—Manager Frank Bracelin of the Northwestern Telephone Co., of Crookston and M. L. Lane, connected with the same concern who came up from Minneapolis this morning, went to Thief River Falls this morning on company business and will return this evening. Mr. Lane states that water was standing in the streets yesterday, and that overcoats were not to be seen.

At St. John's church at McIntosh Wednesday afternoon occurred the pretty ceremony which united Inga Josephine, second daughter of Mrs. M. C. Iverson, and Charles O. Asp, in the holy bonds of wedlock, Rev. J. B. A. Dale officiating. About one hundred invited guests witnessed the ceremony and attended the reception which followed at the Good Templars Hall. Both bride and groom are well known in Polk County having taught school in several districts, the bride having also grown to womanhood at McIntosh. Both are now teaching in the town of Knute. Their future intentions are unknown to the writer but it more than likely that they will take up their residence on Mr. Asp's homestead in the Eleven Townships.

On Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, occurred the marriage of Miss Octavia Bredeson to Mr. Adolph Wold of Fosston, at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Bredeson at Thief River Falls. The bride was attended by her sister, Minnie Bredeson the groom by his brother Bernhard Wold. The bride wore a gown of blue silk a nd carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid wore white and carried a bouquet of carnations. A bountiful wedding supper was served at six o'clock. Only relatives were present, those from out of town including Mrs. J. Wold and Bernhard Wold of Fosston, mother and brother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs Christenson, Miss Larson, Messrs. O. Larson and K. Larson of Brandon, Mr .and Mrs. Wold, Mr .and Mrs. Trochman, and Tyler Wold of Thorwick. Mr. and Mrs. Wold left on the Thursday morning train for Fosston where they will make their future home. The many friends of these young people extend congratulations.

Senator Stephens and Representatives Saugstad and Holton of Polk county, Representative Opsahl of Bemidji, and other members from northern Minnesota left last evening to attend the opening session of the legislature tomorrow.

Alden Braley accompanied Senator Stephens and is slated for an appointment during the session.

One of the most elaborate as well as important social functions of the season will be held this evening when between 40 and 50 guests will assemble at the invitation of Dr. and Mrs. H. Holte will assemble at the beautiful Holte home on South Broadway and enjoy an eleborate course dinner at 7:30 after which the graduates and students from St. Olaf's College will organize a society. Invitations were sent to all graduates or former students of that noted institution of learning who are located in this section of the northwest, and nearly half a hundred have written that they will be present.

The Holte home has been beautifully and elaborately decorated for the occasion, Old Gold, the colors of St. Olaf's College, being the prevailing color. Silk streamers in old gold are draped from the chandelier to the place cards, an dbanners and St. Olaf pennants are in evidence in all the rooms. The decorations also include a wealth of beautiful carnations.

From Tuesday's Daily

THOUGHT IT CRIMPY — Marcus Johnson came up from the cities this morning and left for Red Lake Falls. He thought the air just a trifle too bracing this morning.

HOLDING HIS OWN—Wylie Phillips continues to a little better than hold his own. His fever was lower today and conditions generally are improving.

A FIRELESS COOKER—J. Q. Roemer is selling an attachment for the ordinary barrel churn which converts it into a "fireless cooker." C. Q. was first thought to be joking, but later produced the goods.

RETURNED TO ARGYLE—C. A. Hitchcock returned to Argyle this morning to continue the merchandise auction sale which he started some time ago. The cold weather is not very comfortable but he looks for a warm spell and the weather man promises one.

BROUGHT TO HOSPITAL — Dr. Dryden and Peter Stuhr came down from Euclid last evening with Roy Teal, who they took to St. Vincents hospital suffering with a slight attack of appendicitis. An operation will depend upon future developments

LEFT UNEXPECTEDLY —It was reported today that H. M. Granwold, who has been acting as local manager of the Northwestern Telephone company at Grand Forks unexpectedly left that city Saturday night and has not been located. It is understood that Granwould has left a good many creditors in the lurch.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR — In giving the names of the new officers yesterday The Journal inadvertantly omitted the name of the new coroner N. P. Stenshoel. Mr. Stenshoel has been in business in this city for some time past and will without doubt make a capable and painstaking official. The appointment of Thomas Casey as deputy superintendent and jailor is temporary only as he will remain in Crookston only till next spring when he intends looking up a new location in the west.

SEVERE ATTACK—Joe Gilhausen the well known and popular alteration man at the C. O. D. is laid up at the Cleveland House with a severe attack of malignant lapidarious. He is receiving the careful attention of two physicians and three nurses, Gus, the Fisherman, Alex the Surveyor, and Nick the Mugster, acting in the capacity of nurses on 8 hour shifts. The last named, it is said, has to work overtime occasionally as Joe is partial to his ministrations.

Yesterday at St. Vincent, G. Northern conductor Fred J. Bennett was the victim of a very painful accident a switch arm or lever flying back and breaking both bones in his forearm just above the wrist.

He was switching preparatory to leaving St. Vincent. He threw a switch and thought it was locked but as the train backed onto the switch the lever of or arm flew back with terrific force, striking his arm with the resultant fracture.

[illegible]an was called and set the arm and he returned to Crookston last evening on the local train and taken to his home at 619 S. Ash St. The injury is a very painful one and he will be out of the service for some time.

When the Great Northern officials here do things, they do them in a hurry. Early this morning a large crew of men was at work loading the debris from the freight depot on flat cars and it was practically hauled away before evening.

Two crews of carpenters will rush the repair work, and inside of a very few days the work will be completed.

The freight office and the operators instruments were moved into the south end of the ladies waiting room, where they will remain till the former room is repaired. This is the only room damaged, and this was the result of water only.

Quite a number of people lost valuable freight in some instances it being personal effects which money can not replace.

A very important meeting of the Railway Employes Ass'n will be held in the passenger depot of the Great Northern at Crookston at 3 p. m. on Sunday next, Jan 10, and it is desired that every member who can be present will avail themselves of the opportunity.

The legislature is in session, and there are some important measures for consideration which are of vital interest to the railway employes.

The meeting will be addressed by speakers from the St. Paul Clug and will be the most important since the organization of the branch in this city.

The new county officers with their deputies were sworn in this morning an dat once asumed their duties the business of the county going an as tho nothing had happened. The officers and their deputies are as follows:

Sheriff, Orin Daniels; Deputy, P. Sullivan, office deputy, R. G. Burkhardt, jailor, Thomas Casey.

Auditor, Henry Welte; deputy, Jas. Hanson.

Treasurer, George Flaten; Deputy H. O. Anderson.

Register of Deeds, Theodore Thompson; deputy, Miss Louise Mossefin.

Supt. of Schools, N. A. Thorson; deputy Thomas Casey.

Judge of Probate, T. T. Morken; deputy, Mrs. B. O. Anderson.

Surveyor, Steener Steenerson.

Clerk of Court Lanctot holds over two years more and retains his present efficient deputy, Miss Minnie Boe.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY

HEADS FOR WOODS — Emory Samson left this morning for Kellihar where he has a number of teams working in the woods and will remain there for some time.

TO HOT SPRINGS—Frank J. Zedlick James P. Sullivan and Charles L. Ryan of East Grand Forks are planning to take a trip to the Hot Springs in the near future.

BACK FROM THE WOODS—Louis Carmody made a hurry-up trip from the woods last evening to look up a legacy of several thousand dollars which was recently left him by relatives in Iowa.

A FINE SON—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cottet are the parents of a fine 14 pound son which arrived last evening. The father is so proud that the wholesale warehouse is too small for him this being the first visit of the stork at their home.

SPIRITED CONTEST— A spirited membership contest is on between two U. C. T. bands at Grand Forks captained by Joe Daily and Bud Abrahamson The contest will continue until March and a big increase in the membership of the Grand Forks council is assured The next regular meeting of the U. C. T. will be held in Empire hall, recently secured for the meetings. Several candidates will be initiated.

PROSPECTIVE GUESTS—Priscilla and Ludille Frazier bwere discharged from the count of Judge P. McLoughlin yesterday when arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct. It was held that there was nothing in the city ordinance which would allow them to be held on the charge preferred. The motion for their discharge was made by Attorney W. L. A. Calder when they were arraigned yesterday. It is possible that they will be arrested on a state charge. In that case they will be turned over to the Minnesota authorities in case they are found guilty. The girls' home is in East Grand Forks.—Grand Forks Herald.

Age of Strenuous Endeavor

This has been called the age of strenuous endeavor and people at the beginning of the 20th century are said to be going the pace that kills in their efforts to keep up with the demands of industrial activity. UNITED DEMAND WILL BE MADE

CONGRESSMEN STEENERSON, MARSHALL AND GRONNA FOR RIVER IMPROVEMENT

STEENERSON GATHERING DATA ON QUESTION OF CONSERVATION FLOOD WATERS

From Wednesday's Daily—

A dispatch to the Journal from Washington says:

"Congressmen Steenerson, of Minnesota, and Marshall and Gronna, of North Dakota, have decided to make a united demand for provision in next river and harbor bill, in this session or next for improvement of the Red River of the North, with a view to preventing floods and improving navigation. Marshall has already taken up the question of improving the river in the vicinity of Grand Forks to increase navigability at that point, and Steenerson has been gathering data on the question of the conservation of flood waters. The matter will be presented to the river and harbors committee at some convenient time during the consideration of the river and harbor bill.

"Several plans for impounding the flood waters of the Red River have been suggested, and several examinations have been made by army engineers but while schemes have been pronounced feasible from an engineer ing standpoint, they have been condemned on acount of the excessive cost."

Letter to Commercial Club

Congressman Marshall had been asked by Commercial club of Grand Forks to secure a larger appropriation for improvement of the Red River than had been secured in the past. In a letter from Washington received yesterday he states that he is deeply interested in the subject of river improvement and will do everything in his power to secure an appropriation of the kind desired in the house. Mr. Marshall states that the river and harbers committee does not seem to be favorably disposed toward an appropriation of this character but he hopes to remove prejudice.

FORM GOVERNESS TO WHITE HOUSE

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt to Take Ethel, Whose "Coming Out" Ball was Held Last Tuesday, to Europe Where She will Meet Many Sovereigns—Mrs. Roosevelt has not Been in Europe Since Her Marriage in London Where She Went to Act as Governess.

The debut of Miss Ethel Roosevelt the second daughter of the President took place at the White House last Tuesday evening. The form of entertainment selected by Mrs. Roosevelt for the coming out of her young daughter was the same as that for Alice, now Mrs. Longworth, a "small dance" for which five hundred invitations had been issued, and for every invitation there were probably more than five heart breaks among the girls who had longed in vain for the coveted piece of card board. The younger smart set is made and limited for the winter by the debut of Miss Roosevelt since an invitation to the dance is the hall mark by which those who are within the magic circle are marked off from those who are without. The dance was a brilliant affair, a beautiful setting, pretty girls in the most gorgeous of directoire gowns and young officers in gay uniforms combining to make the picture.

The East Room so well known to tourists from all over the country was used for dancing and the supper was served in the lower corridor which was one of the additions to the breathing space of the White House when the alterations were made a few years ago.

Miss Ethel, who is far from being a beauty is nevertheless engaging in a girlish, wholesome way, and the President who must by this time have become accustomed to being only a side issue at many of the White House affairs was properly retiring. In his offices in a far end of the building he reigns supreme, whether it be a Cabinet meeting or a gathering of Senators or foreign diplomats but he has so often had to play a secondary part in the East Room where Mrs. Longworth made her debut and was later married and where his younger daughter has now made her bow to the world of fashion, and in the many musical affairs of Mrs. Roosevelt that he has an air of feeling himself something of a supernumerary when he appears there.

Mrs. Roosevelt is looking worn and tired this winter and her close friends are saying that she does not regret that she is soon to retire. A few years ago she said quite frankly that she liked her job but it is believed now that she is looking forward to her proposed trip to Europe this spring where she will spend a year before returning to this country. When Alice Longworth was Ethel's age she was considered too much of a hoyden to be trusted with a trip to Europe and presentation at the courts there but her younger sister has a quieter disposition and has had the advantage of a longer period before the public and at the home in the White House. She will be presented at several European courts and is to have all the advantages and delights of contact with the highest society in the capitals. Mrs. Roosevelt has not been abroad since her marriage which occurred in London and she must be something more than human if the contrast between her position at that time when she had gone abroad to take a place as governess in a family, with that in which she will find herself when she will become the guest of kings does not give her some thrills.

BELIEVE ROY J. LATTIMER, ARRESTED AT THIEF RIVER FALLS

LAST WEEK IS A BAD ACTOR —HIS NEW BRIDE GRIEVES

From Tuesday's Daily—

In the last issue of the Press of Thief River Falls there was an account of the arrest in that city, of Roy J. Lattimer on a charge of fleecing residents of Becker county. After commenting on this portion of Lattimer's career, the Detroit Record says:

"If this was all of the story, we could well rest content, feeling that the postal authorities of the government would see that proper retribution was meted out to this imposter. However, there is another phase of the case and one in which an innocent person has been made a victim of Lattimer's duplicity. The person is Miss Anna Jager, daughter of Mrs. C. Jager of Hamden township, and one of the most estimable young women in Becker County. During the short time which Lattimer has been in the community he has succeeded in winning the affections of Miss Jager and on Sunday last they were married at the Heuter home at the Rochert postoffice. Her honeymoon has indeed been brief and the exposure of her husband's villiany has almost prostrated her. She was one of the country's most promising school teachers and has scores of friends who will sympathize with her at this time.

"The authorities here are not very favorably impressed with Lattimer. In fact, they entertain the opinion that he is a polished crook and that he was awaiting a favorable apportunity to desert his young wife."

A BUSY SESSION OF COUNTY BOARD

The county commissioners transacted a vast amount of routine business today. The state, it was discovered owes Polk County $3500 for public highways. The jury list was made out for th eune te m of court.

MURDERED NEAR FOWLDS

MORRIS FULLER SHOT ABOUT 3 O'CLOCK YESTERDAY MORNING

TWO MEN ARE UNDER ARREST— PRACTICALLY NO PROVOCATION

From Tuesday's Daily—

Morris Fuller, one of the Crookston Lumber Company's employes in Camp No. 2 at Fowlds, was shot thru the neck by a companion about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, dying twenty minutes later.

Sheriff Thomas Bailey and Coroner Marcum returned to Bemidji yesterday afternoon, with Barney Nelson and Archie Brown in custody from Fowlds, where the former were called to investigate Fuller's death.

According to the story of the shooting, as told by Brown, he and Fuller had been drinking considerably during the night and were walking into Fowlds about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, when they met a man who looked very much like the Barney Nelson now under custody. They invited the man to return to the village and have a drink with them, which he decided to do. Nelson or the man resembling him was walking in front of the two when Fuller placed his hand on the man's shoulder and said "What's your hurry " The latter immediately turned and fired his revolver the ball entering Fuller's neck and causing his death twenty minutes later.

Nelson had been seen drinking last evening and with a revolver in his possession and Brown is of the opinion that he is the man who shot the deceased. Sheriff Bailey took Nelson and Brown into custody this noon and they will be held in the Beltrami county jail, pending the decision of the coroner's inquest over the remains today.

The remains of the deceased were taken to Bemidji yesterday afternoon. Morris Fuller was a young farmer about twenty-five years old who lived near Wadena and had gone to Fowlds to work during the winter.

ROAD BUILDING BREAKS RECORD

YEAR SEES 440 MILES OF HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT COMPLETED IN STATE

OF MINNESOTA — BIENNIAL REPORT OF SECRETARY COOLEY

Good roads received the greatest impetus in the history of the state during the past two years. Public highway improvements covering 440.78 miles were completed from last year, according to the biennial report of George W. Cooley, secretary of the state highway commission. The total amount of road work done under state aid, with 46 counties reporting and 10 missing cost $213,969.68. The amount paid out by the state was $62,608.68.

During the year there was also constructed 119 iron culverts; 12 steel and concrete culverts; 17 steel bridges, with a total length of 941 feet and 100 grade railroad crossings.

The commission hopes to receive appropriations from the coming legislature that will permit of the construction during the next two years of approximately 1,000 miles of state roads.

MORE BIG YIELDS OF CLOVER

RED RIVER VALLEY LANDS CONTINUE TO MAKE GOOD

H. Helgeson who resides on a farm near McIntosh, Polk county, threshed 80 bushels of clover seed from 15 acres which he sold at $10 per bushel This was threshed in the ordinary threshing machine.

John H. Luchan of Green Meadow Norman County threshed 13 bushels of clover seed from two acres for which he received $130.

These are but two of the many instances that can be cited as to productiveness of Red River Valley soil.

NEW BANK IN OPERATION

M. F. MURPHY OF GRAND FORKS AND W. J. MOONEY OF LANGDON,

NORTH DAKOTA ARE AT INTERNATIONAL FALLS — BANK STOCKHOLDERS

The International State Bank, capitalized at $30,000 opened up for business Saturday and is now an organized institution of International Falls according to the bank's president, M. F. Murphy of Grand Forks, N. D., who arrived in the city this morning on his way home from the "Falls".

This is the second bank established at International Falls and is a criterion by which the prosperity of the thriving little town on the Canadian border can be judged. This is the first invasion of North Dakota capital in that section of the country, the other bank at that place being controlled by the F. P. Sheldon interests of Minneapolis.

The officers of the International State Bank are: M. F. Murphy, Grand Forks, N. D., president; R. S. McDonald, International Falls, vice-president; John B. Mooney, Langdon, N. D., cashier; and Harry Hilliard, N. D., assistant cashier.

BANQUET GIVEN BY CONDUCTORS

RETIRING CHIEF AND SECRETARY OF O. R. C. HONORED AT GRAND FORKS

At Hotel Frederick, Grand Forks, last evening a banquet was tendered by No. 178 Order of Railway Conductors in honor of J. M. Cooper, retiring chief conductor, and W. A. Stewart, retiring secretary. It was a most noteworthy occasion in the history of the order, which is one of the most influential in the United States, and has seldom been equalled in Grand Forks.

Colonel William H. McGraw who succeeds Mr. Cooper as chief conductor, acted as toastmaster. He called upon each of the members in order and made quite a hit with happy sayings. The responses were humorous and altogether it was a most enjoyable evening.

Among those who were present were: Messrs. McGraw, Hill, Mullen, Maher, Trotter, Fisk, Caldy, Clark, Cooper, Heinze, Stewart, Schuyler, Long and Evans.

Mr. Stewart is succeeded as secretary by Willis Hill.

ADVOCATES OF DIVORCE HEARD

Arguments by experts; students of social conditions; who took sides for and against divorce as a means of alleviating marital unhappiness made a lively ending to the meeting of the American Sociological society at Atlantic City, New Jersey yesterday.

Following the lead of Dr. Geo. Elliot Howard of Nebraska University who claimed that the growth of divorce is necessary for the proper protection of women against cruel or indifferent husbands, Dr. Joseph Krauskopf of Philadelphia, stated his open advocacy of separation of men and women who had been wrongfully bound together by marital ties which galled. In opposition to the theories advanced by these students Walter George Smith, a Philadelphia lawyer and a member of National Divorce congress took the stand that divorce in any form is a danger to both home and state. During the height of his argument the Philadelphian referred to the advanced advocates of divorce as "false prophets, and heretics." Figures that show that over two thirds of the applications made for divorce come from wives, were taken by the divorce advocates as the proof that growth of the spirit that allows separation of mismated couples is only a sign that wives are claiming their rights with the offered alternative of leaving their husbands.

Among the speakers was James M. Hagerty of Ohio university.

Anoka Herald: The Herald believes that two of the constitutional amendments submitted at the recent election should be resubmitted. These two are those advocating good roads tax and educational qualifications in county superintendents of schools. Both are good measures and worthy. Plenty of space should be devoted to a discussion of their merits by the newspapers of the state previous to the voting upon them.

Winona Independent: Mr. Cannon says he won't cross the speakership bridge until he comes to it. That's the sensible way. He may not have to cross it at all.

SENTIMENT FOR CROOKSTON MAN

MUCH ADVERSE COMMENT IS HEARD REGARDING OUTSIDE FIRE CHIEF

ARTICLE IN TIMES CREATES SEVERE CRITICISM AMONG RESIDENTS

From Thursday's Daily—

A few days ago the Times of this city published an article to the effect that the city council had practically decided to offer the position of chief engineer of the Crookston Fire department of this city to Asst. Chief Fitzgerald of the Grand Forks department, providing the ordinance creating a paid department in Crookston is finally passed.

The Journal has convassed the situation quite thoroly and is of the opinion that the Times is booming the wrong man and that there is no basis fo rthe stateemnt that "there is little doubt but what Fitzgerald will be offered the position."

While there may be one or two members of the council who favor Fitzgerald it is very doubtful whether the council would ignore public sentiment which is almost unanimous against going outside of Crokston for a fire chief, thus ignoring the splendid services of the members of the present volunteer fire department who have given Crookston better fire protection than that enjoyed by any city in the northwest, and who have never in the history of the city allowed a fire to get away from them.

With such material, composed of men who have fought fires valiantly with practically no compensation for years, the business men and citizens generally, after a careful canvass, are found to favor the appointment of a chief engineer from among the fire fighters of Crookston who have proved their efficiency by fighting fires as members of the volunteer fire department. While there is no intention of criticising the efficiency of Mr. Fitzgerald, the feeling is that there are just as capable men in Crookston and that there is no necessity of going to Grand Forks or any other place outside for a chief engineer of the fire department if a paid department is created.

NEW BRANCH "FISH LINE"

ALL FISH TO BE SHIPPED EAST AND SOUTH OVER GREAT NORTHERN

WARROAD WILL BE SHIPPING POINT INSTEAD OF KENORA AS IN PAST

It is understood that the completion of the Great Northern branch line from here to Warroad will revolutionize the fish shipping business from the Lake of the Woods and as a result the Great Northern branch to Warroad will handle practically all the business in the future.

Heretofore nearly all the fish were landed at Kenora and shipped over the Canadian Pacific, but it stated on good authority that in the future the fish will all be landed at Warroad and shipped over the branch leading to this city. This will make quite an item as the shipments amount to a carload a day and some times more.

It is rumored that the Warroad line will soon be dubbed the "Fish Line" as a result of these conditions.

A GREAT COMBINATION.

When Husband, Wife and Mother-in-law Co-operate.

Shortly after his marriage, which took place in 1880, John Burns, the British labor leader, settled down as a journeyman engineer in Battersea and twenty years after confessed that he was the first engineer to make with his own hands an electric tram car in Great Britain. In those days, however, people did not believe that electric traction was possible, and Burns had to take the dynamo and tram to the Crystal palace and run the latter round the grounds for six months before people could be induced to believe in the novelty.

But the people were so nervous that, although the charge was only sixpence, none of them would venture in the newfangled invention. Then Burns was struck with a brilliant idea. He said to his wife. "You have got to come down to the palace three times a week and get into the first electric tram car as a decoy duck for the others." This was only temporarily successful. So Burns brought along his mother-in-law, "and," said the energetic labor leader when relating the incident, "when a husband, a wife and a mother-in-law co-operate success is assured."—London Tit-Bits.

DEER HUNTERS RUN TO EARTH

LARGEST SEIZURE IN MANY YEARS MADE YESTERDAY NEAR HINCKLEY

VENISON FOR EASTERNERS—UPWARDS OF THIRTY ANIMALS KILLED

From Thursday's Daily—

The largest seizure of game in Minnesota in a number of years was made yesterday when Carlos Avery, executive agen of the state game and fish commission, raided a camp near Hinckley and captured 775 pounds of venison. Five men, members of the hunting party, were arrested and their outfit confiscated.

The venison representing ten deer was awaiting shipment to New York, and according to settlers living near the camp, the party in the past month shot nearly thirty animals. All of the venison, with the exception of the ten carcasses seized, had been sent East where it realized the purchasers about 50 cents a pound.

Five of the party, who were mostly half-breeds and Indians, were taken to Hinckley where they pleaded guilty and were given thirty days each in the county jail. Their guns were brought to St. Paul and will be sold with the other confiscated hunting property. The meat, consisting of six saddles, six full carcases and a bag of scraps, is now in a local storage house and will be sold.

The wholesale killing of deer in the vicinity of Hinckley was brought to the attention of the commission by settlers. That it has been going on some time was evident, but owing to sparsely settled condition of the territory, it was impossible to get sufficient evidence. When the camp was located yestedav, the meat was found buried beneath a hay stack. The hunters made no resistance.

That venison is in demand was evidenced today in the number of calls for portions of the meat. A price of 25 cents per pound has been placed on it, and it is being readily sold at this price.

Mr. Avery says that none of it has been killed over two weeks.

HAS FINISHED LOG CUTTING

PINE ISLAND CREW HAS 600,000 FEET OF LOGS READY TO BE HAULED

TO THE LANDING NEAR THIEF RIVER FALLS—A LONG HAUL

From Monday's Daily—

The Pine Island camp of the Thief River Falls Lumber Co., in charge of Joe Irving has finished cutting for the winter, having been engaged at the work since early in the fall. Something over six million feet of logs are now on skids waiting to be hauled to the landing. This work will be started about the first of the year.

Just now the road to the landing is being prepared for the immense loads that will later pass over it. The road this year is nearly fourteen miles in length. Over this road after it is firmly packed and iced, six horse teams will haul from 20,000 to 25,000 feet of timber at a load, each team making one round trip daily. At this rate the 60 horses comprising the ten teams will dump at the landing nearly a quarter of a million feet daily So far this has been a good winter for logging and the work has been going along very satisfactorily.

BARRY LOSES TO KAUFMANN

SECONDS THROW UP SPONGE AFTER 39 ROUNDS OF TERRIFIC FIGHTING

NORTH DAKOTA FIGHTER HAS BOTH HANDS BROKEN—DR. ROLLER NEXT

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 31—At the end of the thirty-ninth round last night after both his hands were broken, and to save him from further punishment, Jim Barry's seconds threw up the sponge and Referee Jim Jeffries awarded the decision to Al Kaufmann, of San Francisco. The battle was one of the fiercest and most aggressive in the history of prize fighting. Barry forcing the fighting at all stages and in the early part of the bout keeping the shifty Kaufmann on the run.

In the end, however the superior cleverness of Delaney's protege stood him in good stead and after Barry had broken both hands, it was only a question of how long the plucky North Dakota man could last. At this stage of the battle Barry's seconds influenced by the demands of the crowd and after considerable consultation, decided that to prolong the battle would be only cruelty to their man and threw up the sponge.

Kaufmann will now meet Dr. Roller of Seattle, and if his manager is willing will undoubtedly be matched with Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight championship.

PAUL WATERSTRADT IS DOING WELL

The following from a Sunnyside, Washington, paper contains intersting news of the prosperity of Paul Waterstradt formerly of this city. It says:

"The Sunnyside Abstract Co. began operations here about a year ago, and has been our greatest source of information concerning titles, incumbrances, etc., to the real property in the valley. They have a complete set of abstract records for Yakima county and are making the most complete and up to date abstracts in the county as well as reducing the size of the abstracts. The two factors of neatness and dispatch they have had a monopoly of and their fees are no greater than those at the county seat, while the abstract is received much quicker. They have made a department of their business the recording of documents, payment of taxes, etc., and are more than generous in giving freely and cheerfully any information desired. The capital stock of the company is $15,000 and the officers are E. G. Peck, president; F. W. Rodgers, vice president; Paul Waterstradt, secretary and treasurer. They have four employes and everything about their office bespeaks industry and careful execution. Mr. Waterstradt is a member of the Odd Fellows and the United Artisans.

The New Year dawned on Crookston with a greater degree of optimism regarding the future prevalent than has been in evidence for many years. With definite assurance that the Crookston Lumber Co., will operate their big sawmill here the coming year after having been closed down for the past year, with a full complement of men for a day and night crew number between 350 and 400 men and a payroll of $8000 per month.

With definite assurance that the federal building costing nearly $100,000 will be erected, work starting early in the spring.

With exceptionally large amounts of other building operations certain.

With the recent organization of a Polk County Growers' Association which will make better farming conditions.

With over 100 students to be enrolled in the Crookston School of Agriculture at the State Experiment Station here for the winter term which means a big crop of young farmer boys and girls thoroly trained to not only cultivate but conserve the riches of the Red River Valley soil.

With the farmers prepared with a bigger acreage ready for crop next spring than they have had in the past ten years, there is every reason to believe that the year 1909 will mark a new era in the prosperity and development of this entire section.

To this should be added the completion of the Warroad extension of the Great Northern from Greenbush completing another great highway of commerce leading to Crookston.

Every business institution in the city has prospered during the past year and the churches, schools and all other public institutions are in a flourishing condition.

And above all, more important than full larders and good bank acounts, is the general good health and the absence of any epidemic among the people.

What brighter prospects could be asked for to begin a new year with?

NOTARIES ARE HARD HIT

YOUNG RULES THAT THEY COME UNDER BAN OF THE ANTI-PASS LAW

HOLDS THAT NOTARIES PUBLIC ARE IN EFFECT STATE OFFICERS

From Friday's Daily—

State notarial commissions—those bits of official looking parchment that Frank A. Day, private secretary to Gov. John A. Jonhson, issues—will not be very popular with some of the holders after midnight tonight.

Attorney General Young has ruled that all notaries are, in effect, state officers and therefore come under the provisions of the anti-pass act. This means that all clerks or officials employed by railroad, telephone, express telegraph or street car companies, who hold commissions, must pay for transportation the same as outsiders.

Tho his business may require a pass or a frank, such as has been issued no employe can accept such favor if he is a notary public. He violates the law if he does.

It is not known how many persons this ruling affects, but the number is large. Almost every lawyer in the state is a notary and every road operating in the state has an attorney in every county its lines traverse. In the legal department of these companies are from one to three notaries, and the same applies to other departments where acknowledgements must be taken.

Employes of these companies in towns and cities who hold municipal board positions and other municipal offices also come under the ban. Quite a few of those affected have resigned their commissions and a number of requests to be dropped from the list is expected the coming week.

If the law is not amended, it promises to make quite a hole in Secretary Day's annual revenue for he receives a fee for each commission issued.

AFTER THE NEW NORMAL SCHOOL

THIEF RIVER FALLS SENDS A DELEGATION TO ST. PAUL EARLY

Thief River Falls will make strong bid for the location of the proposed sixth state normal school. The contest for the institution is between that city and Bemidji, and will be fought out in the legislature this winter. John Morgan and W. B. Fullen of Thief River Falls are in St. Paul today having gone down to make a preliminary survey of the prospects.

It is to be hoped that the latest conviction and sentence of Abe Ruef will "stick." If it does, it will prove that there is a limit to the misuse of the privileges of an accused person, so as to thwart justice. It will also prove that lapse of time, tho the law's delays, has failed, for once, to cool just popular resentment against great wrongs to the public.

The people of the whole country have been watching the San Francisco graft cases, as they have watched no other combat with evil in recent times, to see whether the popular uprising would be effective and not a mere flash in the pan. For a generation the conditions in San Francisco have been a shame to the American people. There seemed to be no righteous discontent with triumphant wickedness. Out of the disaster and death in the earthquake and fire, almost three years ago, came an awakening of the people of that city to a realization of the facts and a determination to clean up the city. That purpose has been maintained, with unabated courage, up to this time. All efforts to defeat it, by other means, have failed so far. If the result of the calamity of 1906, be the purification of municipal administration, the punishment of the corruptionists, and the quickening of an enlightened public opinion that will be a safeguard against corruption, all the woe of those awful April days will not be regretted. It will have proved a blessing in disguise. — St. Paul Dispatch.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM THURSDAYS DAILY

M. A. Brattland of Ada was in the city last evening on business.

L. I. BENOIT ILL—Word has been received by friends to the effect that L. I. Benoit of Twin Falls, Idaho, formerly of this city, is quite seriously ill.

SPENDING DAY HERE— H. Devitt, representing the International Correspondence School, and who is also associated with the Y. M. C. A. at Grand Forks, is spending the day here on business and will return home this evening.

WILL VISIT WEST—Wm. Samson of Fairfax who is spending the week in Minneapolis will from there proceed to Mountain Home and other points in Idaho and the west on a pleasure trip.

FINE HERD OF GALLOWAYS — Peter Sheets and sons, of Spring Creek, have returned home with some fine Galloway cattle which he purchased at the experimental station in Crookston. Mr. Sheets now has about 30 head of cattle of this breed.

SNOW BADLY DRIFTED — M. Grassman who drove in from his farm at Andover today to se that the Journal was left at his door for another year states that the snow is drifted worse than for several years. Between sections 3 and 10 the drifts on the road he stated, were six feet deep and impassable and farmers were obliged to turn out into the fields to get to the city. He noticed many drifts ten feet deep around the farm houses. Yesterday he did not attempt to take his stock out of the barn, but carried water to them, and this morning had to do a great stunt of shoveling in order to get the stable doors open, and also had to shovel out his strawstack.

About Jan. 5th Sheriff Louis Gonyea, Louis Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Longley will leave for Twin Falls Idaho where they will locate. A. G. and John Sandberg will also leave with them and spend some time looking over the west with the idea of locating if good openings can be discovered. The departure of Gonyea and Longley families from Crookston will be deeply regretted. Sheriff Gonyea and family have resided in Croowston for many years and deep regret is felt over their proposed location in the west. They will be followed by the best wishes of a host of warm friends.

Dr. and Mrs. Langevin this morning received a letter from their son Elmer who is attending the McKillid College at Chicago in which he states that he is enjoying his holiday vacation with college friends in Illinois and Indiana. He has been entertained on quail hunting trips several times, and Dr. and Mrs. Langevin will have quail on toast for breakfast New Years morning as a result of his prowess with the gun.

This is the last day of the old year Tomorrow we will write 1909. The past year has been one of many blessings, material advancement for Crookston and widespread prosperity for farmers and business men. Looking ahead there is still brighter prospects for the coming year. Locally the saw mill will be in operation with a great payroll, the new federal building will be erected giving labor to many, and a great amount of other building will be done. Speaking generally the farmers are in the best shape they have been for years, and their fields are prepared for a bigger acreage an d a greater yield than for many years past.

Let us all start out on the new year with a feeling of optimism, and by all pulling together the coming year will be the richest in blessings material and otherwise ever experienced in the Red River Valley.

Today a committee of clerks of the city are making a canvass of all the stores of the city in an effort to secure an agreement to have all business houses of the city closed from Jan. 4 to Nov. 1 at 6 o'clock sharp. The committee received great encouragement as far as the canvass was completed today.

A special effort is being made to have all the clothiers close. Some of them never open Sundays, and others would prefer not to providing all agree to close, but as long as some keep open they are compelled to, to prevent their customers going to other places on Sunday. It is believed that all will sign the agreement the same as in other cities of this size.

Early in January a Retail Clerks Association will be organized for the mutual benefit of the dealers and the clerks, and it is expected that the membership will reach nearly 250.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

Harold Misner spent yesterday at Euclid with the home folks.

Bert Chapin was down from Euclid last evening calling on his friends.

RETURNS TO CHICAGO—Dr. J. S. Chapin of Euclid will leave Monday for Chicago where he will take another course of treatment and will be absent several weeks.

MAROONED AT FERTILE— Rev. C. C. Warner who went to Fertile on Tuesday evening to officiate at a wedding was marooned there by the storm, being unable to get a train home till last evening. He states that the storm also delayed the bridal trip of the couple.

..TO RE-ENLIST—Geo. Quaster, son-in-law to Ed Thompson, has left for Chicago where he will re-enlist in the U. S. Marine service in which he has already served three years, having been stationed here as a recruiting officer two years ago when he married Miss Thompson.

ONE OF THE BEST—James Stewart manager of the Buffington farm, and one of the live farmers of Polk Co., spent last evening in the city. He says there is to be a big dance at Buffington next Wednesday, and many will attend from Euclid and several from this city.

TO SETTLE OLD SCORES—Papers were served yesterday in a $10,000 damage suit in which J. A. Button at the head of Button's Business College sues J. C. Sathre, president of the Crookston Business College for alleged damages sustained by a letter which the plaintiff claims defendant wrote to a young lady of Underwood Minn. in which he alleges Sathre made the statement "Mr. Button is a swindler." A fued of long standing will now be thoroly aired in the courts.

RUNNING ON SCHEDULE — The N. P. which was forced to use the Great Northern tracks between this city and Glyndon on account of the storm Wednesday, yesterday got a snow plow thru on their own tracks and used them, tho the Winnipeg-St. Paul flyers were both several hours late today. The Great northern had no trouble at all except with the St. Vincent local which was stalled in a snowbank Wednesday and came in 4 hours late.

Simon Kittleson of International Falls came in yesterday morning and was married here by Judge of Probate M. A. Clark to Miss Caroline Larson of Lengby, The newly-married couple returned to International Falls last evening where they will make their future home.—Bemidji Pioneer.

Miss Mary Hughes who is a sister in St. Mary's convent was a guest of her cousin, Dan Hughes last Wednesday. The two had not met for 27 years and the meeting was a most pleasant one, as they had formerly been school mates and very intimate, as well as cousins. Mr. Hughes had lost track of her of late years, supposing that she was still in the West where she had been for years, but for the past two years she had been at Winnipeg, and was just returning from a visit in St. Paul where she learned of Mr. Hughes' location here and stopped off a day to visit him. He regretted that the storm prevented him from showing her about Crookston.

The pasesngers on the trains from Warroad and Duluth last evening spent a delightful New Years eve, at Benoit, leaving, not at all reluctantly some time after midnight. The Warroad train arrived here at 2:30 this morning and the Duluth train at 1:15.

It seems that a freight car jumped the track at Benoit, and the two passenger trains were on the other side of it, and had to wait till a wrecking train from this city got the freight car back on the track.

Several of the passengers were to attend social functions last evening and some of them were headed for the twin cities and they were rather a disgusted lot. None was hurt.

J. M. Bartlett and sons Grant and Irvin and R. D. Bartlett returned this morning from a two weeks' visit with the parents of J. M. and Prof. R .D. Bartlett at Eau Galle, Wis., where they spent Christmas and report a most delightful visit. Mrs. J. M. Bartlett who has been visiting at Duluth and Virginia, Minn., is expected home in a few days. Prof. Bartlett will resume his work at the head of the Tabor schools the first of the week if the weather is not too severe.

If you have presents to shed prepare to shed them now.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

ON BUSINESS TRIP—P. H. Gramer left last evening for Fargo where he will spend a day or two on business.

WILL REPAIR MELGAARD'S HOME—Herman Feidler and a crew of men went to Argyle this morning where he will repair the Melgaard home which was gutted by fire a few weeks ago.

SOLD AN AUTOMOBILE — A. F. Cronquist of Erskine closed a deal with P. J. Gunness of Abercrombie, N. D., last Tuesday whereby he disposed of his automobile which will be shipped out there in the near future.

GOING TO IDAHO—Emil Lindahl came over from Grand Forks last evening and announces that after spending a few days heer he will leave for Idaho where he will continue his work as a Great Northern lineman.

HAD GOOD FALL—Tom Dipuye returned last evening from St. Thomas N. D., where he has spent the past 11 falls threshing and doing other work. He reports a prosperous season this year. He was accompanied by his wife.

IT WAS CHILLY — The heating plant at the Germania hotel went wrong this morning and up till noon Chas. Rauch was slinging schooners with fur mits and felt boots on, to say nothing of a pair of ear lugs which he borrowed from the cook.

FIXIN GUP THE LINES — Geo. Thompson, lineman for the Northwestern Telephone Co., went to Angus this morning. He has been kept busy since the storm Wednesday, getting the lines into good shape again. Yesterday he spent at Euclid.

ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT—Max Ingbong was arrested Thursday evening on a complaint sworn out by Mose Giller charging threatened assault. Ingborg was arraigned before Judge Gossman and held under $40 cash bail and will be given a hearing on Monday in municipal court.

BAC KFROM IOWA—Julius Volker who resides near t he Buffington farm returned yesterday morning from a three weeks visit near Mason City Ia. He states that the farmers were plowing there the first of the week and that the weather was exceptionally fine.

SLIGHTLY IMPROVED—Much relief was felt by many friends in the city today when the announcement was made that Wylie Phillips showed some improvement over yesterday when his condition was critical. It is now believed that he has a good chance for recvovorey.

BACK FROM CITIES—J. C. Sabin returned from St. Paul this morning where he spent the Christmas holidays with his family. "Dad" looks more like a colt every year and started out ofter the business up the north line this morning. This time he returned without any scratches and states that he feels like one of Game Warden Munch's ring-necked pheasants of last year's hatching.

STARTED OUT STRONG—Messrs. Schuneman and Roemer headed up the north line today to start the new year's business. Both were going strong for a long heat and Geo. Heath came up in the rear less than half a lap to the bad. Roemer made a resolution New Years day to stop kicking and actually failed to grumble about the cars, the weather, his hay fever or anything till after the train pulled out. It is expected that he will break out more violent than ever before night.

An Enthusiastic Customer

Told her grocer that if he refused to handle "OUR-PIE" Preparation she would trade elsewhere. She knew she could make Lemon, Chocolate and Custard pies better than the expert cook if she used "OUR-PIE" as all the ingredients, carefully prepared, are in the package ready for immediate use. Each package, enough for two large pies, 10 cents. Order a dozen today from your grocer. Excellent also as a pudding sauce, cake filling, etc.

Fiddled Into Office.

Lossing relates that in 1848 he met at Oswego, N. Y., Major Cochran, then nearly eighty years old, a son-in-law of General Philip Schuyler, who told the story of his election to congress during the administration of the elder Adams. A vessel was to be launched on one of the lakes in interior New York, and people came from afar to see it. The young folks gathered there, determined to have a dance at night. There was a fiddle, but no fiddler. Young Cochran was an amateur performer, and his services were demanded. He gratified the joyous company, and at the supper table one of the gentlemen remarked, in commendation of his talents, that he was "fit for congress." The matter was talked up, and he was nominated and elected a representative in congress for the district then comprising the whole of New York west of Schenectady. He always claimed to have "fiddled himself into congress."

BRIDE-ELECT ON HIS HANDS

HUMBOLT MAN MANAGED TO STIR UP THE GREEN EYED MONSTER

PROSPECTIVE GROOM POUTED AND DESERTED HIS SWEETHEART—RECONCILED

From Saturday's Daily—

It is even dangerous to be polite sometimes, is the experience Eph Clow sampled an Monday last on his way to Crookston. It was simply a case of his liberal supply of good nature and affability that nature had supplied him with and no mean intention of his, that stirred up the green-eyed monster of fiery jealousy—but he unintentionally did it just the same.

When Mr. Clow boarded the train at Humboldt, he did not know that a young couple from St. Vincent was on board on the way to Crookston to get married: He only noticed the young lady in a seat next to his and in his own happy way opened up an entertaining conversation. By the way, it must be said to his justification, that he was already acquainted with her, so it was not a reckless attempt at flirtation with a stranger.

The conversation soon became all-engrossing and entertaining so much so, in fact, that the bridegroom-to-be, felt himself very much left out in the cold and felt within himself the kindling flame of wrath and jealousy. By the time Hallock was reached, the "kindling flame" had asumed the proportions of a raging fire and he concluded to "jump the job" right then and there. With this terrible determination in mind, he addressed himself briefly to Mr. Clow and told him that since he wanted the girl he could have her and abruptly left the train.

Now, here was a pretty kettle of fish Mr. Clow with a bride-elect left on his hands, bound for the same destination as himself, and the groom elect on a strike and off the train. Mr. Clow is a quick thinker and a prompt actor. This saved the day. He followed the young man with injured feelings out on the depot platform and with a few minutes of eloquent and masterful pleading, convinced the young man that he had become exercised over an innocent misunderstanding of the true situation; that no offense or malice was intended, and persuaded him to join his fiance in the car.

The train was only delayed a few minutes and the wedding came off here without any further hitch to mar the event except that the parties were properly "hitched."

Mr. Clow also continued on his journey but while he does not smoke, he rode in the smoker all the way.

EARL GEIL ELECTED BEMIDJI CHIEF

EFFICIENT CHIEF AGAIN CHOSEN FOR THE EIGHTH SUCCESSIVE YEAR

For the eighth successive term, Earl Geil was Wednesday elected chief of the Bemidji fire department, to serve during the year 1909, the vote for Mr. Geil being unanimous, and he having no opposition for the head office of the department.

The firemen held their annual election last evening, electing officers for both the fire department and the relief association as follows:

Fire Department—Earl Geil, chief; A. Halvorson, secretary; John Goodman; finance committee, M. F. Cunningham, J. J. Doran, C. S. Daly; trustees, John Hillaby, Floyd Brown, Robert Russell.

TELLS OF JUGGLING THOUSANDS IN THE PAYMASTER'S SERVICE

From Saturday's Daily—

The many friends of H. H. Koppang who is with the paymasters department of the United States Navy recently wrote a letter to a resident of Crookston who formerly taught school in Tynsid Township which Mr. Koppang attended when but a little lad. He has made good since he entered the government service and is rapidly climbing the ladder of success. His letter written on the United States Steam Ship Prairie, at Colon Panama follows:

"U. S. S. Prairie, Colon Panama, December 16, 1908: My dear good friend: I just got back to Philadelphia from my leave, in time to be one of the thirty thousand and odd Foot Ball enthusiasts, who saw the Navy lads beat to tune of 6 to 4 on Franklin Field November 28th, which naturally was not very gratifying to the Navy, since they were credited with having the best team, and under ordinary circumstances should have won.

The "Good Ship Prairie" left Philadelphia on its present cruise, on Sunday morning December 6th, for Colon, via Newport, R. I., and Hampton Roads, Va., where we took on about five hundred men at each place to be transferred to the Pacific Squadron, lying right opposite on the other side at Panama, a matter of 50 miles from here. The reason for us taking these men and transfering them here, is that, upon the expiration of a man's enlistment the government agrees to furnish him his transportation to the place of his enlistment, which amounts to four cents a mile within the continental limits of the United States, and since most of the men of the Pacific Squadron enlisted on the east coast, the Navy Department figured out that a lot of money could be saved by sending a Navy vessel down here with the thousand men required to replace short-timers on the vessels on the other side, instead of sending these men overland to San Francisco, and paying four cents a mile via this same route to the thousand men coming east.

Incidentally, before leaving Philadelphia, we took on board a small matter of $350,000.00 in gold, in Fives, Tens and Twenties; 70 bags in all, of $5,000.00 each, weighing nearly a ton. The pay officer and I went up to the sub-treasury before leaving and got this amount, taking two large automobiles to carry it, the paymaster in charge of one and I having charge of the other, and I took great pleasure in burying my feet among the seventy five thousand plunks. This money also goes to the vessels on the Pacific, being transferred first to the fleet paymaster, and distributed by him to the various ships, namely the West Virginia, (flag ship) Washington, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Tennessee, Colorado, South Dakota and the California. We just got here at one p. m. today and will transfer the money and men at 6:00 a. m. tomorrow morning via the Panama Railroad to Panama. Since we are lying at the dock right alongside the track, it will be an easy matter, the men being able to walk off the ship right aboard the train. We made a trip down here in October last, during which time I had an opportunity together with some of the other officers on board here to go all thru the canal on one of the inspection cars belonging to the commission. It was very interesting as well as instructive to see the progress and the various dredges, steam shovels, drills and other machines at work. Since we are here only for a short period this time, and being outrageously busy, I even doubt if I will be able to leave the ship this time. However we expect to make similar trips in the near future, and an opportunity may then again arise to partake in another tour of inspection, of which I shall be pleased to give a more definite and detailed statement, should you care for one.

We leave here tomorrow at four p. m. for San Juan, Porto Rico, then Culebra, Cuba, and Havana, Cuba, and finally Hampton Roads, Va., where we await the further pleasure of the Navy Department, expecting to arrive there about January 1st, by which time we will have covered something over six thousand miles since our departure from Philadelphia on the 6th instant. It looks now as tho we are doomed to spend Christmas at sea. Very cheerful, isn't it? However it doesn't matter much to me since I can't spend it at home anyway; and then,—well I have learned more to take things as they come without grumbling—and to obey orders,—which is more than I did that time you took me behind the old schoolhouse and gave me a good spanking in the old-fashioned way. Evidently I had been misbehaving that time.

With best regards to you and family and wishing you the compliments of the season, I am,

Most sincerely,
—H. H. Koppang,
Pay Clerk, U. S. Navy.

LAUDS SCHEME OF STEPHENS

EDITOR CARR OF MIDDLE RIVER PIONEER COMMENTS ON PLAN

BELIEVES FARMERS WILL BE GREATLY BENEFITTED BY THE IDEA

From Saturday's Daily—

Editor R. D. V. Carr has the following article in the Middle River Pioneer in connection with the recent meeting called for farmers in this city by Senator Stephens.

A few days ago Senator A. D. Stephens, of Crookston, entertained a representative gathering of the farmers of Polk county for the purpose of discussing ways and means to further the interests of farming in that county.

In order to stimulate better methods in farming and stock growing, he proposed to give $1000 in prizes, to be awarded in ten different contests. $100 is to be given in first, second and third prizes of $50, $30 and $20 for the respective winners in contests in raising wheat, raising oats, raising barley, raising corn, raising potatoes, raising clover, raising colts, raising cows, raising hogs, raising sheep. In each class there must be from 50 to 100 farmers contesting. It further stipulates that the contestants must adhere to certain conditions, such as agreeing upon a uniform variety of seed to sow and some certain standard of the various kinds of stock to be grown in the contests. The point was strongly brought out at the meeting that the contest will of estimable value to the country aside from all consideration of the prizes, as each contestant even though he may not win a prize will be amply repaid for his efforts in the increased yield of his product, and the general advertising of the country's passibilities that will accrue from the contest will be a great thing. It was even contended forcibly that the $100,000 which the state has agreed to spend in advertising could be more profitably expended in awarding prizes of this nature to actual farmers, than in any other line of advertising, and the organization that was effected by the farmers, went so far as to instruct Senator Stephens to use his best endeavors to divert the appropriation to this channel. The Pioneer believes that the state could very profitably afford to expend a big sum of money in this manner, tho we would not advocate using this means alone to advertise the state. Naturally, we believe in the use of printers' ink; and believe that the state should go after the advertising in both ways. Why not urge upon our legislators to ask for another $100,000 to be used in stimulating agriculture in this manner and the same time carry out the other idea with the $100,000 as originally proposed?

The action of the Polk county farmers in organizing and going into this contest in a business like manner may be very far reaching in its effects. While there are probably not many counties in which a single individual will start the ball rolling by offering $1,000 out of his own pocket as Senator Stephens did, still the farmers in any county will profit by organizing, agreeing on uniform varieties of grains, grasses and stock to be used and where such a number of them enter any contest as is provided for in the Stephens contest, they could easily put up the prize money by a mutual assessment upon the contestants and in the end every one of them would profit greatly by the investment.

OFFICERS OF MILITIA MEET

The officers of the Minnesota Militia will meet in St. Paul Jan. 4 and 5 and Capt. Westenberg of Co. I and Lieut. Peter Eide will attend from this city, the former reading a paper on "What has been and what will be accomplished on home ranges."

MAIL SERVICE ON WARROAD LINE

Announcement was made today that mail service will be established from Greenbush to Warroad on the new extension Jan. 18. At present the new train carries the mail only as far as Greenbush, going by stage beyond that point.

GREAT FIGHT PUT UP BY FIRE LADDIES

HAD UP-HILL WORK IN SAVING GREAT NORTHERN FREIGHT AND PASSENGER DEPOTS IN BAD FIRE WHICH BROKE OUT AT NOON TODAY—FLAMES FANNED BY A 25 MILE AN HOUR GALE —OIL MADE FIRE AN INTENSELY HOT ONE

From Monday's Daily—

Fire broke out in the Great Northern freight depot here at noon today and before it was under control the north end was completely gutted, the archway between it and the passenger depot collapsed and considerable damage was done to the south end of the pasenger depot.

The fire was discovered by Godfrey Parson of the Eclectic Business College who was enroute to dinner and he at once turned in an alarm.

In less than three minutes Chief Barrette and men were on the ground and soon four streams were playing on the fierce flames and inside of half an hour the fire was under control, tho it burned for some time under the roof of the two buildings, being very hard to get at.

The fire originated in some unknown manner in what is known as the 'warm room" at the north end of the freight house, which contained oil and other combustibles, and several barrels of kerosene in the warehouse added to the fierceness of the fire which was fanned by a 25 mile northwest wind.

It was one of the most stubborn and difficult fires which the department has had to fight in several years and the record made by the department was certainly a good one.

The fire crept under the roof to the passenger depot and was extremely hard to get at but was finally extinguished with little damage to that structure.

There was a string of box cars west of the depot and in coupling on to them the rear trucks of the end car were pushed from the track but the string was pulled out without any damage.

The close proximity of the New Store caused much apprehension but the firemen controlled the flames in that direction and did extraordinary good work in confining the fire to the G. N. buildings. It is difficult to estimate the damage to the two buildings and goods in the warehouse but will be inside of $10000. The buildings will be repaired at once.

There was no one in the freight depot at the time, all employes having gone to dinner.

SEATTLE ELECTRIC CO.'S PREPARATIONS FOR AL.-YUK.-PAC. EXPOSITION, SEATTLE

Expending the lump sums $910,000 for new cars, $600,000 for new trackage and $275,000 for motor generators transformers, high power transmission wire and lighting wires and fixtures, the Seattle Electric Co., which controls the local street car and lighting, will make a handsome record in handling the traffic and lighting of the forthcoming Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. The improvements, new lines, and new power facilities which the company is installing preparatory to the 1909 fair, mark a new era in street railway improvement in the Northwest, and at the close of the Exposition Seattle will be equipped with the most efficient service in the history of the city. For years the electric company has been kept at its wits end in maintaining schedules with its lines constantly impeded by street changes and improvements, not to mention increasing its service to meet the demands of a growing population. The present expenditures will leave the car system in excellent shape after the exposition, and will ensure a prompt and comfortable handling of the crowds at the Fair.

Four lines will tap the fair grounds two of which are now operating, with one more completed and the fourth just begun. Each line is five or six miles in length. All will be double tracked with loop terminals at the grounds and a handsome terminal building and power substation will be installed on the fair grounds. The company expects to be able to deliver passengers at the fair grounds at the rate of two or three cars a minute in rush hours and on special days. As each car comfortably carries 100 passengers, the street railway system will be able to handle twelve or fifteen thousand persons an hour should the occasion demand.

The additional power necessary for those lines will be furnished by the great water power plant at Electron on the Puyallup river, and the steam plant at Georgetown. Twenty miles of 13,000 volt transmission wire will connect this power with the sub-station on the grounds, where it will be stepped down to 2300 volts. Two 1000 kilowat motor generators will be located at this station, and two others at sub-stations in the city. The power will be sufficient to handle cars as rapidly as they can be safely moved over the four lines.

The lump order of 140 cars, forty of which have already been delivered, is probably without precedent among western street car systems.

The cars are of the most modern type, and cost when set up at Seattle about $6500 each. They are manufactured by the St. Louis Car Co., and known as single end, side entrance cars. Each car has four motors of 37½ horsepower, or 150 horepower in all and is capable of developing a speed of thirty miles an hour.

Stone and Webster who control the local company, are not making the investment of one and three quarter millions of dollars with the expectation that it will all come back in nickels during the period of the exposition. To accomplish such a result the street cars would have to handle something like 35,000,000 people during the four months and a half that the fair will last which is obviously out of the question. If a quarter as many people attend, the 1909 Exposition will be a record breaker. The present improvements of the car system are all in the nature of permanent investments.

For the lighting of the exposition the same company has the contract, and it's preparing a most elaborate illumination.

The sub-station on the fair grounds will be a source of current and all wires will be laid in underground conduits thus eliminating the unsightliness of poles or wires on the fair grounds.

The lighting power will come from the same sources as the transportation power. At the sub-station will be four 1000 kilowat transformers, with the necessary regulators and switches. The outdoor or decorative lighting currents will pass thru a reastat, the plan being to turn on the lights all over the grounds gradually, starting with a mere twinkle and growing slowly into brilliant illumination. The water front on Lake Washington and the terraced hillsides overlooking the lake, with the wide avenues of the exposition leading down to the shore, will be brightly lighted, and the night scene from the water promises to be marvelously effective and inspiring.

ANNUAL MEET JANUARY 22

COMMERCIAL CLUB DIRECTORS WERE IN SESSION LAST EVENING

WILL CO-OPERATE WITH SCHOOL BOARD TO CELEBRATE LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

From Tuesday's Daily—

The board of directors of the 25,000 Commercial club held the January monthly meeting in the reception room of Hotel Crookston last evening.

Important Action

Three important actions were taken last evening. The club adopted resolutions of appreciation, addressed to the officials and citizens of Greenbush, Warroad, Roseau and Badger on the occasion of the recent excursion.

The second action taken was that of taking a membership in the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs. The president was authorized to appoint two delegates to attend the annual meeting in St. Paul on January 14 and 15 next. President Misner has not named the delegates as yet.

Celebrate Lincoln's Birthday

Prof. E. E. McIntyre appetred before the board and suggested that the club co-operate with the board of education in preparing a program of more than ordinary interest for the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The president was authorized to appoint a committee to take up the subject with the school board.

Preparations for Annual

The special committee appointed to plan for the anual meeting made its report thru Chairman Cowley. The report recommended that an afternoon meeting be held at which the annual reports will be made and the election of officers will take place. In addition a well known speaker is to be secured from the Twin Cities who will deliver an address at an hour to be later announced. In the evening the annual banquet and installation of officers will take place. The committee was instructed to have this banquet at the Hotel Crookston.

The board was entertained at dinner at the hotel by Director J. P. Dotson and Secretary Brown.

DISTRICT COURT RESUMES GRIND

VERDICT GIVEN STOUT BROS. IN SUIT BY JOHN BOYD

Late yesterday afternoon the jury in the case of John Boyd vs. Stout Bros., of Russia over a stallion, involving $400, returned a verdict for the defendant. The attorneys in the case were Geo. J. Cannon and Chas. Loring, the later for the defendant.

Today a well case, P. L. Berg vs. James Campbell of Fosston is on and will take all day to complete.

ST. OLAF'S CLUB ORGANIZED

WILL BE CALLED NORTHWESTERN MINNESOTA ST. OLAF'S CLUB

OFFICERS ELECTED — SPLENDID BANQUET SERVED AT HOLTE RESIDENCE

From Tuesday's Daily—

Last evening at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. H. Holte the Northwestern Minnesota St. Olaf's Club was organized with a large membership with the following officers:

President—Dr. H. Holte.

Vice President, Rev. Kolste, Bemidji.

2nd Vice President—Rev. T. A. Mason, Stephen.

Secretary — Hannah Sivertson, Crookston.

Treasurer — Attorney Engeseth, Twin Valley.

The membership will be confined to those formerly connected with St. Olaf's College and the territory embraced will include Norman, Polk, Marshall, Kittson, Roseau, Red Lake, Mahnomen, Clearwater and Beltrami counties.

The business meeting was preceeded by a very elaborate seven course dinner served at the Holte home, which was beautifully decorated with streamers, banners and pennants with St. Olaf's colors, old gold, and the place cards contained the St. Olaf seal and the names in gold.

Following the banquet Rev. Hinderlie of Ada acted as toastmaster, and appropriate addresses were made by Rev. Ove, Rev Grimsrud, Rev. Kolste Atty. Engeseth, Dr. Peterson, Atty. Lavik and Miss Sophia Sivertson and all were thoroly enjoyed.

The annual meetings will be held in Crookston each January and other meetings may be called at the discretion of the officers.

Last evening the company thoroly enjoyed several musical selections by Misses Gusta and Mabel Locken. The guests present heartily appreciate the hospitality and initiative of Dr. and Mrs. Holte.

FREIGHT WRECK TIES UP TRAFFIC

BOXCARS DITCHED AND EASTBOUND ORIENTAL LIMITED IS HELD FOR HOURS

Traffic was tied up for several hours on the Great Northern early yesterday morning as the result of the ditchhing of a few cars near the tower The switch operator threw the switch at the wrong time. Train No. 2, which had been on time was delayed for three hours.

The cold weather demoralized traffic to some extent yesterday. Nearly all the trains were late yesterday morning. The Neche and Hannah trains were late getting out and correspondingly late last night.

STARTS NEW YEAR WELL

GAME WARDEN MUNCH MAKES THREE ARRESTS AT SAND HILL LAKE YESTERDAY

ILLEGAL FISHERMEN THOUGHT THEY WERE SAFE BECAUSE OF RAGING STORM

Feeling secure that they werse protected by a raging blizzard yesterday, Bert Lonston H. E. Olson and Louis Ness were pounced upon yesterday by Game Warden Munch and arrested for spearing fish from fish houses without a license on Sand Hill Lake, taken to Fosston where all plead guilty and were fined $12 before Judge John Vig.

Warden Munch left for Fosston this morning to follow up a clue and his surmise that the law evaders would consider themselves in a raging storm lead him to drive 6 miles from Fosston where he caught them red handed.

POST OFFICE WAS ROBBED

YEGGMEN GET BUSY AT STRATH CONA ON THE WARROAD LINE

TOOK $35 IN CASH AND $40 IN STAMPS—LEFT NO TRAIL BEHIND

From Monday's Daily—

Word has just been received of the robber of the postoffice at Strathcona. The robbers getting away with $35 in cash and $40 worth of stamps

Hans Lerum the postmaster usually sleeps in the building, but was attending a masquerade ball and the thieves took advantage of his absence. They left no clue as to their identiey.

The board of county commissioners met this morning and organized for the year, County Auditor Welte acting as clerk. Ben Cleemnts was elected chairman and Commissioner Ecklund vice chairman. The committees will be announced later.

Marius Christianson was the only new face succeeding Rindahl.

The report of the county auditor showing the receipts of $1558.00 was accepted and a hearing was set for the petition of Hanson Bros., to be detached from school districts 158 and 164 and joined to the Erskine district.

The probate judge was allowed $600 for clerk hire. The county printing bids were received and will be acted upon tomorrow.

At the sound of the dinner bell great minds run in the same channel.

QUEER VIEWS OF DISPATCH

THINKS SCHOOLS OF AGRICULTURE SHOULD BE LOCATED ON HENNEPIN AVENUE

WHERE FARMER BOYS WOULD BE HANDY TO CIGARETTES AND VAUDEVILLE

From Saturday's Daily—

The St. Paul Dispatch says:

"No one will quarrel with Senator A. D. Stephens' opinion that farmers' boys should be persuaded to stay on the farm, whenever possible. It is a good place for any boys who are capable of succeeding as farmers but it takes a boy with brains and energy to make a success there as well as anywhere else. Every boy who is brought up on a farm will not make a good farmer, simply because he has not had an opportunity to get away.

"Hence there is a flaw in the senator's argument that agricultural schools ought to be located only in places remote from large cities so that the students will not be betrayed into leaving the farm. On the contrary it will make better citizens of them if they see city as well as country life, for they will then return to the farm from choice and not from ignorance. The farmer who knows nothing of the city is just as narrow and unintelligent as the city man who knows nothing of the country."

The argument of the Dispatch is misleading. No one will deny but what a general knowledge of city life and an understanding of the way business is conducted in large cities is a valuable addition to the education of any young or old man.

However the average farmer would prefer having his son educated in a school located in an agricultural district where practical work could be carried on in a much more satisfactory and effective manner than in a large city where acreage is lacking.

Experience has also shown that the student will do far better work where he is not subjected to the temptations of the large city. The sources of amusements are so abundant that many a college graduate returned home with his sheepskin perhaps, but with a supply of bad habits large enough to ruin the career of four men, and which keeps the "old man" busy earning enough money to supply his son with cash to gratify many of his vicious and harmful tastes acquired in the large cities.

Who would attempt to deny that the young man or woman who graduates from the Crookston School of Agriculture would not leave the school strengthened by having been surrounded by a more healthy moral atmosphere than the student who had spent several years in a school located in a great city? There is a companionship and personal interest which developes in a school of the size of the one located here, which could never develop in the larger school which should also not be lost sight of.

The position taken by Senator Stephens will appeal strongly to anyone who is personally interested in the results to be obtained. Of course opposition can naturally be expected from certain sources in St. Paul and Minneapolis as they would prefer to have every state institution located there if possible. With the St. Anthony Park Agricultural school located there as the center of the great system to be established, St. Paul and Minneapolis should use every effort to encourage the location of the smaller schools included in Senator Stephens' plan.

BREAKS JAIL AT LANGDON

FRANK BRIDGES HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE BREAKS OUT DURING STORM

MAKES HOLE IN BRICK WALL AND CRAWLS OUT DURING HOWLING BLIZZARD

From Saturday's Daily—

Sheriff Gonyea and Chief Eck were notified yesterday of the daring escape from the county jail at Langdon N. D., of Frank Bridges. Bridges, who was arraigned in justice court two weeks ago, and bound over to the grand jury to face the grave charge of incest, made his escape in the morning shortly before the arrival of the turnkey. Jailer Schwartz reached the court house at about 6:15 a. m., and as usual, went direct to the jail. When he reached there, the prisoners informed him that Bridges had made his escape thru the brick wall about fifteen minutes previous to that time. He had managed to pry loose one of the iron bars that holds the ceiling radiator in place, and using a portion of an adjustable alligator wrench as a punch and the piece of iron as a hammer, he had no trouble in making a hole in the wall large enough to crawl thru. He finished his work just in time to get away before the arrival of the turnkey, so he must have decided on the spur of the moment to make his get away.

Blizard Aids Fugitive

On account of a blizard which raged all day, it was impossible for the authorities to trace him, but telegraph and telephone communication was established with the authorities in the adjoining counties, and he had with him about $25 upon reaching a railway station.

Three other prisoners were confined in the jail on less serious charges, and they preferred to stay and face the court.

Bridges is believed to have escaped to Canada.

RECOMMENDS A CHANGE

IN SELLING STATE LAND STATE AUDITOR IVERSON DESIRES THE LEGISLATURE TO AMEND THE LAW NOW IN FORCE

An amendment of the present law relating to the sale of drained land is urged by State Auditor S. G. Iverson, in his biennial report, the advance sheets of which have just been issued.

The last legislature set a minimum price of $5 per acre plus the cost of draining. The operation of the law is cumbersome and in many cases it has retarded the sale of drainage must be paid in full at the time of making the contract. The law requires that 15 per cent of the price of the land shall be paid at the time of the sale, which with the cost of the drainage, makes a payment at one time which is too large for a large number of those who would otherwise buy state land. The state auditor recommends that the payment of the cost of drainage should be changed so that it would be distributed over a number of years as is the cost of the land itself.

The report shows that the sale of pine lands of the state the past four years amounted to $2,089,652. The agricultural lands of the state which have been sold at public auction during the same time brought in $1,633,777, and the money from mineral lands has amounted to $754,373. The total amount received from these sources during the four years has been about $1,100,000 a year.

Mr. Iverson asks for a law so that he can sell some of the stray city property of the state. He suggests that a board of appraisement to fix the value would be sufficient. The state owns some lots on Lexington avenue, and also the site of the elevator which the state did not build in Duluth.

MILO SHOCK IS TRANSFERRED

GOES FROM NECHE LINE TO DAKOTA DIVISION OF GREAT NORTHERN

Roadmaster Milo Shock who has been in charge of the Neche line of the Great Northern has been transferred to the Dakota division. He is a good roadmaster and his friends predict that he will advance rapidly in the service.

Quite a sensation has resulted from the disappearance Saturday evening of a well known young married woman of this city who left an infant babe behind.

On the same train, and going to the depot with her was a well known railroad man of Grand Forks who had a roll of bills from which he was spending freely.

TEAM WAS KILLED AND CUTTER SMASHED

DRIVER IS CARRIED ON PILOT OF ENGINE FOR SEVERAL RODS BUT IS UNHURT—J. T. CONNOLLY TRAVELLINGMAN, JUMPS JUST IN TIME TO ESCAPE ENGINE—REMARKABLE ESCAPE OF GEORGE BARNES FROM DEATH OR SERIOUS INJURY—A. A. NEWGARD, MERCHANT WILL DIE — UNCONSCIOUS SINCE ACCIDENT

From Monday's Daily—

A Great Northern engine crashed into a party driving on the railway track from Munich, Friday night, fractured the skull of A. A. Newgard, a merchant of Munich and Mandan, severely bruised George Barnes, a liveryman of Munich, killed both horses and demolished the cutter. J. T. Connolly, of Fargo, a travelling man, jumped just in time and escaped injury. Newgard was carried for a distance of nearly a half a mile. Barnes was carried half a rod. He was taken to Devils Lake and it is believed he cannot recover. Dr. Sihler was summoned from Devils Lake and accompanied Newgard to the hospital last night.

Had No Warning

The engine was disconnected from a train and sent from Sarles to Munich to get water. The weather was intensely cold and the party did not hear the approach of the engine until it was right upon them. They had depended on trains being run on their schedule time or a little later on the branch.

Connolly passed thru Grand Forks last evening on his way to Fargo. He stated that it was one of the most remarkable escapes from death he has ever witnessed. He had just time to throw himself from the cutter when the horses were run down and the cutter completely demolished.

Engine Crew Did Not Know

The engine crew knew nothing of the accident, Connolly walked to Munich and notified residents. Assistance was sent out and Barnes and Newgard were brought into Munich.

COURT OPENS IN ROSEAU

JUDGE GRINDELAND AND BEVY OF ATTORNEYS WENT UP THIS MORNING

HE HAS TAKEN STAGE ROUTE FOR THE PAST 15 YEARS TILL TODAY

Judge A. Grindeland of Warren arrived i nthe city last evening and left this morning on the Warroad local where he will open the January term of district court.

Judge Grindeland has been going to Roseau County for the past 15 years and this is the first time that he did not have to go by stage. As a result he was rejoicing within himself and stated that if he could not have gone by rail with the thermometer where it stood this morning—28 below that he would have taken the train back for Warren.

Attorneys Wm. J. Brown Julius J. Olsen and Court Reporter W. A. Braggans accompanied him from Warren, and Atty. Wm. P. Murphy went up from this city.

MAY CUT DOWN THE SALOON LIMIT

MOVEMENT STARTED TO REDUCE NUMBER FROM 16 TO 10 AT THIEF RIVER

There is a feeling among the councilmen that Thief River Falls has too many saloons and it is not improbable that an ordinance may be enacted that will reduce the total number from sixteen to ten. As the matter now stands it is pointed out that a number of places have to be run on a somewhat shady basis to make both ends meet, while if the limit was cut, the tandard of all remaining would be raised to where they could run their business in a much cleaner way.

If the ordinance passes the council the license fee will, in all probability be raised from $1,000 to $1,250 annually. It is likely this move would meet with the approval of the liquor men themselves were it not that it is difficult to tell upon whom the ax will fall. Those to survive would be glad to have the others go, but each is afraid he may be one of the elect. It would be a case of the survival of the fittest.—Thief River Press.

Engineer Peter Ferguson has been promoted to traveling engineer on the Great Northern for the Dakota division. Sid Fargo succeeded by Ferguson has been transferred to Devils Lake where he will be master mechanic. Ferguson has served as traveling engineer before and is a good man for the place.

MONEY NOW AVAILABLE

DISBURSING AGENT L. ELLINGTON HAS RECEIVED NOTIFICATION

HAT MONEY IS BEING FORWARDED TO COVER WORK AS IT IS DONE

From Monday's Daily—

L. Ellington who was named as the disbursing agent for the new Federal building which is to be erected here the coming year, to the effect that money will be at once forwarded to be placed on deposit in the Scandia-American bank to cover payments on any and all work done as fast as the payments become due and can be checked on by the proper parties.

The work to be done will result in the putting incirculation of a very large amount of money in Crookston the coming year.

TO OUST THE DINKY CABOOSE

RAILROAD MEN TO MAKE AN EFFORT TO HAVE LAW PASSED

It is said there will be a strong lobby of railroad employes in Bismarck during the legislative session, to agitate the passage of several bills designed to make the work of the railway employes more congenial and safe. One of the provisions of the special act desired will be the abolishment of the "dinky" or four wheeled caboose. There are but a few of these short cabooses in use on the Northern Pacific railway in North Dakota but there are said to be a large number in service on the Great Northern lines.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR COMING YEAR

Henry Diebel, who is well known here and at Grand Forks but who now runs a sash and door factory at Thief River Falls, arrived in the city last evening and is remaining over today visiting with Henry Ebbighausen and other friends. He states that the past year was rather a quiet one in his line of business but that the prospects for the coming spring and summer are much better. He states that there will be a large amount of building at Thief River Falls the coming year and that the business men generally look for a decided increase in business conditions in Northwestern Minn.

WHERE THE TAXES IN MINNESOTA ARE PAID

Judge L. G. Pendergast, Formerly Of Bemdji, Now Custodian Of Old State Capitol Writes On This Subject.

L. G. Pendergast, custodian, old state capitol St. Paul, Minnesota, has written the following communication to George W. Cooley, secretary of the state highway commission, who requested Mr. Pendergast to furnish the communication as given:

"According to request I submit the following proposition for the consideration of your Commission and the people of Minnesota. I have always thought that town, county or state never was the loser by the use of any amount of money honestly expended on roads. I am heartily in accord with you in your endeavors to improve the roads of this state, and not only the making of good roads but for all other internal improvements which will benefit the state at large and be reasonably sure to pay an interest on the investments of at least 4 per cent the amount we pay on our bonded indebtedness.

"When we consider that the United States in the short space of one hundred years has built up a country that is the wonder of the world, and today has an assessed valuation almost as much as the three greatest nations of the earth. We ask how was it all done? The answer is, simply by going in debt and using the money to good advantage. If no improvements have been made until we had the money on hand to pay for the whole, this country would have only a fraction of the wealth that it has today. This was done mainly by the optimists, those who had faith in the future and energy enough to support that faith.

"When De Witt Clinton advocated the building of the New York & Erie canal he was called a visionary, and the conservatives said if he had his way he would put the state of New York hopelessly in debt, and ruin would follow. The canal was built and has been enlarged and improved several times since, and now the state of New York has appropriated $100,000,000 for further improvements on that same canal, yet the state is not a bankrupt, but on the contrary its wealth and population far exceeds any other state of the Union.

"If we accomplish much in the way of internal improvements we must unite together all over the state and each one work for the interest of all parts of this great commonwealth and be willing to grant exact justice to all.

"If the legislature should pass a law allowing the state to bond for the amount, say, $1,000,000 per year for 25 years, bonds to draw interest at the rate of 4 per cent and to run for a period of twenty-five years each, and at the same time allow the several counties to levy a tax for internal improvements, the state to help each county to the same amount as the several counties help themselves. It would be a great public benefit.

"The assessed valuation of Minnesota in 1680 was $258,055,543, and in 1907 (27 years afterwards) the assessed valuation was $1,048,200,485 and this big increase will be greatly augmented in the future.

"The state could well afford to help the several counties in this way, as it receives yearly 4 per cent of the gross income from over 8,000 miles of railroad which the counties do not receive any part of. Also, the United States government has given the state about 4,000,000 acres of land intended for internal improvements.

"In connection with this a board of public works should be created to take charge of the building of all roads that receive help under this act. It would be possible for us to build one thousand miles of roads each year at a cost of $1,000 per mile and have half the money left for other improvements.

"The common schools in the rural districts should be improved so that every scholar could have a chance for high school education. Normal schools should be located wherever needed thruout the state. Wisconsin has a population about the same as Minnesota with less resources, yet Wisconsin supports eight normal schools, while Minnesota has only five. Clearly Wisconsin has too many or Minnesota has too few.

"Let me call your attention to the drainage proposition. In the whole state we have ten million acres of swamp lands, or one-fifth of the whole This land, in its present condition, is practically worthless. With a good system of drainage such as the state engineer, Mr. Ralph, proposes and is now working on, it can be done at an average cost of $1.50 per acre, and when so drained will become the most valuable in the state. In many places roads and drainage can be worked together to good advantage. Last year the state made a ditch thru the Little Fork swamp ten miles long, eighteen feet wide, and six feet deep. The dirt from the ditch was placed on one side which made a passable road the whole distance, the center of the road bed being ten feet above the bottom of the ditch. I am informed that in no place in that ten miles of ditch the cut reaches thru the top soil.

"What would be the cost to the state in taxes for all this? The principal and interest on this would amount to an average payment of $1,000,000 per year for the next fifty years, which would really amount to forty-five cents per capita a year, gradually decreasing to the amount of fifteen to twenty-five cents per capita at the close of the term. Is it not incredible how anyone would object to the payment of this small tax when it accomplished so much? Every mile of the kind of road proposed would immediately increase the value of every acre on each section that it passed thru to the amount of $5.00, besides the saving of time, team and wagon.

"How many people in the older part of the state have an idea that this taxation would be unjust to them, thinking that they pay nearly all the taxes collected. In the minds of some the northern half is a sandy desert and valueless when the timber is removed. Unfortunately this idea exists in the minds of many. Let us examine and see. Draw a line thru the exact center of the state, it would start at Breckenridge, run thru Fergus Falls, ten miles south of Wadena, three miles south of Brainerd, and thru the south part of Aitkin county to the Wisconsin line. The south part includes the Twin Cities and all the large cities of the state, except Duluth. According to the tax report of the State Auditor, for the year 1907 the north half paid almost exactly 35 per cent of the whole. The 1908 statement is not yet out, but enough is known to show that it will be fully 40 per cent. With the increase of wealth, which is likely to come before any of these bonds become due, the north half of the state will pay considerably over half of all the taxes of the state, and will have only one-fourth of the population. You gentlemen in the southern part of the state have the power to tax us as you see fit, spend the money around your homes or in the Twin Cities, and we cannot help it. But is it just? Again the state owns 4,500,000 acres of land all in the north. When the auditor sells $5.00 worth of land he gives us $1.00 and sends the other $4.00 to you. Are you interested with us in that locality There should be no jealousy anywhere, it is for the benefit of all. The country builds up the Twin Cities and the Twin Cities help wonderfully to build up the country.

"Nature has done its share for our state, it remains for us to improve it.

"The whole northern country is underlaid with iron. Already we produce more than 25 per cent of the world's product, and the ground is hardly scratched. We tax the United States Steel Trust on an assessed value of $193,000,000 per year. Is that too much? I saw by the report of the Trust that for a quarter ending October 1, 1908 it paid a dividend of $27,000,000 which would amount to $108,000,000 per year or 9 per cent on all its stock, water included. Our country right here makes this dividend possible. The iron tax must increase to keep pace with the business of the steel trust.

"Let us all work together for the upbuilding of our state and make it what nature intended it to be, the brightest star on the flag of the American Union."

"Very truly"

"—L. G. Pendergast."

LEFT BABE WITH MRS. BEN OLSON

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN WHO CAME FROM THE WEST LEFT BABE HERE SATURDAY EVENING—MRS. BEN OLSON STILL HAS THE LITTLE ONE AND WILL LOOK AFTER IT

From Monday's Daily—

Mrs. Ben Olson daughter of Louis Johnson residing west of the city has a little baby boy on her hands left to her supposedly by the mother of the little one last Saturday in a most peculiar manner.

Mrs. Olson and her two children arrived in the city last Saturday evening from Spokane, Wash. Having prior to that time resided at Tacoma where Mr. Olson worked in the Tacoma hotel.

She came from the west over the Great Northern but Saturday evening to make close connection she transferred to the N. P. at Grand Forks and paid her fare from there here.

Just about the time the train arrived in Crookston she states that a woman dressed in a blue suit gave her a little baby telling her to take it to the Palace Hotel in a hack and that she (the mother) would follow to the hotel in the bus with her grips.

Mrs. Olson went to the hotel, but the mother of the little one failed to show up and she has seen nothing of her since. The matter has been reported to Chief Eck, and he has been working on the case ever since, and there are some features that may be reported later that will make something of a sensation.

Mrs. Olson left here about three years ago to join her husband in the west. He was formerly employed by the Crookston Lumber Co., in this city as a filer.

Local officials when interviewed this afternoon regarding the case stated that the mother of the child had been located and that there would be some developments in the case in the very near future.

LOSS TOTAL ON BROOM FACTORY

CARPENTER BROOM WORKS IS DESTROYED BY AN EARLY MORNING BLAZE

LOSS ON BUILDING MACHINERY AND STOCK IS ABOUT $2,000

From Monday's Daily—

The Carpenter Broom Works factory at Grand Forks was destroyed by fire yesterday morning about 5 o'clock The loss is $2000 and there was no insurance. The firm has another building on the same lot and they have made arrangements to continue the business without delay. The building was a two story frame structure.

The firm has employed from four to eight men and has a very good business in Grand Forks. The merchants of the city were very loyal and sold the home product.

The factory is of value to Grand Forks and citizens will be glad to know that it will be continued.

THIRD JUDGE FOR BELTRAMI DISTRICT

JUDGE STANTON MAY BE RETAINED IF THIRD JUDGESHIP IS CREATED

Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji, appointed in the fifteenth district to fill a vacancy, but defeated at the general election in a close contest may remain on the bench after all. There is a movement among the members of the legislature from that district to create another judgeship. Should that be done Governor Johnson would have the naming of the judge, and would again appoint judge Stanton. The district covers an immense area and has a heavy calendar considering its small population. — Minneapolis Journal.

PARIS GREEN TO POISON A HORSE

JOSEPH KALCIK NOW FUGITIVE FROM POLICE FOR KILLING LISTON'S HORSE

MALICE OVER LAW SUIT ENDS IN FORMER EMPLOYE POISONING HORSE

From Tuesday's Dully—

That the horse belonging to Mike Liston a gardener residing on the Minnesota point, in Wsetern Polk Co., and which was found dead in the barn on Saturday, was poisoned was established yesterday in an examination conducted by Dr. J. F. Davidson, of Grand Forks, who was called by the Minnesota authorities. Dr. Davidson found evidence of eight ounces of Paris green in the stomach of the dead animal and it was later found that a certain Joseph Kalcik who was employed by Liston last spring had purchased two packages of the poison of a quarter of a pound each the day before at Schlaberg & Griffin's drug store.

The circumstances surrounding the death of the horse made Mr. Liston suspicious and he immediately began a preliminary investigation. Several people had seen Kalcik hanging around the Liston barn on Saturday and it was found that he had secured some Paris Green. These suspicions let Liston to swear out a warrant for Kalcik's arrest, but when it came to serving the warrant it was found that Kalcik had taken the eastbound train, apparently after he poisoned the horse The police are now on his trail, however and it is expected that a few days will see him in the toils of the law.

The motive for Kalcik's act was evidently anger over a law suit for wages instituted by Kalcik against Liston, altho Kalcik won the suit.

GRAFT IN HIGH PLACES

THEORY WAS THAT HE MIGHT BE INTERESTED IN OREGON "LAND GRAB."

SENATOR TILLMAN HAS LITTLE TO SAY BUT WILL LIKELY TALK IN SENATE.

Washington, Jan. 9, —by the direction of President Roosevelt, secret service men shadowed Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, on the theory that he possibly was interested in an Oregon "land grab," and the result of that investigation is now before the senate.

The information was contained in a communication from President Roosevelt sent in response to a request made by Senator Hale to the heads of the executive departments for a statement of the activity of secret service operatives. Exhaustive replies were made by the various departments and all of these were forwarded to Senator Hale by the president. They have not been made public, and Senator Hale announced that they would not be given out until after they had been considered by a sub committee of the committee on appropriations, which will be charged with the duty of acting upon that portion of the president's annual message relating to the secret service and criticising members of congress for their restriction of its use.

Much Curiosity.

Soon after President Roosevelt's communication to Senator Hale was received at the capitol yesterday, it became noised about that it contained a reflection upon a senator from a southern state. The name of the senator in question was not divulged for a time and as a result the atmosphere of the senate was surcharged with curiosity and much speculation. When it finally became known that Senator Tillman was the member named, further efforts to procure information concerning the character of the charges were made, but they were without avail. Through the fact that several senators had advance information of the character of the report which was to be sent to the senate, it was learned that the investigation of Senator Tillman followed an attack which he made in the senate nearly a year ago upon an Oregon land company in which he used his name as one of the persons interested in the concern. Previous to the attack Senator Tillman had introduced a resolution directing the attorney general to prosecute suits against the Oregon railroad corporation which had received land grants in the late sixties for a line from a California point to Portland, Oregon. Mr. Tillman had said that the use of his name was without authority and as a result, it is declared, that several persons interested in the land grants became angered. Some of the interested parties are reported to have sent to President Roosevelt copies of letters alleged to have been written by Senator Tillmana, indicating that he had an interest in one of the land companies which would be benefitted through the land companies obtaining possession of the grants in question. After receiving this information it is said a secret service operative was directed to investigate the part Senator Tillman was alleged to have taken in the land cases.

Tillman Will Answer.

The report sent to the senate is understood to contain an account of the investigation of Senator Tillman. It it known that the secret service prepared photographic copies of Senator Tillman's correspondence, but whether these exhibits were sent to Senator Hale is not known.

Senator Tillman was not aware of the fact that his name figured in the report until late in the day. He then took pains to assure himself that the reports concerning the mention of himself were well-founded, but he refused to comment upon the fact further than to say that he would not make any statement until the fact of the use of his name had been officially promulgated, when he would address himself to the subject from his seat in the senate. It is known, however, that Mr. Tillman regards the mention of his name as an attack upon himself by the president and he has indicated to his friends that he will not mince matters in his reply. He also has declared to those with whom he has conversed that he would welcome the opportunity to express his views and explain the situation.

ROOSEVELT DISR'PECTF'L

SPECIAL MESSAGE CHARACTERIZED AS DISRESPECTFUL AND UNRESPONSIVE.

AND WILL RECOMMEND TABLING OF SPECIAL MESSAGE SECTION OF OTHER.

Washington, Jan. 9—As disrespectful and unresponsive to the inquiry of the house, the Perkins committee, when it reports tomorrow, will recomment that President Roosevelt's secret service message of January 4, be placed on the table. A similar request will be made for the tabling of that portion of the president's message relating to the secret service on the ground that it reflects upon the integrity of the members of the house.

The special committee concluded its consideration of the message today, and drafted its report, which will be presented by Representative Perkins, of New York. Ahe unusual and extreme course advised by the committee—that of declining to consider any communication from any source which in the judgment of the house is not respectful is likely to create a sensation when it is read.

The report of the committee will include the paragraph of the president's message which refers to the secret service and suggests that the reason congress restricted its use was because the members of congress themselves did not wish to be investigated.

This will be followed by an excerpt from the message of Jan. 4, in response to the request made by the house of an explanation of the language made by the president, which had been interpreted by the house as a reflection upon the integrity of its membership. After setting forth the statement of the president that the house had failed to understand him in the message, the report of the special committee will say that the language itself will be judged according to the accepted interpretations of the English language. That the house is charged only with its responsibility to the people and to preserve its own dignity, will be asserted with great force and if the report is adopted, the house will insist on its own capacity to understand the president's language. It was asserted that the language in question was unjustified and without the basis of fact and that it constituted a breach of the privileges of the house. For that reason the special committee will ask to be discharged from further consideration of the president's message which refers to the secret service and will recommend that it, together with the subsequent message of the president in reply to the house demand for an explanation, be laid upon the table as being unresponsive and constituting an invasion of the privileges of the house by questioning the motives and intelligence of the member.

The Collies and Amen.

I once witnessed a phase of prompt evolution of practical and of devotional religion in Scotch sheep dogs on a communion Sabbath among the mountains. The churchyard was crowded with shepherds, accompanied by their dogs, which lay quietly asleep at the feet of their masters. The sermon was finished, the psalm had been sung, the final prayer was being offered, and there was no sign of impatience, but the moment the benediction commenced the devotional doggies all roused themselves, and before the "Amen" they were in marching order.—"Newman Hall—An Autobiography."

One of the real reasons of divorce of interest between men and women of this country is that women do not take an interest in their husband's business. Business bores most American women. We are too idealistic and too intellectual to care for its sordid details. Business does more than bore us; sooner or later the average woman grows to dislike business, and for a good reason, it is her rival in her husband's interest and affections, says the writer of an article entitled "The Inconsequential American Woman," in the January Appleton's. America is full of sad-eyed and well-dressed women who complain that their husbands are so "absorbed by business" that they have no interest left for anything else. If you were to suggest to these women that they had once been given a chance to share in their husband's lives they would stare at you in surprise. It would be useless to tell such a woman that she might have been a consulting partner in her husband's cares had she wished. To this she has the reply, "Man ought to leave his business cares in his office." This is, a man's brain should be neatly divided into two parts; he should be able to switch off the thoughts which have occupied his business hours the way in which one extinguishes an electric light. He should at the same moment switch on the other half of his brain where should burn brightly with affection for his wife, love of amusement and desire for that kind of relaxation which his wife enjoys. The great majority of men have been made to believe that they should "not bring business home," so great is the power of a reiterated suggestion. They actually think that it would not please them to have had their wives taken an intelligent interest in their pressing affairs.

There probably is nothing that is more annoying and distressing than a child that is constantly crying for one thing or another. It shows lack of discipline in the bringing up, and it should be corrected before it gets too firm a hold on the child. Even a young child soon learns that he only has to cry for a thing to get it, and almost before the mother realizes it the child has formed the habit of crying for everything and is making itself a nuisance to every one. The best and most effective way to cure this habit is to let the baby cry until he realizes that he is not going to get what he is crying for. He will soon stop when he sees that his crying is no avail. It will only take several days, or, at the most, a week, to break the habit if the mother is determined not to give in. If the child cries extremely hard the first few times he is denied anything, put him in a room by himself to cry it out alone.

BETTER BANK EXAMINATION IS NEEDED, SAYS PRESIDENT OF STATE ASSOCIATION

ENTHUSIASTIC SUPPORT FOR JOHNSON'S SUGGESTION OF A SEPARATE DEPARTMENT

Minneapolis, Jan. 8.—In the words of Joseph Chapman, Jr., president of the Minnesota Bankers' association, the burden of poor banking in Minnesota must be laid on the legislature and not the bankers, if the legislature does not follow out Governor Johnson's suggestion in his message of a separate department for bank examination. Mr. Chapman believes provision for better bank examinations in the state is a better and more legitimate form of deposit insurance than the proposed state insurance of bank deposits such as in force in Oklahoma.

The paragraph in Governor Johnson's message in which he urges careful consideration by the legislature of a banking department has the enthusiastic approval of the bankers in the state, both national and state. The governor quoted in full the resolution passed at the July meeting of the Minnesota Bankers' association asking for a bank superintendent and for a sufficient appropriation to enable him to do his work thoroughly.

Gross Approves.

F. A. Gross, president of the German-American bank, said today that the suggestion is a good thing and that the necessity for such a department is generally recognized. The superintendent, he said, should be a practical banker, and his salary should be large. "It would be impossible to get a capable man to accept such a position at a small salary with the possibility of being thrown out at the end of his term," said Mr. Gross today, "and it would be ridiculous for a man getting a $4,500 salary to try to superintend men who get a good deal more than that."

Mr. Chapman said: "The banking fraternity approves of Governor Johnson's suggestion. It's a move for the protection of depositors. That's all there is to it. Members of the state association who know the conditions, made the suggestion that the banks are not examined enough and cannot be, under the present system. They want the Minnesota banking department put on the same basis as that of New York and of Wisconsin. The plan will have the support of all the bankers of the state.

"The resolutions passed at the state convention at Duluth show where the bankers do not believe in unjust or unscientific method of guarantee of bank deposits, but they want everything done to that end so far as possible in a legitimate way. If this is not done the burden must be passed on to the legislature for poor banking and not on to the bankers."

The Alternative.

This thing of brass is here;
These things of stone abide.
These blocks of marble rear
Their cold and sculptured pride.

These things of wroughten steel,
Of centuries long dead,
Their presence still reveal
Despite the ages sped.

Impassionate and still,
Insensate all are they;
Untouched by joy or ill
As lifeless mortal clay.

Durst say 'tis Nature's plan
That these shall live for ay,
The while the soul of man
Alone shall sink and die?—

The soul of man that breathes,
And strives with godlike might;
The soul that loves, and wreathes
The world in bays of light?

Durst say that this is truth
Then better far that we
Give up the dreams of youth,
And stone and iron be!

From time to time the charge is made that American women spend too much on dress. The extravagance of our sisters, wives and sweethearts is supposed to be leading us somewhere—notably, we think, in the case of the last named, to the altar. Recently the wife of a British consul engaged in the social life of the East charged that the whole panic of 1907 was brought about by the extravagance of American wives. This is "going some" for wifely extravagance, but the truth is that American wives and American women generally are not more extravagant than those of any other nation—certainly not more so than the local conditions warrant.

Cherishing the memory of slights and injuries is like filling the pillow with thorns.

GEORGE ROBERTS IS TRUANT OFFICER

At a meeting of the board of education yesterday it was decided to take advantage of the provisions of the compulsory education law of the state and appoint a truancy officer for the local schools. The board at once named George Roberts, a man whom public opinion will approve.

The action of the board should meet with the commendation of every citizen, inasmuch as it will assist materially in keeping the attendance of the schools to the highest limit and at the same time will result in an increase in attendance. There is no doubt but that quite a few children are not attending school in Crookston who should be enrolled, and it will be a part of Mr. Roberts' duty to round these up and compel them to attend.

Following is the state law relative to compulsory education:

Compulsory Education.

Sec. 1445.—Children to be sent to school. Every person having under his control a child between the age of eight and sixteen years shall send him to some school in which the common English branches are taught during the entire time the public schools of the district in which he lives are taught, unless such attendance is excused in whole or in part by the school board or board of education of such district, as hereinafter provided. ('99 c. 226 s. 1.)

See 1905 c. 265.

Sec. 1446. — Excusing attendance. Such board may excuse such attendance when satisfied—

1. That the child is in such bodily or mental condition as to prevent his attendance at school or application to study for the period required.
2. That he is properly taught at home or elsewhere in the common branches.
3. That he has already acquired such branches.
4. That he is engaged in some useful occupation.
5. That there is no public school within reasonable distance of his residence.
6. That such person is unable, on account of poverty, to properly clothe such child. ('99 c. 226 s. 1.)

Sec. 1447.—Duties of chairman. The chairman of each school board shall investigate all cases of violation of the provisions of Secs. 1445, 1446, and secure prosecutions therefor when proper. Any such officer neglecting to secure such prosecution within ten days after service on him by any taxpayer of the district of written notice of such offense, unless the person complained of is legally excused, shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty dollars nor more than fifty dollars. (3780)

Sec. 1448. — Truant officers. The board of any district may appoint and remove at pleasure truant officers, who shall investigate all cases of truancy or non-attendance at school, make complaints, serve notices and process, and attend to the enforcement of all laws and school regulations respecting turant, incorrigible and disorderly children, and school attendance. Whenever any truant officer learns of any case of habitual truancy or continued non-attendance of any child hereby required to attend school, he shall immediately notify the person having control of such a child to forthwith send to and keep him in school. He may arrest without warrant and take to school any such child, and shall act under the general supervision of the board, or, when directed by the board, under that of the city or district superintendent. Such officers shall receive a salary by the board appointing them, but no fees. ('99 c.226 s. 2; '01 c. 156.)

Sec. 1449. — Truant schools. Such board may maintain ungraded schools for the instruction of children of the following classes, between eight and sixteen years of age:

1. Habitual truants.
2. Those incorrigible, vicious or immoral in conduct.
3. Those who habitually wanders about the streets or other public places during school hours, without lawful employment.

All such children shall be deemed disorderly, and the board may compel their attendance at such truant school or any department of the public schools, as the board may determine. ('99 c. 226 s. 3.)

Sec. 1450. — Commitment to state training school. Whenever the board determines that the foregoing provisions have been found inadequate to secure the attendance at school of any such disorderly child, or that he is beyond proper control in the truant or other school to which he has been assigned, it shall direct the truant officer to make complaint to a court or magistrate having jurisdiction over misdemeanors in such district or city. Such court or magistrate shall thereupon issue a warrant for the arrest of such child, and proceed to a hearing on such complaint, and if, upon such hearing, the court or magistrate shall decide that such child is disorderly and beyond the proper control of the schools of the district, and under sixteen years of age, he shall sentence him to the state training school, but in case of a first conviction, the court, in its discretion, may suspend the sentence. ('99 c. 226 s. 4; '01 c. 156 s. 2.)

Sec. 1451. — Penalty. Any person who shall fail or refuse to send to or keep in school any child of whom he has legal charge or control, and who is required by law to attend school, when notified by a truant officer to do so, and any person who induces or attempts to induce any such child unlawfully to absent himself from school, or who knowingly harbors or employs while school is in session, any child unlawfully absent from school, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not to exceed fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than thirty days. All such fines, when collected, shall be paid into the county treasury for the benefit of the school district in which such offense is committed. ('99 c. 226 s. 5; '01 c. 156 s. 2.)

St. Peter Free Press: Medical inspection of public schools in Minneapolis has brought out the astounding fact that out of 1410 pupils examined 63 percent were found with symptoms of waste and disease from improper nourishment and in need of a physician's attention. If the word "baker's" had been substituted for "physician's" it would have been more to the point. Want of food and insufficient clothing is probably the main cause of disease with children of school age, and no amount of medical attention can overcome it. To the medical inspection however is due the discovery of this deplorable state of condition, and it should be extended to every city school in the state.

[illegible] Woman Suffered With Itching, Burning Rash—Drove Her Nearly Crazy—Her Baby Had Sore on Neck, and Two Other Babies Had Skin Troubles—Calls

CUTICURA A STAND-BY THAT NEVER FAILS HER

"I just can't say enough for the Cuticura Remedies, I can't find words high enough to express my thanks to God for hearing of the wonderful remedies. My baby had a running sore on his neck and nothing that I did for it took effect until I used Cuticura. My face was nearly full of tetter or some similar skin disease. It would itch and, after scratching, it burned so that I could hardly stand it. Two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment cured me. Two years after it broke out on my hands and wrist. I cured it for a while, but it came again in the summer. Sometimes I would go nearly crazy for it itched so badly. I used ten dollars' worth of so-called blood medicines which did no good at all, then I went back to my old stand-by, that had never failed me. One set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent did the work. One set also cured my uncle's baby whose head was a cake of sores, and I know of another woman's baby who was in the same fix and nothing else did any good. I speak a word of praise for Cuticura whenever I see a case that needs it. Mrs. Lillie Wilcher, 770 Eleventh St., Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 16, 1907."

There are fashions in note paper and calling cards, jusct as in everything else, and the knowledge of these same fashions stamps a person as "well bred."

The cards all favor the almost square sizes. The smallest are 2 1-8 by 2 1-8 inches while the largest are 3 1-4 by 2 1-4. The name in script is always popular and in good style and best of all, quite reasonable, but the old English has stood and probably always will stand at the head for style lettering visiting cards.

The old English shaded letter is, then, the style par excellence for visiting cards, and it is also by far the most expensive. The address should now be in the right hand corner, and if one lives in the city, only street and number required. If in the suburbs the town is added. If a reception day is desired, it should be placed in the left-hand corner.

The Roman letter is sometimes used on a visiting card, but seldom unless the name is unusual in spelling, and greater legibility is desired. For a business card, nothing is in better taste than the Roman letter.

Men's cards are 2 1-2 by 1 1-2 and the same style of type as for women is usually used. No address is ever given unless the cards are to be used when traveling or when a man lives at a club.

The following taken from the Todd County Argus applies to every paper published in the United States:

"Our correspondents are requested not to mention in their news letters, the successful holder of a ticket in a raffle or lottery drawing of any kind The law forbids a paper to advertise in any way, a raffle or drawing of any kind, either directly or by giving the name of the successful ticket holder. We have cut out several such advertisements and write this to explain why it was done.

"The postoffice department has been more strict in enforcing this anti-lottery law of late more than formerly, and a single line in some correspondent's letter might render the whole edition of the paper unmailable. It appears as tho this is carrying the anti-lottery opposition to extremes as no one loses much in the average raffle, where tickets are oftener ten cents than more, but the principal, underlying the raffle is the same as that of the old Louisiana lottery into whose coffers, the people poured their earnings by millions, and that powerful institution with its corrupting influence, could not be suppressed without hitting other and similar games of chance."

Alexandria Post-News: The Republican press agitating the repeal of the primary election law should stop and consider the possible result of the last three state elections had the primary law been applied to the nomination of state candidates. Any one of the three defeated candidates would have been stronger with the people if nominated in a primary election.

SHOWING IS EXCELLENT

QUARTERLY REPORT OF MUNICIPAL COURT FILED WITH CITY CLERK TODAY

NEARLY $1,000 HAS BEEN TURNED INTO THE CITY TREASURY IN THREE MONTHS

From Thursday's Daily—

The first quarterly report from the Municipal Court was filed with City Clerk Childs today by Clerk N. B. Moran, and the showing is one which will cause general surprise of the pleasing character as during the past three months the revenue to the city from that court has reached almost 1,000. When the court was established there was some doubt as to whether it would be self sustaining or not, but the report just filed leaves no doubt that the court will be a paying proposition to the city. The report speaks for itself and is as follows:

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 1st, 1909.

To the President and Members of the City Council, of the City of Crookston Minnesota.

Gentlemen:—

Pursuant to your resolution passed at the time of the establishment of the Municipal Court of Crookston requiring a summary report of the fines and fees of the court collected or due for the past year I herewith submit the following report for that portion of the year from the time the court was organized on the 3rd day of October, 1908 to the 31st day of December, 1908.

Fines, costs and fees assessed and collected in civil and criminal cases and turned into city treasury	$ 779.74
Fines and fees taxed against defendants in criminal prosecutions under the city ordinances and which were not paid by or collectable from the defendants, and which are not payable by the city under the salary system of the court officers	161.20
Total fines and fees of the court paid together with fees earned and not paid by defendants who were committed in default of payment	940.94
Witness fees and officer's fees colected by the court and paid out on order of the witnesses and officers..	147.09
Total cash collected and paid into city treasury or paid to witnesses and officers serving papers	$ 926.53

Respectfully submitted,
—Nicholas B. Moran,
Clerk Municipal Court.

State of Minnesota, County of Polk, —ss.

N. B. Moran being first duly sworn says that he is the clerk of the Municipal Court of Crookston; that the foregoing statement is true and correct.

—Nicholas B. Moran.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 7th day of January, 1909.

My commission expires Dec. 30, 1911.

Madison Independent-Press: At last the Seventh congressional district has scored in the matter of a state institution, and Kandiyohi county is the scorer. That county has captured the state inebriate farm, the "Boozer's Bungalow," the Willmar Republican calls it. It has taken the state board of control two years to locate home for drunks which it has done by select ing 345 acres of land two miles north of Willmar in Kandiyohi county. Ye gods and "little fishes", Kandiyohi at one time an aspirant for the state capital, gets a jag shop! That is like running for president and getting poundmaster. But, joking aside, there is no better place in the state for a home for these self-made unfortunates Pure air, pure water, pure surroundings, a community that believes that the making of drunkards is wrong to begin with, what better could be asked? The home is supported by a 2 per cent tax upon all moneys received from saloon licenses issued thruout the state—but the cash spent for whisky by these unfortunates is a burden still.

He points out the connection between education and health and recommends medical inspection of the school population.

FOUND DEAD IN HER BED

THOMAS JARVIS OF EAST GRAND FORKS HAD A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

CORONER STENSHOEL CALLED AND FOUND DEATH DUE TO NATURAL CAUSES

Coroner Stenshoel returned last evening from East Grand Forks where he was called yesterday to investigate the death of Mrs. Thomas Jarvis who was found dead in bed beside her husband when he awoke yesterday morning.

No inquest was considered necessary after an autopsy was held by Doctors Witherstine and O'Keefe, of Grand Forks, and Dr. Wilson of East Grand Forks. The doctors found that death was due to natural causes—enlargement of the heart and kidney trouble.

Mrs. Jarvis has been ailing for some time but when she retired Monday evening was feeling no worse than usual. The deceased was formerly Miss L. Olson, and has a wide circle of friends.

Too Much Hysteria

To the ordinary everyday citizen constituents of the house of represent atives it looks as tho the house has already overdone its hysterical reception of the president's criticisms upon the secret service. It is time to be sensible. It is hard to believe the report of yesterday that the house is planning to expunge from its record that portion of the president's record relating to the secret service. This would make the house still more ridiculous and it has already made itself ridiculous enough. The house cannot expunge the president's criticisms from the public mind and whatever virtue there may be on the side of congress in this matter it is certain that the country will uphold the president in his declaration that the action of the secret service can benefit no one but criminals. Congress should at once recede from its peculiar position or give the country some more reasonable explanation than it has attempted. The country has no disposition to judge the congress unheard but it is impatient of so much hysteria and so little sensible discussion of the matter in the house of representatives.—Duluth Herald.

The political tangle in Ohio has untangled itself betimes and nicely. Next week Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland will be elected to the senate. Probably, as far as the Republican legislators are concerned his election will be of the unanimous kind The Democratic brethren who were looking forward gleefully to an old-fashioned Ohio shindy—personal and factional—get nothing out of the situation but a disappointment, says the Grand Forks Times.

A few days ago half a dozen gentle men were competing for the senatorship; others of the "receptive" turn of mind, were visible on the sidelines. Today Mr. Burton has, practically, a clear track, the lieutenant governor person being a negligible quantity. First C. P. Taft, took himself out of Mr. Burton's way. He explained in his candid statement that he put aside an ambition cherished for many years rather than risk the harmony and wel fare of his party. Then Governor Harris over whom Judson Harmon prevailed November 3, and the immemorial Keifer took themselves out of Mr. Burton's way. Then a few hours later Mr. Foraker pulled out, with a final grimace at the Cincinnati candidate and organization and a handsome compliment for Mr. Burton, whom he pronounces well qualified for the senatorship by experience, ability and character. Mr. Foraker admitted in his published statement that his own re-election to the senatorship looked impossible. It has looked extremely problematical ever since his break with President Roosevelt. His last living chance vanished when he listed in the senatorial cabal against his fellow-Ohioan and fellow-Cincinnatian, William Howard Taft.

Mr. Burton has earned his promotion to the senate twice over. He will be a useful, valuable senator, as he would have been an excellent secretary of the treasury. It may be said of him that he has more information and shrewd, practical intelligence where business banking, currency and finance are concerned than any dozen of the younger men in the senate, and measures well up to the best of the seniors. As a senator he should be able to block some of the wasteful, extravagant "amendments" with which that body is sometimes moved to load the house's river and harbor bills.

COMMITTEE IS NAMED

BY PRESIDENT MISNER OF THE CROOKSTON COMMERCIAL CLUB

TO CO-OPERATE WITH SCHOOL BOARD FOR LINCOLN DAY CELEBRATION

President Misner of the Commercial Club was authorized to appoint a committee to co-operate with the board of education in planning for an appropriate celebration for the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln has today announced the committee as follows:

Chairman, J. W Wheeler; G. S. Chesterman, W. A. Marin. The outline of the celebration was given to the board by Superintendent E. E. McIntyre at the board meeting and it contemplates a program which will take practically the whole day, February 12. The idea is to have exercises by the school children, singing, recitations, prize essays, etc.; an address by an outside speaker of reputation and importance and other exercises of an appropriate nature.

The entire program will relate to the martyred president and will be of the greatest interest to every citizen. It is expected that the project will be taken up at the next meeting of the board of education and that body will appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the committee appointed by President Misner.

Similar exercises will be held in all sections of the United States and in some cities the program will be a most elaborate one. Chicago, New York Philadelphia and other of the larger cities will make the anniversary one of the most important days of the year. The board of directors of the commercial club believes that Crookston cannot afford to permit the to pass without a celebration which will be commensurate with the importance of the city in this section of the northwest.

CUT THIS OUT AND SAVE IT

SAYS MANY CAN BE MADE HAPPY AGAIN BY PRESCRIPTION GIVEN

TELLS HOW ANY ONE CAN PREPARE SIMPLE HOME MADE MIXTURE

There is so much Rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice will be highly appreciated by those who suffer.

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion one ounce Compound Kargon. three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

President Roosevelt in his special message to congress on the secret service used this language:

Of course, the more efficient an instrument is, the more dangerous it is, if misused. To the argument that a force like this can be misused, it is only necessary to answer that the condition of its usefulness, if handled properly, is that it shall be so efficient as to be dangerous if handled improperly.

The point could not be more succinctly expressed. Nevertheless, we doubt whether President Roosevelt, who makes the point, himself realizes its full import.

He realizes that the secret service as he would have it constituted, may easily become a terrible engine of discrimination and oppression. What he seems not to realize is that chances are that it would more often be "handled improperly" than "handled properly" such is human nature, such is the irresistibility of temptation to the majority of men who attain power, such is the likilhood of official carelessness or mismanagement, which may result as evilly as active official malevolence.

Thomas Jefferson's mind would have been open to the consideration of these chances, even if so positive a mind as Theodore Roosevelt's is not. Representative republican government is not the most efficient or economical in the world but in the long run it averages best. And that best average is achieved because republican government avoids the abuses of monarchical or oligarchic institutions not mainly because of the peculiar excellences of democratic administration

If Bismarcks could be succeeded by Bismarcks ad infinitum; if Marcus Aureliuses always could be emperors of the earth, benevolent despotisms would leave democracies at the post. But Bismarcks are succeeded by kaisers, and Marcus Aureliuses by dissolute sons, and, therefore, a despotism is a most hazardous system.

What President Roosevelt proposes is to arm the chief executive with an irresponsible power. It may be taken for granted that such power will be "handled properly" by this president. But there is no guaranty that his successors will all prove as vigilant, as honest as intelligent as himself. Jefferson would say that the probability amounts to a certainty that they will not.

Therefore congress, while responsive to the needs of justice is justified in scrutinizing the program of the secret service with jealous suspicion.

Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. The American people, in order to secure the conviction of one more landgrabber or corruptionist, should not be induced to barter away the guaranty of their personal and civil liberties. The American people should not consent to, the creation of a Frankenstein who may become too strong for them.—Minneapolis Journal.

Get Together---Then Stick

Unless all signs fail, Crookston is entering upon the most important period of her existence one fraught with most vital movements. A city the size of Crookston cannot stand still. Unless we are forging ahead we are going backwards.

Thus at this particular time it was never more necessary to have every business interest stand together, presenting a solid front for a better and bigger Crookston. If this is done there is no question as to the progress that will be made the coming year.

When it comes to matters that vitally effect the future of the city there should be no petty bickerings. There should not be the slightest business jealousy exhibited, but rather everyone should rejoice the more in the prosperity of others. Business men must prosper or our city cannot prosper, and every citizen is interested in the prosperity of every business interest. Business failures hardly make toward a prosperous city. Prosperity is something enjoyed jointly by a community.

Where any proposition comes up, therefore, which is vital to the progress of the city, there should be a solid front. All classes and conditions should stand shoulder to shoulder, fighting for Crookston first last and all the time. If this is done no power outside a clamigy can prevent Crookston forging ahead. All conditions are ripe for such progress.

The opportunity is here. If we fail to embrace it, we will have no one to blame but ourselves.

The President's Salary

The senate finance committee has reported favorably a bill making the president's salary $100,000 a year and it is believed it will pass, so that Mr. Taft will get the benefit of it, says the Minneapolis Journal.

This movement is the natural sequel of the practical doubling of the salaries of members of congress and members of the cabinet. The president now has $50,000 a year, but he has more than that in fact, in the provision of many things which a citizen in any other office would have to provide for himself. The president's stables are partly provided by the government. His table is partly furnished, and the government pays for some of his servants. In addition congress has made a liberal appropriation for his traveling expenses.

But the development of social life in Washington has been such that the president can do less on $50,000 a year than his predecessors could do on half the sum. The increasing complexity of the social life of the city is something that the president cannot ignore. He must do for foreign ambassadors what is done for them in other coun- The increase would enable the president to do the nation's entertaining without feeling that he was being imposed upon to stand personally the expense of something that belonged rightfully to his country to do.

The Better Way

The state of Minnesota will do well to develop its resources upon the iron ranges for its permanent enrichment instead of attempting to find ways to exploit the ranges and their people for its temporary profit, says the Duluth Herald very advisedly.

The report of the state auditor points out the better way. Mr. Iverson declares that there are 114,575,398 tons of ore in sight upon state lands, that future development will probably disclose additional deposits of great magnitude upon the state lands, that the state's revenue from state mineral leases, principally in St. Louis county, during the past two years has been 432,032.71 and that it will not be long before the state's annual income from its ore lands will exceed $1,000,000 per year.

These are startling facts but they are only a part of the facts. Mr. Iverson's statements are not exaggerated; according to experienced mining men they are in fact far too modest. Mining men declare that there are known deposits of more than 150,000,000 tons of ore upon state lands and they are confident that the development work of the next few years will show a tonnage belonging to the state that will make these figures seem insignificant. The ore now known to exist on state lands is estimated to be worth $30,000,000 and it is exceedingly probable that exploration work will eventually multiply Minnesota's assets in iron ore several times.

With so valuable a property in possession and with such rich prospects in store, how urgent is the need for Minnesota to devote itself to a systematic, intelligent development of its mineral resources. Has the legislature thought seriously of this matter, or has it been so busy with plans to mulct the people of the iron ranges for all the expenses of the state that it has not had time to care for the state's valuable property. The care and development of mineral wealth requires a peculiar knowledge and an experienced management and Minnesota's property in iron ore has grown so great that it can no longer be properly managed with such care as the state auditor may be able to give it in the ordinary administration of the affairs of his office. Instead of attempting to enrich itself by means of a system of taxation which has been rejected by every other state as impractical and unjust, Minnesota ought to be giving thought to the conservation and development of the wealth that it has a wealth so great that it may in the end be made to bear the total burden of state taxation. That were the better way.

Future State Contests Impossible

As the decision of the supreme court on the tax amendment is studied it is evident that no state-wide contest of an election is hereafter possible. It is specifically held that that correctness of the vote as returns "could be determined only by a recount of the entire vote or of such a proportion thereof that even if all the remaining votes were counted one way it could not effect the result."

The court apparently had to hold this in order to decide as it did. Otherwise it would not have been possible that when a contestant carries a recount far enough to overcome the majority returned against him then the burden shifts upon the contestee to continue the recount. This has been the invariable rule heretofore.

Cases are familiar to every one where the contestant has attacked the returns in but one or two precincts or even certain specific votes as cast. If upheld in his contention as to those votes or precincts, and their rejection or recount showed the contestant as having a majority it then was incumbent upon the contestee to either push the investigation farther or surrender. A contestee also always protected himself in this regard by challenging the entire vote, where the contestant merely singled out special precincts.

But all of this is changed now, as the supreme court holds that the burden of proof is never shifted from the contestant until if every vote not recounted is credited to his opponent, still he (the contestant) would have a majority. With all due respect to the court and with no reflection upon their sincerity, integrity and high purpose, it would be hard to conceive a more absurd situation.

The Minneapolis Journal indicates the atmospheric conditions of the Twin Cities' influences in its comment: "The supreme court now declines to overthrow a result, entirely regular upon its face, because of an assumed but as yet unestablished probability of error. And as the other returns have now been destroyed, a complete recanvass is impossible."

All of which must have been written either by a child or a knave; but it serves to illustrate how utterly impossible a complete state-wide recount as at any time as when this partial recount was made and it included over half the vote cast, the ballots in several counties was found to have already been more or less destroyed.

Under the decision a contest of a county election may still be possible but a state election never. It is in its actual effect tho of course not in its intention, notice to political tricksters and grafters that a state election gained or a state measure adopted on the face of the returns, no matter by what fraud or process of corruption, it must stand.

The $29,240,000 Fine Is Dead

The significance of the supreme court's refusal of a writ of certiorari in the Standard Oil case is that the government is limited, in case of another conviction, to a minimum penalty of $720,000 and to a maximum fine of $40,000,000 in case of conviction on all the indictments pending. The decision compels a new trial of the action, and the admission of some testimony claimed by the company to have been wrongfully excluded by Judge Landis. Thirdly, it compels the use of the number of settlements made with the railroads as the basis of computing fines, rather than the number of carloads shipped, says the Minneapolis Journal.

This last is probably the most important result of the litigation so far as the company is concerned. It is reassured upon the possibility of being mulcted in excessive fines by the process of subdividing the offenses, and attaching a count of an indictment to each subdivision. Judge Landis fined the Standard Oil company of Indiana $10,000 on each count, and each carload carried a count. The size of the fine upon each carlot might have suggested to the trial judge that he was exceeding the limit of judicial sense in his assessments, but that does not appear to have occurred to him.

Here is an instance of over-reaching. The government apparently had a good case. At least, it obtained a conviction. Had it demanded a reasonable penalty the chances are that the conviction would never have been over turned. The government would have gained the moral advantage of a victory over a hardened offender. The results could not but have been happy in discouraging rebating by other and lesser corporations. Temporarily, at least this advantage has been sacrificed in an effort to over-ride common sense and common fairness. The appellate court, and now the supreme court of the United States, have been compelled to make common cause with the Standard Oil company in resisting the encroachments of a dangerous doctrine— that of whipping one corporation over another's shoulders.

Principle Features Of The Message

Governor Johnson's message to the State Legislature summarizes Minnesota's remarkable progress during 50 years of statehood and eloquently describes the territory and resources of Northern Minnesota and the new industrial era that will follow the manufacture of iron and steel at Duluth. The state should give well-considered aid to Northern Minnesota's development by generous school provisions, road and bridge development, drainage of public lands, advantageous conditions for settlement of public lands, encouragement of immigration, wise methods of taxation, supervision of public accounts, strict health provisions and general enforcement of laws.

The governor recommends a state bureau of lands, mines and forests; continuance of the work of draining the state lands, with future appropriations for terms of six-eight or ten years; liberal appropriation for the work of the immigration commissioner; a county assessor system for purposes of taxation, with a tax commission of three in Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties; that no system of iron ore taxation be adopted that would deprive the counties, cities, towns and school districts in the mining regions of their full share of the tax levied; semi-annual payment of railway taxes; the securing of equal and just railroad rates and insistence on the maximum passenger rate being 2 cents a mile; re-enactment of the railroad laws of 1907 with the penalty clause repealed; law to compel carriers, in case of appeal from an established rate, to return excess charges to shippers if courts' final decision is against the carrier; county board of education and non-resident truant officers in country districts; definite professional standard of teachers or superintendents; the care of acutely insane persons in state hospitals and of chronic insane in county institutions, the state to make a per capita payment to the counties; the abolition of the fellow-servant rule in personal injury cases; the establishment of a state banking department; additional state examiners for municipalitie and townships; the initiative and referendum; extension of the primary election law to state officials; a one-half mill tax in lieu of all appropriations for the state university.

Rough Sea For Roosevelt

That the remaining less than two months' term of President Roosevelt's presidency is to be tempestuous sailing if the House and the Senate can make a rough sea, is evident. After all, it may be their love for the President that inspires the plan on the part of the Congress to round out his term with a strenuous life in accordance with his known tastes. It is believed that the President enjoys nothing better than contention, and whether it is big game in Africa, or big game at the Capitol it is all one to him. The President cannot make important appointments except by and with the consent of the Senate, and his appointment to the Public Printing office of Mr. Donnelly is held up in the Senate, and it is understood that Senators Depew, Elkins and Aldrich will make objections to this appointment. On what grounds does not yet appear.

The course pursued by the House of Representatives with reference to that portion of the President's regular annual message which contained the offensive strictures on the secret service matter will probably be to strike from the records the language in the message considered to be offensive to the dignity of the national legislative body.

It is also said that those parts of the President's special message on the 5th inst., criticising Representatives Tawney of Minnesota, Smith of Iowa, Shirley and Fitzgerald will also be expunged. The House may amend the President's message by striking out, erasing, blotting out, expunging, and otherwise obliterating the words on the particular sheet of paper which the President sent to Congress, but as Byron says: "What is writ is writ." It has been published in at least ten thousand newspapers in the United States, and translated into several languages. It is very widely believed to be deserved, and any such action by the House as has been suggested will simply give it wider circulation and publicity.

The action of the House will, of course, be equivalent to a censure of the President, and such pronounced censure as has not been known since the days of President Andrew Johnson, and the action will doubtless be accompanied by oratorical tirades from both Democrats and Republicans but there is a difference between the time of Andrew Johnson and the time of Theodore Roosevelt, and a vast difference in the popularity of the two men, altho they have in some respects similar characteristics. The country sends to Congress a vast body of men to do certain legislative work. The majority of those men are not there to work, but are there with their families, or without them, on a pleasure trip, very much such a pleasure trip as attracts people to the seaside, or mountain resorts, or to Europe But a small portion of the time of the majority is devoted to legislative business. It is well known how so-called statesmen fritter and waste their time there, few of them would be returned. It is a well known maxim that employes without supervision will not use their best efforts for the work of the employer. Members of Congress are no exception to this rule If the Government should appropriate a hundred millions of dollars a year for overseers or detectives to keep Congress to its work, and then some more detectives to keep the detectives to their work, and so on ad infinitum, there might be an improvement in the business of the nation. Representative Tawney who was particularly scored in the President's last message, reached Washington on the 5th inst., as it may be imagined, in a state of boiling indignation, but he has declined so far to say anything for publication

Some democratic members, it is stated, are inclined to take the stand with the President in favor of his recommendation for transfering the secret service to the Department of Justice and permitting it to be used in ferreting out crimes against the government wherever suspected.

The increase in the President's salary is the subject of a memorial from the Board of Trade of Mt. Clair, New Jersey, and was presented in the House on the 5th inst. by Representative Graham of Pennsylvania. The Memorial says: "Not only should the President of the United States receive $100,000 a year, but at the expiration of his term, he being the Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy, should be retired on halfpay ,like other officers when they leave the service, and the wife of the President surviving her husband, should receive a pension of $25,000 a year. A man who is big enough to be president of the United States and the lady of the White House who attends to its social duties during the term of a President should certainly be treated in a generous way by a people who can afford to spend $2,000,000,000 per annum, besides indulging in a canal that will cost anywhere from $500,000,000 to more than $1,000,000,000."

STATE PRESS

Ortonville Herald-Star: There will be several ambitious men in the legislature. During the session covetous eyes from several directions will be cast upon the elegant apartments of the governor, as well as upon most of the other offices in the capitol, while a congressional Barkis will develop in almost every district. Even embyro United States senators will bob up and gently feel the public pulse. It will be a session worth watching.

St. Peter Herald: The Republican party in this state might adjust its differences by submitting them to a peace commission composed of Joel Heatwole, Ed Paradis and Bob Dunn.

Rushford Press, by Mrs. J. F. Stone: The people who do the voting don't believe in a primary election law. It is a political nuisance and ought to be abated.

Walker Post: There is more joy over the one Christmas tree that is cut down than there is over the ninety and nine that stand in the swamp.

Roseau Region: The supreme court holds that a doctor may not legally draw the teeth of a patient — though necessary—because he is not licensed as a dentist. This is doubtless the letter of the law, but the law should be changed, or we may find that a doctor may not legally shave a patient's face to get at a wound or trim his hair in order to heal some scalp disease, because he holds no license as a barber. The idea strikes us as ridiculous.

Paynesville Press: It is stated that the tariff commission has recommended that the duty on "rough lumber" be removed. This is another case of handing the people a lemon. No rough lumber could be imported even if $2 per thousand were paid as a premium.

Wheelock's Weekly: The semi-centennial of Minnesota as a state is safely passed and wonder grows as to what the big cities will offer the legislature this winter as a subject of appropriation and big city exploitation.

Missouri and Ohio

The Missouri and Ohio choices for the United States senate offer a full meal for those who insist that the people must directly vote for candidates for this office. The people did vote in Missouri; in Ohio the legislature acted as authorized by those wise daddies who wrote the constitution.

In Missouri, synonymous with the wisdom of the smart Governor Folk, who typifies all those progressive sentiments that ability, integrity, honesty and patriotism, for which the people are supposed to be anxious to vote, was turned face to the wall. Yet he had proved himself as governor, as the ideal man for this higher position.

The man who defeated him was William K. Stone, Missouri's Foraker, distinguished as a clever politician than whom no mind can shift oftener nor quicker. He is now in the senate and he too has proved himself as being all that Folk is not and little that Folk is.

But Stone was nominated and Folk was beaten and this by direct vote of the people.

In Ohio neither the political intrigue of a Foraker backed by ugly wealth nor a Taft with the prestige of being brother of the president elect and master of the party machine, could win again the man who was fittest by ability temperament and experience. Burton had no statewide machine and no money but he won.

Also he won and Foraker and Taft were beaten by the legislators acting as representatives of the people.

In Missouri the result followed a long, bitter factional fight. In Ohio it followed the friendly development of public opinion and the matured judgment of the legislators. There is no bitterness and no enemities which will work ill to the state.

It must be admitted that there are at least two sides to this demand for the popular election of senators, and those who oppose it cannot be asked to look to Missouri to be "shown."—Duluth News Tribune.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Crookston Citizen Shows How to Cure Them

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Crookston people testify to permanent cures.

N. L. Nelson, sheet metal worker, of 303 Jackson Avenue, Crookston, Minn., says: "Backache and kidney complaint were constant annoyances to me for years. The aching in my back was not continued, but the cause was always there, and it required only a little exertion or a cold to bring on a severe attack. I was suffering more than usual when I was induced to go to Wallace's drug store and get Doan's Kidney Pills. Their use promptly took the pains out of my back and helped me generally. I want to give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for working this wonderful cure."

WELL KNOWN FARMER HERE—C. P. Woodstrom, one of the well known farmers residing on rural route No. 5 is spending the day in Crookston on business and paid for the Daily Journal for another year in advance. He reports that the cold weather previously enjoyed was what made the contrast felt in such a marked degree.

ON DELINQUENT TAX LIST — County Auditor Welte, Deputy James Hanson and Clerk Hans Waage are certainly busy these days working on the delinquent tax list. The job is a big one as well as a very monotonous one, and it will be some time before their task has been completed. In the meantime they have little to say but are sawing wood overtime.

BACK WITH LOCAL FIRM—I. G. Sands, who for four years was employed as stone cutter for H. E. Nesne of the Crookston Marble Works but who last year was employed by a Grand Forks firm, has returned here to resume work for Mr. Nesne. His wife and children are living on a claim near Thief River Falls but will remove to Crookston to reside permanently next spring.

NO CIRCULARS IN RURAL BOXES—A recent Washington dispatch says the postal department has given orders that no letter boxes along the rural routes shall be used for depositing circulars, hand bills or other matter in that has not passed thru the mails in regular order. Violators of the order will be subjected to a heavy penalty. The ruling states that rural mail boxes are under the control of the postoffice department even tho they are provided by the patrons.

OPENS NEW ROSEAU HOTEL—P. E. Dahlquist opened his new hotel at Roseau to the public last week. The hotel is located on the business street a block and a half from the depot and is the nearest hostelry to that place. Mr. Dahlquist is one of best known men in Roseau county and his extensive acquaintance will attract his share of the patronage of the traveling public and county seat visitors. The new hotel has an office and ladies' waiting room on the first floor.

FORMERLY OF THIEF RIVER — Jas. S. Devinay until two weeks ago temporary foreman of the Soo roundhouse here, was killed on New Years eve at Wishek, N. D. While assisting in the clearing away of a wreck on the Soo at that place, he was caught in some way between two cars and instantly killed. He is survived by a young wife and his parents who reside at Enderlin. Mr. Devinay was a man about thirty five years of age, who made this city his home for several months, having succeeded Walter Meroney as the foreman here. He was well known to many local residents.—Thief River Press.

BACK FROM THE WEST — Last evening Jos. Barrette arrived in the city from Twin Falls, Idaho, accompanied by his sister Mary, and they will visit old friends and relatives here for several weeks. Their arrival was a complete surprise, as they located in Twin Falls with the balance of the Barrette family not long ago. They are pleased with their location west and report all members of the family in good health and prospering. Joe is just as genial as ever and takes the change that he brought the cold wave with him with his usual good nature. However he insists that he did not start with it from Twin Falls, but must have picked it up on the way as the train was delayed 53 hours enroute here by the cold weather. The two will remain here for about a month.

GOOD SCHOOL REPORT—Report of School District No. 246 for the month ending Jan. 8, 1909. No. Pupils enrolled 21; average daily attendance 14; those neither absent nor tardy during the month were, Gardner Bjoin, Andy Volland, Ruth Rohrer, Erwin Rohrer. Those having an average of 90 or over in spelling were: Bertha Bjoin 98; Gardner Bjoin 92; Hazel Bjoin 97; Clifford Perry 100; Stella Volland 99; Marion Roberts 100 Amy Bixler 91; Ruth Rohrer 100; Hazel Perry 99; Lizzie Welter 95; Lena Welter 89. Those having an average of 90 or over in writing were, Bertha Bjoin 92; Stella Vallond 90; Marion Roberts 93; Lena Welter 90, Amy Bixler 90. Those having a general average of 90 or over were, Bertha Bjoin 92; Stella Volland 90; Marion Roberts 94; Ruth Rohrer 90.—Nina H. Webster, Teacher.

There is going to be considerable building done in Crookston the coming summer. Among the structures to be erected will be one three story building 140 by 100 on a prominent street, the details of which cannot be published at this time. The owner of the property has decided that the land is too valuable to be covered by the shacks that at present decorate it, and early in the spring work will be started on the new structure.

Full details of the new three story building will be published in the Journal later on, in which store buildings and offices will be fully described.

Deputy Sheriff Pat Sullivan is getting initiated very rapidly into the fine features of his position. Day before yesterday he was called upon to take a 30 mile drive out in the country to serve some papers with the thermometer registering about 30 degrees below and yesterday afternoon he went to Little Falls on the N. P. for a very much wanted man.

If he lands his game there will be some sensations sprung in Crookston that will be of very general interest. His mission for the present will remain a state secret.

SCOTCH WILL CELEBRATE—The many Scotchmen from this locality will celebrate the birthday of Robert Burns at Mallory January 25. This custom was started about eight years ago by the people in this vicinity and has ben followed with huge success both socially and patriotically. The people of Crookston, East Grand Forks and other surrounding towns are always royally entertained by the Scotch around Mallory and this year promises to be no exception. A program of speeches and toasts is being prepared and besides this a banquet and oldtime dance will be held in the Woodmen Hall. Thomas R. Johnstone as usual will be there and assist

Who Likes Lemon Pies?

Everybody, but they are expensive and hard to make in the old way. You should try at once "OUR-PIE" Preparation for delicious Lemon pies. It is made from the choicest ingredients absolutely pure. Sure to please you, as it has thousands of others. A lady says: "I will never again try to make Lemon pie in the old way while I can get 'OUR-PIE' Preparation." Each package enough for two large pies. 10c.

FROM WEDNESDAY'S DAILY

ILL WITH RHEUMATISM— Geo. Cannon, the well known local attorney is again confined to his home with a severe attack of Rheumatism.

HERE FROM FARGO—A. Gabrielson, a business man of Fargo arrived this morning and left for a trip up the Greenbush line.

ON BUSINESS DEAL — John C. Burton, the ice man is spending the day at East Grand Forks on a business deal.

TO INSPECT BUSINESS—Marcus Johnson the Red Lake Falls miller arrived from Stillwater yesterday and this morning proceeded to Red Lake Falls on business.

BURIED THIS AFTERNOON—The remains of Miss Tillie Sunderland were laid to rest from the family home on Spendley street, the services having been held at 2:30. Rev. Salveson officiated.

THAWED OUT — After resting peacefully dangerously close to the bottom of the bulb for several days the thermometer indicators began the wake up and rise last evening and today the weather is quite moderate. The thermometers this morning registered only about 8 degrees below.

PURCHASED GOODS — Merchant Melboe of Gully and Mr. Halvorson of the same place spent last evening in the city purchasing stock. They returned home this morning and reported things flourishing out their way.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
stops the cough and heals lungs

MRS. T. SOLBERG ILL — Mrs. T. Solberg who makes her home with her son Charles Solberg is very ill. Yesterday her daughter, Mrs. O. P. Johnson came down from Thief River Falls to assist in taking care of her. Mrs. Solberg is 82 years of age and her illness is due to a general breaking down. She has many friends who are very anxious about her condition.

DISTRICT COURT QUIET—There is little excitement in the district court today. Yesterday verdicts were brought in for the plaintiff in small sums in the colt case from Thief River Falls and a case from McIntosh where a contractor brought suit to recover for work done. Today a local case is on of no general interest.

WENT TO ST. PAUL—F. S. Lycan formerly of this city and now of Bemidji was in the city last evening between trains leaving on the Great Northern for St. Paul where he will do a little lobbying in favor of a good big publicity fund appropriation with which to boost the state of Minnesota Mr. Lycan was always a booster for every good proposition.

FIRE STORY WRONG—There was a rumor current in the city this morning, to the effect that Grand Forks had been visited by a bad fire this morning and that the new block in which J. H. Ruettell was to open a store in a short time had been burned to the ground. The rumor was without foundation as a telephone message received was to the effect that there was not fire enough over there, not even in the furnaces and coal stoves. They considered the story that they had too much of a fire a big joke.

EAST GRAND FORKS REPRESENTED—East Grand Forks is to be represented at the state meeting of Commercial clubs which opens tomorrow in St. Paul. The four men who will represent the East Grand Forks club at the meeting are F. C. Massee who is now in St. Paul, and John Bailey, together with N. J. Nelson and J. H. McNicol who will probably leave for the convention today. This is an annual meeting at which subjects of interest are discussed and plans made to boost the state of Minnesota. The special topics to come before this meeting will be the securing of appropriations for good roads and how to better advertise the state. Prof. Robertson, Thomas R. Johnstone and T. R. Brown will leave to represent Crookston tonight.

What was always known as the "round school" being octagonal in shape in the old Judson district in the Town of Hammond burned to the ground last Friday morning. The fire was started in the morning and the school closed to await the arrival of the teacher and students later. It caught fire probably from the stove, and was a heap of ashes before anyone arrived at the scene. It will be rebuilt.

A FARMERS' SHORT COURSE

A Farmers' Short Course will be held at the School of Agriculture at St. Anthony's Park for one month commencing Friday, Jan. 15th. The course consists of lectures demonstrations and judging of stock and grains. The most practical subjects conected wit farm life will be discussed. The course includes nearly all the farm subjects taught at the School of Agriculture. No entrance examination is given and there is no age limit. The expenses are low. It is hoped that there may be a large attendance of farmers.

There is no case on record of a cough cold or la grippe developing into pneumonia after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it cures the most obstinate deep seated coughs and colds. Why take anything else. Sold by all druggists.

HARMONY IS KEYNOTE OF COUNCIL SESSION

Alderman Snyder Elected President And T. A. Harris Vice. Vast Amount Of Important Business Is

Disposed Of. Bills Amounting Nearly $20,000 Paid. A Progressive Year Is Promised.

From Wednesday's Daily—The City Council of Crookston started out the new year with a harmony meeting by the unanimous re-election of Alderman P. Snyder as president and Alderman T. A. Harris as vice president all members being present. The meeting was called to order by City Clerk Childs and the election followed immediately, the very best of feeling prevailed.

$19342 Ordered Paid

The council opened the ball by allowing a large number of bills, amounting in all to $19,342. Of this amount over $8,000 was in salaries, the street commissioner's payroll and other current expenses including over $6,.000 for lights, hydrants, etc., and this of course all comes out of the special improvement funds. The general fund is still in good shape with over $5,000 on hand.

Reports Received

Detailed reports were received from the heads of several departments, including Fire Chief A. J. Barrette, Fire Warden J. W. Risch, Chief of Police Eck, City Weighmaster Greenhalgh, the receipts at the city scales having been $47.60 for December.

Municipal Court Report

The report of Clerk N. B. Moran of the Municipal Court showed cash collected and turned over to the city during the past quarter, amounting to nearly $1,000.

Barrette Re-elected

A report was received from Secretary T. R. Johnstone of the Crookston Volunteer Firemen's Association, reporting the election of A. J. Barrette as chief with the other officials.

Pursuant to the usual custom the council at once proceeded to elect Mr. Barrette as fire chief.

Laid on the Table

Alderman Hussey, who had introduced the ordinance to establish a paid fire department in Crookston, made a motion that the ordinance be laid on the table and this carried, thus disposing of the paid department for the present at least.

The amendment to the dumping ground ordinance suffered a similar fate. J. E. O'Brien was allowed $200 additional on his city hall contracts.

Refunding Certificates

City Engineer Carroll presented a communication recommending an amendment to the city charter to provide for refunding certificates, non transferable, which shall be honored by the county treasurer, in order that they should not be kept out of their money so long, after it is justly due them. President Snyder was authorized to name a committee to confer with the charter commission relative to the matter.

The janitor was instructed to keep a tabulated account of the wood and coal burned to warm the city hall.

Given Use of the City Hall

On motion the 25,000 Commercial Club was granted the use of the city hall Council Chamber for the annual meeting Jan. 22.

C. F. Brennan will be granted a plumbers license two weeks hence at the adjourned meeting.

Passed First Reading

The franchise granting the Tri State Telephone and Telegraph Co., long distance conection privileges in Crookston passed its first reading. The real fight will come up at the second reading at the next regular meeting. The Tri State was also granted a refund of the unused portion of the $50 which had been deposited to pay for the publication of the application of a franchise.

Call for Bids

City Clerk Childs was instructed to call for the city printing and for the position of county physician.

H. G. Ebbighausen was granted a saloon license to continue in his present building.

Wants $200 More

Mrs. Marie Munch put in an application for $200 in addition to what she has received for ground used for bridge approaches stating that she had never authorized any one to accept a smaller sum.

The usual batch of sidewalk assessments, where the walks had been constructed were granted.

Stringent Rules

On recommendation of the city fire committee the council passed some very stringent rules and regulations covering the conduct of firemen who sleep in or occupy the fire hall room.

Payment was also authorized to the Firemen's Relief Association of the balance of $870.50 due on the chemical engine purchased two years ago.

New Hydrants

Three new hydrants were ordered in on Maple Street.

$330 the 2 per cent due from saloon license money in favor of the Inebriate Asylum was ordered paid.

City Clerk Childs was authorized to have bound about 20 copies of the proceedings of the council covering the past year.

Name Changed

An ordinance was introduced providing for the changing of a portion of what is now known as Manitoba Street to Riverside Ave., located in Highland Park. This was referred to the street and bridge committee.

The communications of City Clerk Childs appears in another column of this issue.

The council adjourned for two weeks, at which time President Snyder will announce the council committees for the ensuing year.

Young Paid Fine

One of Attorney General Young's last acts before he retired to private life was to pay the $100 fine levied upon him by Judge Lochren for violating the injunction of the federal court relative to instituting proceedings against the railroad companies as authorized by the state legislature. This leaves our retiring attorney general square with the world and we are glad that this is so.—Detroit Record.

MRS. M'CANNA HAS ESCAPED

HER SON SAYS THAT THERE IS NO QUESTION ABOUT THE MATTER

THE REPORT OF YESTERDAY FROM ROCHESTER WAS NOT TRUE

From Friday's Daily—

Charles McCanna who arrived last evening from McCanna stated that there was no doubt about the safety of his mother, Mrs. S. A. McCanna, and Miss Agnes Feeney of Rochester, Minn., despite the anxiety of Miss Feeney's friends and relatives. Mr. McCanna received a cablegram from Mrs. McCanna dated Naples, in which she told of the escape of herself and Miss Feeney.

The Herald yesterday said:

According to advices received last evening, Minneapolis relatives of Mrs. S. A. McCanna a former resident of Grand Forks ,are somewhat alarmed because the revised list of the Americans who are saved does not contain either her name or that of Miss Agnes Feeney, of Rochester, Minn. In Minneapolis it is stated that there has been no news received from either of the ladies named. A few days ago it was stated that both Mrs. McCanna and Miss Feeney had been accounted for. They traveled together and it is considered probable that both are dead. The Grand Forks Herald received the following dispatch from Rochester, Minn., last evening:

"It is now probable that Miss Agnes Feeney perished in the earthquake in southern Italy. Communications have been received here from her dated at Naples. She stated that she and her aunt Mrs. S. A. McCanna, intended to leave within a fe wdays for Sicily. Her letter was dated Dec. 19. No further word has been received and friends here have given up hope. Miss Feeney was a daughter of Thomas Feeney, a capitalist of this city."

The state department at Washington yesterday received a dispatch from American Consul Gale at Malta, showing the following Americans to be safe and well:

Lillian and Elizabeth M. Wiggins, Henriette L. Stadelman, John B. Wright and wife, Dr. Herbert Norris and wife, Mary H. Dehart, May Sherman, Margaret Mendell, Mrs. Martha Kittridge and daughters, Ethel and Clarissa, Mrs. Alfred Harris and daughter, Rosalia, J. A. Kain and Thomas Robinson families, Catherine Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Garrett, Jullian Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hapgood, Miss Mary Moss, Frances M. and Elizabeth G. Bockius, Emily Croasdi, Estelle Fagan, Eleanor M, Wood,

HIS WIFE DIED VERY SUDDENLY

FORMER FARMER RESIDING NEAR EUCLID LOSES HIS WIFE

B. C. Vonderbeck yesterday received a letter from his wife's brother, Dennis Losey, telling of the sudden death of the wife of Mike Tracey. They formerly resided near Euclid and have many friends in this section. Mr. Tracey woke up early in the morning and found his wife very sick. Before he could summon a doctor she was dead. She leaves three children, the eldest of whom is but 12 years of age.

A CREAMERY FOR KEY WEST

Louis Wentzel, one of the prosperous farmers near Key West is advocating the erection of a creamery at that place. The farmers are all very much interested and it is expected that within a short time enough cows will be pledged to make the venture a success. The interest taken in the project by Mr. Wentzel is most creditable and the establishment of the creamery at that place will mean much for the future prosperity of the community.

Some More Rumors

Frank Everdell was over from Breckenridge Tuesday. Mr. Everdell states that the Great Northern trainmen, a large number of whom make their headquarters in Breckenridge have a report that Fergus Falls is to be made a Great Northern division point in the near future. He states that they are all talking this, and seem to have received the report from authorative sources. The Great Northern is re-arranging its divisions to some extent, and it may be that something will come this way, but thus far nothing has been heard at the local station.—Fergus Falls Journal.

PRIZE FOR BEST GRAIN

MINNESOTA FIELD CROP BREEDERS' ASSN. HAS MEETING ON JAN. 13, 14, 15.

$500 IN PRIZES OFFERED FOR BEST GRAINS, GRASS SEEDS AND OTHER FIELD CROPS

From Friday's Daily—

The annual meeting and seed fair of the Minnesota Field Crop Breeders' association will be held in Minneapolis on January 13, 14 and 15.

Some 500 is to be given in prizes, and for the benefit of those in this section who may desire to enter grain in the contest, we publish the following rules governing the contest:

2. The quality of seed entered in each lot must meet the requirements to be considered for prize money.

3. All entries must have been received by the Superintendent of Exhibits, Mr. L. B. Bassett, not later than 5 o'clock on January 12, 1909. Those sending samples by express should govern themselves accordingly

4. All samples sent in by express must be prepaid to Minneapolis and addressed to L. B. Bassett, Minneapolis, Minn., care Field Crop Breeders' Fair.

5. All samples entered for premiums shall become the property of the Field Crop Breeders' Association and may be offered at auction or private sale at the close of the meetings.

6. No one sample can be entered in more than one class and lot.

7. No person shall be allowed to enter more than one sample in each lot.

THE PLAINTIFF GOT VERDICT

The jury in the case of Berg vs. Robert Campbell of Fosston awarded the plaintiff a verdict of $175 for digging a flowing well. Today the suit of the Russell Grader Co. vs. Messrs. Lerum Roholt and Levi Steenerson of Climax is being tried. It is an action to collect for a grader.

At 6:30 o'clock last evening Miss Mary Frank was married to Mr. Charles E. Stinchfield, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Frank, on Park avenue, in the presence of only the immediate relatives and intimate friends of the contracting couple.

The parlors were tastefully decorated with holly and cedar of which also was composed the bower in which the bridal party stood during the ceremony.

Promptly at the hour appointed the bridal party entered the parlor in which the guests were assembled, Rev Grant Stroh, the officiating minister, leading, followed by the bride and the groom and they in turn by the bridesmaid and the best man. In the beautiful ritual of the Presbyterian church the two plighted their troth and were made one, after which they received the hearty congratulations and best wishes of their assembled friends. Miss Fannie Stinchfield, sister to the groom, was bridesmaid and Mr. James A. Frank brother to the bride was best man.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding supper was served. Among the out of town guests who were present were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Sinclair of Stephen, and Mrs. Wick of Pembina. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful wedding gifts from their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Stinchfield left on last night's flyer for an extended wedding trip. From here they go directly to Chicago thence in turn to Evansville Ind., Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn and Jacksonville, Fla. From there they will proceed down the Florida coast to Titusville and then sail for Havana, Cuba, visiting also the Bahama Islands, Key West, Tampa and Miami, and besides many points of less note in that region, and will be at home in Warren after March first.

The bride is known to nearly every one in Warren, having lived in the city or vicinity ever since her childhood and enjoys the highest esteem of a very large circle of friends. The groom is superintendent of a line of elevators on the Soo road. He has made this city his home but a comparatively short time, during which he has gained the respect of all with whom he has come in contact in either a business or a social way.—Warren Sheaf.

Miss Frank has a great many friends in Crookston having been one of the teachers in the city schools several years ago. She has also taught in many of the schools of Polk county and is a young lady held in the highest esteem by all who know her.

BIG MEETING JANUARY 22

ANNUAL COMMERCIAL CLUB GATHERING WILL BE A RECORD BREAKER

BUSINESS MEETING WILL BE HELD IN AFTERNOON—BANQUET IN EVENING

From Friday's Daily—

The 25,000 Commercial club's annual meeting gives promise of being one of the most enthusiastic that has ever been held in this section. The greatest interest is already being taken in the event with the result that an attendance upon the part of the full membership of the club may be expected. The board of directors at a recent meeting appointed a special committee to make all arrangements and plans for the meeting and at a subsequent meeting this committee, which was composed of J. A. Cowley L. Ellington and J. F. Fournet, made a preliminary report. The committee at its own request was increased from three to five members, the two additional committeemen being expected to look after the financial end of the celebration. President H. C. Misner has announced that he has named Mayor J. D. McPhee and C. R. Winslow as additional members of the committee.

There will be an afternoon meeting starting at 3 o'clock. This will be held in the council chamber of the city hall. At the afternoon meeting the business session of the club will be held. Reports will be received from the president, the secretary and the treasurer, while the different committees that have had charge of important matters will give detailed reports of what has been accomplished.

The election of officers will also take place at this session. The club will elect a president, two vice-presidents a treasurer and a board of eleven directors.

While the complete program for the evening of January 22 is not in shape to give indefinite announcement yet the committee has authorized the statement that one of the most elaborate banquets that has been held in Crookston in some time will be given. The board of directors has directed that this banquet be held at the Hotel Crookston and there is no question but that this social feature of the annual meeting will be most enjoyable.

MONTAGUE MAY RESIGN FROM BOARD

Judge R. J. Montague now president of the Crookston Board of Education may have to resign on account of a new construction of the law regarding such matters. President Montague has been a member of the school board for years and is a very active and efficient official in that capacity, and it would be a decided loss if he decides to tender his resignation.

There is use of cheese at breakfast that should be more frequent than it is; namely with eggs, and preferably in the form known as Swiss eggs. This was the favorite supper dish of the celebrated Brillat Savarin. To make it you take of cheese—by preference Swiss cheese—a quantity of the size of an egg; of butter a quantity half the size of an egg, and of eggs take three. This should be enough for two people. Put the eggs in a bowl and add a tablespoonful of water for each egg, as tho to make an omelette. Put the butter in an omelette pan and when melted add to the cheese in fragments and allow it to melt in the butter. Stir the eggs well and pour into the pan and stir there until done, which should take only a few minutes. Season with salt and pepper, preferably paprika. This seems to please almost everyone and has great success as a breakfast dish.

Another use of cheese for breakfast that should be popular is of the kind known as sap sago, male in little conical form and having a green color. The German name for this article is kreuter kase or herb cheese. It is made in the conton of Glarus in Switzerland from a mixture of skimmed milk of the cow and the goat together with butter milk. The curd for this cheese is brought down from the mountains in bags by the herdsmen and the little cheeses are finished in the valley. To each 100 pounds of the curd three pounds of the powdered leaves of Blue Melilotis, a fragrant plant akin to sweet clover is added. It is this herb that gives the cheese a green color and the peculiar taste. It is said that more of this kind of cheese is shipped to the United States than to any other country. At breakfast you put this cheese grated upon bread and butter and you will find it will fill a long felt want. It is improved however, by sprinkling the bread and butter so prepared with fresh water cress cut up finely by a pair of shears. You will not regret this simple breakfast dish.

NEW LAND OFFICE RULES

STONE AND TIMBER LAND MUST BE APPRAISED IN FUTURE AFTER ENTRY

LAND CANNOT BE SOLD AT LESS THAN $2.50 PER ACRE—MAY BE APPRAISED HIGHER

From Friday's Daily—

As many of the residents of this section have taken stone and timber claims and others are contemplating doing so, they will be interested in new rules that have been adopted The new rules include one radical departure from former methods of procedure that of appraising all lands under this act, and instead of selling it for $2.50 per acre as formerly it will be sold for nearer its real value.

The new regulations are practically the same as formerly, differing only where the appraisers make new rules necessary. Heretofore the applicant merely filed his application, made his final proof, and paid $2.50 per acre and $10 office fees. Now he must deposit $10 with his application, and within 30 days after being notified of the appraised value of the land, make final proof, first payment the required price, which cannot be less than $2.50 per acre.

When the applicant makes his filing he must file a sworn statement in duplicate of his estimate of the value of the land and timber separate, and the two together. One of these is filed with the land office and the other sent to the field division. The chief of the field division. The chief of the field division must then decide whether an appraisment is necessary and if it is order it made within nine months of the date of filing. If an appraisment is unnecessary, or if it is not made within nine months of the date of filing, the applicant may make final proof on the land at the figure named in his application. If he fails to act within 30 days after the nine months' appraisment period he loses his timber and stone rights.

The officer designated to make the appraisal of land, must visit the land and make an examination of every legal sub-division. The several kinds of timber must be appraised separately at their stumpage valuation and the land, independent of the timber. The land and timber, in each case, be appraised at $2.50 per acre at least. If the chief of the field division is not satisfied with the appraisal he will return the papers to the appraiser without his approval, and if his objections are upheld by the register and receiver a new appraisment will be made by a different officer.

Whe nthe appraised price is given the register and receiver they will notify the applicant that he must, within 30 days deposit the required amount with them. If the applicant thinks the appraisal too high, he may file a protest against the appraisement and deposit with the register and receiver enough money to pay for a reappraisment by a different officer. The protest must be supported by two competent, creditable and disinterested parties, setting forth specifically his objections.

If the applicant for land does not make final proof after an appraisement is made, the appraisement will stand and the land will be sold to the next applicant at that price. If only one appraisal has been made, he may ask for a reappraisement at his own expense.

The Senate's Hole In the Wall.

When the nineteenth century was as yet only half grown, senators applied customarily for their toddies at the so called Hole in the Wall, a small circular room just off the postoffice of the upper house. The latter body then occupied what is now the chamber of the supreme court, and the postoffice was across the main corridor of the building on the same floor. When a wearer of the toga found himself in need of a "snifter" he had only to cross over to the mails department and pass through it to the little circular room aforesaid, which was about the size of a pantry. The Hole in the Wall was the first senate restaurant, and the bill of fare for edibles was short, though to the point. There was ham, guaranteed to have been smoked for six months. a veritable sublimation of the pork product; there were corned beef and bread and cheese, but very little else. They served, however, as an accompaniment for the fluids, and when the Hole was crowded, as was often the case, senators ate their sandwiches outside, in the postoffice.—Washington Post.

The basis of a woman's faith in any body is how much unhappier she would be without it.

The man who becomes famous usually does so thru the efforts of others to prove that he isn't.

A woman can generally manage to get furs for a Christmas present if she has to give them to herself.

We feel sorry for some men who are compelled to listen to their own talk.

WANTS MONEY FOR INSURANCE

FRED BEHLMER'S FAMILY THINK HE IS DEAD AND WANT INSURANCE

DISAPPEARED FROM CROOKSTON JULY 17, 1901—NOT SEEN SINCE

From Thursday's Daily—

Atty. Theodore Buehler of Alma, Wis., spent yesterday in the city and left this morning for Argyle where he will consult with Mrs. Fred Behlmer relative to the colection of $2,000 insurance which was carried by Mr. Behlmer in the A. O. U. W.

Behlmer was a former resident of this city ,and at one time operated the shoe store where Carl Reidesel is now located on Second Street.

Later on he had a farm northeast of the city and at the time he disappeared he was living in the old Nicholson house near the Great Northern bridge on 8th street and was running a milk wagon.

On July 17, 1901 he bought a pair of shoes of Mr. Reidesel and that was the last seen of him. It is supposed that he took the north train for Canada, but nothing is known definitely about that question. He left his wife and five children, and they have never heard anything from him since.

The family since moved to Argyle where they now reside and Attorney Buehler left for that place this morning to get further information. He was a former school mate of Behlmer and is a friend of the family. Mrs. Behlmer and Mr. Reidesel kept up the insurance for about a year after Behlmer disappeared after which the payments were stopped.

At the time he disappeared Behlmer was treasurer of a school district northeast of the city and after his disappearance it was found that he was $800 short in his accounts and C. Reidesel and Deforest Bucklen, who were his bondsmen, made the shortage good out of their own pockets.

It is supposed that Behlmer is dead, and Attorney Buehler is trying to have him declared judicially dead to collect the insurance.

The average person who has little to do with electricity is apt to become confused by the electrical terms used. An electrical publication gives the following explanation in popular terms.

"When an electric current is flowing in the trolley wire or electric lighting circuit there are three factors involved. One of these is the pressure expressed in volts which causes the current to flow; another is the resistance or opposition offered by the circuit to the flow which is expressed in ohms; the last is the current strength or volume, expressed in amperes which is maintained in the circuit as a result of the pressure overcoming the resistance. The ohm is named in honor of George Simon Ohm, a distinguished German electrician. The volt is named after the Italian scientist, Volta. The ampere is named after the French scientist, Ampere.

"The unit of current is called the ampere. The unit of electrical pressure or electromotive force is called the volt. The unit of electric power is the volt-ampere, and this is called the watt. Seven hundred and forty-six watts per hour equal one horse-power. The unit of energy—the product of electric power and time—is called the Joule, but this unit is too small for practical purposes and the kilowatt hour is the work done by a thousand watts working for one hour.

"These electrical terms are as familiar to electrical engineers as feet and inches are to the average boy; the layman does not understand, because he has never been taught, has never had to use the terms, has never read about them.

"It is easier to understand these terms if we consider electricity as a fluid and liken it to a current of water flowing thru a pipe. The rate of flow of water in the pipe depends upon gravitation and the height of the reservoir or source above the outlet. The greater the height of the source the greater will be the pressure of water and the greater the flow in gallons per minute. It is just the same with electricity. A current flows from a high potential to a low potential whenever the two are joined by a conducting wire. It is merely a difference of level. Watch a stream of water from the nozle of a garden hose striking a bank of soft earth. Considering it as a stream of electricity, which unfortunately cannot be seen the force of the stream or its pressure represents voltage; the size of the stream or flow, the amperage; the wattage the amount of work done in washing away the dirt. Suppose the interior of the nozzle and hose is rough, which offers a resistance to the ready flow of the stream; this fraction and resistance is represented by ohms is an electric circuit."

Some men are so lucky they can have the water pipes freeze in their homes without bursting.

TO ADVERTISE OUTING PLACES

FEDERATION ANNUAL MEETING WILL TAKE UP THIS FEATURE IN STATE ADVERTISING

SESSIONS WILL BE HELD IN ST. PAUL COM. CLUB'S ROOMS INSTEAD OF CAPITOL

From Thursday's Daily—

Secretary Brown of the commercial Club received this morning two important notices from Secretary Mosher, of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs. One refers to the meeting in behalf of the state's summer resorts and it as follows:

At the second annual convention of the Federation, to be held on Thursday and Friday of next week in St. Paul, there will be a special meeting of the representatives of Minnesota Summer resort points at which the secretary will present what is believed to be the cheapest and best system yet devised by which to attract the attention of wealthy tourists, sportsmen etc., to Minnesota. Details of this plan will be thoroly explained. The secretary believes that the ideas which have been worked out will enable many interested Minnesota summer resorts to advertise as never before, and at such a low cost as to make the opportunity exceptionally attractive. The system which is proposed will be discussed in detail with special reference to the resorts represented at this special meeting. A limited number of Minnesota points will join in this plan, but all Minnesota summer resorts will be invited to come in if they wish.

All the necessary work will be done without cost to the various cities and towns represented excepting for one or two items for which it is impossible to avoid expenditures, but such will be distributed in such a manner as to make the burden very light. The secretary will contribute to all interested towns his personal services and experience without cost, and has secured the valuable co-operation of powerful railways, likewise without cost.

To insure the success of this plan and the participation of all Minnesota points interested in summer resort matters, it is very important that your delegates be advised of this special meeting, and if no delegates have yet been appointed, that they be appointed at once. The time is short. The sessions of the convention will open January 14, at 10 o'clock a. m. (Thursday of the coming week.)

The second is relative to a change in place of holding the sessions of the convention. The senate chamber of the old capitol building will be occupied, and the St. Paul Commercial club has offered the use of its rooms. Following is the notice received:

Important Notice

On acount of a conflict of dates it has been found impossible to obtain the use of the senate chamber of the Old Capitol for the use of the Federation on the opening day of its convention, Jan. 14-15 next week Thursday and Friday. For this reason it has been decided to change the place of meeting and to accept the kind offer of the St. Paul Commercial Club of the use of its rooms for our sessions without cost to the Federation. The second annual convention will therefore be held at the quarters of this club on the ninth floor of the Germania Life Building, St. Paul which is located at the corner of Fourth and Minnesota streets. Delegates unfamiliar with the location of this building can find it by turning up Sibley Street from the Union Depot to Fourth St., turning to the left on Fourth Street and walking three blocks. The building stands at the end of the third block on the left hand side of the street.

Several clubs have not yet appointed delegates. This matter should be attended to at once. Two delegates from each club will be entitled to vote. All clubs are welcome and are heartily invited to join with us, irrespective of the fact that they have or have not joined the federation.

Kindly caution your delegates with reference to this change of place of meeting.

From the big-headed man's viewpoint this is a tiny world.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM THURSDAYS DAILY

CALLED TO BEMIDJI—J. R. Rasmussen left this morning on the delayed train for Bemidji where he was called on business matters.

S. M. Graves left this morning for his regular north trip.

OVER ILLNESS—Claude Carpenter the mail carrier who has been ill for the past few days resumed his work again this morning.

BROKE HER WRIST— The many friends of Mrs. R. M. Hufman will regret to hear she fell Tuesday breaking her wrist. The injury is a very painful one. The injured member is a little less painful today.

TWO WEEKS ON CLAIM— Chas. Ackerlund the well known and popular mail deliveryman left this morning for his homestead near Beaudette where he will remain for a couple of weeks. During his absence Emil Rossberg is subing on his route.

BACK FROM LITCHFIELD—Martin Nelson returned yesterday morning from Litchfield, Minn., where he has been on business and visiting relatives. His sister died there last February, leaving a fortune of $25,000 and it was in conection with this that he made the trip below.

SHY OF TOBACCO—Some farmer on Rural Route No. 5 today phoned to the Journal office to have some merchant send a delivery team out that way with a caddy of tobacco. He said he had the only plug of tobacco in the neighborhood and every farmer was begging from him. All stores were duly notified.

HAD A GOOD WAIT— Attorney L. P. Monson of Drayton, N. D., who has been a guest at the home of Mrs. N. F. Woodstrom and family in Lowell Township for the past two weeks was called home Tuesday on business matters, and was fortunate enough to be tied up at Hixon for 1 hours on the trip.

LOOKING UP LOSS—Insurance Adjuster Seeman of the Great Northern is spending the day in the city looking up the loss recently sustained in connection with the freight and passenger depot fire. He has not yet decided what the loss was as in conection with the freight destroyed or damaged it is a very hard matter to ascertain.

BUSY SESSION — The board of county commissioners put in a busy day today, mostly considering ditch matters. The Valley View was tendered the county printing at 6 cents per description of the delinquent tax list and 40 and 20 cents for other notices.

AN OLD TRADITION — The old truism that closing a hotel register will bring bad luck to the house is entertained by hotel men and clerks everywhere and was given a good demonstration in Crookston the other day. A prominent Crookston man was examining the pages of the Crookston register and after a search of several minutes turned to walk away at the same moment starting to close the book. But the action was observed by one of the cashiers just in time to avert the impending calamity. The near-offender man instantly understood and apologized, saying that he was thinking of something else or he would never have been guilty of going against the old tradition.

The social session held last evening by Crookston Lodge No. 342, B. P. O. E. was the most largely attended held in many years past. About 250 Elks were present and the entire evening was one of the most enjoyable ever passed in the local lodge rooms.

The mock trial at which Judge Vaule presided, and at which the leading member of the bar of this section made pleas that brought tears to the eyes of all present, provoked great merriment and as far as learned, while the man on trial was convicted of diabolical lapidermicus swashicontaminaticus, Jailor Tom Casey has received no new guests today, and it is supposed that bail was granted.

When the train arrived from Duluth last evening it was minus a conductor and Conductor Remshardt bunked at Erskine.

When the train was pulling from Erskine last evening the steam was so thick that he could not see it, and decided to take no chances of getting hurt and let the train go on without him. He was not missed till the train nearly reached Mentor. He came in this morning and is ready to fight anyone who joshes him about the mishap.

This morning at 10:30 at St. Annes church, Father Tapin performed the ceremony which united for life Mr. Peter Ayotte of Gentilly and Miss Abbie Patenaude of this city. The bridesmaid was Miss Emma Patenaude, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Ernest Fountin. The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of friends, and after the wedding a sumptuous wedding dinner was served at the Riverside hotel by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Patenaude, parents of the bride after which the bridal couple drove to the home of the groom's parents 2 miles from Gentilly where they will visit for a few days before going to the fine farm home of the groom. Both are well known and very popular young people, and the best wishes for their future happiness is extended by a large circle of friends.

Yesterday was known in legends as "Old Christmas' 'and last evening the "Twelfth Night" festivities were celebrated at numerous small and informal parties. The Lord of Misrule, so the old story goes, has reigned since the night after Christmas and last night he was dethroned and all the Christmas greens were taken down and burned as offerings, or else the evil spirit may linger about the house thru the year. Modern hostesses have turned the picturesque old myths into an excuse for a holiday entertainment The Christmas greens were burned in many houses Wednesday evening, not as offerings, but as a preliminary bit of fun to a chafing-dish supper. At the "'Twelfth night' 'supper "mystery" cake is an important part of the fare. And in the cake is hidden a bean. Whoever finds the bean becomes king or queen of the frolic that follows, the supper. Everything the leader does each guest must do, whether it be to eat drink, sing dance or sneeze, so it means that there will be a very merry ending to the "Twelfth night" party.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

ON LEGAL BUSINESS—Attorney G. A. E. Finlayson is here from East Grand Forks today attending to some business at the court house. He will return home this evening.

VISITED FORKS—C. Teal Sr., of Euclid returned home this morning after returning from a business trip to Grand Forks.

ON BUSINESS EAST—A. O. Storvick left this morning on a business trip on the east line and will be absent a couple of days on official business.

C. U. WEBSTER HERE — C. U. Webster Jr., the well known farmer of Beltrami, and one of the best in the northwest, spent yesterday in the city leaving last evening for Fisher where he will visit with his father for a few days before returning home. He reports things quite at Beltrami.

ON PROBATE BUSINESS—Atty. J. A. Hendricks of Fosston is spending the day in the city attending to some important business before the probate court and also has a case in the district court. He expects to return home this evening.

BACK FROM ST. PAUL—Attorney H. L. Gaylord of Fertile was an arrival in the city this morning on his return from St. Paul where he was called on some business before the supreme court. He says things are rather quiet at the capitol but that there is apt to be some doings before the legislative session adjourns.

BUYS SAWMILL — Mike Wentel, one of the well known farmers west of Crookston has purchased a portable sawmill which he has had set up seven miles west of this city and will do custom sawing the balance of the winter. He has already booked many orders and expects to be kept busy the balance of the winter. The saw mill will be ready for operation some time next week.

BAD FIRE — Brown Bros. saloon men in East Grand Forks were burned out yesterday morning. The fire started at 4 a. m., from some unknown cause, supposedly from a stove in the basement. Their loss was $6000 and $1200 insurance. They will start business in another place at once.

BACK FROM CANADA — George Rutherford, one of the old time farmers from Keystone has returned from the lumber camps near Bemidji. He came down to meet his son, Wm. A. Rutherford, who is located at Gernsy, Alberta, Canada, who has been ill, but who is better and passed thru the city last evening enroute to Grand Rapids where he will visit a sister for a few weeks.

Senator A. D. Stephens was an arrival this morning from St. Paul and took the "Fish Limited" for Roseau where he was called on important business. Relative to legislative session. Senator Stephens stated that there was very little doing as yet. So far he has introduced but one bill, and that was as chairman of the finance committee,—a bill for $135,000 for legislative expenses.

He predicts that the session will be a very lively one later on, an dexpects some very important legislative matters to come up for consideration.

The school board at a meeting today appointed Messrs. R. J. Montague Carl Reidesel and McIntyre as a committee to confer with a similar committee named from the 25,000 Commercial Club to make definite arrange ments for the proper celebration of Lincoln's birthday.

The two committees will meet this afternoon at 4:30 at which time the preliminary steps will be taken regarding the celebration and it is expected that the program will be one of the best that has ever been arranged for such an occasion in this city.

Creamery Inspector O. A. Storvick has received word from St. Paul that he is to have a assistant in the near future in the person of H. A. Goetsch.

The territory has been too large for one man to handle properly for some time past and the department decided to add another man and at the same time to add three more counties to this territory, Wadena, Otter Tail and Wilkin.

This will give this section a much better service than before.

On Monday morning next at 10:00 o'clock at the school house in Fanny Township the Union Telephone Co., will hold their annual meeting at which time all matters of interest will be taken up and disposed of. The company has erected many miles of lines during the past year, and the patrons are well pleased with the service given. It is expected that during the coming year there will be many more miles of wire strung, and consequently a much better service given as more people will be connected up in that section of the county.

O. C. Taftner the buttermaker for the creamery at Erskine won the second prize in the six months' contest for hand separator creamery class and is now enjoying the free trip to Chicago which was given for that prize.

The idea in giving that prize was to show the buttermaker who was fortunate enough to win what the market conditions were, and how best to meet the conditions in order to get the best results.

The fine showing made by the Erskine creamery is a source of great satisfaction to everyone in Polk Co., as it is an advertisement that will be of inestimable value to this section.

NOT A SUCCESS — It has been found that the method of placing of stamps to the value of ten cents upon mail matter and marking across the stamps "special delivery" has not worked successfully. A great many complaints have been registered with postmasters because of mail so stamped not reaching its destination by special delivery. This was due to the handling of mail by postoffice employes who failed to observe the marking. In many instances the writing of "special delivery" was indistinct and mail matter went thru with the ordinary stamped mail. The method has not been discontinued, but more asurance of quick delivery comes with the use of the regular special delivery

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

SECURE REDUCED RATES— To Canada from W. E. Black's Collection and Insurance Agency, McKinnon Block, Crookston, Minn.

$5 AND COSTS—Max Ingborg was today fined $5 and costs on a charge of asault preferred by Mose Giller. The fine was paid and the matter was settled in this manner.

BACK FROM CLIMAX— Theodore B. Nelson returned this morning from Climax where he has been selling Singer Sewing Machines for the past few days. He reports business as very good in that section for some time past.

WENT TO FORKS—J. H. Ruettell went to Grand Forks this morning to attend to some business matters. He expects to return this evening. The fact that he got on the train for St. Vincent is not supposed to be for publication.

FINE BABY GIRL—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hoven are the parents of a very fine baby girl, which his stork-ship left there as a companion for their first arrival, which was a son. Mother and baby are both doing very nicely.

ANGUS FARMER HERE— Albert Brush one of the well known young farmers from Angus spent yesterday in the city returning home this morning. He says that business is very quiet up north this winter—even in the phonograph line.

WILL FAVOR NATIONAL GUARD

CAPT. WESTERBERG AND LIEUT. EIDE RETURN FROM ST. PAUL

THE PAPER OF CAPT. WESTERBERG ONE OF BEST ON THE LIST

From Saturday's Daily—

Capt. Westerberg and Lieut. Eide have returned from St. Paul where they attended the meeting of the Minnesota National Guard. The program included some special papers Monday and Tuesday last at which some of the leading members of the Guard in the country were present and contributed numbers.

One of the best papers was the one read by Capt. Westerberg on "Home Ranges and the Work Accomplished and to be Accomplished on Same."

The paper covered the subject thoroughly and was favorably commented upon by many of those present.

The most important matter which was taken up was in connection with the proposal to pass a law at the present session of the legislature to nave the state pay an equal sum to that appropriated by each city or village where there is a company of militia and the state will pay as much for the maintenance as the local city or village.

THE FIRST VISIT IN FIVE YEARS

H. M. Olson a brother-in-law of C. L. Swisdal, arrived in the city from Grand Rapids with his mother and the two are spending a few days at the two are spending a few days at the Swisdal home on Front Street. They will remain here till Monday when they will proceed to Alexandria where they will visit for a few weeks. This is the first visit Mr. Olson has made to Alexandria since he left there 5 years ago.

ARREST MAY FOLLOW — Sam Deck this morning, made an arrangement with a local coal company to deliver coal. He only lasted for a short time as his partner claimed that he had to do all the work. Sam only lasted for two loads.

WENT NORTH—W. L. Doe representing the Nichols and Sheppard Co., was an arrival in the city this morning and left for a trip up the north line this morning. He will represent this territory the coming year with his headquarters in Crookston.

BABY SON DIED — Mr. and Mrs. eGo. Heller are mourning the loss of their little son two months old who died yesterday morning. The funeral will take place from the family residence on North Fourth St., tomorrow morning. The cause of death was bronchitis.

TWO DRUNKS—Things were very quiet in police circles today the only two cases being drunks who were given the regulation fine of $5 and costs assessed by Judge Gossman in the Municipal court. Both were paid and the offenders went on their way rejoiceing.

BACK FROM CANADA—Harry Miller who has been holding down a claim in Canada for the past two years which he proved up on a few months ago, came down from Angus last evening and will return home Monday morning. Of course he says he likes Canada but his friends seem to think that he is pretty glad to get back to God's country.

HERE ON BUSINESS—D. H. Miller the well known farmer of Angus drove to the city last evening with his cream separator which was out of commission. He had it repaired and will return home this afternoon. Mrs. Miller is one of the farmers who make butter and cannot get enough to supply the demand of his customers in Crookston.

NO CHANGE IN CONDITION—The condition of Wylie Phillips is practically the same as it has been for the past few days. His fever is about the same but his physician is of the opinion that he will recover. Many friends in the city hope this prediction is correct.

JUST 30 BELOW — It was just 30 below by the government thermometer this morning. This is the second time this year that the atmosphere has reached that degree of causticness It is reported that all the bananas were slightly frosted in this section.

BODY SHIPPED BACK — The remains of Miss Flora McDonald 30 years of age, niece of a former street commissioner of Crookston who died recently in California arrived in the city this morning and will be buried here Sunday morning. Deceased is a relative of the McDonalds of East Grand Forks who are well known here.

GENERAL REGRET FELT

OVER THE DEPARTURE FROM CROOKSTON OF LOUIS GONYEA AND FAMILY

HAD BEEN HONORED RESIDENTS OF THIS CITY FOR MANY YEARS

From Saturday's Daily—

There is very general regret felt over the departure from this city of Ex-Sheriff Louis Gonyea and family on the N. P. for their new home at Twin Falls, Idaho. Mr. Gonyea was for many years an honored resident of this city having for years served as chief of police before he was elected as sheriff. His sons have been prominent in social and club circles for many years past.

The departure of Attorney and Mrs. C. O. Longley at the same time is also regretted. Mr. Longley has been one of the most honored members of the Polk County Bar Association since he located here and his departure will be sincerely regretted by a large circle of friends. Mrs. Longley's departure will be a decided loss to the musical circles of the city, being one of the most talented vocalists in Crookston.

A BAD FIRE AT CALGARY

MILLING CO., SUSTAINS A LOSS OF $80000 WHICH WAS

FULLY COVERED BY INSURANCE —EXPLOSION HAMPERED THE FIREMEN

From Saturday's Daily—

Calgary, Alta, Jan. 9—The most disasterous fire in several years visited Calgary last night when the 75,000 bushel elevator and flour storage of the Western Milling Co., burned to the ground. The mill was saved by the splendid work of the firemen. At the first sign of fire an explosion took place which shook the neighborhood. The large structure immediately bursting into flames and one side bulging out. A large quantity of wheat was burned but owing to the mill operating night and day to fill orders was not as great as might have been expected. Several cars of grain on the siding was saved by the yard crew rushing thru flames and coupling onto the blazing cars. Loss to the milling company, $80,000 but fully covered by insurance.

FIRST VISIT IN MANY YEARS

Louis Kronk, from Pine City Minn., a nephew of H. G. Ebbighausen is spending a few days in the city and will remain here for several days longer. This is the first time he has seen his uncle in 11 years and consequently the visit is an especially pleasant one.

RECEIVED DRAFT FOR $2,000

Secretary A. A. Glenn of the local lodge of the Modern Brotherhood of America this morning received a draft for $2,000 payable to Mrs. Mary Norrie, widow of the late Harry Norrie, who died Dec. 4, last after a short illness.

The Spirit of Winter

The Spirit of Winter is with us, making its presence known in many different ways—sometimes by cheery sunshine and glistening snows, and sometimes by driving winds and blinding storms. To many people it seems to take a delight in making bad things worse, for rheumatism twists harder twinges sharper, catarrh becomes more annoying, and the many symptoms of scrofula are developed and aggravated. There is not much poetry in this, but there is truth, and it is a wonder that more people don't get rid of these ailments. The medicine that cures them—Hood's Sarsaparilla—is easily obtained and there is abundant proof that its cures are radical and permanent.

Mr. Nels Christianson left this afternoon for Minneapolis where he will join his wife who has been visiting there as the guest of her mother for the past few weeks. Mr. Christianson will be gone for about two weeks on his vacation. Mr. Harry Roberts accompanied him to Minneapolis where he will remain for a few days on business.

RED MEN HAVE RE-ORGANIZED

STATE ORGANIZER J. C. HERBST OF BRAINERD VISITING IN CROOKSTON

LODGE WILL RESUME WORK WITH MEMBERSHIP OF ABOUT 50

Tha-ton, ha wi-tha tribe No. 34, Improved Order of Red Men held a meeting Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows hall following a visit here of several days of J. C. Herbst of Brainerd, state organizer at which time the lodge was reorganized by the election of the following officers:

Prophet, Tim Hastings.
Sachem, W. F. Peterson.
Sr. Sagamore, Chas Hoeft.
Jr. Sagamore, Mike Palen.
Chief of Records, G. S. Chesterman.
Keeper of Wampum, Adolph F. Rauch.

On Wednesday evening of next week the next meeting will be held in the Odd Fellows hall at which time a class ofabout 40 members will be initiated, making a total membership of something over 50.

The order is one of the strongest in the fraternal list and had a very large membership here till lately when conditions arose which resulted in a lack of interest.

Under the new conditions however there is no question but what the local tribe will flourish, and eventually have a larger membership than was ever enjoyed in the past. Organizer Herbst will remain in the city till after the meeting next week.

HELD RAZOR OVER HER

ROSEAU WOMAN OBJECTS TO STRENUOUS PRACTICES OF HUSBAND

MRS. LANGELAND ACCUSES HER HUSBAND OF GREAT BRUTALITY TO HER

From Thursday's Daily—

Anna Langeland yesterday commenced an action for a divorce against Peter Langeland in which she charged defendant with threatening to kill her with a knife, chasing her out in the cold for hours and standing over her with a razor as he told her to say her last prayers. Mrs. Langeland is a resident of Honeyford N. D., while Langeland resides at Roseau, Minn. There are five children. Mrs. Langeland asks alimony. Skulason & Conmy are the attorneys. The suit was started at Grand Forks.

RUGBY BANK IS STILL MUDDLED

RECEIVER SWORDS OF MINOT IS BUSY CHECKING ACCOUNTS BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

The condition of the First National Bank at Rugby, N. D., which was closed yesterday announcement having been made in the Journal last evening is not known. George W. Sword of Minot who was appointed receiver is at Rugby today checking things over and according to word received from the Pierce county seat today, has made no statement as to the condition of the bank.

While the general statement floating at Rugby is that Andy Jones who was cashier of the bank, misappropriated funds belonging to the bank to float loans in the east, there is little credit given to the story and while he has been absent from Rugby for a week, it is thought he will return and straighten out the tangle which was made known yesterday when Assistant Cashier McBride who was in charge, was ordered by the directors to close the doors.

Andy Jones is prominent thruout North Dakota and is a large property holder at Rugby. He was a former resident of Grand Forks and is now mayor of Rugby.

LEAVES TO TAKE UP NEW DUTIES

O. Bielland leaves this evening for Minneapolis to assume his new duties as general agent of the Great Northern Copper Co., and will devote his entire time to the disposal of the stock of that company which has mines near Hinckley, Minn. Since he was named as general agent at a meeting of the directors a short time ago in Minneapolis he has secured several new and very substantial stockholders in Crookston, including some of the most substantial business men who have taken large blocks.

AN INCREASE IN SALARIES

MUNICIPAL COURT IS PAYING SO WELL THAT THE JUDGE TOGETHER

WITH MUNICIPAL CLERK WILL PROBABLY GET AN INCREASE

From Tuesday's Daily—

The statement publishehd in the local papers a few days ago regarding the fine showing of the municipal court covering the past three months since it was established, in which the city treasury has been enriched by nearly $1,000 will probably result in the salaries of Municipal Judge Gossman and Clerk N. B. Moran being materially raised at the nevxt meeting of the council by a new ordinance.

The Judge has been getting but $75 per month and Clerk Moran but $25 and it has been intimated that these will be raised to $100 and $75 respectively.

It was acknowledged from the start that the salaries were too low but as long as the court was an experiment, and till such time as the returns could be ascertained to a certainty that the salaries would remain where first established.

Now that it is known what the revenues are it is probable that the two officers of the court will receive a salary scommonshrdle shre shrdluu salary commensurate with the revenue which the Cit yof Crookston is receiving.

KNIGHTS ENJOY AN EVENTFUL DAY

MANY NEW CANDIDATES INITIATED BY THE K. C. COUNCIL

Members of the Knights of Columbus from many points over the northwest gathered in Grand Forks on Sunday to participate in the exemplification of degree work in the Odd Fellow hall. Scores of visitors were present and the occasion was one of the most notable in the history of the lodges of Grand Forks.

At 9 o'clock the members of the lodge marched to St. Michaels church to attend mass. At 10:30 the work of the lodge was commenced. State Deputy Keating of Fargo and T. F. Griffin and J. B. Keefe of Sioux City Ia., exemplified the three degrees. The degree team of the Grand Forks Council. F. S. Duggan, J. P. Conmy, L. Bartholomew and M. Neville did fine work.

In the evening there was a banquet in the Irish-American hall. F. S. Duggan, grand knight of the local council, acted as toastmaster. Among those who responded to toasts were Thomas Griffin and J. B. Keefe, Sioux City, Ia., J. E. O'Brien, Crookston, Minn., C. H. Anreier Fargo; Judge E. W. Conmy, Pembina; Rev. E. J. Conaty, Grand Forks; J. D. McDonald, Michigan City; Judge Montague, Crookston; J. C. Hart, Grand Forks; and Thomas Coyle, Winnipeg.

Equal to the Occasion.

Michelot, the famous comedian, suffered a great deal from the spite of his colleagues and found it necessary to be on the alert at every performance. On a certain occasion he had to scold a servant in one of Moliere's plays, when the "claque." which had been bribed by his rivals, began to hiss.

Michelot was by no means disconcerted. Giving the servant a couple of blows on the ear, not included in the part, he extemporized as follows:

"You vile scamp of a varlet, there is nothing you think of! There you stand quietly listening to the vermin squeaking in the house and never trouble yourself to get the rat poison!"

The effect of this sally was striking. The audience broke out in loud applause, and no subsequent attempt was made to hiss the actor.

When sparking a girl a young man should at least show a spark of sense.

The man who makes a show of himself seldom gets rich from the gate receipts.

A BILL TO BAR LIQUOR ADS

MOVE TO HEAD OFF EFFORTS TO PROMOTE AN ILLEGAL TRAFFIC IN STATE

FINE AND IMPRISONMENT FOR PUBLISHERS WHO TAKE ADS. OF LIQUOR HOUSES

J. B. Wineman of Grand Forks has prepared a bill which will cut off the revenues of some of the North Dakota newspapers who have been aiding and abbetting liquor dealers. The bill provides that it shall be unlawful for a North Dakota newspaper to print an advertisement for the purchase or sale of intoxicating liquor. A penalty of $25 to $100, fine or imprisonment in the county jail from ten to 30 days is provided. The provisions of the bill in full, follow:

"Section 1. It is hereby declared to be unlawful for any person firm or corporation to print, publish or circulate, within this state, any advertisement for the purchase or sale of intoxicating liquors.

"Section 2. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not less than Twenty-five (25.00) Dollars nor more than One Hundred (100) Dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than ten (10) days or more than thirty (30) days or by both such fine and imprisonment."

BEST YEAR IN HISTORY

GOVERNOR'S REPORT OF GAME AND FISH COMMISSION'S WORK SATISFACTORY

WILD GAME BIRD PROPAGATION —LAW IS GENERALLY FAVORED IN STATE

The past two years has been the most successful in the history of the State Game and Fish Commission. This is not only true in this section of the state, but with the wardens all over the state.

The report is given in full below, and their is considerable local pride in the record of Game Warden Munch From Dec. 1 two years ago to Dec. 1 of last year in this section there were 34 arrests, fines amounting to $710 and 270 days served in jail sentences. During December and thus far in January there have been 11 arrests made $34 in fines assessed and 30 days in jail sentences.

There is a scheme on foot to have the present session of the state legislature pass a law for a universal hunting license, which would require all parties hunting whether in their own county or not to take out a $1 license. This plan is followed in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and other states and has proven very successful. At the present time an appropriation of $35,000 per year sustains the department, and if the proposed law passes the revenue estimated would be $100,000 annually.

It is also proposed to establish a game bird propagation establishment, similar to the present scheme of fish hatcheries, this it is believed would be more economical as well as more successful than the present plan of sending for eggs and hatching them as practiced by the Polk County Game and Fish Protective Association as many of the farmers are not acquainted with the proper methods to pursue. Following is the message of Governor Johnson covering the situation:

The state game and fish commission has during the past two years, expended $165,490.15 for all purposes, including maintenance of the several fish hatcheries, gathering and distribution of fish spawn and fry, salaries and expenses of game wardens and other employes and a number of permanent improvements at fish hatcheries, including the construction of two dwelling houses concrete and cement hatching houses and ponds, a fish car with side track and car shed, the acquisition of lands for hatchery purposes and other expenses and has on hand Dec. 1, 1908, in all funds $32,718.18.

The distribution of fish fry for the two years, 1907 and 1908, to the streams and lakes of the state has been 99,381,300 of all varieties propagated and distributed including the several varieties of trout, pike, perch, crappies and bass. Practically all approved applications for fry have been filled during 1908.

The warden service in the protection of game and fish, and in the enforcement of the law, has been exceptionally efficient. During the biennial period ending Dec. 1, 1908, 659 prosecutions for violations of the game laws have been conducted all but forty of which have resulted in conviction, the total fines imposed having been $10,491.45 and the number of days imprisonment served having been 1,050. Of the prosecutions about half have been for violations of the fishing laws, the balance for violations respecting game birds, deer, moose fur-bearing animals and other miscellaneous provisions. The number of wardens has been increased in the northern part of the state, consequently it has been possible to secure better protection for the big game.

The attitude of the public toward the enforcement of the game laws has greatly improved in many sections of the state as evidenced by the success attained by the wardens.

The commission in its report makes a number of suggestions and recommendations which deserve consideration. It is asked that the present limited resident hunting license system be extended and the universal license system adopted as a source of revenue for the support of the department in its work of protection and as a restrictive measure. It is claimed that the revenues derived from such source would remove the necessity of direct appropriation for enforcement of the laws. The encouragement of the propagation of game birds and animals and food fishes, as a private enterprise is recommended including the sale of game from private preserves under proper restrictions, it being urged that this would tend to remove temptations to engage in illicit traffic in game.

The material value of Minnesota's native game, fish and furbearing animals is tremendous, and constitutes one of her greatest natural resources The number and area of her inland lakes and streams exceed those of any other state, and the present system of artificial propagation of fishes is certain to keep these waters thoroly stocked and one of the most important sources of the food supply of the people conserved and perpetuated. The commission believes that the time has come to extend these efforts to increase the natural and artificial propagation of game as well as of fish, and urges the encouragement of all proposals, state and national, looking toward the dedication of certain areas suited to the purpose as permanent preservation of the moose the largest and most interesting big game animal surviving on the American continent, depends upon the adoption of such a plan.

A system of uniform international regulations designed for the protection and preservation of food fishes in the waters forming the boundary between the United States and Canada has been devised in a code of proposed statutes drafted by the international fisheries commission to take the place of provincial and state laws now in force. Co-operation to secure this reform is recommended.

TAFT IS GIVEN STATE'S VOTE

MINNESOTA GOES SOLIDLY REPUBLICAN AT ELECTION HELD YESTERDAY

EKLUND TO BE MESSENGER —HE DRAWS SLIP THAT SENDS HIM TO WASHINGTON

From Tuesday's Daily—

John J. Eklund of Duluth was yesterday selected by the republican presidential electors of the state to act as messenger to carry to Washington the official ballot of Minnesota for William Howard Taft and James Schoolcraft Sherman for president and vice president of the United States.

The method of drawing lots was adopted as the best means of giving each elector an equal chance of being chosen, and Mr. Eklund was the fortunate man.

Several of the electors desired the honor, and they did not hesitate to make their wishes known. It was also rumored that two or three of the leading candidates were in favor of combining forces and dividing the expense money between them so that more than one could go.

Finally the eleven electors decided to draw lots, and after Mr. Eklund was chosen, the anly remaining thing was to make his selection official by a formal ballot.

Expense Money Ample

The state allows expenses at the rate of 25 cents a mile one way, which amounts to about $275. This would be sufficient to pay the expenses of at least three members.

There was no ill-feeling on account of the disappointment of several of those who had hoped that they would be chosen, as all had an equal chance.

Promptly at noon the eleven electors met in the governor's office as provided by law. Richard F. Thompson of Preston, was elected chairman, and Hiram L. Sumpton, of Hastings, was elected secretary. A. H. Hurretin of Rice, and James E. Melin of Centre City were elected tellers.

There was a little good-natured joking in regard to giving Governor Johnson a complimentary vote, and one of the electors had to ask what Mr. Sherman's first name was but the result of the ballots was unanimous for the republican candidates.

Dunn's Little Joke

Andrew C. Dunn of Winnebago City and Gov. Johnson indulged in a few pleasantries which were an incident of the gathering. Mr. Dunn's sight has been impaired on acount of old age. He asked the governor to assist him by writing his ballots for him.

"This is the first time I ever had a governor act as private secretary for me," said the veteran republican. 'My old friend Gov. Ramsey used to write for me and then ask me to 'have something,'" he added.

"Well, the times have changed since then" said the governor. 'Now it is the custom for people to ask the governor to 'have something.'"

Guests of Eklund

After the meeting adjourned the electors were tendered a dinner at Carling's by Mr. Eklund who took this means of acknowledging the honor conferred upon him.

The following are the electors, all of whom were present: John J. Eklund Duluth; Job W. Lloyd, Le Sueur; Richard F. Thompson, Preston; Andrew C. Dunn, Winnebago City; Dr. Hiram L. Sumpton, Hastings; James E. Melin, Center City; Stewart Gamble, Minneapolis; A. H. Turretin, Rice; Thorbjorn Anderson, Milan; Daniel Anderson, Cambridge, and Eugene J. Herringer, Ada.

Hub—But if you like the young fellow, Kate, why do you object to our daughter marrying him?

Wife—Oh, she'll marry him for all that, but I want to give her a chance to say when they quarrel that "mother didn't want me to marry you, anyway."—Boston Transcript.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL SESSION OF STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

IS NOW BEING HELD IN THE COURT HOUSE IN MINNEAPOLIS

From Tuesday's Daily—

The fiftieth annual meeting of the Minnesota State Agricultural society is being held in the court house at Minneapolis today, Wednesday and Thursday. This afternoon and Wednesday morning the sessions will be under the direction of the Minnesota Live Stock Breeders' association.

B. F. Nelson president of the society, opened the meeting at 9:30 a. m. today. The morning session will be devoted to the naming of committees and to the hearing of an address by Prof. Frank A. Weld president of the Normal school at Moorhead, on "The State Fair as an Educational Institution." The discussion of the address will be led by E. W. Randall, William E. Lee and J. J. Furlong. "Sciences and Agricultural Schools" will be handled by Prof. John H. Gray professor of economics at the state university.

The importance of women's work at the state fair is to be the subject of discussion at the Tuesday evening session. Papers will be read by Mrs. E. M. LaPenotiere Minneapolis, one on "Beautifying the Grounds" by Fred Nussbaumer superintendent of St. Paul parks; "Needs of the Agricultural Department at the State Fair," by Arthur Cooper, St. Cloud, and "Flowers at the State Fair" by Theodore Wirth superintendent of parke Minneapolis .

Two state fair managers will be elected in place of J. M. Underwood, Lake City, and L. D. Baird, Austin. It is expected that a great effort will be made to get on the board at least one man who will have the dairymen's interests at heart. The dairymen, it is said, will bring forward as their candidate either Editor, Shilling of the Northfield Dairy Bulletin, or Robert Crickmore, president of the State Dairymen's association. In the election of the officers there is little interest, as it is thought to be a foregone conclusion that the present officers will be re-elected.

The Minnesota Field Crop Breeder's association will hold its session Wednesday afternoon when James J. Hill will deliver the opening address.

The Minnesota Live Stock Breeders' association will dominate the Tuesday afternoon and the Wednesday forenoon sessions.

Praise for Steenerson

Representative Steenerson is working hard this session. Besides his postal savings bill, he has a measure for the improvement of the rivers, and lakes of Northern Minesota and has likewise prepared for introduction a bill authorizing the secretary of the interior to sell without advertisement small tracts of pine land in Indian reservations. It has been found that there are several isolated tracts on which there is a quantity of merchantable timber that could be sold for the benefit of the Indians. Under the present law, however, it is necessary to advertise each one of these tracts at a large expense, and it is doubtful if any profit could be made on the transaction. Steenerson's bill will obviate the necessity of separate advertising and will enable the secretary to sell timber and to get some money from the Indians from this source.—Thief River Press.

FOUR DELEGATES FROM CROOKSTON

WILL ATTEND FEDERATION OF MINNESOTA COMMERCIAL CLUBS IN ST. PAUL

SENATOR STEPHENS, SUPT. WM. ROBERTSON, T. R. BROWN AND T. R. JOHNSTONE

From Tuesday's Daily—

Wednesday evening Supt. Wm. Robertson of the State Experiment farm here, Sec. T. R. Brown of the 25,000 Club and Thomas R. Johnstone will leave for St. Paul where they will attend the second annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs. Senator A. D. Stephens, who was also named as a delegate by President H. C. Misner is already there and will be heard from.

Supt. Robertson will, on Thursday lead the discussion on the paper to be delivered by Hon. E. M. Randall on "Minnesota as an Agricultural State and the Necessity of Developing the State's Resources."

This will be one of the most important features of the convention which will be by far the most important ever held in the state from a development and immigration standpoint.

Following is the program of the convention:

VERDICT RENDERED FOR THE DEFENDENT

The jury in the case of Slendorf vs. Louis Gonyea as the sheriff of Polk county late this afternoon returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. Last summer Sheriff Gonyea made a levy on some goods held by Slendorf, in the Town of Fanny under a suit started by a man named Peterson, and the sheriff was protected by a bond as usual. However the bond was not necessary in this instance as the proceedings were decided strictly regular and legal in every respect.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Lillie Patterson and R. H. Patterson, her husband, mortgagors, to L. D. Foskett, mortgagee, dated March 5, 1908, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, on April 14, 1908 at 3:10 o'clock P. M. in book 152 of mortgages on page 202 thereof; that the mortgagors herein have failed to pay $34.17 due October 1, 1908, said sum being due under a certain mortgage executed by the parties named as mortgagors herein and in favor of said L. D. Foskett and by him assigned, which mortgage is a prior lien upon the land hereinafter described, said sum being represented by a certain coupon note bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum after maturity and that there is now due the said L. D. Foskett thereon, under and by virtue of the terms of the mortgage first referred to, the sum of $34.65, he having paid said sum to the holder of said prior mortgage; that said mortgage provided for a reasonable attorney's fee to be paid by said mortgagors upon the foreclosure of the mortgage herein described, and the sum of $25.00 is a reasonable attorney's fee for such foreclosure; that in addition to the sum of $34.65 paid by L. D. Foskett on said coupon note and the sum of $25.00 for attorney's fees, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage the sum of $82.35; making a total due of the sum of $117.00 at this date together with the sum of $25.00 attorney's fees; that by virtue of said default the power of sale in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof; that the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are the northwest fractional quarter of section number 5 in township number 148 north of range number 45 west of the 5th principal meridian, situate in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota; that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on February 20, 1909, at 2 o'clock P. M., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, including amount of said coupon note and $25.00 attorney's fees, and the costs of such sale.

Dated January 7, 1909.

HORRIBLE CRIME WAS COMMITTED

NORTH DAKOTA MAN MURDERS HIS WIFE THEN CUTS HIS OWN THROAT

CRIME COMMITTED IN THE PRESENCE OF THEIR NINE YEAR OLD DAUGHTER

From Tuesday's Daily—

Word was received in this city at a late hour this afternoon that a horrible crime had been committed on the farm of Henry H. Bentley near St. John, N. D. and as a result both Bentley and his wife are dead.

It would seem according to the reports received that Bentley who is a well known farmer in that section became jealous of his wife and a farm laborer. Yesterday he found them playing cards together. He did not say anything until after the laborer had departed. Then he upbraided his wife, but nothing of a serious nature developed until bed time. His wife then refused to retire for the night.

Bentley said that he would see whether she would or not and stepping into an adjoining room, returned in a few minutes and going over to his wife without a word of warning drew a razor fro mhis pocket and before she could offer any resistence slashed her throat from ear to ear. He then walked out of the room and out into the yard. He then slashed his own throat, dropped the razor in the well and went back to his room.

The horrible tragedy was witnessed by his nine year old daughter who as soon as possible notified the nearest neighbor. When help reached the house howerver it was entirely too late and in a short time both man and woman were dead.

A coroner's inquest has been held an da verdict returned charging Bentley with having committed murder and then suicide. Besides the child who witnessed the deed there are five other younger children.

FORGER CAME TO GRIEF

TOO STRONG WITH GRAFT I. B. LUCKEN, ALIAS IRVINE YOUNG

CHECK ARTIST, PASSES WORTHLESS PAPER—IS NOW IN JAIL

From Monday's Daily—

C. I. Lucken, (alias Irvine Young) came to grief in Bemidji last evening being arrested after having passed and had cashed a bogus check for $224 and after he had successfully escaped from a Kelliher officer while in custody of the latter on a moving train yesterday morning on his way to the Beltrami county jail from Kelliher, jumping from the train at Turtle River.

Lucken (who gave the name of Irvine Young to the Kelliher authorities) entered Gill Bros.' Hub clothing store and bought a large quantity of clothing, shoes etc., tendering a check on the logging firm of Ross & Ross in the sum of $224 in payment for his purchases.

The appearance of Young was so straightforward and apparently honest that the clerk had no hesitancy in cashing the check Young having been in the store last fall and paid cash for some goods. Young left the store, and the proprietors thought nothing of the transaction.

Later in the evening ex-Deputy Sheriff J. N. Bailey told the Gill Bros. of having ridden on the train from which Young has escaped, in the morning, and the check yas produced, Mr Bailey unhesitatingly pronouncing the check a forgery.

Search was made for Young and he was finally located on the street, Messrs. Phil Gill and J. N. Bailey taking charge of him and searching him. Practically all the money exchanged for the check was found in Young's pockets, after which he was turned over to the police.

Young was searched and on his person was found a card certifying that the bearer (C. I. Lucken) was a member of Webster's Detective agency, and a star accompanied the card.

The prisoner was lodged in the county jail and will be held awaiting the disposal of the various charges against him, he having forged two other checks, at Kelliher bearing the signature of Ross & Ross.

Graft by any other name would produce as many plums.

THE ANNUAL MEETING

Historical Society

OF THE 25,000 C[illegible]IAL CLUB WILL TAKE PLA[illegible]AN-UARY 22

BUSINESS MEETING WILL BE HELD IN THE AFTERNOON—BANQUET IN EVENING

From Monday's Daily—

The present week promises to be one of the greatest importance as regards its relation to the future. Next Friday the annual meeting of the 25,000 Commercial Club will take place and preparations are being made to make it an event which will be felt thruout the present year and probably will have an effect upon the entire future of the city.

The committee on arrangements has been putting considerable thought into the matter and the result is that there is every indication that one of the most successful civic meetings that has ever been held in northwestern Minnesota will result.

The meeting will be for the purpose of winding up the work of the present administration and inaugurating the new officers who will be chosen at the meeting. Reports of all committees will be read and the different officers will report on the work which has been accomplished in the different departments of club activity.

Will Discuss the Future

During the sessions there will be a free and full discussion of the work of the club for the future and the different lines of activity which will be undertaken. This should be of the greatest interest to every citizen as it will mean the greatest benefit to every business house and institution in the city.

At the present time the club has a comparatively large membership, but it should within the coming year be doubled and to this end the work of the club will be planned. There is no question but that during the next twelve months the work and activities of the organization will be greatly enlarged and every line and form of civic activity will be undertaken.

Program for the Event

The meeting will be called to order by President H. C. Misner at 3 o'clock sharp in the new council chamber in the city hall. It is most desirable that every member be present at this time as owing to the great amount of business on hand it will be most desirable to start the meeting on time and carry forward the program without delay. The first session will adjourn at 5:30 o'clock and then reconvene at 7:30 o'clock in the same room The business meeting will then adjourn at 9 o'clock the hour set for the sumptuous banquet at the Hotel Crookston. This social function will also begin promptly on time on account of number of out-of-town visitors who will be present and will have to take the late trains.

Some Program Features

The committee and the secretary have made arrangements to have a number of the leading men of the state present at this meeting to deliver addresses and there is not a speaker invited to be present who will not be of the greatest interest.

Col. R. A. Wilkinson, of St. Paul altho extremely busy at the present time, has accepted an invitation to be present and will deliver an address which will be of the greatest interest to every citizen. It is needless to attempt to dilate upon the ability of Col. Wilkinson to entertain and instruct and were he the only speaker on the program there is no question but that the meeting would be well worth attending.

As business men will predominate at the annual meeting an invitation has been extended to Mr. W. L. Harris, of Minneapolis, and he has accepted. Mr. Harris is head of the Publicity Club of Minneapolis, an active worker in the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs and one of the leading business men of the Twin Cities and in fact of the great state of Minnesota. His address before the recent convention in St. Paul was one of the features and there is no doubt but that he will be greeted by an audience which will do him justice Mr. Harris is an earnest worker in the campaign for state development and he will have something well worth listening to.

Curtis L. Mosher secretary of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs and also manager of the Combined Publicity Bureaus of St. Paul will also be present. He has the reputation of being one of the best publicity men in the entire northwest. he is a strong speaker and will have something to tell the members of the local club which will be both helpful and interesting. His time is in great demand and Crookston is to be congratulated that it is given the opportunity of hearing him.

HOME FROM GREAT ST. PAUL GATHERING

Secretary Brown Reports The Big Gathering Of Federation Of Commercial Clubs Of Minnesota.

From Monday's Daily—

Secretary T. R. Brown, Jr., of the 25,000 Commercial Club, returned yesterday morning from St. Paul where he was in attendance at the annual convention of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs. Prof. Robertson returned Saturday morning and Thomas R. Johnstone, the other delegate, is expected back tomorrow morning.

According to the secretary the convention was a great success from every viewpoint and thru its deliberations a decided step forward was taken in the work of boosting Minnesota and the motto of the federation, "Keep Pushing" will prevail thruout the coming year.

During the convention, Mr. Brown, states that Crookston was decidedly in it. Prof. Robertson delivered a fine address Thursday afternoon which provoked one of the most intertesting discussions of the entire session. Mr. Johnstone was ever ready to let it be known that Crookston was on the map and his participation in the different discussions added greatly to the success of the meeting. The informal address of Senator A. D. Stephens Thursday evening was one of the features of the convention and elicited warm praise and applause.

Senator Stephens was selected as the first vice president of the federation, while Clyde Pryor of Bemidji, was re-elected as a member of the executive committee from the Ninth Congressional District. Mr. Neil [illegible] Red Wing and Curtis L. Mosher of St. Paul, were re-elected as president and secretary respectively.

"The convention was a decided success from every viewpoint," stated Mr. Brown this morning. "The greatest interest was manifested and maintained without a break during the entire convention. It was a difficult matter to bring some of the sessions to a close at meal time, the discussions being so spirited that the delegates did not care to bring them to a close. I have never attended a convention where the interest was more intense.

"The convention took decided ground on a number of propositions. It was decided to ask the present session of the state legislature to appropriate $100000 per year for advertising the state. There was absolutely no opposition to this proposition, delegates from the rural districts and the smaller towns being as enthusiastic as those from the larger cities. The only question that came up was how this money was to be spent.

"The proposition of encouraging the farmers to better farming and the improving of his conditions, as suggested by the Polk County Growers' Association organized by Senator Stephens a short time ago, met with great favor and was believed to be one of the fundamental projects to be carried out if the state is to progress as it should. The senator was also endorsed in the convention action upon the agricultural school legislation. The convention was in favor of the district school in opposition to the county system and in addition endorsed the Davis agricultural school bill now before congress.

"Good roads and good roads legislation received a big boost. This subject was thoroly discussed and it was the opinion of every delegate that the legislature should at once take under consideration the matter and give the most hearty encouragement to the building and construction of good roads in all sections of the state.

"Other matters were taken up, but as a full and complete report will be made at the annual meeting of the commercial club next Friday, I will not now forestall that. It was a great convention and showed that the commercial clubs of the state were taking hold of matters with an enthusiasm that will mean much for the future of the commonwealth."

Mr. Brown stated that there were many most excellent and eloquent addresses made during the meeting and he reports being fortunate enough to secure some of the best speakers who appeared at the convention for the annual meeting next Friday. The federation is greatly interested in northwestern Minnesota and when invited to participate in the meeting in this city the prominent men responded most willingly. Their presence at the meeting will without doubt be of the greatest interest and will help to make the annual meeting one of the most successful and enthusiastic ever held in Crookston.

TWIN DIVORCE SUITS TRIED IN ST. PAUL

On the editorial page will be found an article on the curses of the present free and easy divorce system at present in vogue in the United States. In line with this the following account of twin divorce suits brought in St. Paul as reported from the St. Paul Dispatch will be of interest. The story follows:

"The sequel to the divorce case of Caroline John against Carl John recently tried in the district court is the cose of Fredericka Zeibell, against Chas. Zeibell on trial before Judge George L. Bunn today. In each suit the four parties named bore prominent parts and the grounds in both instances as well as the witnesses and the opposing attorneys were the same

"The case today was a sort of a "tit for tat" divorce brought by Mrs. Zeibell against Charles Zeibell whom she accused among other things of being a "sweetheart" of Mrs. John. In the divorce case of Mrs. John against Carl John, Mrs. John made her principal allegation the charge that her husband was attentive to Mrs. Zeibell.

"Mr. John in the first suit, accused his wife of entertaining Mr. Zeibell and further to complicate matters, Zeibell in his answer to the proceedings brought by Mrs. Zeibell charged that she allowed Mr. John to call on her. Unravelling this tangled condition of the two complaints and separate answers, the allegations are to the effect that while one wife was entertaining the other's husband, the other was receiving attention from the first wife's husband.

Other allegations, in both cases, were cruelty, and to substantiate the charges made in each case, children of both parties were called as witnesses. George Gerlach, Jr., appeared as attorney in the first case of Mrs. John, and in the second case for Mrs. Zeibell, and Attorney Schmidt, of Schmidt, Newman & Olson, appeared in the first case for Mrs. John and in the second for Mr. Zeibel.

"Judge William Kelly, in the John case granted Carl John an absolute divorce on the grounds of infidelity, having found true the allegation that Mrs. John had been intimate with Zeibell, which allegation did not have to be proved in the second case, now under consideration. The allegations of cruelty were found untrue against Mr. John.

"Judge Bunn heard the arguments of both attorneys in the Zeibell case today and then took it under advisement. In settling it he will have to be guided much on the files and allegations in the John case."

A broken promise cannot be mended so that it will look like new.

It always seems the height of impudence in a man to be smarter than we are.

SHORT LINE FROM DULUTH TO PEG

BUILDING OF NEW LINE EXPECTED IN THE NEAR FUTURE

DULUTH WILL BE CENTER OF RAILROAD ACTIVITY FOR YEARS

From Tuesday's Daily—

The purchase of the Wisconsin Central railroad by the Canadian Pacific interests means much to Duluth. A Minneapolis business man, who has been for many years largely interested in Duluth, and who is in a position to learn accurately what is going on "behind the scenes" in the railroad world, writes the following letter:

"The invasion of Canada by the lines of the Great Northern railway and the making of rates to Duluth the same as to Port Arthur have brought the Soo and Canadian Northern roads to Duluth, with their extensions in the United States, much sooner than intended or expected. The acquisition of the Wisconsin Central by the Soo railway is the most important move ever made in the Northwest for the benefit of Duluth. It must result in a new short line being built from Duluth to Winnipeg. With three great lines from Duluth thru the Canadian Northwest, it seems the territory for all time. Trade lines will prove stronger than boundary lines. All future railroads of Canada will not be complete without a line to Duluth. It is logical and what we have all dreamed would come true some time but is now a fact. Railroad activiay with Duluth as a center is certain for several years. You can thank Mr. Hill for it all."

To Shorten Line

A Milwaukee dispatch says: Six million dollars will be expended by the Canadian Pacific railway in the construction of a new Wisconsin Central cutoff on the route between Minneapolis and Chicago. This announcement made authoritively today, is the first concerning plans for the improvement of the Wisconsin Central property acquired Friday by the Soo and Canadian Pacific interests.

It is intended to make the new line of the Central one of the shortest between the Twin Cities and Chicago, instead of the longest as it is at present. The construction of the proposed cutoff will be one of the most important railway projects to be undertaken in Wisconsin the approaching summer. The line will be an extension of the Stevens Point-Portage division to a point on the present Chicago line probably striking the old main line at Burlington in Racine county. It will be about 140 miles long.

Surveys for the new road have been made. They call for a line extending from Portage, in Columbia county, in a southeasterly direction across the northern corner of Dane county touching Dodge county at the southwestern corner, passing diagonally across Jefferson county southeast and northwest, cutting the northeast corner of Walworth county and into Racine county. At Burlington it will encounter the present main line of the Wisconsin Central. Several important towns will be touched by the proposed new road. It will pass thru Waterloo, Jefferson Palmyra and many smaller places.

The Wisconsin Central has labored under a disadvantage in bidding for business for the far northwest in that its line between Chicago and Minneapolis is longer than the lines of competing companies.

BIG BLIZZARD ANNIVERSARY

JUST 21 YEARS AGO WHEN GREAT BLIZZARD TOOK PLACE IN NORTHWEST

GRETA HEROISM WAS SHOWN BY THE PLUCKY SCHOOL TEACHER

From Saturday's Daily—

Many of the old timers during the past few days have recalled the fact that Thursday, Jan. 14 was the 21st anniversary of one of the most terrible storms in the history of the north west. While it lasted but one after noon and one night the casualties were numerous, the escapes still more so and the suffering very general both to man and beast.

Minnesota got but the tail end of the storm, the center seemingly having raged in North and South Dakota Montana and Nebraska. There were scores of stories told of the terrible sufferings, miraculous escapes, and many deaths of teachers and school children, and nothing ever illustrated the heroic character of the school teachers, male and female, specially the latter as there are more of them, than did this great storm. The storm was severe here, and many were caught out in it. The worst victim was a Bohemian, who was caught by the suddenness of the storm and took refuge in a haystack on Section 13 in the town of Keystone. He tried to set fire to the stack but used all his matches in vain and then as a last resort dug his way into the stack and remained there all night.

At daylight next morning he crawled out and staggered half frozen to the Teal farm and he was at once driven to the Keystone farm where restoratives were applied by J. D. McPhee, now mayor of Crookston but then "Foreman Jack McPhee" and Bob Gaston, who also supplied him with a change of clothing and he was soon able to be taken to the home of a neighboring friend. The back of his neck and wrists were frozen but he recovered eventually. Minnesota was the only northwestern state during the storm in which no lives were lost.

ROSES AND SUNSHINE

FINE EDITION OF THE PASADENA DAILY NEWS RECEIVED IN CROOKSTON

MISNER AND MISNER HAVE A FINE ADVERTISEMENT IN THE EDITION

The Journal this morning received a very much appreciated edition of the Pasadena News—the New Years number—in which "The Tournament of Roses" is fully exploited.

The edition is one which does great credit not only to the newspapers but to the advertisers as well. It shows very conclusively that the business men of Pasadena are loyal to their own city.

We also notice that Misner and Misner have a very attractive advertisement. The firm is composed of C. E. Misner a former alderman and resident of this city for many years, and Harvey W. Misner son of Chase Misner of the Wheeler Misner Loan Co. of this city and they are among the best boosters that Pasadena has. Both of them have secured scores of people from northwestern Minnesota for Pasadena, and have spared no pains or expense in showing the advantages of that section of the country as a grand place for winter residence.

The edition from start to finish is a credit to Pasadena and to the News and those fortunate enough to receive a copy have thoroly enjoyed reading every page from cover to cover.

GRAIN THIEF HAS BEEN PLACED UNDER ARREST

Mike Kiderofsky, Whom Officials Have Been Looking For All Over State, Landed At Bemidji. Chief Eck Notified This Morning.

From Thursday's Daily—

This morning Chief Eck was notified by the chief of police at Bemidji that Mike Kiderefsky had been arrested there and would be held for the officials of Polk Co. Deputy Pat Sullivan was in Bemidji at the time on other business and was wired to bring Kiderefsky back.

Kiderefsky has a bad record in northern Minnesota but the crime he is wanted for here is the theft of about 150 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of oats from a granary on the farm of Charles Ross, a well known farmer in Fanny township.

Stole from Employer

Kiderefsky worked on the Ross farm all summer, but blew his money in the sporting houses here as fast as he could draw it. Early in the fall Mr. Ross noticed wheat disappearing from his granary which is located about half a mile from the home place. He kept watch for a return of the thief but was never able to land him.

Finally Ross came to this city and notified Chief Eck who discovered that Kiderefsky late in December had hired a team from Laliberti's livery barn for a drive in the country. The same day he returned and next day sold a load of wheat to the Crookston Milling Co.

Trailed by Officials

Deputy Sheriff Sullivan returned day before yesterday from Little Falls where he learned that Kiderefsky had a small farm and where he had lived before his wife died. Kiderefsky however could not be located, and fears were entertained that as he was so slipery a customer he never would be landed. He will be brought back to Crookston this evening and will have a hearing at once.

Banks Touched

The same man will have to answer to other charges also. In one bank he secured about $50 by giving a morgage on a bunch of cattle that he did not, and never had owned. At another bank he secured $50 on a farm mortgage the amount asked being so small that the bank officials did not look into the ownership of the land.

THE CROOKSTON BANKS SOLID AS GIBRALTER

ANNUAL ELECTION OF DIRECTORS BY STOCKHOLDERS AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS SHOWED UTMOST CONFIDENCE REPOSED IN THE MEN WHO HAVE DIRECTED THE AFFAIRS OF LOCAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS—PAST YEAR HAS BEEN A PROSPEROUS ONE FOR ALL OF THEM AND DESPITE FLURRY OF A YEAR AGO, THEY ALL SHOWED INCREASED VOLUME OF BUSINESS

Yesterday in Crookston the bank elections passed off without any excitement whatever, the stockholders in the different institutions believing that the administration of the banks during the past year were entitled to a vote of confidence. The result was that no changes have so far been reported on the several boards of directors and the same report is made relative to the subsequent election of officers by the directors.

Every bank in Crookston shows that the past year has prospered materially, each institution being able to show a gain over the previous 12 months and are in a stronger condition than ever before. While financial flurry of a little over a year ago was felt severely in all sections of the country, the impression it made in Crookston was materially less than in any other section of the country and depositors were at no time in danger of losing a cent. The city's financial institutions are all in a flourishing condition: Following is the result of the elections:

First National Bank

The stockholders selected the following directors: William Anglim, E. M. Walsh, J. R. Mc Kinnon, H. C. Misner, S. A. Wallace, J. W. Wheeler, A. D. Wheeler. This is the same board as for 1908. After the election of directors, the following officers were selected: President, J. W. Wheeler, vice president William Anglim, cashier, C. F. Mix, assistant cashier, Harry Marsh. There was no change in the personnel of the officers.

Scandia American Bank

The stockholders of the Scandia American bank decided that no change was necessary in the board of directors of that institution will be under the direction of the same board, which is as follows: J. P. Foote, C. C. Strander, Charles Loring, George Carpenter, Halvor Steenerson, A. A. Miller, L. Ellington, F. E. McGregor, H. Holte. The directors selected the following officers: J. P. Foote, president; Halvor Steenerson and C. C. Strander, vice presidents; L. Ellington cashier; F. E. McGregor, Oscar Fredricks assistant cashiers. The only change made in the officers was the election of Mr. Fredricks as assistant cashier.

Merchants National Bank

The stockholders of the Merchants National Bank held a short meeting yesterday and decided to adjourn the annual election until next Monday, consequently the new board was not selected. The board for 1908 was as follows: A. D. Stephens, Virgil McGregor, J. H. Petterson, Max Ericsson A. Braley, John Moore, John Cromb. The officers were: John Cromb, president; Max Ericsson, vice president; A. D. Stephens, cashier; Virgil McGregor, assistant cashier. Owing to the death of the president Mr. Cromb, a change will be made both in the personnel of the officers and the board of directors.

The Bank of Crookston does not elect till next June.

THE GOVERNOR AND THE LEGISLATURE

Madison Independent Press: The legislature of Minnesota is in session and the capital of this state will be the camping ground of the lobbyist and grafter for the next ninety days.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: John A. Johnson was inaugurated governor of Minnesota for the third time at noon on Wednesday. Minnesota is one of the bigger states of the Union and it has a governor that is making the state bigger all the time.

Bemidji Sentinel: This cold weather should soon let up with that hot wave due from St. Paul where the solons are congregated. They say things are warming up down there.

Ortonville Herald Star: The legislature and the governor quarreled a little about the doorkeepers and spittoon cleaners to start with but the governor won out as he should. To the victors belong the spoils, spittoons and all.

Thief River Press: The legislature held its opening session on Tuesday. The chances for reapportionment look rather poor. Too many aspiring statesmen from small counties would lose their present jobs to make the idea appeal strongly to the aforesaid statesmen.

Mankato Daily Free Press: The passless legislator is now in full bloom in St. Paul.

Litchfield Independent: The coming session of the legislature will have a "people's lobby" to keep tab on the members to see that they stay true to their oaths and campaign pledges. Now let there be a delegation selected to watch the people's lobby and see that they attend to their knitting, and the legislative woodchucks will be headed off—some of them.

Lake Crystal Union: Governor Johnson in his address, "The Majesty of the Law," delivered in New Jersey, said that he did not believe that the infliction of the death pentaly for a capital crime acted as a determent to law breakers. Nor anybody else that believes in humanity. The taking of —a life does not restore the one taken, but adds another to the list of the number dead. The best, the most human way is to confine the one who takes the life of a human being, to send the murderer to prison for life.

Walker Pilot: The state legislators started in Tuesday to work out their ninety days of "hard labor." which they were sentenced by popular vote early last November.

Brainerd Daily Dispatch: A short session of the legislature is predicted If an adjournment is taken as soon as the real work of the session is done and that work is taken up at once, sixty days will suffice to complete it.

NINETY-EIGHT MILES RIDDEN BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Jan. 16—President Roosevelt rode 98 miles on horseback yesterday and when he dismounted last night at the White House door, more than 17 hours after having departed therefrom, he did not show any marked signs of weariness. The object of his long day in the saddle, as he explained to a representative of the Associated Press, after his return, was to "prove to the critics who have found fault with the recent order ordering all army and navy officers to take a physical test, that if a president, who is not in training can ride 90 miles plus in one day without being laid in bed thereby, it should not be too much to ask the men who are supposed to be in the best of physical training all the time to ride 90 miles in three days."

Mounting his faithful rider and jumper "Roswell" in front of the White House door at 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning, he dismounted at the same place at 8:40 o'clock last night. The journey was to Warrentown, Va., and back "and Virginia roads in the winter time," said the president, "are not usually in the best condition." With the president were Dr. Rixey, surgeon general of the navy; Dr. Carey Grayson, and Captain Archibald Butt, one of the president's aides.

Through Sleet and Rain.

On the return trip the last thirty miles were in almost pitch darkness, sleet and rain, while the last fifteen miles were in almost pitch darkness. Arriving at the Aqueduct bridge, across the Potomac, the president refused to take the carriage which was waiting there for him. When he dismounted his coat and hat were frozen stiff with sleet and ice. There were four relays of horses, the first stage of the journey out and the last in being made by the president on "Roswell," the second out, and the third in being on "Gergia," while the other two were on army horses which the president had never before mounted.

As the four horseback riders, followed by two policemen on wheels and the empty carriage drove into the sheet shimmering grounds surrounding the executive mansion, the president, in front with his broad brimed black slouch hat down over his face, presented a striking picture.

Both the outward and return trip lay through Fairfax court house to Warrenton. Arriving at the latter place about 11 o'clock, where the president's coming had been heralded an hour or so before his arrival, he was greeted by a gathering of citizens and school children, to whom he spoke a few words of greeting. They took luncheon at the Warrenton Green hotel. When they started to return, after a short rest, the master of the hunt of the Warrenton Hunt club accompanied them for a few miles.

No Weariness.

In less than an hour after returning to the White House, the president had changed his ice coated clothing for evening dress and appeared in the dining room, ready for as hearty a meal as he has eaten for a long time.

If any of the critics of his "army riding order" had dropped in about that time they would have been sadly disappointed, for the president did not show in the least that he had been sitting for nearly seventeen hours in a hard saddle.

ELEVEN PHYSICIANS GET CERTIFICATES

ARE ADMITTED TO PRACTICE AT MEETING OF NORTH DAKOTA EXAMINING BOARD

Eleven physicians who took the examination in Grand Forks last week were admitted at a meting of the examining board in Fargo last evening. Seven were admitted by examination and four by reciprocity. The following were admitted by examination: DeWitte Baer Driscol, N. D.; C. Jelstrop, Hendrum, Minn.; N. A. Munro, Bowman; W. A. Plourd, Overly; C. I. Healy, Deer River; R. H. Beach and A. Householder.

L. H. Labbitt, Enderlin; F. T. Osnabrock, S. A. Zimmerman were admitted by reciprocity.

Mrs. Lizzie Schafer yesterday presented a claim against the city of Grand Forks for damages in the sum of $15,000 which she claims because of injuries received on International avenue, near Ninth street, as a result of slipping on the sidewalk. There was an accumulation of snow and ice, she asserts, and the fall resulted in serious complications which affected her health to an alarming extent.

She is still ill as a result of the accident, which occurred on Dec. 16, she sets forth. It is her theory that the city was negligent in allowing the snow and ice to remain on the sidewalk.

By informal afternoon tea is not meant the elaborate function sometimes called a tea; it merely means to most women a little informal 5 o'clock tea to which a few of one's dearest friends have come. As every hostess likes to show her individuality, hints for little changes in what may be served are always welcomed. Tea or coffee, hot biscuits with perhaps a little delicious honey or marmalade make an excellent combination for these chill winter days. If something elaborate is desired wafers and ices might be added.

There is no case on record of a cough cold or la grippe developing into pneumonia after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it cures the most obstinate deep seated coughs and colds. Why take anything else. Sold by all druggists.

TELEPHONES FOR GREAT NORTHERN

INSTALLING OF SYSTEM IN WESTERN N. DAKOTA & MONTANA NEARLY COMPLETED

The work of installing a telephone system for dispatching trains on the Minot division of the Great Northern from Devils Lake to Williston, 239 miles, is nearly finished. It is to extend from Wiliston to Cutbank, Mont., over the Montana division 437 miles, and also along the Butte division, which covers 507 miles. As the Great Northern is already dispatching the trains on its Willmar division, covering 203 miles, by telphone, this will give a grand total of 1,386 miles.

The Northern Pacific, which for some time has been dispatching trains between St. Paul and Fargo by telephone, as well as blocking them in the same manner is about to put in a telephone blocking system between Trout Creek, Mont., and Spokane, a distance of 125 miles, on its Idaho systems. Trains will still be dispatched over this division by telegraph.

DEMANDS $10,000 FOR DEATH OF HIS SON

Duluth, Jan. 16—Suit was begun in the district court yesterday against the Duluth Street Railway Company by James McDonald, who claims $10,000 for the death of his little son, who was run over and killed by a street car at Superior, Dec. 17, 1907.

The case was on trial all day yesterday before Judge Dibell, and will be continued today. James McDonald, Jr., the victim, was struck by a car on Tower avenue at Eighth street, when he started to cross the street. It is alleged in the suit that the street car company's employes were negligent.

Samuel A. Anderson, of St. Paul, and Warner E. Whipple, of Duluth, appear for Mr. McDonald, and Thomas Wood and Frank Ross are attorneys for the street railway company.

A Winter Love Song.

The sad fields veiled in falling snow—
They are not sad to me;
Not chill to me the winds that blow,
However chill they be.
The eddying flakes that speed away;
With music they drift down
Through myriad lacing branches gray,
On dead leaves crisp and brown.

No bloom upon the whit'ning hill,
No leaf upon the tree;
The music is sad music—still
It is not sad to me.
For song, with my heart's muffled might
My love's sweet breast is warm and white,
And softer than the snow.

UNCLE SAM'S BILLS HARD TO SWALLOW

B. CLARK MAKES UNSUCCESSFUL ATTEMPT TO GET RID OF STOLEN MONEY—TRANSIENT IS ARRESTED IN GRAND FORKS ON CHARGE OF LULU WOODS A MESSENGER GIRL OF EAST GRAND FORKS THAT HE STOLE A TEN DOLLAR BILL FROM HER—CHIEF OVERBY FINDS HIM TRYING TO CHEW UP TWO BILLS REPRESENTING CHANGE OF STOLEN MONEY

The fact that he was unable to chew and swallow a five and one dollar bill makes a complete chain of evidence against B. Clark arrested yesterday on a charge of larceny for stealing a $10 bill from Lulu Woods in the East Grand Forks messenger service office. Clark was arrested by Chief Overby in Grand Forks and after considerable persuasion was induced to accompany Chief Ellington to East Grand Forks. He was held in $200 bonds and his preliminary hearing set for two o'clock today in Judge Sullivan's court at that place.

The story of Clark's arrest and his subsequent unsuccessful attempt to make tobacco of a couple of Uncle Sam's bank notes is of more than ordinary interest. Yesterday afternoon Chief Overby received a call from Lulu Woods over the phone the girl claiming that a young fellow had taken a ten dollar bill out of her pocket and ran across the DeMers avenue bridge. She gave a description of the man and Chief Overby started toward DeMers avenue. He had little difficulty in spotting his man who was in front of the Council. Clark walked down to the corner of DeMers and Third street where he accosted a man in a rig asking him which way he was going. The driver said he was going north.

"All right," replied Clark, "I'm going to the postoffice."

Overby as Detective

At this point Chief Overby requested Clark to accompany him down to the city hall. The man showed little hesitation and after the chief had reached the office and had listened to his indignant denial of the whole affair, he left him in charge of an officer and started out to see if he could find where he had changed the bill, the fellow claiming that he hadn't had a ten dollar bill for some time. The third store the chief went to was the R. E. Z. shoe store and the clerk there remembered distinctly of changing a ten dollar bill a short time before. He described Clark as the man. The clerk also remembered that he gave the man a five dollar bill, a one dollar bill, three dollars and two half dollars.

Chewed Vigorously

When Chief Overby reached the police station again Lulu Woods was there and the chief proceeded to question his man. When asked to show how much money he had, Clark produced three silver dollars and two half dollars. All this time he was smoking and chewing something very vigorously. In fact so vigorous was the motion of his jaws that Chief Overby finally asked him what he was chewing. Clark replied that it was tobacco. But the chief caught a glimpse of something of a greenish hue and demanded that he spit out what he had in his mouth. Clark refused at first to disgorge but a little persuasion was sufficient and he deposited what he had in his mouth in the spittoon. He still maintained that it was tobacco so the chief rescued the wad with a pen and spread it out on the desk. There was a new five dollar bill and a one dollar bill.

Took It in Scuffle

According to the girl's story she and another girl friend were in the East Grand Forks messenger service office together with Clark and a hack driver The girl flashed a ten dollar bill which she was carrying in a side pocket. It was evidently in a scuffle with Clark soon afterward that he secured the bill. Lulu Woods did not notice that it was gone till some little while afterwards.

For Free Trade With Canada

Prof. William G. Sumner in the New York Herald: Whenever a revision is attempted it can rationally begin by admitting Canada into complete equality with ourselves in the same market. The line across North America is more absolutely senseless than any other. The "pauper labor" and other arguments here all fail. The two populations run together are closely alike and work under similar conditions. The New Yorker trades to the south absolutely without restraint; to the north he is restricted by the great "system." The men of 1776 tried hard to force Canada to join in the revolt. Imagine the calamity if they had succeeded and had brought Canada inside of our constitutional prohibition of import duties between members of the confederation The fact that the Dominion is still in some sense subject to Great Britain is onl yan historical accident. Why should the two states try to keep apart by taxation and imagine that they can prosper in that way better than they could by coalescing economically?

There are in the Dominion great stores of coal, lumber and metals which we need and could use. They are shut away from us by taxes which are a derision of common sense. If we ever take up the tariff determined to serve our own interests rationally, we shall brush away all these hindrances and leave individuals to produce and trade as they see fit.

The same arguments applies equally to all other parts of America. Nearly all of it is inferior to ourselves in economic development and industrial power. It is a grand market which we have renounced in our attempts to get our "system" complete against Europe. We went to war with Spain in 1898, and were drawn on to dream of Oriental trade. We are spending millions to try to get it, and to build a navy with which to defend it. There is more and better trade to be had with Canada, without expense, by repealing taxes.

We accept our trials of the spirit just the way a man acepts a ten-story building when it falls on him.

A girl has such a coaxing way she can make a mirror lie to her own face.

DULUTH FIRM BUMPED BUMPS

BIG GRAIN FIRM HAS GONE INTO THE HANDS OF A RECEIVER

COMPANY ANNOUNCES THAT CREDITORS WILL BE PAID IN FULL

Great interest is taken in Crookston in the announcement that Spencer Moore and company one of the oldest in Duluth became insolvent today after a desperate attempt to cover a long line of outside trading.

It is not known how much the failure involves but it is said to be a large amount. The affairs of the company are now in charge of E. A. Forsyth who has been named as assignee.

The company announces that the creditors will be paid in full and that the affairs of the firm will be settled up immediately.

George Spencer of the insolvent firm is president of the Consolidated Elevator company which is not connected in any way with the failure.

Madison Independent Press: The governor's message to the legislature contains many timely and valuable suggestions or recommendations and if that body is wise it will put aside all partisan feeling in the consideration of his suggestions, to the end that we indorse the message as a whole; we might after a more careful reading; but we do urge that his recommendations be considered in a spirit of fairness by those to whom it was delivered, i. e., the legislature.

Norman County Index: Governor Johnson took a strong stand in his message in favor of advertising and developing our state resources. He also favors a state bureau of lands.

DEAN OF THE TRAVELERS

FIRST TRIP MADE BY FRANK WETHERBEE AFTER TWO YEARS RETIREMENT

ONE OF THE MOST NOTED AND MOST POPULAR MEN ON ROAD IN THE NORTHWEST

Frank Wetherbee for years known as "The Dean of the Travellers" made his appearance yesterday on his first trip for two years, having retired from the road two years ago with the intention of spending the remainder of his days in a handsome lodge which he erected on a picturesque piece of property north of Cass Lake which during the past two years he has transformed into one of the real beauty spots of the state.

Mr. Wetherbee recently signed a contract with the Meredith Drug Co. of Fargo for a term of years, and decided to get back into the harness. His health has been greatly improved since his retirement and he is now as rugged as a woodsman.

His appearance in Crookston was a most pleasant surprise to the old time druggists. He has sold goods to F. H. Hillard for over 25 years and to many others in other sections of the state several years longer than that.

He is not only a veteran travelling man in this section, but one of the oldest in the state. When he first went on the road, St. Cloud is the farthest he could come by rail, and from there drove to the remote spots and was intimately acquainted with all the Indian trails, the redskins themselves, the Hudson Bay traders and all the old pioneers who blazed the way for civilization of northern Minnesota, and took an active part in the work himself. He is considered by traveling men and customers as one of the salts of the earth and his reappearance on the road was most heartily welcomed.

GOV. JOHNSON'S MESSAGE

The Irish Standard: The message of Governor Johnson will well repay a perusal ,notwithstanding its extreme length. It contains a lot of valuable information about Minnesota, and the recommendations to the legislature are entitled to the careful consideration of the members thereof. What the governor says in the closing paragraph of his message merits the approval of all who have the welfare of this great commonwealth at heart.

Wheelock's Weekly: Governor Johnson's third inaugural not only has the ring of truth and earnestness about it, but it covers practically every subject of public concern in Minnesota and is a state paper of importance and permanent value.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The message of Governor Jonson to legislature is an excellent advertising document for the state of Minnesota, and the greatness and prosperity of the commonwealth are painted in bright colors. It will give patriotic Minnesotans that delightful chesty feeling.

Little Falls Herald: Governor Johnson's message should be read by every citizen. It is full of information and valuable suggestions. The governor is certainly a good peace-maker for the legislature.

Cass Lake Times: Governor Johnson's message to the legislature is one of the able papers of the country, and goes long to convince our legislators and scheming politicians that the country is better provided for by electing a man at the head of affairs who is able to write such a message. Governor Johnson has a few enemies in the state who can see no good in any of his acts, but as the head of the executive of a great commonwealth he keeps wonderfully steady at his "wood sawing" and meets all the requirements of a faithful servant. Nowadays an officer is weighed in the scale of justice. If he loves his political party better than duty, he is a fine fellow; if he loves and does his duty, some will curse him.

If you will glance over the files of the Record for the past year you will find many items mentioning live stock shipments from this station. This shows that diversified farming is coming into its own in this portion of the Valley and consequently an era of more money for the farmers. Wheat and other small grains are a good crop, but for the average small farmer with a small amount of working capital mixed farming is by far the most profitable. A car of lambs, a few head of cattle, a good young horse, some wool and a large amount of cream sold during the season in addition to the grain raised on a quarter or half section helps things out wonderfully. Most of our farmers are gradually getting in shape to sell from their farms each season a large amount of dairy products and live stock.—Donaldson Record.

SEN. CONFIRMS GOVERNOR'S MEN

WILLIAMS' ATTACK FAILS TO AROUSE OBJECTION TO McEWEN

AND LYNCH—THEY WITH OTHERS WERE CONFIRMED

State senators were unmoved by the expose of W. H. Williams retiring state labor commissioner in his special report to the legislature about political control of his department. W. E. McEwen named by Governor Johnson as labor commissioner, and E. J. Lynch present deputy in the office, attacked in the Williams' report, and just named for oil inspector, were confirmed by the senate today, and not a word raised in protest.

The list of appointments sent by the governor to the senate on Thursday was called up today by Senator S. D. Works of Mankato (dem.) who moved that they be confirmed. The motion was put and carried. The appointees will take possession at once.

Governor's Comment

Governor Johnson's comment on the Williams broadside today was short and pungent.

"If what Mr. Williams says about the conditions in his department is true," said the governor "then he confesses in so many words his incompetency and his incapacity to hold the position. No self-respecting man would hold a public office under the conditions which he says existed."

Another list of appointments was sent to the senate today, filling places in several state boards. The only notable change is in the case of the resident normal school director at Winona. Judge H. L. Buck who was a very active Bryan man last spring, is succeeded by S. H. Somsen, a prominent Winona attorney. Karl Mathie of St. Cloud and John C. Wise, Jr., of Mankato are reappointed on the normal board, all for terms of four years.

Other Appointments

Other appointments made today are:

Livestock sanitary board, C. A. Nelson ,Anoka; vice John Frank of Austin resigned for four years; P. H. Grogan St. James, vice W. W. P. McConnell for five years.

State board of dental examiners, for three years, Dr. George O. Orr, Shakapee; vice F. S. James; Dr. J. W. Penberthy, Minneapolis, reappointed.

Game and fish commission, four years, O. J. Johnson, Glenwood, reappointed.

Board of optometry, F. L. Schlender, New Ulm, and J. W. Langaard, St. Paul, for one year, vice C. C. Staacke and L. A. Upham, resigned.

Board of medical examiners, for three years. Dr. P. A. Hilbert, Melrose and Dr. M. S. Fullerton, St. Paul, reappointed.

State board of health, Dr. C. W. More, Eveleth and Dr. W. A. Jones, Minneapolis, reappointed.

State board of pharmacy, five years E. A. Tupper, Minneapolis, reappointed.

WANTS DIVORCE FROM HIS SPOUSE

WM. BALL BRINGS SUIT FOR SEPARATION FROM HIS WIFE

Last evening before Judge Watts there was a hearing in the divorce suit in which Wm. Ball asked a decree from his wife. Both are well known residents of this city. The plaintiff alleges cruel and inhuman treatment, abandonment and several and sundry other charges including an action started against him some time ago in which she was the complaining witness. There will be further evidence submitted at a session to be held later.

JOHN SORLEY WILL LEAVE FOR COAST

WELL KNOWN GRAND FORKS ATTORNEY TURNS BUSINESS OVER TO BRONSON & CHANCE

Attorneys Bronson & Chance yesterday moved to the office of John Sorley at Grand Forks. Attorney Sorley will go to the Pacific coast on acount of the illness of his wife. and Bronson & Chance will take his office and business here. They have had offices in the Clifford building. Mr. Bronson is well known in the courts of both Minnesota and North Dakota and has an extensice practice. Mr. Chance is younger in experience but has been quite successful.

Attorney Sorley was in St. Paul yesterday to appear for the plaintiff in the suit of Bailey vs. Grand Forks Lumber company, in which the district court of Polk county found a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $7,500. He also appeared for Jeff Barton in an appeal in the case brought by Alice Beardsmore who secured a judgment for $2,000 because of an attack made upon her by Dude Smith a hack driver employed by Barton.

LARIMORE GETS NEW RAILROAD

MIDLAND WILL GO THRU WESTERN GRAND FORKS COUNTY IT IS DECIDED

SURVEY CHANGED BECAUSE OF PETITION OF LOGAN TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS

A change has been made in the survey of the Midland Continental railroad and it will run thru Larimore and a portion of Grand Forks county, according to information received today. The road will run northeast from Aneta. Recently there was strong pressure brought to bear by residents of Logan township to secure the road for that locality and it is believed they have been successful.

It is definitely decided that construction work on the Midland Continental railroad will be actively commenced on May 1, and officials in Chicago advise the Jamestown engineers to engage 50 teams ready for grading operations. Three crews of men will be put to work according to Locating Engineer Beach one working for Edgeley, one for Jamestown, and the other between the tow towns. It is expected that the grading will be completed by September.

Steel will be laid in the early fall and the James river will be bridged between Jamestown and Edgeley. After a season's work the right-of-way man has cleared the whole 40 miles of right-of-way and it is reported that except in a few instances the right-of-way from here north has been secured

COMPANY IS IN FINE SHAPE

ANNUAL MEETING OF GENTILLY FARMERS' MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

HELD YESTERDAY—OFFICERS ELECTED — COMPANY IS IN SPLENDID SHAPE

At the annual meeting of the Gentilly Farmers Muptual Fire Insurance company of Gentilly, Minn. yesterday the following officers were unanimously elected for 3 years:

President—Remi Fortier, Sr., Crookston.

Vice President—John Linertz, town of Genvais.

Director—A. D. Berry, Louisville.

Secretary, 1 year—J. O. Sauve, of Crookston.

President Fortier and Mr. Sauve were two of the organizers of this company which began operation Mar. 1st 1900. Mr. Fortier has been President of this company since it started and Mr. Sauve has been treasurer until last year and secretary since; and it was as a token of appreciation of their good work for the company that they were re-elected.

This insurance company has enjoyed a steady growth since its beginning and has gained the confidence of farmers and business men by conservative management and square dealing.

COUNTY DIVISION BILL INTRODUCED

JOHN HOLTEN OF FERTILE HAS INTRODUCED MEASURE CUTTING OFF PART OF CO.

The east-end of Polk county which wants to be created into a new county but cannot agree upon a county seat will be able to establish its new county and settle the county seat fight afterward if a bill introduced in the house Tuesday by John Holten of Fertile, is passed. At present the petition for a new county must name the county commissioners and the county seat but in the east end of Polk there are three towns that want to be the county seat and they cannot get together on a petition for a division. Holten's bill provides a procedure by which they can divide the county first and decide upon the county seat and elect county commissioners afterward

A similar situation exists in St. Louis county, where the range towns want to be set apart from Duluth. They had a bill providing for similar procedure two years ago, but it never got thru the house.

PRONOUNCED HIS CASE INCURABLE

Whole Body Raw with Eczema—Life was Intolerable—Was Even Incased in Plaster—Discharged from Hospitals as Hopeless.

SUFFERED 14 YEARS CURED BY CUTICURA

"From the age of three months until fifteen years old, my son Owen's life was made intolerable by eczema in its worst form. He was all right until a red rash broke out on his forehead, but we were not alarmed at first. Very soon, however, the rash began to spread over his head and shoulders, and it caused him great discomfort. I took him to a doctor and tried half a dozen other treatments, all with the same result: no improvement at all. The disease gradually spread until nearly every part of his body was quite raw. We had to strap him down in bed, for he used to tear himself dreadfully in his sleep. The agony he went through is quite beyond words. No one thought we would rear him. The regimental doctor, a very clever man, pronounced the case hopeless; at least, he said the only hope was that he might, if he lived long enough, outgrow it to some extent. We had him in hospitals four times and he was pronounced one of the worst cases, if not the worst, ever admitted. From each he was discharged as incurable; in fact he got worse under the successive treatments. At one hospital they incased him in plaster, and this seemed to aggravate the soreness terribly. He looked so badly that no one liked to go near him and his life was a burden to him. We kept trying remedy after remedy, but we had got almost past hoping for a cure. Six months ago we purchased a set of Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent Pills and persevered with them. The result was truly marvelous and to-day he is perfectly cured, his skin not having a blemish on it anywhere. TO ABANDON ITS OLD LINE

NORTHERN PACIFIC MAKES APPLICATION TO MINNESOTA RAILROAD COMMISSION

CLAIM GRADE TOO STEEP ON OLD LINE FROM WINNIPEG JUNCT. TO STOCKWOOD

The Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission will hear the application of the Northern Pacific railroad on aJn. 27 regarding the abandoning of the old road from Winnipeg Junction to Stockwood, Minn. and going by way of Summit and Hawley. The road claims the grade is too steep at these points and must use push engines to carry the trains up the grade The distance in question is about 12 miles.

The law provides that a railway may abandon a station thru the granting of an application by the railroad and warehouse commission. The towns affected are Winnipeg Junction, Muskoda and Stockwood.

Winnipeg Junction has strenuously opposed the attempts of the company to abandon the town.

OFFICERS CHOSEN—At the annual meeting of the Implement Dealers' Insurance company at the office of Geo. E. Duis of Grand Forks, officers were elected and other business transacted. The business has been satisfactory and no losses of any great amount were sustained. The officers: President, Geo. E. Duis, Grand Forks; vice president, D. G. McIntosh, St. Thomas; secretary, J. E. Sheehy, Grand Forks; directors, J. J. Dougherty, Park River; G. W. Hooton, Wapheton; D. G. McIntosh, Wapheton; Frank Goldammer, Lakota; P. S. Hougton, Geo. E. Duis and J. E. Sheehy, Grand Forks.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Lillie Patterson and R. H. Patterson, her husband, mortgagors, to L. D. Foskett, mortgagee, dated March 5, 1908, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, on April 14, 1908 at 3:10 o'clock P. M. in book 152 of mortgages on page 202 thereof; that the mortgagors herein have failed to pay $34.17 due October 1, 1908, said sum being due under a certain mortgage executed by the parties named as mortgagors herein and in favor of said L. D. Foskett and by him assigned, which mortgage is a prior lien upon the land hereinafter described, said sum being represented by a certain coupon note bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum after maturity and that there is now due the said L. D. Foskett thereon, under and by virtue of the terms of the mortgage first referred to, the sum of $34.65, he having paid said sum to the holder of said prior mortgage; that said mortgage provided for a reasonable attorney's fee to be paid by said mortgagors upon the foreclosure of the mortgage herein described, and the sum of $25.00 is a reasonable attorney's fee for such foreclosure; that in addition to the sum of $34.65 paid by L. D. Foskett on said coupon note and the sum of $25.00 for attorney's fees, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage the sum of $82.35; making a total due of the sum of $117.00 at this date together with the sum of $25.00 attorney's fees; that by virtue of said default the power of sale in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof; that the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are the northwest fractional quarter of section number 5 in township number 148 north of range number 45 west of the 5th principal meridian, situate in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota; that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on February 20, 1909, at 2 o'clock P. M.; to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, including the amount of said coupon note and $25.00 attorney's fees, and the costs of such sale.

Dated January 7, 1909.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of $190.06, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Rose Dupuis and Alexander Dupuis her husband, mortgagors, to James E. O'Brien and John W. O'Brien copartners as J. E. O'Brien & Co., dated January 8th, 1908, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, on the 9th day of January, 1908 at 10:15 o'clock A. M., in Book 153 of Mortgages on Page 3, and said James E. O'Brien and John W. O'Brien, co-partners as J. E. O'Brien & Co., are still the owners and holders of said mortgage and the debt secured thereby; and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof. Now Therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: Commencing at the southwesterly corner of Lot One, in Block Forty-three in the Original Townsite of Crookston, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County, thence running northerly on the west boundary line of said Lot One a distance of 150 feet, thence easterly on a line parallel with the southerly boundary line of said Lot One a distance of 80 feet, thence southerly on a line parallel with the westerly boundary line of said Lot One a distance of 150 feet to the southerly boundary line of said Lot One, thence westerly along the southerly boundary line of said Lot One a distance of 80 feet to the place of beginning, situated in the County of Polk and State of Minnesota. Which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County at the front door of the court house in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of February, 1909, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of $190.06 and interest and $25.00 attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated December 22nd, 1908.

A Gratifying Contest

The people of Minnesota have great satisfaction in the contrast between the speeches of Congressman Tawney in the house and Senator Tillman in the senate in reply to the president. Both had been personally attacked by name by Mr. Roosevelt. Both spoke in their own defense.

The speech of Mr. Tillman was devoted hardly less to his own defense than to a rabid attack upon the president. It was filled with accusation denunciation, flaggelation and exaggeration. It was in this of a piece with his custom in referring to Mr. Roosevelt.

On the other hand Mr. Towney's address was dignified and statesman-like It was devoted wholly to his own defense, personally as an officer of the house and as a member of that body as well as of congress as a whole.

As to himself personally, he showed that President Roosevelt had been mis led in quoting him, and that he had been consistent and frank in his position. As a member of congress he followed abundant precedent in claiming exemption for congress from executive criticism.

Whether one agrees with Mr. Tawney or not in his original position ,no one can fail to congratulate him upon the tone and temper of his reply, his statesman-like attitude and the high plane he maintained in what is conceded to be a really notable defense. —Duluth News Tribune.

Religion In Politics

President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, in an address in New York recently before the public Education association took occasion to declare that religious difference did not prevent harmonious co-operation of great bodies of electors in this country. It was in speaking of the improvement of municipal boards of education that Dr. Eliot made this point.

"It is contended by some," Dr. Eliot said, "that the great obstacle in the way of school reform is the great racial and religious differences that exist here. But why could not a board of seven members be elected at large here, where there is such a diversity of religious opposition and racial attributes.

"Take Boston, old Puritan Boston, which has now become a Catholic city The Catholics are made of three races, the Italian, Irish and the French Canadians, and they constitute a majority of the voting population. And yet in this Catholic city the school committee elected at large is composed of two Catholics, two Protestants and one Jew.

"Who shall say then that religious differences will prevent harmonious co-operation of great bodies of electors in choosing at large members of a school board And this is no peculiarity of that old New England city.

"What sort of man is it that has been elected to the presidency? A Unitarian Protestant. The evangelical denominations in the west sought to precent his election because of his religion but they failed completely in the attempt. Isn't there an indication here that religious opinions or membership in any religious organization no matter how small, is not going to stand in the way of a man's election to office by popular vote?"

There were movements for municipal reform he said, all over the country, and the beginnings were usually in the reforms of the school boards.

Massachusetts Salary Loan Law

The inevitable salary loan bill has made its appearance in the Minnesota legislature. It is one of those elecmosynary attempts at legislation which frequently fail for want of con stitutional warrant. Inhibitions upon the right to pledge future earnings for an advance of cash is one of these There is real need for such a law. There are few who are really benefitted by the advance made by salary loan companies. They usually pay dearly for the loan.

But the courts, nevertheless ,have held that a sane adult must have the freedom of contract, and the right to anticipate his earnings. The corporation that issues bonds anticipates and spends future earnings. Its freedom of contract is preserved. Why not that of the man whose capital is his muscle? Why should he not have the right to capitalize the future if he can find any one to take the risk? This is the abstract view of the matter which the courts have conversatively held.

But the supreme court of Massachusetts recently was upheld a salary loan law which provides that the assigament is not valid, unless indorsed by the employer, and the wife of the borrower if he has one, as well as himself. This is a severe curtailment of the freedom of contract. It marks an advance in the thought of the courts. It is not a mere sentimental advance, however. The employer has a certain right in the matter from the fact that the assignment of wages may put him to annoyance and expense in case of litigation over the loan. The wife, who is certainly a partner in her husband's earnings, should also be considered.

The Massachusetts law may prove a valuable guide to the Minnesota legislators who have interested themselves in this subject.—Minneapolis Journal.

Two primary Bills

The usual bill to hold the primaries in June instead of about the middle of September has put in an appearance. This is in response to a wide demand for a date when farmers can more conveniently attend the primaries. But the objection to a June primary, entailing an interminable campaign is obvious. Seven weeks is bad enough—don't let us make it worse. The remedy frequently proposed has been to place the primary four weeks before election. In view of the fact that candidates in New York, which has at least three times the voting population of Minnesota and over half its area, manage to make a satisfactory campaign in three weeks, four weeks ought to be sufficient in this state, especially as all officers who have to cover anything larger than a Congressional district can be nominated at any time the party committee chooses We have never heard any good reason advanced against making the first Tuesday in October primary day. For city and village inhabitants it is as convenient as any other day and for farmers ought to be more convenient than any day in June.

The bill offered by Senator Pauly for the separate nomination of judges ought to be approved in principle, at least by all good citizens. For there is no one we presume who regards with favor even the possibility of a partisan bench or the indulgence of candidates for the bench in any more political activity than is necessary. The details of Senator Pauly's bill we do not know, and therefore must confine ourselves to general comment. It may be open to some criticism in minor points and may be susceptible to improvement.

But the general plan to have a separate judicial ticket a separate ballot box and non-partisan filing of candidates and non-partisan voting is along proper lines and would almost certainly remove all partisanship from the selection of judges since the public as a whole would in many cases be in the dark as to a candidate's politics and would be more likely to consider each candidate on his merits. Those who conceive of the judgeships as pawns in the political game would find little to induce their interference.

Apparently the only serious defect which Senator Pauly's bill would not remedy is the scramble of judicial candidates for votes, a scramble forced on many of them by the direct primary system. But this scramble would lose some of its worst aspects if the partisan features were eliminated.

And in this connection it should be said that even if the direct primary were to be abandoned for an officially regulated delegate primary a separate set of delegates should be selected to make nominations for all judicial offices and should meet in a separate convention. The selection of supreme court candidates should be removed from the domain of the regular party conventions and the selection of district, probate and municipal judges should never be restored to the regular party conventions. The delegates to judicial conventions could be selected at the same time and place as the delegates to county and city conventions, but they should be distinct and should be voted for in a sepaarate ballot box.

COMMENT ON THE PRIMARY LAW

Worthington Advance Herald: Without a doubt the present primary election law is the cause of more corruption in politics than the old convention system ever was.

Madison Independent Press: War on the primary law seems to be on the wane.

North Branch Review: While there is little doubt that the primary election law as it stands at present has many foults, it is still a big improvement over the old system, according to our idea, and great care should be taken not to lose the ground already gained.

Panesville Press: Some enterprising law maker can gain everlasting fame by devising a primary election law that will suit the Republicans of Meeker county and at the same time leave no room for complaint on the part of the Democrats of Stearns county.

Stillwater Daily Gazette: There's considerable discussion of the primary election law which is generally conceded as not all that fancy painted it, but that is right in theory iis generally admitted. If there was any way to hold the parties in line, thereby preventing the Republicans voting the Democratic ticket or the Democrats voting the Republican ticket. it would be nearer the thing for the people than anything yet discovered.

Norman County Index: As expected Governor ohnson favors retaining the primary law, which has proved so disastrous to the Republican party. He also favors extending the law to state offices, which is a good idea if the present law stands.

Willmar Gazette: It is generally agreed that the opposition to the primary law is a feint made in order to defeat the extension of the idea to the state offices. The legislature dares not attempt to repeal the primary law.

Albert Lea Standard: The legislature will scarcely venture to attempt a repeal of the primary election law. This people will not stand for a return to a rule of political bosses—and whatever may be the defects of the existing law, they are unitedly and determinedly in favor of retaining the power of selecting candidates directly in their own hands.

Mapleton Enterprise: It will take a brave man to vote to do away with the primary election law and return to the old convention system where the politicians were the whole thing.

Mankato Free Press: There are a great many honest men who prefer that the politicians should control conventions rather than permit a law to remain on the statute books that will allow Democrats and mugmumps to manipulate the Republican primaries That is one great reason why good square Republicans are in favor of the repeal of the primary election law

Curse Of The Wholesale Divorce System

The Journal for some time past has published articles from the pulpit, the layman and the press regarding the curse of the present system of wholesale divorces—a system that has resulted in the granting of a million divorces in the past 20 years in this country, one out of every 13 marriages. The Journal believes this is one of the greavest dangers which society faces today. Marriage is considered too much as a pastime, a frolic or an easy way to solve discontent in a single state, which if it does not prove satisfactory can be easily thrown aside by securing a divorce. The following from the Duluth Herald is a pretty good discussion of the same subject. The Herald says:

The report of the bureau of census upon "Marriage and Divorce" just issued shows an almost even million of divorces granted in this country within the past twenty years.

A million divorces! One divorce out of every thirteen marriages! We have been learning something about the divorce evil in the past few years and now here is the sum of it. We have been thinking and talking and writing a great deal about this matter of late but we confess that out of so many words we have not got much wisdom. The divorce problem is a long way from solution.

The most powerful single force that has thus far applied itself to the solution of the problem is the church and out of the efforts of the church has grown up a certain sentiment for the social ostracism of the divorcee. This, of course, is a punitive, not a corrective measure and as such falls far short of a solution of the matter. Now comes the Interior, a widely circulated and influential church paper, and declares that social ostracism of the divorcee is as the rule terribly unjust and seriously harmful. Ostracism, declares the Interior, "is more apt to betray the righteous into unchristian prides than to punish the sinner," and it approves of ostracism for but one class of patrons of the divorce courts: "Ostracise forever the man or woman who from the judge of divorces has sought legal freedom in order to marry one who courted or was courted during previous wedlock of either."

Here is evidence that the church is beginning to think very seriously and to some purpose concerning the divorce evil. We shall not end divorces by denying suffering men and women justice and by turning the cold shoulder to them because they have been unfortunate. "Before there's any real cure worked out," says the Interior "there must be less hysterics," and it declares that there are larger things than dogmatizing over the scriptural standard and frantic crusading to obtain reform from legislatures, for instance, "duties of example and sympathy and influence still more incumbent upon Christian men and women."

We cannot doubt that a high standard of home life and conjugal living will prove in the end the most powerful deterrent. Thousands of hasty marriages end in the divorce court, when if the unfortunate couples knew better and had before them better and more examples of the right home life, they might learn to have patience and to invoke a love that would bless their lives and that of their children after them from generation unto generation.

"Woman Is Man's Horse"

If there was any woman who did not know it, she knows it now—she is "man's horse." Mrs. Charlotte Stetson Perkins Gilman has said it and what Charlotte says on the woman question goes. Once she said woman was "man's slave," but this alphabetical lady has a scorn of the commonplace of mere repetition.

Just what kind of a horse woman is possibly depends upon the woman. Some certainly are decidedly nettlesome and high spirited; some must have a gentle bit and others the galling curb. There is doubtless the dray horse, as there is the carriage horse, the pony and the racer. Some are fast of gait, while others are plodding. All have to be trained to travel in double harness.

Then there are the show animals up on whose care grooms galore spend their days that they may be resplend ent in the beauty competition. They toil not, neither do they spin, but hair dresser and manicurist, horse modiste and masseuse work over them that they may gain the acclaim of the multitude and be the envy of their rivals.

Really there may be more in this horse simile than the much-named lady might herself admit. She took really a sordid view, she based her thrust largely upon the claim that the husband "measures the wife's oats."

He owns the woman as he does his horse; she no more than the beast is his partner; she takes what he gives be it blows or a hot mash; she works for him and takes the pay. Yet Mrs. Gilman, if she will pardon the dropping of her other titles, may sometimes be unfair to the horse in these comparisons.

There have been horses that would by no means have willingly swapped places with the wife. If either went hungry, it would not be the horse. But such are the very rare exceptions of "a little lower than his horse a little better than his dog," which may be taken as proving Mrs. Gilman's rule.

Conceding, then, that woman is man's horse, it must be granted that New York's real animal horse show is held not in Madison Square Garden, but on the opening night of grand opera at the Metropolitan and continues during the season. Nor is it always "so worse" to be a man's horse.

At the recent birthday celebration concert of a famous singer the equines of swelldom who filled the Metropolitan boxes wore trappings of silk, satin, velvet and lace valued at millions while about their necks on their heads and in their ears were gems worth $60,000,000 more. Yes, woman must be man's horse, and man is the electric battery which more and more as the years pass is doing the horse's work.—Duluth News Tribune.

Congress is wondering how it can "spare" money for the rivers. But the country cannot afford to have the rivers unimproved. It is rather tiresome to have a "poor mouth" made by the watch dogs of the treasury whenever an expenditure that is really an investment for public welfare is demanded. The biggest waste of public revenues lies not in creating wealth by the development of natural resources. Billion dollar Congresses should not get twisted in the arithmetic of their economy.—Kansas City

STATE PRESS

One of the most unjust laws on our statutes is the so-called mortgage tax law. Its practical effect is to add one-half per cent interest paid by the borrower. The lender refuses to pay the tax, and the borrower in order to get the money has to pay it. And even supposing that the lender pays the tax, would there be any justice in allowing a party with say $1,000 to loan it out for ten years and making the mortgage non-taxable on the payment of $5 at the time of the filing of the mortgage while another party with the same amount invested in merchandise or farm land would have to pay a tax of at least $15 per year, or $150 during ten years. The mortgage tax law was one of the few measures for which Governor Johnson did not dare to claim credit during the last campaign altho he approved the bill at the time of its passage. The law should be repealed at the coming session of the legislature. The only beneficiaries of the law are the tax dodgers in the cities.—Argyle Banner.

The Standard Oil Company has promised that it will, if it is permitted to keep on doing business in Missouri give up its practice of disregarding the laws of that state and ignoring the rulings of the Supreme Court. It must be admitted that this is an important concession for the Standard Oil Company to make.—Thief River Falls News.

The Northfield News things an effort will be made this winter to so modify the railroad pass law as to allow passes to certain officials. Why should such a modification be made? Why shouldn't every person not absolutely in the constant employ of the transportation companies pay their car fare? What reason is there for giving to the wife, children or other relatives of a railroad employe free passes than to give a free pass to the washer woman with a family of children to support? Let every person pay car fare. That is just and fair and equitable.—Waseca Herald.

Recommendation has been made by the postmaster general for a local or limited parcels post to utilize the machinery of the government in operation by reason of the rural free delivery system, whereby additional benefits may be secured without additional operating expenses. The plan proposed limits the privilege to parcels originating at the office thru which delivery is to be made. That it not playing into the hands of the big mail order houses, but benefits both the local merchant and rural patron.—Fertile Journal.

TIME IS THE TEST

The Testimony of Crookston People Stands the Test

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and the merit alone will stand the test of time

Crookston people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills they do still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? A cure that lasts is the kind that every sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. Benj. Champagne, of 322 Spendley St., Crookston, Minn., says: "I can just as enthusiastically endorse Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did six years ago. At that time they proved of great benefit to me in banishing a dull, annoying backache which clung to me despite my earnest endeavors to get rid of it. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention I procured a box at the Wallace drug store. I found relief from the first dose or two and soon the pains in my back were entirely removed. The difficulty with the kidneys was also ended and I was improved in every way. Up to date the relief has remained permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other

Wabasha Herald: Governor John A. Johnson was on Wednesday for the third time inaugurated as governor of Minnesota. This is an honor only held before by one previous governor Governor Johnson is also the second Democratic governor to occupy that position and a third term in a state strongly Republican is a fitting tribute to one of our best governors.

Border Budget: In Germany a man's taxes are decreased as his family grows larger. In this country his tax is decreased as his pile grows larger.

LeSueur News: John Johnson of Minnesota achieved greatness. Tom Johnson of Ohio achieved fame, and Jack Johnson of Texas is the third of the name to secure a pedestal from which he will not fall rapidly.

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY

+ + + + + + + + + + + + + + + + +

WANTED — Local Agent for selling Farmers' Record, direct to the farmers. For particulars apply to E. E. Bernard, State Agent, Ada, Minn.

STILL IMPROVING —The many friends of Wylie Phillips will receive with genuine satisfaction the news that he is improving steadily and that his complete recovery is now but a question of a very short time. He has been gaining every day of late.

A FINE 8 POUND GIRL—Mr. and Mrs. Will M. Oftmark are the parents of a very fine baby daughter which arrived at their home yesterday. Mother and baby are both doing well and they are both very much gratified over the latest appearance of the stork at their home.

JOB IN ROSEAU—Earl Ralph left this morning for Roseau where he will remain for a week or so looking after some survey work. He was accompanied by his wife who will make the trip with him. The hardships of the former trips to that section have been taken away by the completion of the G. N. Extension.

BEST BOY EVER—Robert Sinclair can be recognized for at least a mile of late owing to the radiance of the smile he wears since that fine new son arrived. He says the young man has a chest on him like a prize-fighter and that he never cries during the night—"Lucky Bob." We are just wondering what he would say if he had to walk the floor about five nights of the week with that young hopeful.

This morning the last civil case that will be tried at the present term o fcourt was called that of Wm. F. Peet, against the City of East Grand Forks, an action to recover for paving and the putting in of curbing several years ago. Contractor Thornton was the contractotr who did, or attempted to do the work but it never proved satisfactory, and there has been litigation ever since.

The attorneys in the case are Ambrose Tighe and W. Leightner for the plaintiff, and Bronson and Collins and Judge Guy C. H. Corliss for the defense. The case has been tried several times before and has been carried to the supreme court a number of times. This is the first time that it has ever been tried before a jury and as it is the last case all the other jurors were excused.

From Tuesday's Daily

+ + + + + + + + + + + + + + + + +

CASE WILL COME UP—A. Pettaway will once more come into prominence in the district court in a few days. Preparations are being made to take another step in the proceedings against him and it is expected that the public will have another opportunity of becoming interested in the matter.

BEEN VISITING HIS SISTER — George W. Hunt brother of Mrs. Will Olds, arrived some weeks ago from Manhattan Kansas, and yesterday left for St. Louis Mo., where he will visit his brother. He is greatly pleased with Crookston and believes it is one of the most progressive cities on the map. This was Mr. Hunt's first visit to this section of the northwest.

RETURNED FROM CITIES—T. M. George of Hallock, was in the city for a short time this morning and while here took the opportunity of stating that the northern end of the valley was growing at a great rate. He left on the morning train for his home town.

LOOKING AFTER BUSINESS—G. T. Ingberg of Hendrum is spending the day in Crookston and is putting his time in attending to some business matters. Mr. Ingberg is one of the largest merchants in Hendrum and he believed that his town is one of the best of the smaller communities in northwestern Minnesota.

WARROAD IS FEELING EFFECTS —J. H. Hedberg the well known resident of Warroad, is spending the day in Crookston looking after some business matters. He says that already the town has felt the effects of the extension of the Great Northern and the business men cannot forget the visit made to them by the business men of Crookston last month.

SPENT EVENING HERE— J. D. Henry a well known attorney from Hallock dropped into Crookston last evening and held a business conference with a number of personal friends. He says that Hallock is highly elated over the great success that its hockey team has met with and its victory over the proud Canadians will never be forgotten.

FINDING BUSINESS GOOD—J. O. Sether, a prominent travelling man who makes his home at Warren, arrived in the city this morning and he reports that he has found business exceedingly good in all sections of his territory. He looks for the year 1909 to exceed in business anything that has been reported far a number of years.

EAST GRAND FORKS DELEGATION—The delegation from East Grand Forks returned this morning to attend the trial of the case of Peet vs. East Grand Forks the old paving case. The case is one of the most celebrated that has ever been tried here and has gone to supreme court a number of times. J. H. Hiler and son, and many other prominent residents of the west end metropolis arrived to give testimony. All of them expect to return home this evening.

A BEAUTIFUL CROSS—Last Sunday before morning prayer the Rev. R. Cox blessed a beautiful brass Altar Cross and Missal Stand which the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cromb has presented in memory of their father and mother. The cross is a large brass etched one. The morning service at Christ church consisted of a special mission service for Sunday schools and there was a large congregation present. These special children's services will take the place of the usual morning services and Sunday school once a month in the future

PIONEER EMPLOYS NEW PRESS MAN—The Pioneer has secured the services of Walter Marcum as superintendent of the press room of our big job department. Mr. Marcum has heretofore been in the employ of the McKenzie-Robbins company of Crookston and is considered a very competent pressman. This gives the Pioneer an exceptionally clever corps of employes in the mechanical department and will help to turn out the best commercial printing to be had in northern Minnesota. This is one of the many improvements the Pioneer is contemplating. We have recently added a large amount of job and advertising type to our already large plant and will guarantee to satisfy the wants of any one, no matter how fastidious.—Bemidji Pioneer.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS — Grand President Zeigler of Stillwater, was in the city last evening and installed the officers of the Sons of Hermann, and also the officers of Marguetha lodge. The officers of the Sons of Hermann are Paul Drax, president; Joseph Gilhausen, vice president; William Woelk, Secretary; Carl Riedesel, financial secretary; Samuel Meng treasurer. The officers of Marguetha lodge are, Mrs. Carl Riedesel, president; Mrs. William Becker, vice president; Mrs. Paul Drax, secretary; Mrs. M. Palen, financial secretary; Mrs. Adolph Rauch, treasurer. A good social time was enjoyed at the close of the installation exercises. The lodges are in a most flourishing condition.

+ + + + + + + + + + + + + + + + +

HERE FROM FORKS—Hugh Quigley arrived from Grand Forks this afternoon on the Northern Pacific and is spending the afternoon in the city looking up the Peat Case which is on trial in the district court.

ENROUTE TO BEMIDJI — Tom Shevlin Jr., arrived from Minneapolis this morning and proceeded to Bemidji where he is manager of the big saw mill.

..BACK FROM GOOD TRIP — Otto Koeppe returned this morning from a business trip out on the Fosston line. As usual he disposed of a large number of his popular cigars.

HERE FROM MOORHEAD—A. H. Enderlie was in the city last evening from Moorhead, paying taxes and attending to some other business matters. He proceeded this morning to Fosston where he has business interests.

PUT IN NEW PIANO—K. J. Ike yesterday put in a new piano at the Experimental farm and it is one of the best that has ever been seen in the city. Mr. Ike has been in North Dakota during the past summer and he states that business there is very good in all lines.

WYLIE PHILLIPS IMPROVING— The friends of Wylie Phillips state that he is improving very rapidly. They state that he is getting better every day and that he is getting better so fast that there is no question but what he will get well in course of time.

ONLY ONE DRUNK —There was very little doing in municipal court this morning. Only one lone drunk showed up and he was not very well tanked up. He was given 30 minutes to get out of the city and took the alternative.

HERE FROM EAST GRAND FORKS —For the third day Messrs. James Jarvis, Aaron Brown, Hugh Thompson and about 20 others from East Grand Forks came over this morning on the Peat Paving case. They will expect to return home this evening.

TRAVEL IS LIGHT—Travel is very light during the past few weeks despite the fine weather. While the local travel is heavy, the thru passengers are few and far between. The St. Vincent, Greenbush and Halstad lines are doing a fine business every day but the trains to the coast and from Winnipeg are not doing a great amount of business.

CLEANING THE STREETS —The street cleaning teams were out this morning and it certainly made a hit with the city officials. The hit they made with the citizens regarding the streets was certainly good. What they did with the taxpayers was perhaps different but a hit was certainly made with those who get the benefit of the city lights.

BACK FROM FINE TRIP — G. N. Bergerson who is now operating the old E. D. Childs farm which adjoins Carman and who operates a milk wagon in this city, returned from a month's trip to his old home at Creston, Ia., and Missouri. He reports very fine weather down in that section of the country and was surprised when he returned to learn of the very cold weather that had been experienced here during his absence and was doubly surprised owing to the fact that the weather was so warm on his return. He states that conditions down south generally are very favorable and that the coming years is looked forward to with anticipations of great prosperity.

Conductor W. J. Burnette, who resides in the Collin Block in this city was brought in last evening on the Duluth passenger train on a stretcher and taken to St. Vincent Hospital with a badly wrenched back and other bruises as the result of an accident at Lengby.

It appears that while switching at Lengby, Conductor Burnette was struck by the coal chute and knocked from the train. His condition is not very serious tho he is unable to use his limb. It is expected that he will be about as usual in the course of a week or ten days. His many friends are rejoicing that the accident was not more serious.

COMPLIMENTED CROOKSTON

PRESIDENT J. P. HEDBERG OF BANK AT WARROAD VISITED THE CITY

REV. R. McFADYN OF ST. PAUL ALSO HAS PLEASANT WORDS TO SAY

From Wednesday's Daily— ...

President J. P. Hedberg of the bank of Warroad returned home this morning after attending to business matters in the city. Mr. Hedberg called at the Journal office this morning and stated that he was very much pleased with the general appearance of thrift in Crookston, and that he was greatly surprised at the fine buildings and the general appearance of thrift about the city.

Mr. Hedberg was accompanied by Rev. R. McFadyn of St. Paul who also visited Crookston yesteday and he took special pains to express his surprise at the splendid appearance of this city. He stated that he had supposed that Crookston was a small burg about at the jumping off place and was greatly surprised to find a city of this size with every appearance of prosperity in evidence. The two gentlemen went to Warroad this morning.

PAUL DRAX BADLY HURT

WAS STRUCK BY A SWITCH ENGINE AT MIDNIGHT LAST NIGHT

TAKEN TO ST. VINCENT HOSPITAL AND CONDITION IS VERY CRITICAL

From Wednesday's Daily— ...

Paul Drax, the master brewer at the Kiewel Brewing Co., plant in this city is in the St. Vincent Hospital in this city at the point of death as the result of an accident last evening. He was on his way home shortly after midnight and while crossing the Great Northern tracks back of Collin's livery barn for his home on Front street he was struck by the switch engine and knocked about 20 feet from the tracks.

The engine struck him on the hip and there is where the greatest injury was inflicted, but he was badly bruised all about his body.

Mr. Drax has many friends thruout the city who trust that he will survive the accident, but the chances for his recovery at the present time are far from bright.

A PIONEER PASSES AWAY

M. P. LOSEY DIED YESTERDAY AT ST. JOHNS, STATE OF MICHIGAN

CAME TO CROOKSTON IN 1879 AND LATER SETTLED AT EUCLID

From Wednesday's Daily—

Word was received last evening of the death at St. Johns, Mich., of M. P. Losey at the advanced age of 86.

Mr. Losey was one of the pioneer residents of Crookston and the Red River Valley. He came here with his family in 1879, and operated a shoe shop where the Auditorium now stands. After remaining her for several years, he went to Euclid where he located on a farm and later moved into Euclid where he again opened a shoe shop. He prospered at Euclid and when he left there a number of years ago he was in very good circumstances.

Deceased was the father of Ex-Deputy Sheriff June Losey who was well known thruout Polk Co., but who died a few years ago. He leaves several children to mourn his death Mrs. Bennie Vonderbeck of this city, who with her husband leaves for Chicago this evening where the funeral will be held Thursday or Friday of this week, Mrs. Nellie Nelson of Euclid, George Losey of Lincoln, Neb., Dennis Losey of Sebeka, Minn., and Albert Losey who is located a short distance from Chicago.

The wife of the deceased died about two years ago.

JANUARY THAW IS HERE NOW

WEATHER IS REMARKABLY MILD FOR THIS SEASON OF THE YEAR

THERMOMETER WAS ABOVE FREEZING POINT BEFORE DAY LIGHT THIS MORNING

From Wednesday's Daily—

The annual January Thaw is here. The thermometer stood above the freezing point before daylight this morning, and since that time it has been growing warmer steadily and roses would bloom in the back yard this morning.

For years past a thaw at about this season of the year has been experienced, but this year it seems to have come a little earlier than usual. One good feature of the warm weather is the fact that the roads are greatly improved by being packed down hard and the foundation remains for the balance of the winter, making sleighing excellent.

The rural mail carriers are among those who appreciate the improved roads specially, as their daily trips are made much more easily when the roads are good.

INTERESTING LITIGATION

AN INTERESTING LAW SUIT MAY COME FROM EAST GRAND FORKS

IS EXPECTED THAT AN ICE CASE MAY BE BROUGHT HERE SOON

A telephone message from Grand Forks late this afternoon brought the information that some interesting litigation may be pulled off there before long. It seems that Mayor Dunlevy of East Grand Forks and George Hiler also of that city are both cutting ice on the Red river.

Hiler alleges that Dunlevy maliciously sent men to cut and hack up the ice where he, Hiler, was cutting ice, thus making it unsalable. Hiler has retained Attorney Murphy of the firm of Murphy and Duggan to look after his interests and the people of the west end are looking forward to some interesting litigation. The case, since it involves a state boundary will probably be tried in U. S. court and should any appeals be taken, might become a U. S. Supreme court case.

A Religious Author's Statement

For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

YOUNG GIRL FORGER CONFESSES HER GUILT

Was Sentenced To State Training School By Judge Grindeland For Indeterminate Term.

Maria Paulson of Ada, a young girl of about sixteen years old, who had forged the name of a farmer by the name of Ole Hesjedahl to a check on a Fertile bank, also endorsed the name of John Hesjedahl as payee on the back of the check and signed her name to it and presented it at a Gary bank for payment and drew $33.00 on same, was arrested by the sheriff and brought before Andrew Grindeland, district judge, after having confessed her guilt and was sentenced to an indeterminate term at the State Training school at Red Wing.

She says she is the only one guilty of the forgery, but it is thought that she had an accomplice in the deal.

FOREST SERVICE WORK REVIEWED

GIFFORD PINCHOT ISSUES REPORT ON IMPROVEMENTS IN DEPARTMENT IN 1908

INTERESTING STATISTICS WHICH DEMONSTRATE SOME OF COUNTRY'S WEALTH

Washington, Jan. 19 — Listing receipts and expenditures and explaining them in plain English much as a railroad president reports to his board of directors, Gifford Pinchot, forester has just made a retrospect of the work of the United States forest service for the fiscal year 1908.

For the administration and protection of the 182 national forests in seventeen states and territories and Alaska, the government spent $2,526,098.02 or about 1½ cents an acre. Permanent improvements, including the construction of 3,400 miles of trails, 100 miles of wagon roads, 3200 miles of telephone lines, 550 cabins and barns, 600 bridges and forty miles of fire lines cost $592,169.19. Telephone wire to build approximately 500 miles of additional telephone lines was shipped to the forester but with the funds available before the close of the year of construction could not be completed. Some of this work was done on each of the forests in the United States.

New Territory Opened Up

Altho many needed improvements could not be undertaken the benefits of what has been accomplished are seen in the more convenient and economical manner in which the forest officers are enabled to carry on their work and in the opening up to forest users of territory hitherto inaccessible The remaining $297,840.40 of the total of $3,416,107.61 disbursed on account of the work of the forest service was used in forest investigations costing $235,855.14 and in diffusion of forest information and federal co-operation.

The forest service is one of the branches of the government where everything is not outgoing. Last year the receipts from sales of timber grazing fees, and permits for special uses of forest resources amounted to $1,842,281.87 an increase of $271,222.42 over the 1907 figures. The per acre receipts from the national forests were a little more than 1 per cent, less than 5 milensludr shr s rdl rdluldluuuuu 5 mills under the per acre cost of administration and protection of the forests.

The amounts paid the states and territories to be expended for roads and public schools from the year's receipts, amounted to $447,063.79. Chiefly because of increasing the revenue to the states from 10 per cent in 1907 to 25 per cent last year, there was a total increase of $294,031.62 in the amounts payable to the states.

Much Free Use From Forests

In addition, the national forests yielded heavily to the public in free use. There were 30,714 permits granted for the free use of timber by settlers, schools and churches, during the year, against 17,399 in 1907. The number of board feet used in this way by the public amounted to 131,582,000 valued at $168,720 compared to 63,000,000 feet valued at $75,000 in 1907.

The aggregate to the free use of the forests for grazing cannot be exactly known, since no permit is required to be taken out and there is no record preserved. It added perhaps 10 per cent to the amount of stick carried by the forests. Settlers living on or adjacent to the forests, and prospectors, campers, and travelers in them are allowed to graze free up to 10 head of milch cows, work animals or horses in use, and purchasers of timber and stockmen on the forests are given the same privilege for the horses needed in their work. In Arizona and New Mexico milk goats to the number of thirty may be grazed free in place of milch cows.

Of free special use permits there were issued during the year 1,768 as against a total of $1.471 previously granted. Of the latter 963 were in force during the year.

The grazing receipts for 1908 were $962,829.40 and were paid by the holders of 19,845 permits to graze 1,382-221 cattle horses and hogs and of 4,282 permits to graze 7,687,111 sheep and goats. Receipts of $849,027.24 from timber sales were paid by approximately 5,189 purchasers, who cut the equivalent of 392,792,000 board feet of timber. The receipts from special uses amounted to $30,425.23 and were paid by 2,065 permittees.

The year's receipts represent profitable use of the forests by some 30,000 individuals or concerns in addition to more than 30,000 getting free use of timber and other resources. About one-fourth of all the timber cut from the national forests was under free-use permits.

The purpose of this free-use privilege is to make the forests contribute most effectively to the public welfare. The timber given to individuals is given for the development of the country thru settlement.

The total receipts from timber sales each year since the national forests have been under the odministration of the forest service have been as follows: 1905, $60,136.62; 1906, $245,013.49; 1907, $849,027.24.

HUMBLE POTATO GETTING CLASSY

SLATED TO GO TO $1.50 A BUSHEL BEFORE GENTLE SPRING BREEZES BLOW

HUNDREDS OF CARS BEING SHIPPED DAILY FROM MINNESOTA TO THE SOUTH

There has been a hot Marthon race recently between food products and the potato has entered the game after training for a sensational advance. It is predicted that the retail price of tubers will be $1.50 a bushel by spring The price has not gone up within the last few days.

The wholesale price however has been advanced so that it will vary from 60 cents to $1 a bushel in car load lots acording to the quality. The increase in the retail price will probably follow, grocers say. The potato crop of last fall is estimated at 60 per cent of the average which is the principal reason for the advance in price.

For several months the housewives have watched prices of butter, eggs and vegetables, meats and poultry go skyward and thep pinned their faith to the 'Murphies." Their trust was requitted with an unvarying price for a long time so that potatoes were within the reach of every one, but now—well people may be eating pepsin tablets soon. They say that the pepsin trust has not boosted the price lately.

The big movement of potatoes to southern states is now on and hundreds of cars are being shipped daily from Minnesota to states in the south Mississippi valley. The south depends almost exclusively on Minnesota and Wisconsin for seed potatoes. The most popular seed potato in southern markets at present is the Triumph which is being shipped for planting next month. The crop will mature in May and June and will reach Minnesota as the earliest spring potato.

In district court there is very little doing the past few days. Aside from the Peat case there has been hardly a thing doing this term of court in the damage suit line.

The Peat Case is one of the few cases which there is no answer to. But the jury only can return a verdict.

And it sometimes comes to pass that after a man has made money the money gets busy and unmakes him.

ACCIDENT OR SUICIDE ?

MAN NAMED JOHN JOHNSON, NO RELATION TO THE GOVERNOR KILLED

ONE THEORY IS THAT HE THREW HIMSELF UNDER WHEEL OF CARS AT CASS LAKE

From Friday's Daily—

A man whose name is supposed to be John Johnson, a lumberjack, was either accidentally killed or committed suicide at about the time the Sauk Center-Bemidji passenger train departed from Cass Lake at 9 o'clock last evening. The crew of a freight train which was pulling out for the east from the Cass Lake depot, discovered Johnson's body wedged between the platform and the rails of the main track, about fifty feet west of the depot, two hours after the Bemidji train had departed.

The left hand had been severed from the body and there was a gash in the throat, it being evident that Johnson had been instantly killed.

The body was taken to Miskella's undertaking rooms and Coroner Holeman was notified.

Johnson was a passenger on the Sauk Center-Bemidji passenger train last evening getting on the train at Walker. He was slightly under the influence of liquor.

A. E. Jondahl, of Guthrie was a pasenger on the train and in talking to Jondahl Johnson said that he wished he was dead. Jondahl stopped at Cass Lake, and he says that Johnson was on the train when last seen.

It is believed that Johnson either accidentally fell on the track or demented threw himself under the wheels in order to end his earthly career.

The deceased was a lumberjack,

NECESSITIES OF POPULAR GIRLS

MUST BE .TACTFUL, .CHEERFUL, SYMPATHETIC AND FEMININE

First among the qualitiese which a girl must cultivate in order to attain popularity is tact. Tact is common sense exquisitely refined. The girl who is tactful never pieces the feelings of others with poisoned shafts of wit nor bruss their hearts with stupid blunders. She says the right thing in the right place and she knows which things are better done and which are better left undone says an exchange.

Cheerfulness is a good second in the list. Not the senseless gaiety based on an absence of gray matter but the gladness of heart which has for its foundation a strong, sane optimism. Men flee from the gloomy, complaining creature as from a plague. It's a part of womanhood to make the sun seem to shine even when it doesn't Few "missions" have a bigger crowd.

Then the popular girl won't talk much about herself. 'Cause why? There are always others who want to talk about themselves — especially men. And if she has learned to listen well and to draw them on to talk of their interests and plans she has shown a winning card in the game of making them like her.

Sympathy is a quality which comes largely by experience. But, after all, it has its root in unselfishness and so may be cultivated even by the girl whose life has run along the level plain of happiness. And be very sure girls that both men and women like sympathy. They like to be condoned with instead of scolded. It goes to their heart to be told. "Yes, I know" in a sweet understanding voice, and to be made to feel that you do know. Occasionally it goes to their head, too but you must be well balanced enough to prevent that catastrophe—unless you are aiming to inspire something more than popularity.

Finally, be feminine. Whether it is because the masculine mind is jealous of its prerogative, or because it is too sincere to favor a sham (this is a nice supposition, so let's believe it) it looks with contemptuous scorn upon the girl who makes frantic efforts to be mannish. The most rational male creature likes a feminine woman best Femininity does not mean kitteninity It means womanliness. And no girl needs to have explained to her the qualities that go to make up that charm.

MOURNED FOR DEAD CHILDREN

RED LAKE FALLS WOMAN GOES VIOLENTLY INSANE OVER DEATH IN FAMILY

SHE WAS TAKEN TO FERGUS FALLS LAST EVENING BY SHERIFF NELSON

From Friday's Daily—

A very sad case in insanity occurred in Red Lake County in which Mrs. Filipina Close lost her mind over worrying as the result of the death of two children. Her case has been growing worse for some time past, and the chief trouble seemed to be that she expected every few days that her departed children would return to her.

One of the saddest features of the case is that she has two other little children who greatly need a mother's care, her husband being a laboring man who can ill afford to hire a competent person after having been to great expense owing to the condition of his wife for some time past.

Sheriff Nelson passed thru the city last evening with a deputy in charge of the unfortunate woman. At times she is very violent and it is all two men could do to handle her.

Sheriff Nelson and his deputy returned home this morning to Red Lake Falls.

ANGUS AND SHERACK

Mr. G. H. Horn and Mr. Nels Swenson two prominent Keystone gents, spent a couple of days last week in the Queen City on important business.

A goodly number of our young folks attended the dance and basket social given at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Zak. The tables were fairly groaning under the heavy loads of the finest of eatables the land produces. All present report a splendid time.

Miss Mildred Miller, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Miller, 4½ miles Southwest of this place, celebrated last Monday the anniversary of her 12th birthday. Her many friends wish her a long and happy life full of cheer and sunshine.

Miss Helen Riedesel, who spent her Xmas vacation with her parents Mr. and Mrs. C. Riedesel of Crookston resumed her school duties last Monday in South Euclid.

A great many of our Modern Woodmen of America drove to Euclid last Wednesday evening to be present at the initiation ceremonies to be held there.

Mrs. L. Osterloh and her three children have all been sick with lagrippe.

Miss Bertha Erdmann teacher in school district No. 59 is proving herself to be an excellent pedagogue and parents and scholars are speaking words of praise of her educational work. Miss Erdmann besides highly educated is a young lady of great refinement.

Mr. D. H. Miller one of our foremost farmers made a business call in Warren.

The thermometer registered 48 degrees below zero here last Tuesday morning at 7:45. We are thus sure of a bountiful ice crop.

A little too much snow for good sleighing.

Mr. Elois Beadel formerly living at Sherack now situated at Enid, Okla., writes to his many friends here, that he is doing well in Oklahoma, but thinks he likes the Red River Valley better.

Miss Louise Tiedemann, returned home last week from an extended visit with her sister Mrs. W. Wallace of North Dakota.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Broadwell have been on the sick list for quite a while, but are of late getting along nicely.

Dr. Dryden of Euclid was called by phone to attend to Mr. Frank Sirek, Sr., who was very sick with throat disease. We are glad to hear that Mr. Sirek is improving and his many friends hope to see their sick friend soon entirely well again.

Miss Alma Horn after spending a few days with friends in Crookston, returned home again. Miss Alma is one of the leading young ladies of this neighborhood and her many friends were glad to see her home again.

Miss Emma Giese daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ludolf Giese of Tabor and a graduate of the Grand Forks N. D., business college, has accepted a position as bookkeeper with a business firm at Rolette, N. D. Miss Giese left for her new place a few days ago to enter upon her duties immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brantl and Miss Bessie Brantl of Tabor and Miss Rose Kotek of Sherack drove to Euclid last Friday.

Holy Communion was held last Thursday in the Roman Catholic church in Tabor.

AN OLD TIMER BOBS UP AGAIN

TOM HUTCHINS PASSES THRU CITY ENROUTE TO CITIES FROM CANADA

IS LIVING ON CLAIM THERE WITH WIFE HE MARRIED NEAR ST. CLOUD

From Friday's Daily—

Last evening Tom Hutchins one of the best known and most widely advertised characters who ever resided in Crookston, arrived here and left on the belated train for Duluth from where he goes to Minneapolis to have some changes made in his life insurance policies.

Tom was for years a resident of this city, and did a considerable amount of detective work for the Great Northern his long suit being to collect evidence and he was a master hand at the business.

He is now residing near Regina, Canada, at the present time, where he settled on a claim about two years ago, and he is doing well in his new location.

Tom has a former wife and five children who reside in this city at the present time but has since remarried a young woman named Elmquist who formerly resided near St. Cloud and there was a great flurry at the time of the marriage, or shortly afterwards her parents being opposed to the match, but all the trouble has now been settled and her parents are now located in Regina where her father has engaged in business.

Tom will stop off in Crookston on his return trip for a few days to attend to some business matters here.

DESPICABLE INTRUDER

TWO YOUNG LADIES HAVE BEEN IN PARTIAL HYSTERICS FOR DAYS

MOUSE THAT CAUSED TROUBLE DEFIES EVEN STRONG ARM OF THE LAW

Two school ma'ams who reside in a suite of rooms in the Sathre Block, leased from a well-known deputy county official have had all manner of frightful experiences during the past few days. And the cause of their dire predicament is still running at large. So dire have been their predicament that on numerous and sundry occasions they have washed the dishes kneeling on chairs, tho there is somedoubt as to whether this was in prayer, or simply in an attieude of prayer.

Trained dogs was secured by their landlord to run down the marauder which nightly has terrorized them, and the shelves of the hardware men have been searched for some weapon which would give them protection and peaceful possession of their quarters, all to no avail.

Even an officer of the law was summoned and tried to route the self-invited in habitant of the room, but his efforts were as fruitless as the rest.

Screams from the apartments have aroused the entire block and some were of the opinion that murder was being committed or burglary.

But the little mouse is still scampering across the floor wherever it feels disposed, and has thus far successfully dodged all brooms hair brushes, slippers and frying pans. To add insult to injury, Tuesday night when a trap was set for him, he daintily nibbled the edges of the sugared cookie put in the trap as bait, but carefully avoided being caught.

There is now talk of calling out the fire department and drowning the ill-mannered pest out, even if all the furniture is ruined.

Tillman's Feeble Rejoinder

Those who expected to see Senator Tillman plow thru the president were disappointed. He scarcely landed a good blow. As a pugilistic exhibition it was a rank failure.

About eleven years ago, when President McKinley was heaving under the burden of responsibility of a situation which was, despite his utmost effort, drifting toward war, one Senator Tillman, then in the heyday of his strength, made the senate sizzle with epithets all directed toward humiliating the president because he hesitated on the brink of war.

Tillman may have been wronged by Mr. Roosevelt. We do not know. It is not proved by Tillman's own defense. But if he was, public sympathy will rush but languidly to the defense of the chief protagonist of the southern system of politics.—Minneapolis Journal.

CLARK DENIES ALLEGATIONS

MAN CHARGED WITH STEALING TEN DOLLAR BILL FROM GIRL BOUND OVER

BROUGHT FROM FORKS THIS MORNING BY SHERIFF DANIELS

Long, loud, and accompanied by forceful and vigorous gestures was the denial yesterday in Judge Sullivan's court at East Grand Forks by B. Clark, charged with stealing a $10 bill from Lulu Woods in the East Grand Forks messenger service office. After Clark's flow of words had been stopped by the judge threatening him with three years, or words to that effect, he was bound over to the grand jury under a bond of $200. Unfortunately Clark's supply of currency was just about $200 short of the required bond and he was compelled to go back to jail.

Clark proved to be by all odds the most fluent person of the Ananias type that has yet entered the precincts of the municipal court of that city and his denial of each and every allegation in the complaint against him was such as would make the members of the president's Ananias club blush with shame for being considered in the same class. Clark admitted having been in the messenger service office with the girl, but denied having taken money, denied having changed a $10 bill denied that he had tried to chew up a $5 and a $1 bill in Chief Overby's office on the West side, denied that he told Overby the story Overby said he told him and was evidently ready to deny anything else that might have been brought up against him.

Carroll Sorley of the R. E. Z. store who changed the $10 bill for Clark identified him. Lulu Woods was able even to tell the number of the bill and Chief Overby told of the episode in his office in which Clark tried to chew up something which afterwards proved to be a $5 and a $1 bill. The tilt between Chief Overby and Clark was an amusing feature of the hearing in which the prisoner several times placed the chief in the Ananias class.

This morning Clark was taken over to Crookston by Sheriff Daniels to await the grand jury's finding.

An amusing incindent occurred on Wednesday when Chief Ellingson brought him into the municipal court G. Purcell was busy taking down notes and Clark suddenly arrived at the conclusion that he was a reporter and demanded that he be required to leave claiming that he didn't want anything to get into the papers about his escapade.

SOME ERRORS REGARDING FIRE

There were a few errors in the article published a few days ago regarding the destruction of the "round" school house in Hammond Township which burned last Friday. The real facts in the case are as follows: The teacher and pupils left the school house last Friday at 4 o'clock as usual. The stove was closed and in every way properly taken care of. It happened that there was less fire in the stove at that time than usual, as no coal had been put in the stove after 2 p. m. The school house burned at 10 o'clock that night and how the fire started is a mystery. The general opinion is that had it started from the stove, it would have started before that time as a fire that had not been supplied with fresh coal since 2 p. m. would hardly be hot enough at 10 p. m. to set a building on fire. The origin will probably always remain a mystery.

Many people in Crookston will be interested to know that Rollie Zeider who was brought into the lime light the last season of league ball in this city when he was signed by Manager W. H. McNeil, is now touring Japan and other oriental countries as a member of the All-Americans base ball team.

Zeider was a whirlwind from the start, tho but a kid at the time, and burned up the Northern League from one end to the other. He was a good pitcher, and played a star game at either third or short, and "histed" the ball over the fence oftener than any man in the league, and was good for a safe hit any time it was needed.

And on top of it all he was a splendid fellow, clean in his habits, polite and jovial, and was a rooter from away back.

Last year he played with the Pacific Coast league and set such a hot pace that he was drafted by the Chicago Nationals and will this season don a National uniform and play short stop, one of the most difficult positions on the diamond, and it is dollars to doughnuts that he will make good.

AN ACTIVE SEASON AHEAD

MANY LARGE BLOCKS TO BE ERECTED IN THIS CITY THE COMING YEAR

QUEEN CITY FRUIT CO., WILL ERECT MODERN BUILDING ON SOUTH MAIN

From Friday's Daily—

The prospects for a busy building season the coming year are the best they have been in many years. Already four brick blocks are assurred, a new hotel, a new office building with store rooms on the first floor the new federal building, and lastly, arrangements were completed yesterday for the erection of a new brick block for the Queen City Fruit Co. This concern will occupy a block, modern in every respect, which will be erected on the Buhn property on South Main street, which will give them excellent shipping facilities, as the property abutts on the Great Northern right of way.

This concern will add groceries to their present line as soon as they move into their new building, which will have 100-foot frontage and extend clear back to the Great Northern side track.

The full details of these buildings will be published in a few days, including the location of each. In addition to the above, the Wright-Carpenter Co. will soon let the contract for the complete remodeling of the New Store making it one of the most modern and up-to-date department stores in the northwest.

HIS INJURIES PROVED FATAL

A. A. NEWGAARD DIES AS RESULT OF WOUNDS RECEIVED IN MUNICH ACCIDENT

MUNICH MERCHANT IS TAKEN TO HIS OLD HOME IN MINNESOTA FOR BURIAL

A. A. Newgaard who was struck by a Great Northern engine while driving on the railway track between Munich and Clyde died of his injuries at a hospital in Devils Lake. His skull was fractured and he never regained consciousness.

The deceased's body passed thru Grand Forks Monday night on the way to his old home in Minnesota, where the funeral will be held.

From the first it was feared his injuries would prove fatal. He was hurried to a hospital in Devils Lake and an operation performed, but it was of no avail.

The deceased was engaged in business as a merchant at Munich and also a store at Mandan, where he resided for many years. Before going to Mandan he had resided at Milnor. N. D. His wife and three children survive him at Mandan.

WAS WELL PATRONIZED

NEARLY 17,000 BOOKS WERE LOANED BY LIBRARIAN LOMMEN PAST YEAR

REPORT SHOWS HOW PUBLIC APPRECIATES THE CARNEGIE INSTITUTION

Miss Elizabeth Lommen has made a brief abstract of her annual report and the figures are certainly most gratifying, showing that during the past year nearly 17,000 books were loaned. The report also shows nearly 3,000 volumes on the shelves, an increase of about 100 over last year, but new books are the greatest need of the institution at the present time, as well as periodicals, as suggested by Miss Warner when here recently. The report follows:

Librarian's Report

Report of Crookston Public Library for 1908:

No. volumes in at beginning of year 2823.

No. of volumes added by purchase 112.

No. of volumes added by gift 88.
No. of volumes rebound 294.
Volumes lost or withdrawn 114.
Total number at end of year 2909.
Number of borrowers registered 240
Number of books loaned for 1908, 16,870.
Fines collected $223.13

I would be pleased to have books that are overdue brought in and oblige,

—Elizabeth Lommen,
Librarian.

HARROWING EXPERIENCE

LOUISVILLE MERCHANT HAS ALL MANNER OF TROUBLE IN DRIVING HOME

HORSE FALLS IN SNOWDRIFT — TOOK HALF OF THE NIGHT TO RESCUE IT

From Thursday's Daily—

Mr. Huot, proprietor of the general store in Louisville township, Red Lake County, just across the line from Polk Co., and formerly located in this county, had an experience Tuesday night that he will not care to repeat.

He had driven to Crookston with a single rig for a load of goods. The roads were bad, and he got a late start on the return trip, having secured a heavy load of goods.

Along about midnight, John Sullivan, who formerly run the Riverside Hotel in this city, and who now resides on a farm several miles north east of this city was awakened by vigorous pounding at his door.

Some one shouted back that his horse was stuck in a snow bank about half a mile away and he wanted assistance.

Mr. Sullivan got up and dressed, and found Mr. Huot at the door. The latter stated that his horse had floundered in a drift, got off the road and he had tried in vain to get the animal on its feet but needed help. Mr. Sullivan harnessed a team and drove to the rescue. The horse was still lying in the drift, and it took half an hour to rub some life in the stiffening limbs of the animal and get him on his feet. Mr. Sullivan then hitched his team to the sleigh and leading the horse drove back to the Sullivan home it having taken about four hours work in the bitter cold in the middle of the night to do it.

After working over the animal nearly all night the two men managed to rub the effects of the cold from him and Mr. Huot continued his journey yesterday morning.

GIRL WAS HIS LITTLE 'DAUGHTER'

MAN ELOPES WITH 15-YEAR OLD GIRL FROM EAST GRAND FORKS

NABBED AT DEVILS LAKE — BROT BACK AND GOES SCOTT FREE

From Thursday's Daily—

Frank Jones and little daughter is the way a Grand Forks man who had eloped with Priscilla Frazier of East Grand Forks, a week ago, registered at a rooming house at Devils Lake. Jones was so successful in passing the girl off as his daughter that the land lady never suspected she was anything else. The little girl had a cot in the same room as Jones.

The exposure came yesterday when Officer Dan Leahy of Grand Forks trailed Jones to his rooming house found him engaged in writing an order to an East Grand Forks liquor house for a consignment of goods. Miss Frazier, who is 15 years old, was in the room. Officer Leahy had a warrant for the arrest of Jones on charge of passing some bad checks in Grand Forks. He brought him here last evening. The acused bought a ticket for the girl in the case to Grand Forks She lost no time in getting over to East Grand Forks when the train arrived here.

Settles his Case

Jones telephoned to East Grand Forks from the city hall and an East Grand Forks saloon man promptly agreed to make good the amount of the checks and the costs of the case. The merchants who had been swindled decided not to prosecute and the case was dropped. Jones was discharged. He had an account in the bank but it was overdrawn. He claimed he had no intention to swindle anyone.

It is reported that he may be arrested on a charge of abduction. The Devils Lake authorities may cause his arrest on a more serious charge.

Jones has been in Grand Forks for some time. He has gone under several names and his real name is not believed to be Jones.

MRS. BIEVER BETTER—Mrs. Tim Biever whose condition was critical at Hamilton, Montana for some time, has been improving for the past few days according to a letter received by J. A. McCaffrey from Mr. Biever yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Biever were well known and popular residents of Crookston for many years, Mrs. Biever leaving for California for her health over a year ago and Mr. Biever following last summer. They expect to remove to Darby, Mont. in the near future. Mrs. Biever's many friends here, at Euclid and Argyle sincerely trust that her improvement may continue steadily.

Manager Fairbanks of the Larimore office will take Mr. Courtney's place at Grafton. The Grafton Record says:

"The people of Grafton will be sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Courtney but will be pleased to know that Mr. Courtney's application to business, courtesy and ability have won him a substantial promotion."

PROMINENT FARMER HERE — J. K. Kathman one o fthe well known farmersc on rural route No. 1 spent yesterday in the city and transacted business with local merchants. This was his first trip to the city for several days on account of the cold weather. However he states that all the farmers now have fine protection for their stock, and the only inconvenience caused by the snappy atmosphere was to create a desire for the farmer to stay indoors instead of coming to town unless there was actually a reason for coming.

EXPECTS BRISK BUSINESS— R. P. Workman the well known horse dealer of St. Hilaire was in the city last evening between trains enroute to St. Paul where he will spend a few days on business. He says the prospects for a good demand and lively business generally is the best for the coming year it has been for many years. He deals in both driving and draft horses, and states that many of the farmers are beginning to buy light horses for driving, believing that it is a saving idea to keep heavy draft horses off the hard roads as much as possible.

WANTED "THE CHEAPEST"—A traveling man, who is much at the Palace Hotel was getting shaved in the barber shop there the other day and said something in a spirit of fun that was taken seriously, which made it all the more amusing. "Will you have bay rum or witch hazel on your face?" inquired the barber of the traveling man. "Witch is the cheapest," was the unexpected response, and a fat man in the next chair was so surprised at this seeming lack of information about such matters that he could not resist turning his head to look at the speaker, and the barber came near cutting his chin as a result of the movement.

TOOK INITIAL DRIVE— Sheriff Orin Daniels took his initial drive into the country since his induction into office after the first of the year. He drove to Fairfax and Kertsonville to serve some papers. As he has been on the hop during his long service as deputy the experience was not unusual.

MAKES FINE SHOWING — The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. Langevin of this city will be pleased to learn that he has just been notified that he passed the examination before the Minnesota Dental Board with a very creditable standing. He took the examination in December and then returned to Chicago where he resumed his college work and will graduate in April after which he will return to Crookston.

Any 12 Year Old Girl

Can make those delicious Lemon, Chocolate and Custard pies as well as the more experienced cook if she uses "OUR-PIE" preparation, which is now being sold by nearly all grocers! Full directions on each package. Pie is not a luxury, but an article of daily diet and you might just as well make good pies as poor ones. Order a few packages to-day and you will be so well pleased that you will tell all your friends.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

Albert Brush came down from Angus last evening and returned home this morning with some more phonograph rolls.

HOME NEARING COMPLETION—Workmen went to Euclid this morning to put a few more of the finishing touches on the fine new residence being erected there by Section Foreman C. Keeley.

BUSINESS AND PLEASURE—Albine St. Marie left last evening on the belated Duluth train for Superior where he will attend to some business matters and visit for four or five days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Berthiaume.

BACK TO AGENCY—Delore Gravelle, a cousin of the Marottes who has been visiting here since last Saturday, left this morning for the Red Lake Agency where he is employed in the big agency store of John Morrison. He has many friends in the city and all are pleased to note that he is doing well up among the Indians. A large crowd was at the depot to bid him farewell.

FORGING TO THE FRONT — The many friends of Charles Buckingham formerly of Crookston will be highly gratified to learn that he is now the cashier of a bank at Brook Park, Minn a thriving little city on the line between Duluth and St. Paul. He left Crookston about a year ago and his rapid advancement is a source of much gratification. Thus do Crookston young men nearly always give a good acount of themselves after seeking new pastures green.

EUCLIDITE HERE — Theodore Neiers, the Euclid merchant who is in partnership with Peter Stuhr in the operation of the big general store there spent last evening in the city and returned home this morning. He stated that he was surprisel at the cold weather here as linen dusters and straw hats had been the vogue in Euclid for some time past, and that they were all sold out and he had to come down for a hurry-up order.

BUILDING NEW STORE — G. G. Jackson, head clerk at Sjoberg Bros. large store at Badger, passed thru the city this morning enroute home after spending several days in St. Paul and Minneapolis looking after some business interests. He was greeted at the train this morning by a lange bevy of traveling men who had heard he was married while away, but he came alone. He states that Sjoberg Bros., are erecting a large new store at Badger which will be ready for occupancy this spring.

PREPARATIONS ALL MADE — Marcus Johnson passed thru the city last evening enroute home to Stillwater after spending a few days at Red Lake Falls. He says the debris is all cleared up now from the big mill fire, and that just as soon as the weather moderates in the spring the work of building a new and strictly modern mill will be commenced. The water power he has developed there is one of the best in the state and there was never any danger of Red Lake Falls losing the industry as a result of the disastrous fire.

WORK PRACTICALLY FINISHED —Master Carpenter Mills of the Northern Division of the Great Northern has made a good record on the work of repairing the damage done by the recent fire. All the outside work is finished, and much of the interior work is done. However the business office of the freight department is still located in the waiting room and will remain there for several days yet. All the telegraphing is still handled in the Northern Division office building and this plan will be continued till the repairs are complete in the room in the south end of the pasesnger depot formerly accupied by the force which juggled the freight books and where the operators formerly delivered the train orders and the engineers and conductors registered.

There was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth by pasengers who were awaiting the trains from Grand Forks last evening, which did not reach Crookston till 2 A. M. and the passengers on the evening train for Grand Forks which leaves here at 7 p. m. were also in a sad state of mind as they were held up at Mallory also for about 6 hours by a freight train which became stalled.

First the westbound passenger train tried to push the freight train ahead but that failed and a fresh engine from Grand Forks had to be sent for and side track the dead freight before any of the three passenger trains could pass.

EXTENDED TRIP—Adolph Wentzel left last evening for an extended trip south and west to be absent several weeks. He first goes to Texarcana to visit his brother-in-law Mike Hines and will then visit several points in Mexico. He will return thru Oklahoma Colorado and Montana via a different route and the trip will be a very fine one. H. F. Krueger had intended to accompany him but owing to the illness of his wife decided to remain here.

ADDRESSED STUDENTS—Rev. C. C. Warner of the Congregational church addressed the students of the Crookston Business College this after noon on the subject "The World is Growing Better" and it was one of the finest the students have listened to. Rev. Warner is a practical worker, every time he talks he says something, and that something always tends to make people better.

LITTLE CHILD BURIED— Ralph William infant child of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rundquist was buried this afternoon from the family residence, 508 Hunter street, Rev. Salveson officiating and the remains were laid to rest in the Synod church plot at Oakdale Cemetery. The funeral was private.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

TRIPLETS NEAR BAGLEY— An addition of three healthy young ladies to a family of five children is the unusual happening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bestul who reside about four miles northeast of Bagley The little ones are well and in the best of health. When seen Mr. Bestul was feeling highly elated over the event.

BARN BURNED—Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock fire broke out in a barn belonging to Wm. Karkas a farmer living about six miles north of Shevlin and the barn was completely destroyed, together with about five tons of hay which was in the barn and a large number of chickens which were in a coop attached to the barn. The fire originated from a stove in the chicken coop and it is thought the stove became too hot and ignited the building.

SLIGHTLY BETTER—Many friends will be glad to learn that there is a slight improvement in the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hovet who suffered a relapse after a hard siege of typhoid fever. While he is not out of danger he has a much better chance than before and all join in hoping that he will recover. Mr. Hovet will remain off the road till his son is completely recovered.

AGENTS ON LOOKOUT—Were it not for the constant watchfulness of the ticket agents there would be grief at the depots all the time. This morning, for instance, a man purchased a ticket for a nearby town. He was so busy counting his change that he forgot about the ticket altogether and moved away from the ticket window with nothing but his change when Ticket Agent Stewart called him back Had he got on the train without his ticket he would probably have sworn by all that was good and holy that he had been robbed or that the agent had bam-foozled him.

GOES TO TEXAS—Wm. Halverson of McIntosh is making arrangements to leave for Texas next Monday and is trying to induce Mrs. Halverson to make the trip with him. He has large property interests there in the vicinity of Longsworth and says that the reports received from there are very gratifying. While his plans for the future are not definitely settled he is seriously considering removing to Texas with his family and taking up his residence there, and it is largely with a view to definitely settling this question that he is making this trip.

CONDITION CRITICAL—The condition of Mrs. Tim Biever, formerly of this city and now at Hamilton, Mont., has taken another turn for the worse following an improvement which gave hope to friends. On Monday evening her mother, Mrs. F. Tiedt Sr., of Argyle and her brother Henry Tiedt of this city will leave for Montana to be at the bedside of Mrs. Biever.

WATER PIPES FROZEN AND DEEP SNOW IN NORTH YAKIMA

STOVES WERE BLOWN UP AS A RESULT—PLUMBERS CHARGED $1.25 PER HOUR

From Saturday's Daily—

J. O. Sauve recently received a very interesting letter from his daughter, Mrs. Louis Mailloux who is located at North Yakima, Wash., and the letter will be very interesting to the people of Crookston, Gentilly and the county generally because of the fact that the writer and her husband are both well known here and the further fact that frozen water pipes seem to cause more trouble in the land of the fruit grower than it does in the paradise of the bread and butter producer.

The letter states, under date of Jan. 10, that the thermometer went 18 degrees belw zero in the Mouse Valley and many claimed that it was worse than that. There was 8 inches of snow and at the time the letter was written there had been a steady week of cold weather without any sign of a change for the future. On the date that the letter was written the writer stated that the water pipes were frozen all over the city and there was all kinds of trouble. In the immediate neighborhood where Mrs. Mailloux resides, three stoves were blown up by the explosion of steam in frozen pipes and practically all were frozen up tight.

To add to the interesting conditions the plumbers only charged $1.25 per hour and not half enough could be secured at that price to supply the demand.

This interesting news, absolutely reliable will make the residents of the banana belt more satisfied than ever before.

BIG MEETING OF MODERN BROTHERHOOD

OFFICERS WERE INSTALLED LAST EVENING AND SOCCIAL SESSION ENJOYED

Last evening the Modern Brotherhood of America held an important session. The officers for the ensuing year were installed and a class was initiated after which the evening was spent in playing cards and having a good time generally. At the next meeting another large class will be inifiated as many new applications have been received.

Following is the list of officers installed last evening, H. L. Selleneit acting as installing officer:

President—Wm. Milliette.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Frank Arries.
Sec.—A. A. Glenn.
Treas.—Richard A. Gadde.
Chaplain—Mrs. Ida Peterson.
Watchman—Severe Charbeneau.
Sentry—Harry Krause.
Physicians—Drs. O. L. Bertelson and H. E. Nelson.
Trustees—Amanda Ofstad, H. E. Nelson and Hans Morberg.

The meeting was attended by visitors from Warren Red Lake Falls and New Folden.

POSTOFFICE BURGLARS CAUGHT —Norman Grambo a halfbreed and Frank Fredericks have been apprehended as the men who robbel the postoffice at Robbin, Kittson county, last week. Fredericks plead guilty before Judge Gindeland and was sentenced to three years imprisonment at hard labor. Grambo is being held at Hallock for trial. He is one of a party of halfbreeds who lived on the Red river near Drayton, N. D. and who has had trouble with Marshall and Kittson county authorities before.

ON TO CUBA — A card received from Joe Holtor and dated at Washington, D. C., Jan. 9th, informs us that himself and brother were then in Washington, having stopped off a few days sightseeing at Chicago and Pittsburg. Refering to Washington he says "it is very interesting and beautiful city" and a very "White City" as compared with Pittsburg. They expect to visit Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York before sailing for Havana. —McIntosh Times.

McINTOSH FIREMEN'S BALL — At the regular meeting of the Fire Department held Monday evening at McIntosh the new officers for the ensuing year were elected and a committee was also appointed to make arrangements for a Firemen's Ball to be held at a date in the near future to be determined at a special meeting to be held next Monday evening. The new officers of the department are S. P. Swenson, Chief; H. F. King, Asst. Chief; Charles Martin, Clerk; E. King Treasurer.

HOOPING 'ER UP FOR MINNESOTA

From Friday's Daily—

The people attending the annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs at St. Paul know there is such a place as Crookston on the map. The discussion lead by Prof. Robertson caused widespread attention yesterday afternoon, and Thomas R. Johnstone of this city was one of the three named on the Committee on Credentials. The convention will close with the election of officers this afternoon.

The St. Paul Dispatch of yesterday says:

"Keep pushing talk Minnesota." This was the motto for the opening meeting of the second annual convention of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs, held at 11 o'clock today in the parlors of the St. Paul Commercial club. One hundred delegates were present, representing the commercial organizations of all of the larger cities of the state.

"Two meetings were held today, and a reception and smoker for the delegates will be given tonight at the Commercial club. Two meetings will be held tomorrow, the election of officers to take place tomorrow morning, and the convention to close after the afternoon session.

"The first session today was called to order by Eli Warner, president of the St. Paul Commercial club, who introduced D. M. McNeil, president of the federated clubs as presiding officer.

"Mayor J. C. Haynes, of Minneapolis, extended greetings to the delegates and spoke of the work that can be accomplished by the combination of commercial clubs of the state. Mayor Daniel W. Lawler gave the address of welcome for St. Paul. In speaking of the close relation that exists between the interests of St. Paul and Minneapolis, Mayor Lawler said: "There is not really the amount of antagonism between St. Paul and Minneapolis an outsider would think from reading the newspaper accounts and as a matter of fact, a large part of the difference has been brought about by the newspapers. Some editors are willing to take a story from a reporter just because it is hot stuff, without regard to its possible effects." He expressed a desire for a more close relation between St. Paul and Minneapolis.

"Responses were made by Frank Y. Locke former president of the St. Paul Commercial club and Wallace G. Nye of Minneapolis.

"The topic for discussion at the afternoon session of the convention was "Advertising Minnesota." E. D. Randall spoke on Minnesota as an agricultural state and the necessity for developing the state's resources. The open discussion was led by William Robertson, superintendent of the state experiment station at Crookston. The settlement of Minnesota's unoccupied farm lands and the opportunities the state offers to the setler, was discussed by George Welch of the state immigration board. The address delivered by Curtis L. Mosher of the St. Paul Consolidated Publicity bureau, upon "100,000 a Year for Advertising Minnesota's Resources" was the most important feature of the first day of the convention, and the delegates took an active part in the discussion.
to know more definitely the method

"The delegates expressed a desire proposed for distributing the money before any action recommending the appropriation was taken. Mr. Mosher dwelt at some length on the necessity for a more thoro system of advertising in order to keep Minnesota on a par with other states of the Northwest."

President McNeill appointed the following members as the committee on credentials: Thomas R. Johnstone, Crookston; F. G. Wade, Fairmont and W. J. Lawrie, Lake City.

AGED MAN ENDS LIFE

GUNDER ELLEFRUD ENDS HIS LIFE IN ROSEAU CO., AGED 74 YEARS

HE HAD BEEN DESPONDENT SINCE THE DEATH OF HIS WIFE

On last Friday Conorer Muir was notified from Fox that Gunder Ellefrud generally known as Gunderson aged 74, had committed suicide by hanging himself in the homestead residence of his son, Andrew, located a mile west of Fox postoffice, Roseau County, on the ridge road and a few rods from the house where he had lived for 14 years.

Investigation showed that the aged man had made every preparation to commit the act. A neighbor, Lars Molsness not seeing the old man around for a week went to the house and discovering that his pipe lay on a chair and that his fur coat was packed in his trunk, made search and finally with the aid of neighbors forced an entrance into the house of the son and ther found him hanging by the neck from the ceiling by a rope. The rope had been passed thru holes bored in the ceiling and every precaution taken to prevent the rope from slipping or becoming unfastened. The windows had been carefully covered and the door securely fastened on the inside.

The wife of Ellefrud died a few years ago since which time the old man has lived alone. He had sold his land but continued to reside in his log cabin. He was a kindly man, courteous and friendly and all who knew him greeted him with pleasant words. Andrew his son, was notified at Roosevelt where he was at work, and took charge of the funeral and burial.

FROM FARGO TO WARROAD

TWO CREWS WILL MAKE LONGER RUN—CHANGE IN TIME

WILL CONNECT WITH TRAINS TO DULUTH, TWIN CITIES AND WEST

The Red Lake Falls Gazzette is responsible for this:

"There is to be another change in the passenger schedule on the Great Northern. The run will be lengthened and there will be two regular crews making the run. Each crew will make a trip one way each day. The run is to be from Fargo to Warroad. By this new arrangement there will be convenient connection with trains to Duluth the twin cities and all points west.

"The trains will run on about the same schedule as before the establishment of passenger service on the Warroad extension. The northbound train will arrive at about 10:25 a. m. and the southbound at 5:15 p. m. The change is not to be made at once and no official statement has been made, but there is little doubt that the change is to be made.

Bearing Fruit

Governor Johnson's vigorous and attention-compelling demand for the development of the resources of Northern Minnesota is already bearing fruit. This portion of the message which the governor has made so large and so vital a part of the message that it dominates all the rest, is the talk of the hotels, of the offices, of business and professional men everywhere It will be the text of sermons and it is flooding the newspapers with arguments and facts and enthusiasm for the speedy development of Minnesota's northern empire. The message is already being put to one use for which it has probably never entered the governor's mind that it would be used. People are calling at The Herald office eagerly asking for copies of the message to send to prespective visitors to the state, business men are demanding copies of the message to be distributed with their other advertising literature and there is every reason to believe that the Northern Minnesota portion of the message at least will be most widely distributed of any message ever sent to the legislature by the governor of any state.—Duluth Herald.

MAN WHO STOLE WHEAT OF HENRY ROSS HELD TO THE GRAND JURY

MUCH CREDIT DUE TO THE SHERIFF AND CHIEF OF POLICE ECK

Mike Kidrowsky was this afternoon arraigned before Judge Gossman of the municipal court charged with stealing wheat from the granary of Henry Ross in the township of Fisher The accused waived examination and was bound over to the Grand Jury under $500 bonds which he could not furnish.

Mr. Ross feels highly gratified over the splendid work done in landing the accused by Chief of Police Eck and Sheriff Daniels. The slim clues they had to work on, and the fine manner in which the guilty party was landed was very gratifying to them. Two bank officials are standing ready with more complaint as soon as the present charge is disposed of.

Kiderofsky will also have to face other charges which will later be preferred by two of the banks of Crookston.

ROWE WINS DAMAGE SUIT

MRS SARAH ANNE NEWBERRY GETS $2000 FROM THE GREAT NORTHERN

From Saturday's Daily—

Shortly after noon today the case of Mrs. Sarah Anne Newberry of Wilton, Minn., a small station this side of Bemidji was given to the jury by Judge Watts after a short charge and shortly before 4 o'clock returned a verdict of $2,000 in favor of the plaintiff.

The case has been the longest of the present term, having lasted over two days with witnesses from all over Northern Minnesota, including expert testimony given by Dr. E. H. Marcum of Bemidji and two physicians from Fergus Falls and trainmen from all over the Northern and Dakota divisions.

Mrs. Newberry claims that on returning on a Great Northern passenger train from Bemidji to Wilton she was not properly assisted in alighting from the train, fell and sustained serious injuries and asked damages on that score.

Attorney W. E. Rowe represented the plaintiff and Attorneys J. W. Mason and James H. Maybury of this city the Great Northern.

CHICKEN THIEVES MAKE A BIG HAUL

The loss of 30 chickens by W. Buckley from his slaughter house at East Grand Forks yesterday morning. The biddies were taken Saturday night and were of various sizes and values Several hundred chickens are kept by the butcher in his slaughter house just outside the city limits. As it happened several hundred were kept in one large pen and 0 or more that were taken in another. The thieves emptied the small pen but evidently overlooked the other or were satisfied with their booty. The police had no definite clue last evening and the fact that the robbery was not reported until yesterday morning practically insures a safe getaway for the thieves.

Pianos at a Discount of 20 to 40 per Cent

When Lyon & Healy of Chicago started in to rebuild their big establishment the entire piano trade of the United States wondered what Lyon & Healy could do with their vast collection of fine instruments, for these were no cheap factory pianos, but pianos of makes of the highest reputation.

What Lyon & Healy have done is to mark pianos, hundreds of them, at a discount of 20 to 40 per cent. The response upon the part of the public is marvelous.

If you know the names of good standard makes of pianos and the prices always paid, you will need no second invitation to write to Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago, for lists and terms. For you can secure a genuine $300 upright for $180 or other bargains in proportion.

Lyon & Healy give their own guarantee with every one of these pianos Nothing like this opportunity has ever been given to music teachers, students and music lovers heretofore.

QUESTION DECIDED

GREAT TRIBUNAL DECIDES THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WAS RIGHT

IN PORTION OF MESSAGE IN WHICH HE DISCUSSED SECRET SERVICE

Last evening the Carnegie Literary Society held an important meeting which will be of great value to the people of the entire country as before adjournment the question, "Resolved that that portion of the President's Message relating to the Secret Service was Fair and Necessary" was settled for all time. Papers have devoted columns to the discussion and political leaders have been in a quandary as to what to say.

Last evening it was all decided. The oratory for the affirmative was discharged in great broadsides by Messrs. Arthur Johnson, and Julius Spokely, while O. E. Ring and T. P. Boukind turned their howitzers loose from the opposing elevation. The judges decided 2 to 1 in favor of the affirmative. That settles that momentous question and Teddy can now go a-hunting in Africa with a clear conscience on the secret service question.

Next Friday evening the society will settle another question, one of international importance, and which has been the cause of great concern on the part of Uncle Sam and Johnny Bull for years. The question for debate is; "Resolved that a Reciprocal Tariff law with Canada would not be beneficial to the United States." The affirmative side of the uestion will be taken care of by Messrs. G. A. Hage, Fred Morin and James Hanson and the negative by H. E. Kjorsvik, Geo. Hamery and Oscar Fredricks.

Special police will be detailed to prevent any serious clash between the Whigs and Torries, with Sheriff Daniels and a platoon of jailbirds in reserve.

DEANARY MEETING AT LITTLE FALLS

GATHERING OF MISSISSIPPI VALLEY DEANERY OF DULUTH DIOCESE JAN. 26

The Mississippi Valley Deanery of the Protestant Episcopal church in the diocese of Duluth will be held at Little Falls in the church of Our Savior Tuesday and Wednesday Jan. 26 and 27.

The deanery consists of the counties of Big Stone, Traverse Stevens, Pope, Stearns, Benton, Mille Lacs, Wadena, Hubbard, Crow Wing, Aitkin Cass, south half of Beltrami, Clearwater and Kanabec.

The clergy at work in the deanery and who are expected to attend the meeting are the Right Rev. James D. Morrison, bishop of Duluth; the Ven. H. F. Parshall, arch deacon of Duluth; the Very Rev. Theodore C. Hudson, dean of the convocation; Rev. Joseph R. Alten, Brainerd; Rev. John R. Atwill, St. Cloud; Rev. E. M. Davies, Bemidji; Rev. Erick Forsberg, Eagle Bend; Rev. E. S. Murphy, Grand Rapids; Rev. J. G. Ward, Fergus Falls; Rev. Arthur E. Bruce, Detroit; and Rex. George E. Platt Little Falls. Of the Indian clergy the following were in attendance; Rev. Lewis Manypenny, Leach Lake; Rev. George Smith, Ponsford; Rev. F. W. Smith, Redly; Rev. Charles T. Wright, Cass Lake.

The appointment of Elias Steenerson as Postmaster of Crookston was sent to the senate for confirmation Jan. 12 and favorable action will without doubt be taken today or Monday. While there was no doubt in the minds of those who were on the inside as to what the result would be regarding the postmastership in Crookston, there have been divers and sundry reports some of which were to the effect that Postmaster Steenerson was going to retire voluntarily to attend to his large personal business interests, but there was never any intention on the part of Mr. Steenerson to take such action and his reappointment will set all speculation as to what would happen at rest.

The reappointment of Postmaster Steenerson will be very pleasing to his many friends, and is looked upon by them as a reward of merit.

"Come on, Bill," whispered the old burglar in disgust. "It's no use wasting time here."

"Don't you think those two lovers will get off the steps soon?" queried the new burglar.

"No. I heard him say that was the last kiss. They'll be an hour yet."

"Your husband says that when he is angry he always counts ten before he speaks," said one woman.

"Yes," answered the other, "I wish he'd stop it. Since he got dyspepsia home seems nothing but a class in arithmetic."

WARM AND DRY TO STAY WELL

AUTHORITY GIVES SIMPLE PRESCRIPTION ALSO TELLS HOW TO TAKE

TELLS READERS HOW TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE AT HOME

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism or if your backaches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism which is caused by uric acide in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescriptions stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

IS PLEASED WITH MEETING

PROF. ROBERTSON RETURNED THIS MORNING FROM ST. PAUL—OTHERS LATER

Prof. Wm. Robertson returned this morning from St. Paul where he went as a delegate representing the Crookston Commercial club at the annual meeting of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs and was one of the leading speakers at the gathering He was well pleased with the interest shown, and hopes the results will be widespread.

The other delegates from this city were Thomas R. Brown, editor of the Times and Thomas R. Johnstone, who will return Sunday, while the other delegate was Senator A. D. Stephens A more detailed account of the gathering will be published later.

FOSSTON GAVE BEMIDJI HARD RUB

LOCAL BASKETBALL TEAM WAS WEAKENED BY ABSENCE OF STAR FORWARD AND GUARD

With Markham the best forward in northern Minnesota and Biddinger, one of its "crack" guards absent from the line-up the "Big Bemidg" basketball team narrowly averted a defeat last night at the hands of the Fosston team, in a game that was a fast contest at all times.

Gill was substituted at forward for Markham and Warren was placed at guard in the place of Biddinger.

The members of the visiting team started the game with a series of rushes, displaying splendid team work and two minutes after play was called had thrown a field basket. They gained another point on a foul basket; after Geil had missed three chances in trying to throw field baskets luck breaking poor for the "Big Bemidg" captain.

It looked as if the Fosston team was going to run away with a big score, Bemidji took a brace and held the visitors fairly even altho there was some very poor playing and miserable team work on the part of the locals, owing to the absence of Markham and Biddinger, regular players.

The first half ended with Fosston in the lead, by a score of 9 to 7 and Bemidji entered the second half by placing Biddinger in his old place. This arrangement greatly strengthened the locals and they went into the second half with much better form.

In the second half Bemidji scored 11 points against 4 for Fosston the latter being out played at every point the game ending 18 to 13, in favor of Bemidji.

Biddinger refereed the first half, Prof. Thornton officiating in the second half. Both Gave satisfaction. —Bemidji Pioneer.

At the county meeting of the Society of Equity held here officers for the following year were elected as follows President, Justus C. Bergh, Hendrum; vice president, William Wilkins, Ada and secretary and treasurer, Ole Hagen, Hendrum.

FINDS HIRED MAN HANGING IN BARN

DISCOVERY IS MADE BY JULIUS ANDERSON NEAR CRARY—HAD BEEN GLOOMY

Julius Anderson a prominent farmer residing five miles north of Crary was startled when he discovered the dead body of Oscar Johnson his hired man, hanging from a beam in the loft of the barn. The body was still warm and it was evident Johnson had been dead only a short time. At an inquest held by Coroner Gilbertson of Ramsey county, a verdict was found that Johnson had committed suicide. He had been despondent for some time and Anderson had been closely watching his movements. Johnson had been thrifty and had a comfortable bank account at the time of his death. Letters from Norway telling of good times at his old home caused him to be despondent.

SWITCHMAN JACK SEEKING $50,000

Alleging that both of his legs were cut off when he was thrown under a switch engine while trying to manipulate an automatic coupling, William Jack of Devils Lake has brought a suit against the Great Northern Railway company for $50000 damage. Jack was employed by the company as a switchman at the time the accident occurred on Oct. 28 last.

Some time ago it was given out that Jack had settled with the Great Northern. A few days later it was learned that a St. Paul firm of attorneys had stopped payment of damages to Jack and declared he had entered into a contract with them to give them a share of the amount recovered by the road. The filing of the suit in district court at St. Paul is taken to mean that settlement with the Great Northern has been repudiated.

Jack is a cousin of W. R. Jack who owns a skating rink at Grand Forks.

BOOSTING FOR ROSEAU

DEAN BENSON OF COUNTY SEAT OF NEW LINE IS IN THE CITY

DAIRYING AND GENERAL FARMING MEANS RICH BUSINESS CENTERS

Dean Swenson one of the substantial and well known residents of Roseau, the county seat of Roseau county, arrived in the city last evening from Hallock where he has been attending to business matters for the past few days. He will remain here over Sunday looking after some business matters and will return home Monday morning. Mr. Benson is heavily interested in Roseau county and also in the city of Roseau, where he has been making his home for the last few years and he is one of the best boosters for the northern part of Minnesota that was ever turned loose.

He states that the completion of the new extension of the Great Northern thru Roseau County has naturally added greatly to the value of the land there, and that the people are all jubilant that their dream of years has come true.

Mr. Benson was one of the men who made it a point to see that every Crookstonite who went on the excursion was welcomed personally. He appreciates very highly the cordial sentiment expressed by the excursion, and states that the people of the entire county of Roseau feel very kindly towards Crookston. Regarding the development of the dairying industry in that county. Mr. Benson states that the progress has been wonderful during the past few years and that it will be even greater in the next few years to come.

SHAFER CASE TO BE TRIED

JUDGE KNEESHAW TO PRESIDE AT TRIAL OF ALLEGED HORSE THIEF

UNDERSTOOD CASE AGAINST MRS MARY WRIGHT, ACCUSED OF MURDER TO BE TAKEN UP

From Tuesday's Daily—

Judge W. J. Kneeshaw of Pembina was in Grand Forks last evening on his way to Devils Lake, where he will preside during the trial of Schafer, accused of being a horsethief and whose case was taken from Benson to Ramsey county upon the filing of an affidavit of prejudice against the people of Benson county and Judge Cowan. George A. Bangs left last night for Devils Lake to defend the accused The Shafer case will come up for trial tomorrow.

It is understood that the case against Mrs. Mary Wright accused of the murder of Beulah Cox, will next be taken up. Next on the list is the murder case of W. H. Howard who is accused of slaying his brother-in-law Thomas.

The Wright case will probably take many days. The evidence against Mrs. Wright is circumstantial, and she will make a desperate effort to show that her niece was the victim of heart disease. The state claims the accused suffocated her foster daughter.

FINE TRIP TO TWIN FALLS

MANAGER A. G. SANDBERG OF HANSON AND BARZEN LOCAL AGENCY RETURNS

BALANCE OF PARTY ALL DECIDED TO REMAIN IN TWIN FALLS, IDAHO

From Monday's Daily—

A. G .Sandberg manager of the local agency of the Barzen & Hanson Milling Co. of Thief River Falls returned home yesterday after a three weeks' trip west where he went with ex-Sheriff Louis Gonyea and sons, Louis, Alex and George, his brother John Sandberg and Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Longley.

Attorney Longley has decided to locate at Twin Falls as has the Gonyea family. Mr .Longley will probably form a partnership with John Sandberg for the transaction of a general real estate business.

Mr. Sandberg was absent for three weeks and states that the trip west was a most delightful one. The party first went to Minneapolis then to Omaha thence to Denver, Salt Lake City, Ogden, Ponsatella and finally to Twin Falls. At the latter place he met all the former Crookston residents, among whom was J. H. McNichols who with his wife and child have located there and intend making Twin Falls their home in the future, having bought a fine home there. Mr. McNichols and Alex and Louis Gonyea plan opening a fine billiard hall there in the near future.

Mr. Sandberg states that there is great building activity at Twin Falls Work has already been started on 12 fine brick blocks and in addition to this the coming summer will see a new $150,000 court house erected there and a six story brick block erected by the leading bank to cost a similar sum.

He also states that the scenery enjoyed was immense on the trip, the Rotal Gorge scenery in Colorado being specially awe inspiring. He states that there are great opportunities at Twin Falls. Real estate is moving so fast that two properties which he had intended to purchase were sold before he could reach the real estate office. He believs that the investor has great opportunities and that Messrs. Longley and Sandberg will do well from the very start.

M. B. HAYES DIES SUDDENLY

SAD NEWS RECEIVED OF FORMER WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF CROOKSTON

From a niece of the deceased Mrs. E. M. Lancaster this morning received a letter conveying the sad intelligence of the death at Wright, Ia., on Saturday last of M. B. Hayes, a former well known resident of Crookston, but who with Mrs. Hayes has for the past several years made their home at Mentor.

The death will come as a great surprise, for, tho Mr. Hayes has not been in good health for some time past, his condition was not considered critical, but a sudden stroke of paralysis proved fatal. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes had gone to Iowa to spend the winter with relatives and the death occurred at the home of a brother.

Mr. Hayes was 65 years of age. The family resided in Crookston for many years, Mrs. Hayes being a teacher in the public schools, and both were highly respected citizens, and the news of Mr. Hayes' sudden death will cause widespread sorow. Details were not received but it is supposed that the funeral took place yesterday and that the remains were laid to rest at Wright, Ia.

There were no children and Mrs. Hayes is extended deepest sympathy in her bereavement.

MISSIONARY MOVEMENT

GREAT GATH[illegible] TO BE HELD IN MINNEAPOLIS FROM FEB. 4TH TO THE [illegible]TH

LAYMEN'S MEETINGS WILL BE ADDRESSED BY FOREMOST SPEAKERS OF COUNTRY

From Tuesday's Daily—

The Laymen's Missionary Movement, which has crossed the continent spread thru Canada, England, Scotland, Germany and Austria, has reached the Northwest. The Minnesota conference is set for Feb. 4-7 at Minneapolis. It is expected that it will be attended by 1,500 laymen representing churches in every county in the state, besides a large gathering of pastors, who are invited to attend as honorary members.

The movement is inter-denominational and does not interfere with the methods of missionery work of the churches, but simply seeks to interest the laymen in the missions, and thru them strengthen their support.

A number of notable speakers are to deliver addresses, among them Col. Elijah W. Halford the founder of the Chicago Inter-Ocean; Wm. T. Ellis well known as a newspaper correspondent on missionary topics; J. Campbell White considered the greatest foreign missionary speaker of this generation and D. F. Wilber, U. S. consul general at Nova Scotia.

The conference will be inaugurated by a dinner Thursday evening at the West Hotel, at which Pres. Cyrus Northrup of the State University of Minnesota will preside. Gov. Jno. A. Johnson is to be one of the speakers.

The meetings at the Wesley M. E. Church where the conference is to be held begin Friday morning with a pastors' meeting to be addressed by Col. Halford, Rev. Charles E Dradt of Chicago, and J. Campbell White. In the afternoon campaigners' conferences are to be held and in the evening a mass meeting for men, presided over by Hon. David P. Jones of Minneapolis. Saturday morning there will be another campaigners' conference at which practical questions of missionary work will be discussed by speakers from the standpoint of experience. Saturday afternoon the conference will be divided into denominational meetings for consideration of the amount of support of foreign missions that should be undertaken and the steps necessary to secure it.

Saturday night a mass meeting will be held, which will be presided over by Jas. Supydam of St. Paul. At the churches Sunday morning and evening the pulpits will be occupied by laymen speakers on the subject of foreign missions. In the afternoon an inter-denominational conference will be held.

This is by far the most important gathering of the kind ever held in the Northwest and will bring together for united effort many of the most influential churchmen of the state.

NEW TELEPHONE CO. ORGANIZED

RUSSIA AND FAIRFAX FARMERS WILL CONNECT WITH CROOKSTON AND OTHER PLACES

The Russia-Fairfax Telephone Co., has been organized by the farmers in those two townships and will be all ready for active construction operations early in the spring. They will connect up with the Northwestern at Crookston first, but plan later to also connect with Mentor, Maple Lake and Fertile.

O. Sanness one of the well known and substantial farmers in that direction who was in the city today, states tha tthe work of construction will be pushed early in the spring and that one of those interested in the company is now getting out the poles. The officers elected are as follows:

President, B Hinton.
Vice Pres.—Seivert Qualberg.
Sec.—O. Sanness.
Treas.—E. Durdahl.
Directors, E. Durdahl, W. Benning and Carl Moe .

Little by little the farmers are getting all the conveniences of the city, an dat the same time have to put up with none of the inconveniences.

PROMINENT PEOPLE ARE KILLED IN COLLISION

Well Known People Were Victims Of The Awful Steamer Collision

W. J. Mooney Killed And Mrs. M. F. Murphy Very Badly Injured.

New York, Jan. 25—The wireless telegraph on Saturday spoke but the prologue of the great drama being enacted out upon the sea behind the impenetrable curtain of fog where the steamship Florida, with 1,100 souls aboard, had rammed the White Star liner Republic, with upwards of 800 souls aboard.

Yesterday by the same magic means the full drama was enacted before the attentive world, and soon revealed itself a tragedy.

"Regret that first-class passengers of the Republic, Mrs. Edward Lynch and W. J. Mooney, were killed; also Mr. Lynch and Mrs. M. F. Murphy badly injured.—Ransom."

Death not Baffled

This wireless message received by the officials of the White Star line grimly refuted the "all safe" and "no lives lost" messages that had gladdened the watchers on shore.

Science had done much to lessen the horrors of this great modern disaster of the sea but death was not baffled. It came quick and terrible when te sharp prow of the Florida cut its way into the side of the Republic, crushing to death the two passengers as they slept in their berths and maiming those who slept but an arm's length away.

It visited the hold as well as the deck and four members of the crew believed to be coal passers at work deep in the hold of the ship, were killed by the crushing blow that doomed the Republic.

The dead and injured as reported by wireless are as follows:

THE DEAD

W .J. Mooney Langdon ,N. D .
Mrs. Eugene Lynch ,Boston ,Mass.
Four Members of the Crew, unnamed.

THE INJURED

Eugene Lynch, Boston ,Mass.
Mrs. M. F. Murphy, Grand Forks.

Those named above were first cabin passengers and occupied adjoining staterooms on the saloon deck on the port side of the Republic where the bow of the Florida crashed into the vessel.

New York, Jan. 25—W. J. Mooney, who was killed in the collision of the Republic and the Florida was from Langdon, N. D. and was one of the most prominent citizens of that state He was owner of the Mooney state bank in Langdon and half owner with M. J. Murphy whose wife was serious ly injured on the Republic, in the new bank at International Falls, Minnesota.

H. Bendeke, a friend of Mooney, is Norwegian consul in North Dakota and is at present stopping at the Knickerbocker hotel in New York.

"The Mooneys and the Murphys were making the voyage to the Mediterranean together. I am agent for the White Star line in North Dakota and I made their arrangements for them," he said.

"Just before going aboard the Republic, Mrs. Murphy who is a rather timid woman remarked that she felt afraid of crossing the ocean. I introduced her to Captain Zalby whom I knew as a good seaman ,and what I told her of him restored her confidence somewhat."

The Murphys have four children in Grand Forks. Mr. Bendeke has been in communication with them almost hourly since the collision.

The belated report of the casualties is believed to be due to the fact that they were not known at the time the first messages were sent out from the Republic for aid, and when discovered were delayed by the press of messages directing the work of relief.

Most Thrilling Experiences

Passengers of the Republic who lived thru the peril passed thru the most thrilling experiences yet recorded in the history of marine disasters. Transferred from a sinking ship by small boats in a black fog, abandoning their effects and glad of the chance for their lives, they found themselves aboard a vessel but little safer than the damaged hulk they had left and facing a rising gale.

For fourteen hours they were crowded upon the decks of the Florida, with her 900 excited passengers, sleepless and poorly nourished, while the fog made the midnight of their peril never ending.

Helpless and with the knowledge that the rolling ship beneath them could not outlive the promised storm, at almost midnight by the clock and when they were told they must face another peril, that within 24 hours they must twice be transferred from the decks of sinking liners by means of small boats, must climb down the frail rope ladders thrown over the swinging sides of the ship until like human pendulums they were swung aboard the cockleshells tossing on the waves below ,only to climb the steep sides of the great Baltic, where at last they were to find safe refuge.

The retransfer of the passengers of the Republic from the Florida to the Baltic and the transfer of the fright-stricken passengers of the Florida was begun at 11 o'clock on Saturday night under the most trying circumstances ,and in all 1,650 passengers were taken from the Florida. It required almost twelve hours to perform the herculean task.

Searchlight Aids Stricken Passengers

When the time for the transfer came a procession of twenty-two small boats set out from the Baltic, on their way thru the fog guided by a great searchlight of the Baltic, and cautiously approached the Florida.

With two sailors to each passenger the women and children were first put into the boats. The Baltic was more than 200 yards away from the Florida and the path of her searchlight faded to a bright blur in the fog from the decks of the Florida. But it was a safe beacon for the steersmen and there was not a mishap during the transfer, ten to a boat of the 1,650 passengers.

Growing Old a Habit

The face cannot betray the years until the mind gives its consent. The mind is the sculptor. We renew our bodies by renewing our thots; change our bodies by changing our thots. The best thing to preserve youth and beauty is the daily use of some good malt tonic such as golden grain belt beer. If served regularly at mealtime will invigorate the muscles and make rich; red blood. Order of your nearest dealer or be suplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

There will be no more white flour no more white bread after the first of the month. Instead there will be nice yellow bread that looks like sponge cake. It is all because James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, ruled against flour bleached by nitrogen peroxide and Minneapolis millers will abide by the decision and the first unbleached flour put on the market Feb. 1.

"There will not be as much difference between the bread made from unbleached flour and present bleached flour bread as there is between angel cake and sponge cake," says C. H. Briggs, with the Howard Flour Testing company.

"Flour," he says, "will be of creamy color instead of clear white, and the bread will be light golden color. However, there will be absolutely no difference in flavor."

Most men are cheerful givers when they have a chance to hand out advice.

THE ITALIANS ARE PRAISED

GRAND FORKS MAN DECLARES THEY DESERVE MORE CREDIT

THAN DO THE AMERICANS IN DISASTER TO THE OCEAN LINERS

Michael F. Murphy, of Grand Forks president of the Bankers' association of North Dakota who, with his wife, was injured on the Republic made a statement last night at St. Vincent's hospital, New York, where he and his wife were being attended by Dr. Geo. V. Stewart. Mr .Murphy sustained a lacerated face and cut foot, and his wife has a compound fracture of the right leg and contusions of the body.

"I am glad," he said "to get an opportunity to say a few words of praise for the crew, officers and stewards of the Florida. I noticed statements that have been given out that praise is unstinted for the crews of both the Republic and the Baltic, but in my opinion the Italian crew did as valiant work as the crews of either of the other vessels.

Italians Praised

"Those who were simply transferred from the Republic to the Florida and were not injured had but little opportunity to judge of the merit of the Italian crew but I had to take my injured wife on board, and I can truthfully make the statement that our treatment aboard the Florida was much better than that accorded us on either of the other vessels after the accident. The first real medical attendance my wife had was that which she received from Dr. Alderio Rinaldiatt ship's surgeon on the Florida, and when one considers that there were only five persons injured aboard the Republic—two of them, Mr. Lynch and my wife, seriously—it is impossible to enthuse over the efficiency of the medical service aboard the Republic.

"Everyone who was taken aboard the Florida was given the best that the ship had. Cognac flowed freely, and what poor provisions the ship had were very liberally distributed. Every attention was shown Mr. Lynch and my wife and the people who were brought aboard seemed to be willingly given preference everywhere by the obliging Italians.

Riot Talk is Rot

"I believe that this talk of riot is rot. When I attempted to move my wife for the re-transfer aboard the Baltic the emigrants made a passage way for us to ascend, and when I got her to the deck I received my first impressions of the attentive crew and captain of the Baltic for an officer of that ship told me positively that his ship would receive no injured persons. That was five o'clock Sunday afternoon and it was 11 o'clock before by continued and persistent efforts I was able to make arrangements to have my wife taken aboard the Baltic She was strapped to a stretcher and taken across on a life boat and then altho we were first class passengers aboard the Republic we were assigned to quarters in the steerage of the Baltic, and was almost 2 o'clock in the morning before I could arrange to have my wife removed to quarters above. This may be chivalry and system but I am uable to appreciate it.

PHYSICAL CULTURE CLASS HERE

C. Q. ROEMER WILL BRING PROF SIMPSON HERE FROM WARREN

C. Q. Roemer is very much interested in the proposition to establish a physical culture class, or classes in Crookston and with that end in view on Wednesday of this week will bring Prof. Simpson the physical culture teacher of Warren, to this city. He has canvassed the situation somewhat and has been given great encouragement by those who believe the boys who have nothing to do in the evenings have some place to go.

It is the plan to secure the paraphernalia now in the Armory of Co. I and add to it as necessary, and have a physical culture room open every evening of the week, with Prof. Simpson here on certain dates to give instructions to classes of men, women and children. The idea is a most excellent one and should be encouraged.

A satisfactory thing about inheriting a lot of money is you don't need to inherit any brains with it.

EXCELLENT SUGGESTIONS

CAPT. M. R .BROWN WANTS SUCCESSFUL CORN RAISERS TO PUBLISH

DETAILS OF HOW THEY HAVE RAISED CORN HERE FOR BENEFIT OF OTHERS

From Tuesday's Daily—

Capt. M. R. Brown was on the streets yesterday for the first time in several week having been indisposed As usual he had some good suggestions to make and when asked for something by the Journal man he said:

"It appears to me that the Journal would make a good move by publishing an article calling on the farmers who have made a success of corn raising, to call and give some details regarding the methods they pursued in making a success of raising that valuable and important serial.

"A great many farmers have raised fine corn in Polk Co. and other parts of Northern Minnesota, and a great many more would if they knew just how to go about it.

"If a number of those who have been in the business and succeeded, could be induced to give a detailed account of just how they proceeded what brand of corn they sowed, how, they prepared the land ,what time they planted the corn, how they cultivated and how often and what with, it would be of great benefit to the general public and no doubt many of those who have been successful with corn would be only too glad to give the information when invited."

This is a splendid suggestion and the Journal invites every farmer who has raised corn successfully in this section to either write the Journal giving the information suggested above or call at the Journal office and give it personally.

SIEVER CLIFFGARD SENT UP AGAIN

PERPETUAL ANNOYANCE AT THE G. NORTHERN STOPPED TEMPORARILY

Seiver Cliffgard was given another 60-days sentence at the county jail this morning by Judge Gossman on the charge of vagrancy. This is about the 99th time he has been sent up and it is an outrage that there is not some place provided by the state where such characters can be taken care of. He has the St. Vitus dance and several other dances which he has a patent on. The city pays for his board at the Columbia hotel, with room also but it would take four policemen and five deputy sheriffs to make him stay there. He spends most of his time at the Great Northern depot begging from strangers, and tells them all that the city of Crookston will do nothing for him and that he is behid in his board. It is generally believed that his wild tales now would justify his being sent to the insane asylum, as he is not only crazy but vicious as well.

PAUL DRAX HAS LEG AMPUTATED

IS RESTING AS WELL AS COULD BE EXPECTED UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES

Drs. Smith and Randolph assisted by Dr. Just this morning amputated one of the limbs of Paul Drax who was so seriously injured a few days ago while returning home, by being struck by a Great Northern box car near the Crookston Flouring mill. Late this afternoon he was doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

A Religious Author's Statement

For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

A CREDIT TO CITY COUNCIL

NEW CHAMBERS MAKE AN IDEAL CONVENTION HALL, SOMETHING BADLY NEEDED

CHAMBERS ARE LARGE AND ALSO PRESENT VERY FINE APPEARANCE

From Saturday's Daily—

During the annual meeting of the 25,000 Commercial Club yesterday in the council chambers many compliments were heard regarding the ideal place it made for holding such conventions since the building was remodelled.

A convention hall was an absolute necessity for Crookston and now those who were criticising the council for making the changes that have been brought about see the error of their ways and are enthusiastic in their support of the Aldermen who had to fight tooth and nail in order to get the repairs made as planned.

SUBPOENAS ARE QUASHED

DECISION OF FAR-REACHING IMPORTANCE HANDED DOWN YESTERDAY

BY JUDGE WARD IN THE FAMOUS LIBEL SUIT IN NEW YORK CITY

From Saturday's Daily—

The subpoenas calling for the appearance before the federal grand jury of J. Angus Shaw, secretary of the Press Publishing company publishers of the World, "to testify all and everything which you know generally on the part of the United States," the validity of which had been questioned by the attorneys for the World, were set aside and quashed today by a decision handed down by Judge Ward in the United States circuit court at New York.

The opinion which invalidates the subpoenaes in question, affirms the principle enunciated in the fifth amendment to the constitution which provides that no one shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself. A subpoena duces tecum calling for the production before the federal grand jury of the books and receipts of the World is also set aside by the decision. Today's action by the court upsets the established practice of nearly 50 years and is considered to be of very far-reaching importance.

ADA WON THE DISTRICT DEBATE

Last evening at Ada the Ada high school won the 9th district high scho ol debate for the Minneapolis Journal prize from Fergus Falls 2 to 1. The question was "Resolved that Cuba should be annexed to the United States." Ada had the affirmative and was represented by Frank Prigge Ernest Helgeson and Girling Norby. The debaters for Fergus were Walter Unger, James Evans and Carl McKee. The judges were Supt. McIntyre of Crookston, Supt. Bohlander of Detroit and Supt. Van Cleeve of Barnesville. The timekeepers were F. L. Hanson of Ada, Supt. Christofferson of Fergus Falls, and Supt. Boraas of Ada. Fine music was furnished by the high school band of Ada. Ada will now have to debate with the team from some other district.

FALL OF RAIN MELTS SNOW

VALLEY ENJOYS BALMY JANUARY WEATHER WHILE SLEET FALLS

SLEET BREAKS DOWN WIRES AND POLES BETWEEN JAMESTOWN AND BISMARCK

From Saturday's Daily—

The Northwest had some remarkable weather for January yesterday. In this section it was warm during the day and the snow melted. In the evening there were frequent showers of rain.

In some sections of North Dakota sleet fell and caused a good deal of damage. Between Jamestown and Bismarck the wires of the Western Union telegraph company and the North western and Tri-State Telephone companies went down early yesterday morning and communication with the capital city has been completely cut off. Coming at this time when the legislature is in session the interruption of the service hits the newspapers hard.

The damage is reported to be very extensive. The sleet broke down the wires for miles and the cross arms and poles are broken in many places. It will take days to repair the damages it was stated. The Western Union resumed service via Helena today

Early this morning it was stated that there had been no damage between this city and Minot.

A storm between St. Paul and Chicago was reported during the evening and the wire service last night was badly crippled.

THE SOO PLANS A NEW LINE

WILL BE BUILT NEXT YEAR FROM THIEF RIVER FALLS TO SOLAN, MINN.

Northern Minnesota is soon to have a new line of railroad. According to announcement made by Vice President Edmund Pennington of the Soo that road will build, in 1910 a 250 mile extension from Thief River Falls on its Winnipeg line southeastward to Solan on the Brooten-Duluth line, now under construction.

Surveys for the new line were made some time ago and speculation regarding what road would build it has been rife. It was at first rumored that the line would be a branch of the Duluth South Shore & Atlantic another of the Canadian Pacific subsidiary lines.

The new line will pass thru the lake park and pine region of Minnesota.

DEATH OF WELL KNOWN CITIZEN

CHAS. HANSON OF TWIN VALLEY DIED AT HIS HOME LAST WEEK

Charles Hanson one of the best known citizens of Eastern Norman county died at his home at Twin Valley ,Tuesday Jan. 5th after a sickness coverin ga period of more than two years death being caused by consumption. Deceased was 50 years of age, having been born in Norway in 1859 and came to this country ten years later with his parents.

He was one of the early settlers of Norman county and one of the first business of Twin Valley running a grocery store in the early days of that village and later a jewelry store. Besides a wife he is survived by four children.

MYSTERY HAS BEEN CLEARED

CHIEF ECK HAS LEARNED ALL DETAILS REGARDING THE MYSTERIOUS CHILD

"THE WOMAN IN BLUE" LOCATED AND HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH BABY

From Friday's Daily—

Chief Eck this morning received a letter from the Chief of Police at Tacoma, Wash., relative to Mrs. Ben Olson. The statement that she had ever worked in the Tacoma Hotel was incorrect. She did work in the Tacoma Steam Laundry for a short time, but nothing could be learned as to where she had stopped, or regarding any of her movements while in that city other than has been already stated.

Chief Eck has been working on the case steadily since the arrival of Mrs. Olson. He has located the "Woman in Blue" but also learned that she had nothing at all to do with the little baby. Enough has been learned to make it certain that Polk county will never have to provide for the little baby which Mrs. Olson brought back with her, as no matter whose it is it does not belong in this city or county, or state either for that matter, and the authorities here will not permit the care of the little one to devolve upon this county or city.

THROUGH TRAIN TO CROOKSTON

REPORTED ON GOOD AUTHORITY THAT CHICAGO-SPOKANE LIMITED

WILL BE RUN THRU CROOKSTON BETTERING ALREADY GOOD TRAIN SERVICE

From a reliable source it has been learned that the new thru train from Chicago to Spokane which has been under consideration for some time past, has been practically decided upon, and will be started in the near future. It has also been decided that the new limited will be run through Crookston thus giving another train for this city.

EAST GRAND FORKS WOMAN INSANE

Mrs. C. C .Daly of East Grand Forks was brought to Crookston this afternoon on the Northern Pacific and will be examined by the county insanity board. After caring for his wife for years Mr. Daly saw that her condition was daily growing worse and notified the county officials that she was insane. Daly has been employed by the Grand Forks Lumber Co., ever since its establishment there having officiated the past year as machinist. Mrs. Daly even at the time they moved to that city some ten years ago was afflicted with fits of melancholia and convulsions and since then she has gradually grown more and more of a care. She has been out of the house but a few times in all these years and then only with some one to watch her. Of late a guard has been kept over her night and day and her husband finally decided that the only thing to do was to have her placed in an asylum.

She will probably be taken to Fergus Falls this evening as Judge Morken of the probate court has known for some time of her condition.

USED EXCELLENT JUDGEMENT

The Great Northern is now putting on the roof of the freight depot which was destroyed a short time since by fire, and excellent judgment is being used in making a change in the former plan. Instead of ceiling over the archway a few feet under the roof the same as it was before, the roof is simply being celled up, and this will avoid communicating a fire from one building to the other as was the case recently.

The firemen found their greatest difficulty in preventing the fire from getting into the passenger depot as a result of the ceiling which proved a regular draft for the flames and the firemen were forced to chop their way thru the roof both underneath and from the roof in order to get at the flames, and before this was accomplished considerable damage had been done to the south end of the passenger depot.

Under the plan that the repairs are now being made this difficulty will be avoided.

STANCHFIELDS LOOK FOR BOY

SEARCH BEING MADE IN TWIN CITIES FOR LAD WHO DISAPPEARED RECENTLY

GENERAL BELIEF THAT BOY IS ALIVE AND WELL SOMEWHERE IN COUNTRY

From Friday's Daily—

Mr. and Mrs. M. Stanchfield of Grand Forks are in the twin cities searching for their son Donald who left Grand Forks for points unknown shortly gefore the first of the year. A quiet search has been made for him by the police here and elsewhere but without result. Another boy disappeared about the same time and it is believed that they left together. Mr. and Mrs. Stanchfield believe that the boy will be found unharmed. He had some money saved out of his earnings in his father's store, with him. He was fond of adventure and it is thought that he decided he would see something of the world.

Shortly before his last disappearance he came to Crookston and was located h ereeihybC shrdlue shrdlu located here by Chief of Police Eck and Mr. Stanchfield came over and got him.

SENATOR WORKS WOULD KNOW

ADMINISTRATION LEADER ASKS INFORMATION ABOUT STEERING COMMITTEE

SAYS HE IS INTERESTED—SEWARD SUGGESTS THAT HE LOOK AT SENATE JOURNAL

From Friday's Daily—

Senator S. D. Works of Mankato, the senate administration leader, but who is well known here as he has spent a great portion of his time here during the past 2 years looking after his large farm near Euclid, injected interest into the senate deliberations today when he arose to inquire if some republican member could furnish him with information regarding the latest creation, the senate steering committee.

"I want to know where I can find this committee whose business it is to determine for us what bills shall pass and what shall not. I am greatly interested."

"Possibly the minority party has such a committee, and probably the populists are so equipped," added the senator. "All I want is information"

In reply, Senator Seward on the republican side ,made answer that if Mr. Works was so anxious for information he should consult the senate journal. "Of course, if you saw it in the newspapers why I can not say anything." said Mr. Seward.

Senator Works' sly dig at the majority grew out of the reported republican steering committee, which the leaders of both houses have organized. Such committees have been named, but the leaders deny any such activity as claimed by Mr. Works.

The Mankato man is back of several bills recommended by Gov. Johnson but the passage of some of them is not over bright. His bill for the creation of a department of lands and mining is not looked upon with favor by the republicans.

PAUL DRAX IS MUCH STRONGER

FRIENDS ARE NOW MORE HOPEFUL THAT HE WILL RECOVER FROM INJURIES

Ernest Rolsch remained with Paul Drax last night, and reported this morning that the injured man appeared much stronger and was brighter in every way. The belief is general now that he will recover from his injuries tho the danger point is not yet passed. However the chances are better for his recovery now than they have been at any time since he was hurt, and if no further complications set in there is little question but what he will pull thru.

STEPPED OFF MOVING TRAIN

Pete Sullivan. whose home is in Fisher Minn., had a narrow escape from serious injury last evening just as the train from the east was about to pull over the Great Northern bridge at East Grand Forks. He fell off the step just at the approach and rolled down the bank. The train was stopped but it was found that he escaped with only a few bruises.

McKIBBON ACQUITTED

JUDGE GOSSMAN DISCHARGED HIM THIS MORNING FOR LACK OF EVIDENCE

SCHOOL FIGHT LAST EVENING WAS SETTLED IN COURT TODAY

From Thursday's Daily—

Wm. McKibbon was arraigned in municipal court this morning before Judge Gossman, charged with disorderly conduct and after the testimony of a few of the witnesses was taken he was discharged for lack of evidence.

It appeared that there had been a snowballing contest between members of the Crookston Business College and the Crookston High School students.

It also appears that the affair came to a serious conclusion late in the afternoon some blows having been struck and one of the small attendants of the high school received a black eye.

The evidence, however, showed that McKibbon had no part in the trouble that he had just come down stairs when the policeman nabbed him. That there was serious trouble was evident to all who reside in that neighborhood but McKibbon was evidently not the right party.

It would probably be a hard matter to settle who was to blame for the affair, but the police were certainly justified for taking a hand in the matter and putting a stop to it just when they did as people residing in the vicinity did not care to have all their windows broken. It is also a very easy matter to see that the police would have a hard time to locate just who was to blame in the matter.

FINDS VERDICT AGAINST CHIEF

JURY AT RUGBY DECIDES BERDAHL IS ENTITLED TO DAMAGES OF $300

PLAINTIFF ALLEGED BRUTALLY AND THREW HIM INTO JAIL

From Thursday's Daily—

John Buoye chief of Police of Rugby, must pay $300 to Ole Berdahl for beating him without due cause and holding him in jail when guilty of no crime. Berdahl who is a farmer contended in an action for $5000 that Buoye attacked him while he was talking with some friends. They had something to drink, but were not intoxicated. According to the plaintiff the police chief struck him a blow over the head and knocked him to the ground. Then he was bustled off to the city jail and while there was further punished being kicked in the face and badly injured. As a result of his injuries he was laid up for several weeks. Berdahl contended that the attack was due to malice on the part of the chief.

Andy Jones the missing mayor of Rugby was one of the bondsmen for the chief and he was made a party to the suit.

Scott Rex, who appeared for Berdahl returned to Grand Forks last evening.

Civil Action on Trial

The trial of the case of McBride vs. Marlton was commenced yesterday in Rugby. The plaintiff seeks to recover damages because of some defect in a furnace. The defendant was a former resident of this vicinity and is well known here.

Monday evening at Rugby there was a joint banquet for the McHenry county Bar and Editorial association. Covers were laid for 53. The banquet was given at the Cramond. C. J. O'Connell of Towner was toastmaster.

SIGNED LEASE FOR 16TH YEAR

POSTMASTER AGAIN LEASES HIS FARM TO HANS J. KJERSRUD

Postmaster Elias Steenerson returned this morning from a business trip to Climax and while there he signed the 16th successive lease of his farm to Hans J. Kjelsrud. Mr. Steenerson's farm is one of the finest in Polk Co. and Mr. Kjelsrud has kept it up in splendid manner. Mr. Steenerson states that he is only hoping that he can sign yearly leases to the same party for 16 years more.

Todd County Argus: Brother Tawney very likely drove the last nail in his political coffin when he got mixed up in that matter of cutting down the appropriation for secret service men.

COULD NOT WALK FOR FOUR MONTHS

Mass of Itching, Burning Humor on Ankles—Feet Fearfully Swollen —Opiates Alone Brought Sleep— Many Treatments Failed but

TORTURES OF ECZEMA YIELDED TO CUTICURA

"Cuticura Remedies are all you claim them to be. I had eczema for over two years. I had two physicians, but they only gave me relief for a short time and I cannot enumerate the ointments and lotions I used to no purpose. My ankles were one mass of sores. The itching and burning were so intense that I could not sleep. I could not walk for nearly four months. One day my husband said I had better try the Cuticura Remedies. After using them three times, I had the best night's rest in months unless I took an opiate. I used one set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills, and my ankles healed in a short time. It is now a year since I used Cuticura, and there has been no return of the eczema.

"I had a small lump in the corner of my eye for over a year which was very painful and got larger all the time. I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment on it, and now it is gone. I am seventy-three years old and have lived on the farm I now occupy for twenty-seven years. Cuticura Remedies are the safest and most reliable I have ever used for all skin humors. WELL KNOWN MEN IN THE NEW BANK

NEW SECURITY BANK OF RUGBY WILL START UNDER FAVORABLE CIRCUMSTANCES

O. B. Bergeson who travels for the firm of McKibbon, Driscoll & Dorsey was in Grand Forks yesterday. Mr. Bergeson will be associated with O. T. Tofsrud in the Security Bank of Rugby a new financial institution mention of which was made in Tuesday's Herald. The bank has been organized with the following officers: O. T. Tofsrud, president; Ed. Seel, vice president; N. I. Romness cashier; O. B. Bergeosn and John Kellisvig directors The movement to organize the bank was started several months ago.

The men back of the enterprise are well known in the northwestern part of that state for commercial integrity and financial strength. O. T. Tofsrud is one of the leaders of affairs at Rugby and twice has represented his district the 34th in the state legislature where he enjoyed the fullest confidence of the men who did thing for the state's best interest. Mr Bergeson has been for 17 years with the hat and fur house of McKibbon, Driscoll & Dorsey which position he will retain. Ed Seel, John Kellisvig and Nels Romness are men of conservative business principles so important in the conduct of a bank.

Mr. Bergeson is closing up some business deals for his firm and will leave shortly for Arizona where he will visit his little daughter for a while.

TAKE FIRM STAND FOR PROGRESS ALONG ALL LINES

Annual Meeting And Banquet Of 25,000 Commercial Club The Most Enthusiatic 'And Largely Attended In History.

General Determination Is Expressed To Push The Wheels Of Progress. H.C. Misner Reelected Pres. Of Club.

From Saturday's Daily—

The grand banquet which concluded at the Hotel Crookston this morning after 2 o'clock was the crowning event of the annual meeting of the Crookston 25,000 Commercial Club and brought to a close three of the most remarkable gatherings ever held in the city—gatherings that point to a bigger and better city, for civic improvements of every nature, a better development of the surrounding country and closer relationship with the people immediately tributary to Crookston as well as more united action with the other commercial bodies of the state which means concerted action for the betterment of the entire state in every way.

About 200 Present

The banquet hall at the Hotel Crookston was filled with about 200 guests when President Misner who acted as toastmaster seated the guests at about 9:30, and from that time till the close after 2 a. m. there wa ssomething doing all the time and the deep interest manifested is a good indication for great things for Crookston i nthe future.

Music was Creditable

The music was furnished by the Juvenile orchestra of the city and just pride was taken in the fine music they furnished the strangers expressing great surprise at the character of the pieces played which included five selections and solos with band accompaniment by Noble Jones on the bari tone and Clarence Nicholson on the trombone. Two vocal solos by Master T. Reed Brown also elicited great applause.

Spread was Excellent

The service of the banquet as well as the menu was a credit to the Hotel Crookston. The large crowd was served to an eight course affair without least confusion and much favorable comment was heard regarding the excellence of the spread both Mr W. S. Lycan and Mr. Jos Eckert being on the floor personally and looking after the wants of the guests.

The Addresses Excellent

Owing to the fact that the guests of honor with the exception of Col. Wilkinson had to return to the cities on the Great Northern Flyer, Toastmaster Misner called on Hon. Geo. Welsh of St. Paul, State Immigration Commissioner, Hon. W. L. Harris of Minneaolis and Hon. Curtis L Mosher of St. Paul between the courses as they were served.

Both Witty and Wise

Mr. Welsh who was called upon first, continued along the same lines as his address in the city hall. He said money was needed to get people to locate on the lands of Minnesota and a liberal appropriation should be secured from the state for this purpose. He said what was needed was more people and the right kind of people. Good farmers who would diversify their operations and help to make the Red River Valley and other portions of the state a veritable garden spot. He also made a number of witty sallies aimed at W. L. Harris which created much amusement.

Mosher Encouraged

C. L. Mosher was next called upon and briefly outlined the plan of action of the Minnesota Federation of Clubs of which he is the secretary. He spoke of how good work had been done in the past and that when the whole state is organized for action what a power there would be to carry out any given line of action—an irresistible force woud be behind every movement made. He spoke of his gratification over the fact that the Crookston 25000 Commercial Club had cast its lot with the Federation and he looked for great prestige from Northwestern Minnesota as a result.

Complimented Crookston

W. L. Harris who delivered a magnificent address in the evening next responded to a call from the toastmaster. He complimented Crookston and her people most highly and believed that with the advantageous location, railroad facilities the city was certain of a great growth and a bright future in every way. The opportunities are here and he believed that would be embraced. He said he had every confidence in the future of Min nesota from a business standpoint and that it was up to all men to stand shoulder to shoulder and work for the common cause. In conclusion he made a very witty retort to the sallies of Messrs. Welsh and Mosher which brought down the house.

A Talk from the President

President H. C. Misner then made a few preliminary remarks before calling on any of the other speakers. He said he realized that there were those who charged that the 25,000 club had never done anything. He stated that this was unfair and that he wanted to see the club accorded a fair measure of the credit for what had been accomplished in the past at least either in whole or in part thru the activities of the club. Along this line he enumerated the Euclid and Ives roads ,the split log drags sent in to the country in all directions, assisting in getting the school of Agriculture and advancing financial aid when it was imperative to keep the school open, securing of a cone factory, the Market Day proposition, the slogan baner idea, the state fair exhibit, the excursion to Warroad, the adoption of a revised charter and numerous other things along that line.

New Home for Club

He stated that if the young men would take hold of the Commercial Club and push as they could with little effort, Crookston's Commercial Club would soon be in a home of its own where the members could spend their evenings, where gatherings could be held at any time and where every convenience could be procided for the comfort and convenience of not only the members but strangers in the city as well.

Th espeaker insisted that in a spirit of fairness that the commercial club should be given due credit for all that it had done or assisted in doing for the city.

Program of Addresses

The regular order of addresses on the program was then taken up and followed out. The first toast "Municipal Affairs" was responded to very ably by City Attorney Martin O'Brien who took a shot at the toastmaster by remarking that he was glad he had found out who was responsible for the new charter as he went around the city for weeks with a big club looking for the man who would admit the charge.

Supt. Wm. Robertson of the State Experiment Farm responded in a very amusing vein to the toast, "Clubs, Past, Present and Future" and his remarks were among the most humorous during the entire evening.

Murphy Explained

To the toast, "How I Happened to Join the Profession" Attorney Wm. P. Murphy made a most humorous response and the reasons he gave brought down the house.

An Able Address

One of the excellent addresses of the evening was in response to the toast "A Young Man's Part in the Up-building of a city" by A. J. Kirk. His address was one of the surprises of the evening and when he had finished every young man was very much conscious of the fact that he had a duty to the community in which he lived and should perform it—that the young men of today would be the men of affairs tomorrow and they should improve every opportunity presented. was something doing all the time and Crookston in the future.

Goodfellowship

The toast "Goodfellowship" was to have been responded to by Rev. T. T. Ove, but as he was unable to be present thru illness Rev. Hallowell of the Baptist church responded in a short but pithy address in which he laid special emphasis on the cordial treatment he had received since coming to Crookston and believed goodfellowship was a characteristic of the people of this city.

Dr. W. A. Robertson responded to the sentiment "Our Scotch Citizen" with a characteristic address in which native wit was liberally sprinkled.

Value of Good Morals

Rev. C. C. Warner made one of the earnest talks of the evening is response to the toast, "The Commercial Value of Good Morals." He gave some excellent advice to the young men, who if they expected to ever reach success in the commercial world must possess this asset of good morals, as the many who were lacking in that respect was terribly handicapped.

Necessity of Home Loyalty

James E. O'Brien was the last speaker, responding to the sentiment "Loyalty to Our Own Institutions" and he handled the subject in a manner that made a deep impression. He cited many instances where home industry was not patronized ,and the money kept in circulation in our own city, and accused some of the leading business men who were guilty of the practice.

Vote of Thanks

Before the audience was dismissed Mr. George Wright proposed a vote of thanks be extended to the management and employes of the Hotel Crookston for corteous treatment accorded to Juvenile Orchestra for their excellent music, and to Master T. Reed Brown for his contribution to the program. The motion passed unanimously.

TWO BUSINESS SESSIONS HELD

A new departure was made by the club this year and two sessions were held, one in the afternoon starting at 3 o'clock and the other in the evening at 7 o'clock. Both meeting were largely attended, the capacity of the city council chamber being taxed almost to the limit in the evening. The greatest harmony existed in both meetings and not a sentiment was uttered which did not breath civic improvement and development.

Election of Officers

The election of officers for the ensuing year was taken up at the after noon meeting ,directly after the president's address.

As soon as the request for nominations for president was made J. E. O'Brien in an eloquent effort placed in nomination the name of H. C. Misner, and it was quickly and enthusiastically seconded.

A motion was then made and carried with applause that the nominations be closed and the proper officer be instructed to cast the ballot of the club for Mr Misner for president for the ensuing year.

Mr. Misner was on his feet in an instant and started in to expostulate with the club and said that he believed it would be for the best interests of the organization to select another man. He even insisted upon the members taking this view of the situation. They refused however to see it in this light and when Vice President O'Brien put the motion to a vote every member jumped to his feet and expressed himself enthusiastically on the matter. Mr. Misner was accordingly elected president.

Vice Presidents Re-elected

Nominations for vice presidents were then made and J. E. O'Brien was elected unanimously as first vice pres ident and J. W. Wheeler as second vice president. G. S. Chesterman whose faithful service as treasurer during the past year has been worthy of the highest praise, was honbred by a unanimous re-election.

The next business was the election of a board of eleven directors and Sam Rosenthal moved that a committee of three be appointed by the chair to recommend the names of eleven directors. The motion carried and the chair appointed Messrs. J. F. Fournet, S. W. Vance and Prof. William Robertson. The committee after conferring at some length reported the following names which were unanimously elected as directors by the club:

J. D. McPhee J. F. Fournet, Thomas R. Johnstone, A. D. Stephens, J. P. Dotson, Sam Rosenthal, J. A. Cowley, George H. Wright, O. Mercil, Jr., L. Ellington, O. O. Christianson.

An Eloquent Address

While the nominating committee was conferring relative to the selection of the board of directors, Col. R. A. Wilkinson was introduced to the audience and he devoted his time to showing the common-sense manner for commercial clubs and the large public corporations to aid in one another's work. He said that the railroads at least the one which he represented, the Great Northern, believed that what benefitted the country it served, benefitted it, and vice versa. The railroads were interested in the upbuilding of the sections thru which they passed and the railroads serving Crookston could be depended upon to co-operate with the commercial club in any movement looking for the development of this section. In case of differences, he believed the proper way to adjust them was by each approaching the subject in a fair manner and use some common sense.

Col. Wilkinson then showed the trouble the railroads were having in keeping anywhere near the great development of the country and he believed that invaluable injury was being done not only the railroads, but the people themselves by the unwarranted and wholly unreasonable attacks made upon the railroads by newspapers and individuals.

Delegate Makes Report

Thomas R Johnstone who was one of the delegates who represented the club at the recent convention of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs in St. Paul reported what had taken place at that meeting and eloquently outlined the different projects which had come before the federation He also stated that he believed the organization would be a great factor in the development of the entire state and by co-operation on the part of the local club, great benefits would be received by the Red River Valley and especially Polk county. The report was roundly applauded.

Leader of Movement

Curtis L. Mosher, secretary of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial Clubs and secretary of the Consolidated Publicity Bureau of St. Paul was next introduced. Mr. Mosher outlined the work that the federation was attempting to do in the upbuilding and development of the commonwealth and showed how results were going to be attained. He related what other clubs were doing in the state and paid a high tribute to the life and vigor shown by the club at Crookston.

Develope the State

The subject of Mr. Welsh's address at the evening session was "State Development." The work of the state immigration bureau was taken up in detail and he showed by figures and fact that Minnesota had practically done nothing to boost herself while states all around her and Canada and Mexico, had been most active and alive to the possibilities. He outlined what could accomplished by systematic work and argued for a more liberal treatment of his department by the state legislature. He told also what was being done to secure an appropriation of $100,000 and hinted at many possibilities which would become realities if the fund was created

A Memorable Effort

The business sessions of the annual meeting were closed by a speaker who made an impression on Crookston which will last for a long time, a plain business man whose earnestness optimism an deloquence sank deep into the minds of his audience and will without doubt be productive of great benefits. W. L. Harris, president of the Publicity Club of Minneapolis, and one of the leading business men of the state, closed the evening session and from the beginning to the end of his address, he was constantly interrupted by applause.

Mr. Harris' talk was all meat and it is almost impossible to pick out sections of points to comment on. He demonstrated the possibilities of the citizen and exhorted the citizen to do the things of life with earnestness and zeal. His address was replete with appropriate stories and frequently he pressed home his points by quoting with great eloquence choice bits of poetry.

At the conclusion of his address he was given an ovation such as has seldom ever been given a speaker in this city. An adjournment was then taken to the banquet hall at Hotel Crookston.

REPORT OF CROOKSTON PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT CO.

Following is the report of the Crookston Public Improvement Company, the organization having charge of the manufacturing site, and, while the money in the hands of this organization is not available for general purposes, yet it is available for one of the important departments of club activity, namely the encouragement of manufacturing development:

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 21st, 1909.

To the 25,000 Commercial Club.

Gentlemen:—As per your instructions the Crookston Public Improvement Company was duly incorporated.

We purchased of J. F. Ingersoll the north half of the southwest quarter (N½ of SW¼) of section thirty-six (36), township one hundred fifty (150), range forty-seven (47), at the agreed price of $8,000.00. We have had 9 blocks of said ground platted, each block containing 12 lots, in all 108 lots.

We have received in cash for lots sold	$ 6500.00
We have paid the following expenses:
1908 taxes	$ 37.72
Ditch tax	54.86
Recording	2.75
Incorporating	104.50
Grading the streets	223.18
Recording the plat	10.40
Miller & Foote (services of A. A. Miller in connection with platting said ground)	5.00
We have paid J. F. Ingersoll	4800.00
Total of cash disbursements.	$ 5238.41
Balance with J. W. Wheeler, treasurer	$ 1261.59
	$6500.00

J. E. Carroll did the surveying and we gave him one lot of the value of $100.00 for his services in connection with said surveying.

We still have 8 lots that are undisposed of.

None of the manufacturing site lots have been disposed of and there is something like 36 acres of said ground still unplatted.

J. P. FOOTE,
Secretary.

As soon as the secretary concluded his reading, the following address was made by President Misner:

Gentlemen:—You have heard the report of the secretary, which gives you a good idea of what the club has accomplished, what is hoped for it, as well as its financial standing, etc., but I wish very briefly to call up a few of the items mentioned in his report, and also offer a few recommendations.

First is the Manufacturers' Site.

At one of the largest attended meetings of the membership, a committee was named to go ahead and arrange for the purchase of the tract of land recommended by the locating committee, and accepted by the members of the club.

This committee merely carried out your instructions; it did not stop by the wayside, but kept at work until it had accomplished the object for which you had named it. All of this was done, without a dissenting voice, at least, at any of the meetings of the club.

This is mentioned as I understand some (who most likely are not members of our club) have carried the idea that it was a scheme of your committee. And I believe that I am in a position to say, that the only scheme your committee had was to carry out your instructions, which they did, as has been tne custom of nearly every committee appointed during the past year.

And for the benefit of any doubting Thomases, I will say that I am proud of the work done by the different committees of our club during the past year. They have been active and alive, even though it has taken much time from their own business affairs—propositions have not been permitted to die in committee, but have been carried out to a finish.

Finances.

I also wish to call your attention to our financial statement showing $457.11 on hand in all funds, and this has been accomplished during a year of financial difficulties, which caused numbers of our members to either let their dues go by default, or drop out of the membership entirely. These financial conditions of the club, of which we are justly proud, were brought about by putting each proposition taken by the club, on its own financial footing, by raising sufficient funds to finance that particular proposition, and come back to the club with a deficit to be met out of the general fund. Our club should be run on business principles, the same as we are supposed to run our personal business affairs.

I am convinced that the time has come when we must secure for ourselves a permanent home, as during the past years we have only met at the banquet table, and these were of necessity most entirely social functions.

These banquets should be continued, by all means, but we need a home, where we can hold regular stated meetings of the membership, as well as those of the directors. This can be done by very little aaded expense and, as suggested by our secretary, is an important problem that should be solved by the new administration.

Market Day.

The Market Day has been a success and should be continued the coming year.

Excursions.

I believe that another business men's excursion should be run the coming season, and in my opinion one or more of them should be conducted each season.

I am also of the opinion that every encouragement possible should be given to Mr. W. J. Murphy to encourage him in the building of the large dam for waterpower above the city, as I fully believe that as soon as this power plant is completed, we will have the best of inducements to offer manufacturers to locate in our city, and Mr. Murphy will be one of the best of boosters for us, as he will want his power used.

Therefore, as we have not the money necessary to finance this large undertaking, don't let us be the "dog in the manger," but instead, invite him into the manger; let us work with him, rather than against him. It is not necessary to hand over our birthright to our business associates, for merely a mess of pottage.

Slogan.

As we have adopted the slogan, "Crookston Offers Opportunity," I would recommend that every business and professional man in the city give the slogan the utmost possible publicity, by using it on all stationery, bill heads, etc. All that is necessary is the request of your printer to place it on all new work, and if this is done it will mean something and stand for something.

Good Roads.

In building up the business of a city, much depends upon the trade secured from surrounding territory. We are pretty well supplied with railroads running in nearly every direction, but we also need good wagon roads leading into the city. We have spent some money in the building and repairing of roads, but I believe a general plan of action should be adopted and that each season we should build or repair some main line road as far as 15 to 20 miles out from the city. After fair dealing, nothing helps to build up the trade capacity of a city more than good roads leading into it.

I offer these suggestions at this time, as I believe they are for the best interests of our club and city, and will not take up any more of the time of the club, as we have the business to dispose of, after which we will have the pleasure of listening to some talks from our guests.

Preservation Of The Home

The importance of the preservation of the home intact was the centrol theme around which the discussion revolved at the conference on the care of dependent children which formally was opened by President Roosevelt at the White House in Washington Monday. The subject under consideration was "Should the Breaking of a Home Be Permitted for Reasons of Poverty ,or Only for Reasons of Inefficiency or Immorality?"

It was the unanimous opinion of an array of notable charity workers and others who took part in the discussion that the child can best be reared under the influence of the home and that they should be removed from the family circle only when proper supervision at home has become impossible It also was the consensus of opinion that where poverty exists in the home state aid should be given. While this subject formed the principle topic of discussion other questions of equally vital importance to the welfare of the child were considered

The historic east room of the White House was the scene of this notable conference. President Roosevelt previous to calling the gathering to order received 200 delegates in the East room.

An emphatic affirmative was given to the question "Should the State Inspect the Work of All Child Caring Agencies Including Both Institutions and Home Finding Societies?"

The principal speakers on this topic were Amos W. Butler secretary of the sttae board of charities of Indianapolis and Hugh F. Fox, president of the state board of charities of Indianapolis New Jersey.

The affirmative answer given to the question "Should the Child Caring Agencies Aim to Co-operate With Each Other or With Other Agencies of Social Betterment for the Purpose of Diminishing or Removing Altogether the Causes of Orphanage, of Child Destitution and Child Delinquency?"

Among those who discussed this subject were Prof .Chas. R. Henderson president of the National Children's Home association.

The last topic was "Should the Approval of the State Board of Charities Be Necessary to the Incorporation of All Child Caring Agencies?" Timothy D. Hurley of the visitation and aid society of Illinois spoke on this subject.

Business Benevolence

How does it happen that the great life insurance companies of the country are so indifferent in the matter of reducing mortality and that efforts in this direction are confined almost entirely to fraternal insurance organizations?

One of the big fraternal organizations is now actively engaged in an attempt to reduce its death losses from tuberculosis. The official reports of the Modern Woodmen show that more than 14 per cent of their total mortality is due to tuberculosis From the years 1891 to 1907 the Modern Woodmen paid out $9,09,500 for 5,156 deaths, showing that each death cost the organization $1,700. Pondering on these figures the officials of the order saw that they could save $1,700 for every life that they saved. When they considered in connection that 14 per cent of their deaths are due to tuberculosis, they wondered if, as a society they could not do something to reduce the number of deaths. They concluded that they could, and they decided to establish an open air colony in Colorado for the treatment of Woodmen afflicted with tuberculosis. Exactly what this colony will cost the organization is not yet known, but from the results thus far achieved it is believed that the Modern Woodmen will save nineteen-twentieths of the average cost of each death for every man that they rescue from the clutches of the disease.

This is business benevolence. The experiment is apparently a business success. The money that it will save the members of the order is enormous It will within a few years mount up into the millions of dollars. This is the business end of it. Also thousands of lives will have been saved to the world, thousands of breadwinners saved to society to help lift the burden of helpless wives and children from the public shoulders. Such savings will mount up to the billions. This is pretty good business as well as benevolence.

If the Modern Woodmen can make a business success of saving lives, why cannot the "old line" companies d otehasmeshrde shrde shrdluu ies do the same thing The fact that the greatest insurance organizations in the world are making no attempt to save the lives of their insured but are content to go on paying death losses, when for a small fraction of the cost of the death loss they can keep the insured alive is a matter for wonder. The big insurance companies are not wont to let their smaller rivals outstrip them in the matter of profits. It is generally supposed that the old line companies have always pointed the way to the El Dorado of profits. Yet in this they have not only been beaten but they are apparently content to remain beaten. The siauation is puzzling the public.—Duluth Herald.

Making Bad Boys Good.

New York is just now poking fun at a German musician who claims that music will make bad boys good. He says "music, the right kind of music will change their natures and they will drop into the proper groove of life and go on as nature intended they should go."

No other people know as much of psyscology as the Germans, and after all this one is not so far from the realms of common sense. Every nation has its martial music and its great war song that keys its army to battle pitch. When battles were fought in the mass they were often won by men whose hearts were stirred to victory by the chorus of their own voices

Religion, too has its music that touches the souls of men and times them in harmony with the infinite. This is the uplift of devotion and worship whose superlative is expressed in anthem and hymn. There is also the music of the dance, of joy and rejoicing.

There is the music of love and the music of fun; strains filled with the sensuous or with mirth; just as others tell of ribaldry and the revel of drunkenness. Sin has its music as well as has the church; both the devil and the priest know its powers, as do the warrior and the lover .

Moreover it is everywhere by every one recognized as the highest expression of the human soul ,heart and mind, and the lowest expression of man's basest thoughts and longings. Why, then ,should not music be a powerful curative of evil in the young Why indeed is not familiarity with "the right kind of music" an essential element in the training of youth, both as a corrective and an inspiration? As much so as the appreciation of good literature dulls the taste for the bad.

Indeed it is so recognized now by by educators. It is largely this which gives music its place in all complete school systems ,and that gives as great care to the kind of music taught to children as that their text-books shall be true.

It is the testimony of all teachers that in no other way can children be as quickly and surely influenced and controlled as by music but it must be the right kind and rightly taught. To give the full effect there must be understanding, and understanding presupposes what is worth while.

New York may laugh but in the broad sense the German is right, and no money is so well spent in education as is that which goes for the development of the musical instinct born in all of us; the appreciation of what is musically good and familiarly with what is musically true and strengthening, as also gentle and inspiring.—Duluth News Tribune.

A String On Waterpowers

The refusal of President Roosevelt to approve a measure granting federal permission for the improvement of a water power in James river, Missouri, until certain conditions preserving public rights have been attached to the grant, is based on a just and proper principle. We have no detailed knowledge of this particular case but it is probable that the proposed improvement would be a positive benefit to the region in which it is to be made, and that it will cause injury to no one—at this time. But it is the duty of the government to look into the future, and to guard the interests of future generations, says the Minneapolis Journal.

There have been other times when the federal government and those of the states did not look into the future and did not guard the interests of later generations. The country was young and eager for development. There was land and to spare for all. No one foresaw the marvelous growth that impended. Even as late as 1854 Mr. Chase believed that the Mississippi would always mark the western boundary of the settled portion of the country.

Then came the railroad. It was welcomed with shouts and acclamation and bidden to go out and help itself to the one thing that was cheap and valueless—land. Vast empires were turned over to anyone that would build a railroad thru them. As we look back now on these early periods, we can see how mistaken and shortsighted was this policy of giving up the people's heritage, no matter how vitally important was the building of railroads. The states would have been far better off, if they had kept the lands and provided funds for the roads, tho the burden of taxation would for a time have been grievous. At any rate the statesmen of that day, had they posssessed powers of prevision, could have done what the president now wants to do for the waterpowers of the country — they could have saved the land for the people, the land with its mineral forest and agricultural wealth .

The potential waterpowers of this country have scarcely been touched as yet. Under present conditions they are valuable only as the power they generate can be used in their vicinity The market for the energy must be near at hand. But no one can say at what moment invention will make it possible to use this energy, so tremendous in the sum total anywhere and everywhere. How bitter would be the discovery at such a moment that the rights of the people in these God given waterpowers had been given away irrevocably.

The president contends that in some way the government must "keep a string" on them. He wants to limit the terms of such grants and reserve powers of regulation. Whether what he proposes is the best way to get at the problem, is a question. Senator Nelson, whose bill the president vetoed, makes much of the superior rights of the states over these waterpowers. He may be right. These are technicalities that can and must be arranged. The important thing is that the people's rights in these powers, which one day may become the great source of light heat and energy for the public, shall be preserved. What assurance has Senator Nelson that the state government of Missouri in the case under discussion will reserve these powers, once the federal government grants the permit?

The lawyers of congress ought to be able to work out a practicable scheme under which permits to improve water powers may be given, and at the same time the people's interests safeguarded. These improvements are important and valuable to all concerned. They should not be hindered by overmuch red tape. But the things that the president demands are, in principle, highly essential.

We have with spendthrift hand given away empires of unimagined value Let us go slow when it comes to giving away forever, without condition of any sort the energy that is latent in the rushing, tumbling streams on their way to the sea.

Miss Dulu Evans took the train for Euclid last Friday evening.

The Key West dance last Friday evening was a grand affair. The Key West people are known to be first rate entertainers.

Quite a few people around here and in the neighborhood are suffering with quinsy and neuralgia.

Miss Anna T. Sirek one of our prominent young ladies went to Warren last Monday morning via the G. N.

Mr and Mrs. Harvey D. Strickler and little ones were visiting with Mrs. Strickler's father Mr. F. Stroble last Monday.

Leapyear was not a success with the young ladies around here and the neighborhood and all over the United States there was a marked falling off in the number of matrimonial contracts. The girls surely must have been bashful and timid and are not as fierce and dominant as they often try to appear. It being leapyear, every body was expecting a land office business in the army of Cupid and blushing swains were praying to become captives but the fair captors lacked courage and grit. This is quite a problem for the advocates of free suffrage to explain. Never mind girls, cheer up. Leapyear has passed and the next four years to come the brave lads will have their chance again.

Mr. and Mrs. Gomer Evans drove to Warren last Wednesday.

KEY WEST

Miss Tilly Brantl spent last week with friends at Grand Forks.

Miss Amelia McDonald was on the sick list last week.

G. H. Horn, Simon Aeschlimann and sons Andrew and Samuel, and Miss Agnes La Grave drove to Grand Forks last week.

It is a pleasure to visit school Dis Grave. The pupils are doing fine work in every line. Judging from the singing one would imagine themselves in a large instead of a small school. The organ which was purchased with social money last spring is also doing its part.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiles who were living on a farm near Key West for the last three years will soon leave for Illinois. Their many friends here will greatly regret their departure but will wish them success in whatever they do.

Mr. and Mrs. William Koeling, Henry Ehnen, Mr. Clint and son William, Elmer Barland, Agnes La Grave, Victoria Nyquist, Lewis, Joseph, Lydia and Persida Aeschlimann enjoyed a very pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Wiles last Sunday. This being their last visit they sang, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and "Sad Hours of Parting" at the close of their pleasant visit.

S. D. Wiles, William Hattler, William Koeling and Miss Victoria Nyquist drove to Grand Forks last Saturday.

Miss Bessie Brantl called on Miss Rosa Kotek last Sunday.

This beautiful weather of the lest week makes the people feel as if it was April instead of January.

Miss Mary Brantl celebrated the anniversary of her 10th birthday last Monday. Her many friend wish her many more to come full of cheer and sunshine.

THE COAL OIL OR KEROSENE LAMP. CHEMISTRY OF FIRE

Bulletin No. 11—State of Minnesota, Office of Edward Peterson State Fire Marshal, St. Paul.

Many children are badly burned and some burned to death by the blowing up and by the overturning of coal oil lamps. When a lamp explodes, or is dropped or knocked over and broken, burning oil is splashed about and the clothes of persons within reach of this liquid fire begin to burn upon their bodies.

All the facts of the chemistry of fire, and of explosion as well, can be told in a simple story of what occurs in the light of a coal oil lamp. While the lamp burns the oil slowly disappears, being changed to gases which cannot be seen. Kerosene, being the thinnest of oils, sale for use in lamps, is drawn rapidly to the top of a wick.

When a match flame is touched to the oil in the wick's top its heat loosens the atoms of carbon and hydrogen of which the oil is made. They then unite with atoms of oxygen of the air for which they have a greater attraction than they have for each other. This causes a flame.

Atoms that are Greedy

Each carbon atom is so greedy that it seizes two atoms of oxygen from the air to form carbonic acid while each pair of hydrogen atoms takes one of exygen to form water. The carbonic acid, which is a gas and the water in the form of a vapor are carried out of the top of the chimney.

Gunpowder and dynamite do not need air to burn them because they already contain oxygen. Having oxygen of their own they can be set afire by a spark and exploded while shut in a gun or cannon. The force of an explosion is from the solid matter being quickly changed to gas which takes up hundreds of times more room.

The Use of the Chimney

The chimney of a lamp forces the current of fresh air caused by the rising of the heated air within it, to pass close to the flame, so that oxygen can be taken from it. This movement of air is called a draft.

Light is made by the particles of carbon becoming white hot before they are burned up. The hottest flames make no light.

Do not try to blow out a lamp while the flame is high. Doing so may break chimney or force the flame dowh until the blaze is half its usual size and then blow over the chimney's top; not down it. To turn the blaze quite low and blow into the burner is more dangerous. If the top of the wick is above the top of the tube when the lamp is not lighted, oil will be drawn up and will run down over the lamp.

How Does a Lamp Explode?

The heating of the brass in the burner may warm the oil until it gives off a vapor in the lamp globe. If the wick is too small to fill the tube the flame will flash down to this vapor and the lamp will blow up.

The screen must be kept open so the flame can breathe. If the chimney is not clear down on the burner, the lamp smokes because the flame gets too much air. When a lamp wick is too high it smokes because there is too much fuel for the air supply.

The brass in the burner and collar should be kept clean and bright so that the heat wil pass off. Only dirty burners heat lamps so as to make them explode.

When a burner cannot be rubbed bright it should be thrown away because it dangerous.

A lamp should not be set in the sun nor close to a fire nor hung to the ceiling over a table on which a lamp is used.

Filling the Lamp

When a lamp that has been burning needs to be filled, do not take off the burner near another light or a fire. The vapor in the bowl of the lamp may expand until it reaches a blaze and explodes. Flaming oil is then thrown over every one who is near. Above all remember that filling a lamp without first putting it out is very dangerous.

When two-thirds of the oil in a lamp has been used it should be filled again. Once each week the oil left in a lamp should be poured back into the can thru a piece of cloth on a funnel to filter it clear. This is to remove dirt which has settled to the bottom.

The Wick

The char should be removed from the wick every day. When a wick is half burned up a new one should be put in. A lamp cared for in this way will give bright, white light and will not blacken the burner nor explode. The burners for round wicks are safer than those which use flat ones.

Air mixed with one-eight oil vapor will blow up, if it touches a flame. In this state more than one house was fired each week in 1908 by the exploding or upsetting of coal oil lamps. In the United States last year 340 persons died from being burned by the exploding of lamps.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY

N. C. Ludvigson was an arrival from Grand Forks this morning.

Adam Getty came over from Grand Forks this morning and left on a regular trip.

TWIN GIRLS—Yesterday twin girls babies left by his storkship at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Arneberg in Highland Park. The happy parents are now considered in the Roosevelt Protege Class.

A LITTLE DAUGHTER—The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Buhn at Mentor was brightened Sunday by the arrival of a very fine daughter. All concerned are doing well, and the genial landlord of the Hotel Buhn at Maple Lake is so highly pleased that his guests next summer expect to see an addition of at least an inch to "the smile that won't come off" which he always wore.

HOWARD BAILEY DEAD—Howard Bailey ,a son of Ex-Sheriff Thomas Bailey of Bemidji, and who resided with his wife and child in this city till a short time ago, died suddenly in Bemidji yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock of pneumonia. While he had been suffering with Bright's disease for some months past, it was never dreamed that the end was so near and the news comes as a great shock to many friends here.

There were merry times in East Grand Forks this morning. The entire police force of that city raided the tenderloin district and eleven men some of them prominent residents of East Grand Forks were arrested, taken before Judge Sullivan of that city and fined for disorderly conduct.

Needless to state the fines were all paid quickly but the affair caused a great deal of excitement all over the city. Just who is behind the raid has not yet appeared.

Geo. Fuller arrived from Fargo and Moorhead this morning and reported that on Saturday evening there was a fall of snow there amounting to 18 inches. The snow fell in regular blankets and was the heaviest in a given time that had been experienced for many years.

Whil there was a slight fall here, it amounted to but little, while as near as Beltrami there was a very heavy fall. Nearly all of North Dakota was also covered.

The Robert Burns Club at Mallory will hold their annual celebration there this evening in the Woodmen Hall. A fine program has been prepared which includes Grand Forks, Crookston and Mallory talent, and the musical talent of Mallory has prepared some very special music. Among those from Crookston who will attend are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Johnstone and children, Miss Maggie Crawford, Mrs. John Harper and Miss Swanson.

ROADS ARE FINE—Mr. and Mrs. Dominick LeBlanc spent yesterday in the city from Kertsonville doing some trading with Crookston merchants and the former reported the roads in that direction were exceptionally fine.

FIRST TRIP OUT—Peter Cram is spending the week calling on the St. Vincent line trade. This is his first week out since the early part of December having had every disease on the calendar during that time with the exception of croup and smallpox.

LEFT FOR WOODS—Henry Schmidt left this morning for lumber camps near Bemidji after having been home since before the holidays having been detained by the illness of his children He will remain there now till the breakup in the spring.

HERE FROM EUCLID — Section Foreman Billy Donovan was down from Euclid to spend last Sunday. He formerly resided in Crookston but has been stationed at Euclid for the past two years. Many friends enjoyed his visit.

CLIMAX FARMER HERE — Ole Romo one of the well known farmers of Climax spent today in the city and had his Journal advanced for another year. He thinks the weather of late about as good as the farmer could make to order.

ROADS IMPROVING—B. A. Anderson who resides on the O. H. Richardson farm in Fairfax south of the city is here today on business and advancing his Journal for another year. He says the recent snow has helped th eroads out in great shape.

PROMINENT RESIDENTS—Mayor Nick Engle of Euclid and Barney Thompson of the same place were arrivals in the city last evening and spent the evening attending to some business maters of importance and remained over today. They return home tomorrow morning.

FIRST TRIP IN WEEKS—A. W. Rundquist the Minneapolis Tribune representative in the Northern part of the state, left this morning for Bemidji this being his first out since Nov. 6th, having been ill himself in addition to having a great deal of illness in his family.

PAUL DRAX STRONGER —Paul Drax passed a very comfortable night last night and has been gaining steadily ever since the operation for the amputation of one leg ta the knee yesterday morning. He is showing remarkable strength and was evidently in fine physical condition.

LEFT FOR FRANCE—Albert Becker left last .evening for a trip to France and will visit other sections of Europe as well. If he finds conditions there to his liking he may remain, but his friends are very firm in their belief that he will return to this country again after a short visit Some even intimate that more than one may return.

WILL SOON BE OUT—Wylie Phillips has been sitting up for several hours every day for the past week and in a few days expects to be able to drive out for an airing if the weather continues fine. He has had a hard siege of it but will soon go out just to give people an idea of "what he can do."

ENJOYING HIS TRIP—Wm. Becker has received a very interesting letter from Adolph Wentzel who is now in Texas, having left here about two weeks ago. He is enjoying his southern trip immensely and will later visit Montana. He states that the weather is fine down there and that he has met quite a number of former residents of this section of the country.

SERVICES APPRECIATED—J. P. Marcum Rural Route Mail Carrier on Route No .1 which runs southwest of the city was a very pleasantly surprised man last Saturday when three of the patrons of his route joined in presenting him with a great fat dressed turkey, a huge piece of tenderloin and a bag of onions. Mr. Marcum is one of the most faithful carriers on a route out of Crookston and the recognition of his faithful and painstaking services is naturally highly appreciated by Mr. Marcum and came as a great surprise.

PLEASED WITH TRIP — J. F. Montgomery and J. W. Campion prominent residents of Angus spent the night in the city enroute home after a ten days' trip to Bemidji and Gemmell Mr. Campion having a number of horses working in the logging camps near the latter place. They then proceeded on the M. & I. to International Falls, inspected the big dam in process of construction there, and also visited Beaudette, Rainy River and other points coming back via Warroad and the new line. They were greatly pleased with the country along the new line and believe it has a great future. They proceeded home this morning accompanied by Mrs. Campion and the children.

"PAPA COME" — A quartette of travelling men and a few other friends enjoyed a good joke at the expense of "Dad" at the Great Northern depot yesterday morning. Mr. Sabin was going to Red Lake Falls but went to the depot an hour early to meet a gentleman whom he wanted to see before leaving the city. He casually strolled from the smoking room to the ladies waiting room and was peering out of the window up Second street to see if his friend was coming when a little tot one of a group of four children travelling with their mother piped out "papa come" and as "Dad" was the only man in that part of the depot he was promptly dubbed "Papa Come" by all the traveling men present and by all those on his train later on. When he arrived at the hotel in Thief River Falls after calling on a customer, some wag had register ed him under that name. "Dad" is swearing vengeance.

AFTER THE BUSINESS — When the New Store puts on a sale it can be relied upon to be a real sale. The sale the Wright-Carpenter Co., is conducting at the present time is the largest and most successful in the history of that store. The patrons cf the sale save big money in every purchase they make.

FINE ICE RACE TRACK — The race course on the Red Lake river has been again cleared and A. J. Couvrette who is responsible for the work, announces that it is now ready for use. This makes the third time the present year that the track has been cleared. Some intersting brushes may be witnessed during the coming few months, or until spring comes.

BAD FOR THE LILLIES—Mrs. J. P. Marcum yesterday received a letter from Mrs. W. H. Collins formerly of this city but now of Kennewick, Wash in which it was stated that at the time the letter was written the thermometer stood 20 degrees below zero and a foot of snow had fallen. This is disastrous weather for a fruit country, and grave fears are entertained regarding the fruit trees, many fearing that they have been frozen out entirely.

A FINE DAUGHTER — Word was received yesterday by O. W. Anderson one of the popular brakemen on the Great Northern running out of this city ,of the arrival of a fine baby daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Rasmussen who formerly operated a restaurant in this city but who are at the present time located on a farm near Fosston. Both mother and daughter are doing nicely. Mrs. Anderson who is a sister of Mrs. Rasmussen, is there at the present time but is expected home the first of next week .

FRAZIER DISGUSTED—The many friends of James Frazier are having a great deal of fun at his expense today as a result of an incident at the Eagles Ball last evening. When the time came for the ladies' choice Mr. Frazier sat in a very receptive attitude. A young lady started from across the hall directly towards him and he had the words "with pleasure" almost out of his mouth when the lady with a gracious smile asked C. C. Hoch for the pleasure of a dance. Mr. Frazier fairly snorted but gained some comfort when he looked across the hall and found that Bennie Moe was also playing the wall flower act.

KERMIT, N. D. IS WIPED OUT

ENTIRE BUSINESS SECTION OF SOO TOWN IS DESTROYED BY FIERCE FIRE

Starting in Mahart's hardware store a fire swept over the entire town of Kermit, N. D. this morning wiping out practically the entire business section. Langley's poolroom and hotel Wallace's hardware, Miller's butcher shop, the Cross millinery, postoffice, Kermit News, McCormick's drug store Heddrick's general store and Mahart's all were totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at from $25,000 to $30,000 with but small insurance. The business men are totally discouraged and there is little talk of rebuilding.

TRAGEDY IS DUE TO JEALOUSY

G. FITZMAURICE SHOOTS MISS G USTA NELSON AND KILLS SELF AT MOHALL, N. D.,—GIRL DIES FEW MINUTES LATER — FITZMAURICE SHOT THRU HEAD AND CANNOT SURVIVE—DAUGHTER OF PROMINENT SHERWOOD ELEVATOR MAN IS SHOT BY A JEALOUS LOVER AS SHE IS LEAVING HER ROOM IN COMPANY WITH TWO FRIENDS BY GEORGEO FITZMAURICE A PROMINENT YOUNG MAN OF TOWN

From Wednesday's Daily—

Just as she was stooping to lock the door of her rooming house Miss Gusta Nelson a clerk in Whitford's department store, was shot thru the lungs by George Fitzmaurice, her lover, with a rifle of large calibre at Mohall, N. D., last night. He then turned the weapon upon himself and inflicted a mortal wound in the head. Miss Nelson died a few minutes afterward and tho Fitzmaurice was alive this afternoon physicians say he cannot survive. Jealousy together with the fact that Fitzmaurice was a heavy drinker could not control himself, are the cause of the tragedy which, owing to the prominence of the people involved, has caused a sensation.

At the time of Fitzmaurice's deed, Miss Nelson, her chum and roommate and her friend, Dick Telsow, were leaving the girls' boarding place for the Masonic hall to attend a dance to which Fitzmaurice had not been invited. Crazed with jealousy Fitzmaurice was waiting and as the girl he loved stooped to turn the key in the door, he fired. The heavy charge passed thru her lungs and she fell to the ground and was dead before any aid could be given her. Fitzmaurice immediately turned the gun on himself and fired, the bullet passing thru his head.

George Fitzmaurice is a brother of Dr. Thomas Fitzmaurice, one of the prominent residents of the city and his parents reside in Crystal, N. D. Miss Nelson is a daughter of Mr. Nelson of the firm of Kehoe & Nelson elevator men west of Sherwood, N. D.

CLEANED UP OLD BUSINESS

CITY COUNCIL HELD SHORT BUT ACTIVE SESSION LAST EVENING

A NUMBER OF IMPORTANT MATTERS WERE DISPOSED OF BEFORE ADJOURNMENT

From Wednesday's Daily—

There was an adjourned meeting of the city council last evening at which a large amount of business was disposed of. The Crookston Times was named as the official paper of the city and a number of sidewalk assessments were abated.

The principal interest of the meeting resulted from a motion by Alderman Hussey for the appointment of a committee of three to confer with Poor Commissioner Sargent to look into the case of John Bergum

Bergum was a city employe who was injured some time ago while working in a sewer at the corner of Third and Main streets. His brother Martin who was foreman of the street crew, was lowering a 2x6 down the manhole and the stick and rope being slippery it slipped thru and struck John Bergum on the head inflicting a bad wound.

He was given prompt attention by Dr. Randolph and three days later was on the streets as usual. Three weeks later, about however, he was stricken with paralysis, one entire side being affected, and has been in that condition ever since. He was taken to St. Vincents hospital and several physicians were called, but none seemed to suit his brother Martin. Later he was removed to Bethesda hospital. It appears that his condition is critical as a blood clot has formed on his brain. A committee consisting of Alderman Wright, Christianson and Hughes was finally named to confer with the poor commissioner regarding the case.

Other Business

The purchasing agent was instructed to purchase 20 bushels of oats at once for the fire nags.

A resolution to increase the salary of the clerk of the municipal court to $50 per month was held illegal under the city charter by City Attorney O'Brien, as the salary of no officer can be increased during his term of office under the charter and President Snyder ruled the motion out of order.

Messrs. Walters and Erickson were ordered paid $35 for removing the barn near their laundry off the property near the approach to the new bridge.

Dr. Wilson Randolph was again named city physician of Crookston.

FREIGHT OFFICE GREATLY IMPROVED

The crews of Master Carpenter Mills of the Northern Division of the Great Northern have completed the repairs to the freight office in the Great Northern passenger depot which was recently badly damaged by fire. The office is far better than ever before and the employes are getting located today. The appearance of the office which was formerly rather dingy is now bright and cheerful and the finely polished counter at the east end is a big improvement over the old one.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT

MAN NEAR ERSKINE HAD KNEE CAP CUT OFF YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

SLIPPED WHEN NEAR CIRCULAR SAW—FAMILY IN POOR CIRCUMSTANCES

From Wednesday's Daily—

Yesterday afternoon a terrible accident took place four miles north of Erskine when a brother of the Great Northern section foreman at that place while working around a circular saw slipped and had his knee cap cut off and a short piece of bone cut from each side of it.

Master Carpenter Mills happened to be there and with Dr. Kahala drove to the scene and the knee cap was restored and the wound attended to and it is hoped the leg may be saved tho at the best it will be stiff.

SPEECHLESS FOR 3 YEARS

DEATH ENDS SUFFERINGS OF HANS OPHUS PROMINENT FARMER OF ERSKINE

Yesterday morning ended the sufferings of Hans Ophus a well known farmer residing three miles from Erskine. Deceased was stricken with paralysis three years ago and since that time has been unable even to speak and has suffered greatly, but was patient thru it all and was glad when the end was at hand.

Deceased was the father-in-law of Knute Strandy pump repairer for the Northern Division of the Great Northern who resides at 422 Stewart Avenue Sampsons addition, and Mrs. Strandy, is now at the old home near Erskine where she will remain till after the funeral which will be held tomorrow.

SHEEP PASTURING ON GREEN RYE

SHREEP PASTURING cmrfde sh N. C. HANSON HAS 200 ACRES OF WINTER RYE UP SIX ICHES —HE IS NEW PASTURING HIS FLOCK OF SHROPSHIRE SHEEP ON THE RYE WHICH MAKES EXCELLENT GRAZING

From Friday's Daily—

N. C. Hanson the well known farmer who resides two and a half miles west of Crookston and on the south side of the river is spending the day in the city attending to some business matters.

Mr. Hanson is one of the progressive farmers who believes in diversified farming and for the past few years has been raising more or less winter rye and has been very successful.

Last fall he seeded 200 acres and it is now six inches high and as green as grass ever was in spring. Mr. Hanson has a fine flock of thorobred Shropshire sheep and they are now feeding on the rye which makes ideal grazing for them.

At the same time Mr. Hanson states the pasturing of the sheep on the rye really benefits the crop. Last year he pastured sheep and cattle also on a rye field and the crop was better there than on another field which he did not pasture all other conditions being the same.

The sight of sheep feeding on green fields the latter part of January in Northern Minnesota is one that would be read like a fairy tale in the east, but the fact remains that banana belt weather seems to strike this section more often than any other this winter.

A SENSE OF HUMOR

It is a big thing to be born with a sense of humor. It will force smooth sailing on life's roughest seas and will make even drudgery bearable, says an exchange.

The woman who cannot see a joke even at their own expense is to be pitied—and so are her fun-loving friends. There is nothing harder on both sides than a humorism that fails flat.

The good people who are interested in the decrease of divorce should have a law passed that the serious minded and the joker may not wed. It means ructions ere the orange blossoms fade.

A man not long ago was bewailing a broken engagement. A friend who knew them both said:

"It is the Lord taking a hand to save you from a lifetime of misery. Georgia couldn't see no fun if it were labeled JOKE and you couldn't help joking tho it meant a separation from those you loved best."

But it is one thing to have a sense of humor and another to have a warped sense of humor. There is no one more maddening than the person who roars at our mishaps and thinks it "so funny" to mortify his friends.

You can afford to laugh—if you feel like it—when you fall in a crowded ballroom or lose your false puffs in church; but you have no friendship so tender that will warrant a smile when a friend does the same .

It is the woman with the misplaced sense of humor who tells embarrassing anecdotes about family makeshifts or who repeats as a good joke to a common friend something you have said about her, but never intended her to hear.

One of these misplaced humorists is the husband who thinks it funny to ask a guest to have certain dishes and when she accepts to tell her "We are just out of it."

Have you never been covered with embarrassment by having such a man ask you to say grace at his dinner table and shriek with laughter at your efforts to get out of it

Then there are humorists who, when you tell a good story think it "smart" to receive it with forced guffaws, and others who willfully refuse to laugh at the point.

Laugh all you can but have a sense of fitness in your laughing. To joke over the bumps in your own life will do much to smooth them; to find humor in the mishaps of your friends is soon to find yourself friendless.

WARM AND DRY TO STAY WELL

AUTHORITY GIVES SIMPLE PRESCRIPTION ALSO TELLS HOW TO TAKE

TELLS READERS HOW TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE AT HOME

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism or if your backaches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism which is caused by uric acide in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescriptions stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

CARIBOU ARE BEING DESTROYED

FORTY-FOUR DEAD MOOSE SEEN IN THE BIG BAY DISTRICT BY HUNTER

HOME FROM A VERY SAD MISSION

W. T. Carlisle returned this morning from Aberdeen, S. D., where yesterday his mother was laid to rest. She died Tuesday after a long illness and was buried in the cemetery at Aberdeen. She left three sons and one daughter, the latter, Mrs. W. O. Jones residing at Aberdeen, together with J. A. Carlisle another son. The other two sons are W. T. Carlisle of this city and C. W. Carlisle of Lander, Wyoming, and all were present with the exception of the last named, who was home just a few days before the end and who was called back west on account of urgent business and could not return.

The New Senate and the Tariff

The legislatures of several states "seen their duty and they done it" yesterday. Oregon's almost solidly republican legislature chose Governor Chamberlain the democratic winner in the primary. The North Dakota republican legislature chose M. N. Johnson who had a small plurality of the votes in a republican popular primary. Senator Hopkins who won out in the Illinois popular primary over Congressman Foss and a field of opponents, is having a hard time and is still "shy" 24 votes, Elihu Root has been made the unanimous choice of the republican caucus for senator from New York and B. F. Shively will be the democratic senator from Indiana.

These men will not have to wait until next December to show what kind of senators they will be. They will have a chance shortly after March 4, when President Taft calls congress together in extraordinary session to revise the tariff. The democrats have gained two senators, and they will be expected to be low-tariff senators. If Hopkins gets back he will have to stand for real tariff revision, since he is the senator who, as chairman of the resolutions committee, reported the tariff plank of the last republican platform.

What Senator Root's views on the tariff are, we don't know exactly from him. He has been engaged in executive work, but undoubtedly his views are that the tariff should be so adjusted as to propagate our South America trade. He did not take that long journey to the south, without learning more about our trade relations than most of his colleagues in the senate know at the present time. The new senate promises to be more truly representative than the old on the tariff issue.—Minneapolis Journal.

PRESERVE RED LAKE FOREST

REPRESENTATIVE STEENERSON AND OFFICIALS OF INDIAN OFFICE HELD CONFERENCES—PLAN TO HAVE MATURE TIMBER LOGGED BY THE INDIANS

From Friday's Daily—

As a result of a conference between Representative Steenerson and officials of the Indian office and forest service, it is probable that an agreement will be reached in a few days on a plan for the disposal of pine timber on the diminishing Red Lake reservation. Officers of the forest and Indian office are anxious to preserve this timber which is practically the only solid body of white pine left in Minnesota and to sell only the mature timber and otherwise administer the forest in accordance with the present conversation policy of the government.

The plan proposed is to have the mature timber logged by the Indians and sold for their benefit. It is said that under this plan the forest will be preserved, and will produce steady revenue for the Indians for years to come. Altho Mr. Steenerson has not given his final approval the preservation and income feature of the proposed plan appeal to him as the best thing for the Indians and for the settlers of the Red river valley.

Representative Steenerson has had a conference with members of the subcommittee on rivers and harbors in charge of surveys and has urged that provision be made in the emergency bill soon to be reported for surveys with a view to the improvement of the Red Lake river, Warroad harbor, and the harbor of refuge at Zipple. He hopes that all these projects will be included in the bill.

HER HUSBAND IS TOO HANDSOME

Isabel Rush Nelson Actress, has an Unique Complaint Against James Hervey Simpson—She Sues for Divorce — Marriage to St. Paul Man was the Culmination of Romantic Courtship Begun at Football Match

The Central News Bureau of New York in a special says:

"Isabel Rush Nelson, the actress, has instructed her counsel to begin action for divorce from James Hervey Simpson of St. Paul whom she met at a Yale-Princeton football match and whom she married in 1905. She describes her husband as being 'too terribly handsome.'"

James Hervy Simpson mentioned in the dispatch is the only son of Mrs. J. H. Simpson of this city, one of the best and most beloved of pioneer women identified with the beginnings of the city, related to many well known families and widow of Gen. J. H. Simpson, U. S. A. who died in St. Paul at the old Borup place in lower town about twenty years ago.

Hervey Simpson as he is known here was educated at Yale and after leaving college went to work for a well known firm of lawyers in New York, and met the young woman who is concerned in this action at that time. He is the nephew of the late Theodore and Gustave Borup and by marriage a nephew of Richards Gordon.

His mother Mrs. Simpson and his sister Miss Marion Simpson have been spending much of their time for the last year and a half with Mrs. Badger eldest daughter of Mrs. Simpson whose husband has been commandant at Annapolis. Mrs. Simpson's Summit avenue home has been leased during her absence to Vice President Levey of the Northern Pacific road.

For more than a year Mr. Simpson has lived in the East. He was associated with the Wanamaker company in New York and some months ago was it is said, transferred to the Philadelphia establishment.

He is a member of the Minnesota Boat club and two years ago was coxswain for the senior and junior eight crews.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Cannon Falls Beacon: In its controversy with Mr. Tawney two years ago the Beacon indicated that gentleman's attitude toward the president and his policies with an accuracy confirmed by every official act and utterance by the gentleman from the "first" since that time. Mr. Tawney in Minnesota and Mr. Tawney in congress are contrasting and contradicting characters. In Minnesota among his constituents, he would fain be a Roosevelt reformer, but at Washington he is a hostile of hostiles, a stand patter, and a faithful and obedient servant of a corporate power.

Too much time is wasted in trying to reform things that are not worth reforming.

TRY TO BLUFF THE PRESIDENT

SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN REQUESTED TO STOP PERSONAL BICKERINGS

QUEER FACTS ABOUT OMNIBUS BILL, WHICH IS NOW PENDING IN THE SENATE

Washington, Jan. 25—It is quite apparent to those senators and representatives who have always stood, and are now just as firmly supporting President Roosevelt as in the earlier days of his administration, that the president's enemies and opponents are determined to have his administration end with some sort of discredit if possible.

The special committees of both the senate and the house are for the most part composed of men who do not like Mr. Roosevelt personally and have long bided their time to give him a dig. But it is most unfortunate for them that they have waited until the closing month of his administration to undertake to put the president under a cloud.

By a dilatory process the investigations of the secret service will drag along until a week or two before the inauguration, and then whatever report the committee will dare make will be proclaimed.

It is an interesting conjecture to speculate a little as to what the people in their respective districts and states will have to say to those of the senate and house who have spent a greater part of this session in trying to find some way to put Mr. Roosevelt in a bad light.

They have been thus engaged while the great measures which he has time and again importuned congress to pass sleep quietly in the pigeon holes of the files of some of the leading committees of the house, while petty personal bickerings are pressed forward.

But Washington is hearing from the home folks.

A Stereotyped Bluff.

In replying to their constituents who write numerous letters requesting the passage of the postal savings bank bill, the inland waterway commission bill, the bill to divide the work of the interstate commerce commission so that there will be a separate bureau of transportation, the Washington statesmen are replying with that old stereotyped bluff:

"This, my dear sir, is the short session of congress, and only the big appropriation bills which are necessary to the government can be considered."

Well, the session is more than half over, and of the nine big appropriation bills but two have reached the president for his signature. Meanwhile congress at the north and south ends of the capitol keeps up a sort of moving picture show in which Tillman, Rayner and Bailey in the senate are permitted to by the big republican majority of that body to keep up a continuous performance, while in the house time is wasted in talking of what should or should not go into the Congressional Record of a most outrageous speech of one of its members.

The Omnibus Claims Bill.

History does not record just how or when or why the title to certain lesislation which appropriates money in payment of claims against the government should be designated as the "omnibus claims bill." It is so printed in the official record, notwithstanding the fact that it takes years for the omnibus to come along and carry the appropriation through.

An omnibus claims bill is now up before the senate, and it has been more or less of a standing question between the government and the claimants for the past forty years.

Many of the original claimants are dead and their heirs are camping in Washington in the hope of at last reaping the labors of years. Some of the items are peculiar. They are for the most part Civil War claims for property either destroyed or appropriated by the Union or Confederate soldiers which belonged to loyal citizens during the period of the rebellion. One claim is for a growing crop of corn that was trod into the ground. Another claim is for forty hogs at 8 cents a pound. Another for 13,800 fence rails at $3 per cord. One claim is for two large navy revolvers, the true value of which was $150, and for powder and shot for the same $100.

Mr. Dorr and Senator Some More.

Although Senator R. B. Tillman has had a great deal of the bravado taken out of him, he is still spoiling for more fight, and it will take a special effort to muzzle him during the remainder of this session.

It seems impossible for the Oregon land case to blow over, and Senator Tillman, who is pretty near to the bad thus far in his efforts to secure a "vindication," sits up and takes notice whenever the St. Paul and Pacific syndicate and the Messrs Dorr have anything to say.

Throug' the Dispatch mail bag of last Saturday Mr. R. R. Dorr takes issue with th statement that a fraud order was ever issued against his son, and is rather inclined to criticise the Dispatch Washington correspondent for stating that a fraud order had issued.

But Senator Tillman not only says that there was such an order issued but he calls on both R. R. Dorr and Bryan R. Dorr to prove it there was not.

In a letter to Senator Tillman from R. R. Dorr dated St. Paul, March 2, 1908, the latter says: "Under date of February 21st, my son writes me as follows: 'The government has passed a fraud order against me on account of the circulars about the Coos Bay wagon road grant'."

And on February 21, 1908, Mr. Bryan R. Dorr, in a letter to Senator Tillman, says: "I learn today that a fraud order has been issued against me for using name in connection with circulars, etc."

All of these letters are printed in the Congressional Record of Jan. 14, last.

The Dispatch correspondent has felt some remorse because of the fact that Senator Tillman in giving out his sensational interview of last February, to some extent imposed on good nature in not telling the whole story which came out only after he had made charges against the Dorr syndicate in the open senate. But it takes both sides of a case to make the right kind of a newspaper story and only the exact facts have been given from his end. Mr. Dorr, like Mr. Tillman, seems to want to talk too much.

MINNESOTA STATE FAIR

LEGISLATIVE RESOLUTIONS ELICITS ENTHUSIASTIC APPROVAL FROM THE SECRETARY.

"WANT IT IMMEDIATE AND WANT IT THOROUGH," SAYS MR. COSGROVE.

Officers of the Minnesota State Agricultural society welcome the proposed legislative investigation of their department as a means to make the members of the legislature understand its needs more fully than would be possible in any other way.

Representative J. T. Johnson of Fergus Falls introduced the resolution in the house calling for the appointment of an investigating committee. The officers of the state fair board say that the detailed financial report of the affairs of their organization, which is called for by Mr. Johnson, is just what they want to get before the legislature. They say they hope that every member of the senate and the house will take enough interest in the investigation to familiarize himself with the details of management of the state fair.

B. F. Nelson, president of the state fair board, is out of the city, but C. N. Cosgrove, the secretary, said today that the board was heartily in favor of the investigation.

Want It Thorough.

"All we ask is that the investigation shall be immediate and thorough," said Mr. Cosgrove. "Nothing could please us more than that a complete investigation of the way the fair is managed should come at this time. We are about to appeal to the legislature for an appropriation for the purpose of supplying the fair with much needed equipment, and the opportunity to make these needs known through an investigation of the fair management is sure to result to our great advantage."

As to the renting of the race track for automobile races last summer, and the livestock pavilion for a skating rink this winter, Mr. Cosgrove said:

"The automobile races were held in July, at the time of the Shriners' convention in St. Paul and on Aug. 11, I received and placed in the treasury of the society $150 for the use of the track. Under our contract with the management of the skating rink the society is getting 25 per cent of the gross receipts, and so far this winter I have received $600 from this source. Both of these transactions show in detail on our books and both were authorized by the board of directors in regular session. Our books are kept in such manner that every transaction, even though it involve but 25 cents, is shown in detail.

Correspondence With Johnson.

Mr. Johnson, who presented the resolution calling for this investigation, wrote to me a short time ago and asked for a report of our business for 1908. I replied that the report for 1908 had not been printed as yet, but I sent him one of the reports for 1906 and one for 1907. The report for last year will make 200 printed pages, so it would have been practically impossible for me to have had a typewritten copy of it prepared for Mr. Johnson."

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM THURSDAYS DAILY

BACK FROM THE CITIES—Bert Ruettell returned from the cities this morning, where he has been spending the past few days. He reports the weather remarkably fine down there, the same as it has been here.

FAMILY LOCATED — Conductor Chase of the Northern Pacific has moved his family to East Grand Forks from Staples. He now has the passenger run between there and Pembina.

PEOPLE ALL GOOD—The business in the office of Sheriff Daniels is decidedly on the quiet order today all the employes being at home. There was not even a civil paper to be served today, and even Office Deputy R. G. Burkhardt was on easy street.

SUDDEN CHANGE—There was a very sudden change in the weather during the night the wind switching from the south to the north, making a decided cool wave. However the temperature is still as high as could be expected at this season of the year.

RETURNED FROM FARGO—Sam Felsing returned this morning from a business trip to Fargo where he has been for the past few days. He reports things rather quite there but stated that business men are looking forward to a good year's business.

ALGOT ECK ILL— Algot Eck who is emloyed at the Journal was ill this morning and could not report for work. He stated when he was called that the doctor told him not to report till the first of next week at the earliest.

QUIET IN AUDITOR'S OFFICE—The force in the office of County Auditor Welte reports business quiet with the exception of a large amount of routine work. All the force is busy taking care of the regular work in the office.

ON BUSINESS TRIP—J. A. McDonald returned this morning from a business trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis where he has been spending the past few days. While there he attended the meeting of the Masonic Grand lodge.

WENT TO DEER RIVER—Gunder Krostue, the well known banker from Fisher passed thru the city this morning enroute to Deer River where he was called on business. He says that business at Fisher was never better and that the bank there is in the finest shape it ever was.

RETURNED THIS MORNING—Architect B. D. Keck returned this morning from a business trip to the cities where he has been for the past three days. He attended the meeting of the meeting of the Masonic Grand lodge while in St. Paul and reports the gathering one of the largest ever held in the state.

NO ONE WAS HURT—This morning a farmer's team caused some excitement on Robert street. They were left standing and were frightened by some blowing paper and started for Jeromes addition at a gait that was not slow. Fortunately before they had got under very good headway they were stopped, a student of the Crookston Business College seizing them just as they were crossing Ash Street.

REV. McCOY AT GRAND FORKS—Rev. F. M. McCoy of the M. E. church will leave for Grand Forks this evening to deliver an address before the Wesley College on the subject of Homilitics or the art of preaching. Rev. McCoy will certainly give the people of Grand Forks something to think about in nrs address this evening.

SAYS BUSINESS IS GOOD—Wm. Emerich the manager of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., branch office in the city left this morning for Fosston Lengby and other points on the east line. He states that business is fine in the sewing machine line, and that all the agents are turning in good orders.

OLD SOLDIER HERE—A. Strobel one of the well known old soldiers of Angus returned home this morning after spending the night in the city. He states that everything is quiet in the burg to the north and that nothing has occurred of late to mar the even tenor of the ways of the people up in that direction.

HOME FROM ST. PAUL—Dr. A. H. Kahala of Erskine returned this morning from a combined business and pleasure trip from St. Paul. He has been down for a week and reports that the business men there are complaining about the dullness of business more than they are here. He states that the weather there was very fine while he was here but that there appeared to be a very decided change when he arrived here this morning.

DUMPED THE TRUCK—A truck load of trunks was dumped at the Great Northern depot this morning and the matter would have received much notoriety had it not been for the fact that Agent Bell was responsible for the "spill." He was assisting in moving a truck load of trunks across the tracks when the truck came to grief, one of the wheels catching on the rails and the trouble followed. It might be added that the genial agent of the Great Northern did not even use one little cuss word, tho the temptation was great.

SETTLED IN COURT—Two hackmen got into trouble last evening at the Great Northern depot over an old score and the matter ended in blows The case was called in municipal court this morning before Judge Gossman and adjourned till 3 o'clock this afternoon when Capt. Vonderbeck who made the arrest can be present.

LUTHER LEAGUE MEETING — The regular meeting of Luther League will be held this evening at eight o'clock at the residence of E. J. Loken on 110 Bridge St. Election of officers for the ensuing year will be held and other important business transacted. The attendance of all members is requested.

The many friends of Paul Drax will be pleased to learn that his condition improved materially last night. He gained considerably in strength and during the day has rested much easier.

It appears that the published reports regarding the accident were not exactly correct. He was not struck by a switch engine as stated. He was passing between two box cars which had been standing on the track a few feet apart for several days.

Just as he stepped between them the switch engine struck them and jammed them together and he was caught between them.

He was badly jammed about the hips and otherwise bruised up, but his splendid physical condition is standing him in good stead and it is now believed that he will recover with the excelent care he is receiving at St. Vincents Hospital.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

ON LEGAL BUSINESS—Attorney James Montague left this morning for Roseau where he has some legal business to attend to.

FROM TOWN OF KNUTE—Olous Nelson a well known resident from the town of Knute is spending the day in the city enroute home from a vacation trip from Warren.

TO WEST END—Jos. Koelmel left this morning for East Grand Forks where he will confer with Manager N. C. Ludvigson of the Heileman branch agency for the day, returning home this evening.

BUSINESS FOR BLACKSMITHS—The soft weather is making all kinds of business for the blacksmiths of the city. The roads in the country as well as in the city are very slippery and horses have to be sharp shod.

TRAINMEN ARE REJOICING — The present mild weather is being thoroly enjoyed by the railroad men. All the trains are pulling in promptly on time and the work of the train men ,especially the freight brakeman is greatly lessened as a result of the change for the better in the weather.

MUCH WORK IN SIGHT — The carpenters of the city state that there is more work in sight the coming spring and summer than there has been for many years. They are looking forward to a very active season and expect there will be work for all and at good wages.

WOLVES INCREASE — Timber wolves in the northern country are so numerous and so destructive of deer, moose and caribou that the state game and fish commission will ask the legislature to increase the $7.50 bounty on wolves. Some counties pay on additional bounty and others will be asked to do so.

OLDEST SWITCHTENDER DYING—Mathias Diedrich the oldest switchtender in the Union station railroad yards at St. Paul, is at Bethesda hospital in that city at the point of death from injuries which he suffered in being struck by a train about a week ago. His injuries in part are internal.

BACK FROM TRIP — J. H. Stair, who started on the road with the Peters Cartridge Co., the first of the year ,returned this morning from a several weeks' trip to South Dakota and the southern part of North Dakota. While he was diffident regarding the success he had, "the smile that won't come off" indicated that he got his share of the business at least.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL — Mrs. H. W. Norrie was taken to the Bethesda hospital this morning and it is expected that she will be operated upon for appendicitis i na few days. The physicians are not certain as yet what the trouble is, but all indications point to appendicitis. Her many friends are very much concerned about her condition.

MUCH LOCAL INTEREST—Much local interests taken in the forthcoming election of the grand lodge officers of the Odd Fellows of Minnesota. All of the candidates for grand master are well known here and there is a division of sentiment as to who will be the successful candidate. All of them are popular however, and any one will be satisfactory. The contest, while friendly, is very keen.

TWO FINE HOSPITALS—Comment is frequently heard on the streets by outside physicians who bring patients here, over the excellence of the two local hospitals. Both the St. Vincent hospital and the Bethesda are modern in every respect and are equipped with all modern appliances for surgical work. Both have splendid records for the past year regarding the small number of patients who have died. This is due jointly to fine equipment and splendid nursing in addition to as good medical talent as can be found in the country.

BUSINESS TRIP—W. T. Carlisle and A. G. Jacobson of the local whole sale house, left this morning for Grand Forks where they were called on business matters. Mr. Winslow went over yesterday on the same mission and will remain several days.

PROTEGES OF ROOSEVELT—Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal of Richdale, this county, are the happy parents of a little son born last week. This is the tenth son born to this couple and they are also parents of six daughters Fourteen of the sixteen children are living.—Fergus Falls Journal.

AFTER INSANE PATIENT—Sheriff Daniels went to East Grand Forks this morning where he was called to bring an insane person over for examination. He had not learned her name or any of the attendant circumstances before his departure, other than the fact that she was violent.

RETURNED TO ANGUS— Harry Miller who has been spending the past few days in the city a guest at the home of Mrs. W. L. Davies, returned this morning to his home at Angus. He states that the weather the past few days is great for the stock and is a great feed saver for the farmers.

BUILDING A FINE LAUNCH — Messrs Albert Larviere and Walter Blair are now at work constructing a fine 25 foot launch at the C. Viau shop on North Broadway. They will equip it with a six horse power gasoline engine and after trying it out on the river here in the spring will ship it to Maple Lake where it will be put in service next summer.

BACK TO THE FARMSTEAD — C. C. Bowen and A. H. Kahlert left this morning for their homesteads south of Graceton. They have been spending the past few days in the city this shrdlue she shseshne m—bfason on business matters and returned this morning to make extensive improvements on their farms. Both are of the opinion that they have valuable claims and all others who have seem the timber which they have are of the same opinion.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

Northwestern Hide & Fur Co. Minneapolis, pay 11ct. for Hides and high price for furs. Sell traps cheap.

WANTED — Local Agent for selling Farmers' Record, direct to the farmers. For particulars apply to E. E. Bernard, State Agent, Ada, Minn.

EUCLIDITE DOWN—Wm. Casmey drove down from South Euclid today with some produce and reports the roads for a sleigh about the limit.

GREENHALGH TO SPEAK — At the Lincoln day celebration at the city hall Feb. 12 James Greenhalgh will deliver the address representing the Grand Army.

STILL HOLDING HIS OWN—The condition of Paul Drax at St. Vincent Hospital still continues to be such as to give hopes that he will recover He is getting now so that he rests considerably and his friends have strong hopes that he will eventually fully recover.

WANT TO BE JUDGES—There is a rumor in circulation to the effect that Ole J. Vaule of Crookston and Frank A. Grady of Red Lake Falls have entered into a combination and are to oppose Judges Watts and Grindeland at the next election — Thief River Falls News.

SAW NO GEESE — Peter Gramer returned this morning from a business trip to Halstad. It was reported that there were several flocks of geese heard down that line last evening but Mr. Gramer when closely cross questioned denied that he nad started the story, tho he stated the browsing for geese in that direction was fine and there was plenty of water for a bath for them.

HAS THOROBRED PURP—When it comes to talking dog, not common mongrel, but real dog of high degree blue blooded and with all the pedigree frills, Conductor Mark Keeley is there with both feet in the front pew. This morning he received a thorobred Scotch Collie from a dog fancier of Minneapolis and in the future will be right there in the bench shows.

ROY TEAL CONVALESCING—Roy Teal who was operated on last week at St. Vincent Hospital for appendicitis was able to sit up today for the first time. He will soon be moved to the home of his sister Mrs. Will Nelson where he will remain till he is able to return to his home at Euclid.

OLD TIMER HERE—Chas. Wittenstein one of the old timers of Warren, having managed the big Irish farm southwest of that city for years and later moved to Warren where he is now heavily interested in business spent last evening in Crookston and attended the Commercial Club Banquet returned to Warren this morning. He is heartily in favor of the commercial idea and never lets an opportunity pass to boost either in his home city or any where else.

WELL KNOWN RAILROAD MAN—E. S. Greenhalgh, a former well known resident of Crookston is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Greenhalgh for a few days. He was enroute back west where he was located and stopped off for a few days to see the home folks and greet old freinds. Engineer Jack Greenhalgh is also here from Grand Forks for a few days.

PROMINENT FARMER—J. B. Retzner one of the well known farmers on Rural Route No .5 out of Crookston is spending the day here attending to business and decided that a farmer should use printed stationery the same as any other business man and accordingly orderedly a supply from the Journal. It would look just as business-like for a farmer to use as the merchant whom he supports by his patronage.

Today a deal was closed by Mr. and Mrs. A. St. Marie for the lease of the Vendome hotel for one year ,the transfer to take place Monday next. Mr. Brule will leave soon for an extended trip south and west in the hope of benefitting his asthma. His family will remain here at the home of his father.

Mrs. St. Marie is a sister of Mr. Brule and with her husband has resided at the Vendome ever since it was opened and the details of the hotel business are thoroly understood by both of them and there is absolutely no question but they will be as successful as Mr. Brule has been in the past, the hotel having a splendid patronage.

Mail Carriers' Merit System

Even civil service reform is not perfect, as we know from the improvements the government is making in the rules for promotion letter carriers There is always a chance to make it a little better. The postoffice department is going to have a black book in which it will record various delinquencies of the carriers, according to a graduated scale of enormity, and base advancement upon the results. So far, so good. A merit system is a sham, unless the officers in charge may be required to give good reasons for their decisions. Otherwise it becomes merely an excuse for unjust preferencies and discriminations. The great body of men who are placed under such a rule must be protected by strictly defining the powers and duties of those over them.

Yet the system of demerits, adopted by the postoffice department might be improved by adding thereto a system of merits or credits for better than merely passable work. If carrier is to be disciplined for small delinquencies, why should not he be rewarded for unusual excellence of work? In that view of the case, the following schedule of credits, merely as examples, is submitted to the proper authorities:

For making a second call, rather than leaving a letter in an insecure place one credit.

For returning a courteous answer to a foolish question, five credits.

For completing a route ahead of time, ten credits for each such day.

Any postmaster can suggest other works of supererogation worthy of reward.—S. Paul Dispatch.

NATURAL GAS DISCOVERED GREAT EXCITEMENT

Located Just Across Line In North Dakota West Of Eldred, Polk Co.

Great excitement has been caused by the discovery of gas on the farm of Rudolph Anderson three miles west of Reynolds, N. D., which is located just across the Red River from Eldred, Polk Co.

It was struck 60 feet down by artesian well diggers and when lighted could be seen a distance of three miles and the roaring could be heard a mile. The well was discovered late yesterday afternoon and the whole community is greatly aroused.

Other farmers both on the Dakota and Minnesota side of the river will at once begin prospecting as the discovery means wonderful things for that section.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Lillie Patterson and R. H. Patterson, her husband, mortgagors, to L. D. Foskett, mortgagee, dated March 5, 1908, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, on April 14, 1908 at 3:10 o'clock P. M. in book 152 of mortgages on page 202 thereof; that the mortgagors herein have failed to pay $34.17 due October 1, 1908, said sum being due under a certain mortgage executed by the parties named as mortgagors herein and in favor of said L. D. Foskett and by him assigned, which mortgage is a prior lien upon the land hereinafter described, said sum being represented by a certain coupon note bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum after maturity and that there is now due the said L. D. Foskett thereon, under and by virtue of the terms of the mortgage first referred to, the sum of $34.65, he having paid said sum to the holder of said prior mortgage; that said mortgage provided for a reasonable attorney's fee to be paid by said mortgagors upon the foreclosure of the mortgage herein described, and the sum of $25.00 is a reasonable attorney's fee for such foreclosure; that in addition to the sum of $34.65 paid by L. D. Foskett on said coupon note and the sum of $25.00 for attorney's fees, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage the sum of $82.35; making a total due of the sum of $117.00 at this date together with the sum of $25.00 attorney's fees; that by virtue of said default the power of sale in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof; that the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are the northwest fractional quarter of section number 5 in township number 148 north of range number 45 west of the 5th principal meridian, situate in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota; that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on February 20, 1909, at 2 o'clock P. M., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, including amount of said coupon note and $25.00 attorney's fees, and the costs of such sale.

Dated January 7, 1909.

Opposed to Board of Trade

Prof. Alfred G. Arvold of the North Dakota Agricultural college delivered an address before the Tri-State Grain Grower's Association Tuesday in which he denounced the board of trade, and wheat gambling in general as the greatest of American evils and called for legislation for its abolition On the same day, Representative Sawyer of Minneapolis introduced a resolution in the Minnesota House in which he proposed to extend thanks of the state of Minnesota to J. A. Patten, the leading bull in the Chicago wheat pit, for keeping up the price of wheat, and thus distributing millions among the farmers of the northwest. The resolution was laird over by the legislature. The question whether speculation in wheat has a tendency to raise or lower prices is one in regard to which there is quite a difference of opinion.—Fergus Falls Journal.

Monticello Times: Congressman Tawney has put President Roosevelt in a class of liars all by himself.

Medical Inspection in Schools

The general understanding is that the Minneapolis school board decided to withhold experimenting with medical inspection the coming year. As a result the board is being subjected to criticism by some of the interests that are pushing for such inspection.

The fact is, the school board has not taken such decisive action. The four new members were unacquainted with the subject hence referred it back to the committee for study. That is all the action meant.

The Journal likes the ways of the new school board. Its members should not be hurried into action, when the very thing the public most needs is intelligent conduct of business. It will be time to bring public agitation to bear when final action calls for it. In the meantime the board is justified in delaying a reasonable time, in order that the new members may investigate and understand the medical inspection proposition. — Minneapolis Journal.

WOULD REOPEN LAND CASE

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT TO GIVE RICHARDSON ANOTHER HEARING

CASE NI WHICH CONGRESSMAN STEENERSON IS INTERESTED TO BE REOPENED

From Monday's Daily—

It is indicated at the interior department that C. E. Richardson attorney for the White Earth Indians will be given a hearing before the law officers of the interior department some time this week on his application for a re-opening of the swamp land case filed with Secretary Garfield Saturday

It was stated at the department that there was some doubt as to just what was to be accomplished by giving this hearing, inasmuch as the attorney general had once given an opinion relative to the ownership of the lands in controversy at the time of the passage of the swamp land grant in 1860, and presumably he was cognizant of and took account of the treaty of 1855, when he decided that the lands were not in Indian ownership in 1860.

It is probable the secretary will not delay his decision on this latest application on behalf of the Indians, as he indicated on Thursday that he was anxious to close up the state's land account.

REPORT OF GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE

The Good Roads Committee of the Twenty-Five Thousand Club, respectfully makes the following report for the year 1908.

The Committee was authorized by the club to take steps toward the construction and completion of a road from this city to Maple Lake. At the subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors of the club, the committee was authorized to abandon the Maple Lake road for the present for the reason that the old grade of the Great Northern Railway across the Benoit Flats could not be obtained upon reasonable terms. The consequence was that the committee diverted its entire attention to the development of the road to Dorothy.

It was the intention of the committee to expend some money in the vicinity of Crockston for split log drags and certain members of the committee and of the club took charge of certain roads leading from the city and some work was done upon each road with the split log drags. However, the season was so favorable for good roads that very little work was necessary, and the scheme was to a large extent abandoned; but the road to Dorothy has been completed.

The Town of Parnell was given a lease of the right-of-way of the old Great Northern grade, and this committee furnished culverts to that town to replace the culverts which had been taken out of the grade by the railroad company. In doing so the Town found it convenient to fill in about one-half of the old culverts entirely and to put the metal culverts, furnished by us, into the other one-half. Between the Town of Parnell and Dorothy postoffice it was not practical to obtain the right of way from the railroad company because certain farmers there have certain portions of it fenced in, and have negotiated with the railroad company for the right-of-way. We found it necessary to run a grade from the east town line of Parnell to the graded road which runs into Dorothy. This grading cost us $40 and in our judgment was much cheaper than it would have been to fill up the open places in the railroad grade east of that point, as the grade was high there and there were some very long gaps. We found it necessary to expend some money for smoothing the grade thru the Town of Parnell. That Town had done considerable smoothing but not sufficient to make the road practical to travel over. It will be necessary to do some more work in the spring.

The total amount of money raised by subscriptions was $206.00. Of this your committee has expended $158.80 leaving a balance on hand of $47.20. There was a considerable amount of money subscribed which we found it unnecessary to collect in order to pay the expenses.

We attach a copy of the account to this report and our check for the balance of the money in our hands.

Respectfully submitted,
—Good Roads Committee,
By Charles Loring,
Chairman.

PRAISE FOR TANNERY

HENRY O'NEIL CALLS ATTENTION TO A GREAT LOCAL INSTITUTION

CROOKSTON TANNERY DOING BETTER WORK THAN CAN BE SECURED ELSEWHERE

From Monday's Daily—

Henry O'Neill, the well known farmer residing east of the city on R. F. D. No. 2 made a statement to the Journal this morning that is of general interest. It appears that a short time ago he brought a hide to the Crookston tannery and had it tanned and lined for a robe. The work cost him the sum of $9 and a livery man on seeing the robe accidentally offered him $35 for it. In discussing the matter Mr. O'Neill said: "Crookston has one substantial industry which is not half appreciated. The people do not seem to know of it as they should. I have seen work done, and had it done by three other tanneries and the Crookston tannery has them 'skinned a mile.' There may have been a time in the early days when hides tanned in Crookston were a trifle stiff and did not mbake a satisfactory robe.

"Now it is different. Skins come out as soft as a rag and are good for all purposes. I have just found out that they have reached a standard of excellence that has not been reached by the Minneapolis and St. Paul tanneries as yet."

Mr. O'Neill made a most excellent suggestion. Here is an institution doing better work than can be secured from outside places. He has demonstrated it himself. It is such business enterprises that should be given every encouragement in Crookston. The business men should stand behind it as a business institution that will mean additional business for Crookston as the years go by and its growth means more employes located in this city.

It is vastly better to foster the industries we have than to go after new ones when those we have are neglected.

The plant of Aug. Miller & Son is without doubt entitled to much more patronage than it has received but we cannot help but state that perhaps a little more judicious use of printer's ink might have aided the growth of the institution considerably. While there is no malice of any sort, otherwise we would not have printed such an article as the above, the fact remains that publicity regarding such an institution is its only means of growth, and the newspaper is the only means of such publicity.

The Journal wants to see the Crookston Tannery and every other local institution grow ,and we believe that people who do not patronize products of the Crookston factories are not entitled to patronage of Crookston people. If this idea was carried out there would be something doing in many business institutions in the very near future.

Two Doors.

Here is a door that opens on
A chamber darkened, full of gloom,
A ghostly light shines in upon
The dwellers in this spacious room.
Here Fear and Trouble pace about;
Anxiety and Woe and Grief;
Foreboding, Weariness and Doubt,
And Worry that escapes relief.
This door I call "Forgetfulness"—
In letters deep the word is cut—
And though the dwellers madly press,
I kept it ever tightly shut.

This other door "Remembrance" is.
It opens on a cheerful scene—
Past joys, and little tastes of bliss,
And happy moments that have been.
Dear Peace and sweet Content are here
And little deeds of kindness done;
And Hope, and Love, and Faith, and Cheer,
And blessings that my life hath won.
This door is open all the while,
Flung wide that everyone may share
Possessions that make life a smile,
And put to rout all thoughts of care.

SUICIDE'S SISTER LIVED IN FARGO

MISS OLLIE LAW ATTENDED BUSINESS COLLEGE HERE LAST FALL

LEFT SUDDENLY AND IT WAS FEARED THAT SHE WAS THE VICTIM

From Monday's Daily—

When Prof. F. L. Watkins read the account of the suicide of Miss Alice Law at 5427 Indiana avenue, Chicago in yesterday morning's Call, he was of the opinion that she was a member of his household last fall while in attendance at the Dakota Business college. An investigation was started at once and a telegram was sent to her mother at Wilton.

Last fall Miss Ollie Law of Wilton N. D., was a student at the D. B. C. and worked for her board at the Watkins' home. Suddenly she left making up her mind one day that she did not care to become a stenographer and packing her trunk she left the city with but a few hours' notice, telling no one where she went. It was feared that she had gone to Chicago and becoming stranded, committed suicide and there was a mistake in the first name—but such, however ,was not the case.

The victim of the windy city suicide was a sister of the Miss Law who spent several months in this city. Altho the girl was the daughter of a Chippewa chieftain the Indian blood could not be noticed by the average person.

No word could be received from the mother of the girls who is supposed to reside at Wilton.—Fargo Call.

GOOD NEWS

Many Crookston Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

'Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Crookston are glad to learn that prompt relief is witin their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Joseph Gundlach, cigar maker, living at 319 Broadway, N. Crookston, Minn., says: "I endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for kidney trouble. For a considerable time I suffered from pains in my back and through the loins. To this was added a weakness of the kidneys. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and resolved to try them, getting a box at Wallace's drug store. They proved to be just what my case needed and soon the backache was eradicated and the kidney secretions were regular and normal. I advise any sufferer from these troubles to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The Sea-Shell

Where the old shores were purple a glossy sea-shell lying
Upon the pale sands listened to the rune of long gray seas,
And far from its birth-billows now forevermore 'tis sighing.
And dreamlike crooning to itself those vagrant melodies.

List here—the harp-notes of the wind in morning skies of amber,
And now the boom of breakers on some sweep of sundown lea
And now the song the ripples sang in every iris chamber ,
A merry lilt o' moonlight for mermaiden revelry!

Oh, faithful is the heart of it to all dear haunts of ocean,
And evermore we hear in it the magic of their spell,
Nor time nor inland exile can mar its fond devotion
Forever sung unwearied in the singing of the shell!

HONORED BOBBY BURNS

CELEBRATION OF BIRTH OF GREAT SCOT BARD AT MALLORY WAS IMMENSE

CROWD OF 350 SPENT ENTIRE NIGHT IN MOST ENJOYABLE MANNER

From Tuesday's Daily—

The Scotch of Mallory scored the biggest success last evening that they ever did in a grand celebration in honor of the Great Scotch Poet, Robert Burns. There were 350 people present from Mallory and surrounding country, with large delegations from Crookston and Grand Forks. The society is now confronted with deciding one of two questions, shall the celebration last two days hereafter, or, shall a more commodious hall be erected before the annual next year?

There must be one of the two things done.

One of the features of the entertainment last evening was the music by Finley's orchestra of Grand Forks. Wm. Finley's imitations of the bagpipe on the violin aroused the greatest enthusiasm and he was given three cheers and a vote of thanks.

In addition to the program and banquet, there was plenty of dancing in which Scotch reels Highland flings and other Scotch dances, and some of the old timers certainly did the steps in a manner to show that there is no such thing as an age limit on the part of the "Cany Scot" who resides in the Red River Valley .

The supper was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bowen, as has been their custom for years and haggis, oat meal cakes, Scotch Scones, Finnin, Haddie and scores of other Scotch delicacies were served in addition to turkey and everything else that could be imagined. A wireless message also stated that there were both "big and wee Donal's" available to those who were initiated. The banquet tables were beautifully decorated with a profusion of carnations.

There was something doing all the time, not a dull moment intervening from the time the festivities commenced till the trains pulled out for Crookston and Grand Forks this morning. Thomas R. Johnstone and the balance of the large delegation from Crookston report the affair the most successful of the kind ever pulled off in Mallory and all are loud in their praises of the hospitality of the people of Mallory and vicinity.

The delegation from this city which returned this morning included Thomas R. Johnstone and Tommy Jr., Mesdames A. P. Kirsch and John Harper, Misses Margaret Crawford, Margaret Swanson, Ada Moeckel and Birdie Stuhl and Mr. Don McDonald. Following is the program rendered, and every number was thoroly enjoyed, all responding to encores some several times.

Program

Address of Welcome by President D. B. Ferguson, Mallory.

Response Thomas R. Johnstone, Crookston.

Scotch selections by the Finley orchestra of Grand Forks.

Strong Monosyllables.

Instructors in the art of literary composition usually condemn a string of monosyllables, but in the well known hymn "Lead, Kindly Light," written by a master of the English language, you may count thirty consecutive words of one syllable only. They offend neither the eye nor the ear.

Milton often uses a series of monosyllables. In the second book of "Paradise Lost" we have:

The fiend
O'er bog or steep, through strait, rough, dense or rare,
With head, hands, wings or feet pursues his way
And swims or sinks or wades or creeps or flies.

Such lines are not uncommon in the book:

Rocks, caves, lakes, fens, bogs, dens and shades of death.

And again:

Of neither sea nor shore nor air nor fire.

MRS. FRAZIER IN LIMELIGHT

IS CHARGED WITH MISTREATING MRS. DALY AN INSANE PERSON

SENSATION CREATED YESTERDAY BY SHERIFF DANIELS IN E. G. FORKS

From Tuesday's Daily—

The arrest by Sheriff Daniels of Mrs. Caroline Frazier and her two daughters Sarah and Lucile the former on a charge of mistreating an insane person and two girls for being incorrigibly vicious created considerable of a sensation in East Grand Forks yesterday afternoon. The insane woman whom Mr. Frazier is alleged to have ill-treated is Mrs. C. C. Daly who was taken from E. G .Forks last week, adjudged insane by the county board on Friday and is now in the asylum at Fergus Falls. The story of the case is a revolting one if true and the state claims to have good evidence to establish their contention.

For some seven or eight years in fact ever since Daly has lived in Grand Forks, Mrs. Frazier has lived with him as housekeeper. During this time Mrs. Daly has been mentally diseased with fits of melancholia and has steadily grown worse. Under these conditions the Frazier woman is supposed to have taken her place in the home. Whether any charge will be preferred against Daly was not stated yesterday.

The condition of the insane woman under these circumstances was pitiful She became more or less of a burden and according to some people was kept confined, shut away from the sunlight and the fresh air, the only things she could enjoy in her mental state, for the greater part of these years. Together with this it is claimed that she was insufficiently clothed and that nourishment was given her only when it seemed necessary. When found the woman was in a pitiable condition and the evidence introduced in the hearing before the insanity board in Crookston was deemed sufficient to hold the Frazier woman responsible on serious charges.

When arraigned in the municipal court yesterday. Mrs. Frazier pleaded not guilty and her hearing was set for tomorrow at 2 o'clock.

The charge of being incorrigibly vicious brought against the two girls Sarah and Lucile aged 12 and 14 years respectively, will be supported by plenty of evidence. That these moral degenerates should be sent to training school is admitted by all. They will not go to school nor do respectable people wish them to be in school with their children. It is true that most of their escapades have been in Grand Forks but their home is in E. G. Forks and Polk county has decided to act.

Left to their own ways there is but one end for these girls but confined in a training school they will at least be kept from contaminating other children. Their hearing was also set for tomorrow afternoon.

"Mr. Snug," said the doctor gravely, "I am afraid your wife's mind is gone."

"I am not surprised at that," replied Mr. S. "She's been giving me a piece of it every day for the last fifteen years, and it wasn't much to start on, either.

DEATH COMES TO REV. SJOBLOM

RETIRED HEAD OF AUGUSTANA CONFERENCE SUCCUMBS AT HIS DAUGHTER'S

HOME IN MINNEAPOLIS SUNDAY —MANY FRIENDS IN CROOKSTON GRIEVE

From Tuesday's Daily—

Nearly 75 years old and for almost a quarter of a century president of the Minnesota conference of Augustana Synod the Rev. P. Sjoblom, one of the oldest Swedish Lutheran clergymen in the country died early yesterday morning at the home of his daughter Mrs. Ida S. Dearborn, 2221 Portland Avenue, Minneapolis and deep regret is felt by many friends in Crookston. Heart disease was the immediate cause of death.

Dr. Sjoblom was born and educated in Sweden. He came to America in 1866, and after three years in Indiana, came to Minnesota. There were then in the state ten Lutheran ministers fifteen congregations and church property worth $10,000. When he became the head of the synod its field embraced Minnesota, the Dakotas, North Wisconsin, Oregon Utah and California. When he resigned his active leadership there were 150 ministers ,350 congregations, a college, two academies, an orphans' home, a hospital, property worth $1,500,000 and a membership of 80,000. He retired six years ago.

WARROAD HAVING A BIG BOOM

C. A. MOODY SAYS NEW EXTENSION IS MAKING THINGS HUM UP THAT WAY

C. A. Moody the prominent resident of Warroad where he has been located for years, accompanied by his son, L. B. Moody passed thru the city yesterday enroute to Warroad after a business and pleasure trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis. Mr. Moody states that since the completion of the railway connections with Crookston via Roseau that a boom has started in that section of the state which is greater than anything ever seen there. A vast amount of property is changing hands, not as the result of speculation but that the purchasers are persons who want city property for their personal use, and that farm lands are in great demand by actual home seekers who are buying small tracts upon which they will locate in the spring.

He believes the future was never so bright for that part of the state, and looks for a great influx of settlers to all parts of Northern Minnesota the coming spring.

INVESTIGATING THE GAS FLOW

Professors from the University of North Dakota and the N. D. School of Agriculture are today investigating the gas flow near Reynolds, N. D. just across the river from Eldred, Polk Co., and as far as learned the reports are most encouraging in every way for a permanent supply. Within a few days a full report on the subject will be made.

EMERSON HAS TERRIFIC FIRE

BLOCK IN MANITOBA TOWN IS WIPED OUT WITH A LOSS OF $100,000

BIGGEST BLOCK IN MANITOBA IS GUTED — BUILT IN BOOM DAYS

From Monday's Daily—

The worst fire that has ever occurred in Emerson occurred last Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock and completely destroyed $100,000 worth of property. The fire started in the extreme north end of the Alexandria block in a store formerly occupied by Bell & Co., and at present rented to Pereles Bros., who have been conducting a bankrupt stock sale.

Amongst the heaviest losers are Pereles Bros., stock in hand, covered by $8,000 insurance; Good Bros, restaurant loss $2,000 insurance $2,100, postoffice and C. P. commercial office, loss $1,000, insurance $500; Emerson Journal office, loss $1800, insurance $500; Caselman's drug store, loss $8-000, insurance $4,000; Manitoba government telephone office, loss $1,000 insurance unknown; W. J. Scarff, loss $2,000, small insurance.

Occupied as Flats

The two stories of the block were used as residential flats and offices and among the losers are: W. J. McClelland, $800, insurance $400; W. B. Fairburn, partial loss $500, no insurance; F. Stock loss $600, no insurance Mrs. Good, loss $600 small insurance; W J. Cherry, loss $100 no insurance; Mrs. Sitlington loss $400, no insurance D. Forrester loss $500 small insurance Principal Crearer loss $200 no insurance; W. J. Nichol, loss $200 no insurance.

Besides the numerous small losses an Emerson syndicate owners of the block, lose two-thirds of an $80,000 building covered by $20,000 insurance.

Incendiarism Suspected

There is suspicion of incendiarism and it is likely an investigation will be held. The occupants of the store at the time of the fire state that the stove was knocked over, causing the blaze. In 20 minutes after the fire commenced, the entire end of the large block was in flames and with the assistance of a strong northwest wind it looked as if the whole business portion of the town was doomed.

CLEMENTSON IN PITIABLE SHAPE

MINNESOTA MAN WILL LOSE HANDS AND FEET AS RESULT OF SPREE

Anton Clementson, a resident of Eglon township in Clay county who was so badly frozen a while ago will go thru the rest of his life minus his hands and feet as the result of an operation performed at a local hospital recently. It will be remembered that Clementson was badly frozen a few weeks ago while on his way home from Winnipeg Junction, which place he left in an intoxicated condition.

A COMMON ERROR

The Same Mistake is Made by Many Crookston People

It's a common error.

To plaster the aching back,

To rub with liniments rheumatic joints.

When the trouble comes from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills,

And are endorsed by Crookston citizens .

A. A. Olds, painter, 339 Ash St., Crookston, Minn., says: "The statement I gave in 1898 recommending Doan's Kidney Pills was true in every particular and I gladly confirm it now. I suffered continually from backache and other symptoms of disordered kidneys but Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wallace's Pharmacy relieved me when everything else failed. they removed the difficulty and in spite of the fact that my occupation causes more or less strain on my back, I have had very little kidney trouble since."

N. C. HANSON TALKS ON CORN

Historical Society

LAST YEAR HE HAD CORN FULLY RIPENED [illegible] WEEKS BEFORE FROST CAME

SAYS CORN SHOULD BE PLANTED FIRST TIME WHIPPOORWILL SINGS

From T[illegible]ay's Daily—

N. C. Hanson, the well known farmer residing west of the city and on the south side of the river is very much interested in the campaign the Journal started at the suggestion of Capt. M. R. Brown to induce the farmers of this section to exchange ideas as to the methods they pursued to raise corn successfully.

Farmers Interested

Henry O'Neill residing east of the city was the first farmer to respond with a very able article on the methods he has followed in raising prize corn and experiencing no trouble in ripening it.

This article has been widely commented on and many farmers have called at the Journal office to get copies of the paper to preserve for future reference.

Preserve the Articles

In this connection a very good suggestion was made by Capt. Brown to the effect that farmers should get a scrap book and paste in it every article regarding corn raising and the future articles that will be published on bean and pea raising, potatoes and vegetables as well as grain. Such a book would be invaluable for future reference as the communications or interviews will be from practical farmers who will discuss their experiences.

Six Weeks Before Frost

Mr. Hanson brought to the Journal office an ear of corn which would make the Iowa or Illinois farmer sit up and take notice. The kernels are plump, the ear long and filled to the very tip. This corn ripened six weeks before a frost was experienced.

Mr. Hanson does not know what variety it is. He found an ear of it in the garret of his farm house 8 years after he had purchased the place, and the corn may have been older than that.

He planted it side by side of some extra early sweet corn which he secured from the south but this corn was ready to eat two weeks ahead of the sweet corn. He will sow all he has next spring but will then have some for sale as seed.

Rich Land Necessary

Mr. Hanson says this corn was raised on very heavy, rich land. He believes that richness of soil is more necessary than sandy soil, as there is no sand where this corn was raised. However he believes that soil that is not so heavy can be vastly improved for corn by heavy manuring, in fact he says any land will be improved for corn by manuring.

Time for Seeding

He states that no date can be set for corn planting. He has a peculiar rule which he follows. He never sows corn till he hears the first whippoorwill sing. Then he says he is never afraid to plant it and has no fear of damage by frost.

Hailstones That Kill Cattle.

"Hailstones as big as baseballs—hailstones that kill cattle!"

"Rubbish!"

"It is the truth," declared the weather man. "These hailstones fall in the neighborhood of the Sierra Tapalgiren, near Buenos Aires. Darwin himself is my witness. Darwin testifies for me in his splendid book, 'The Voyage of the Beagle.'

"The great scientist saw what I saw, hailstones the size of oranges, crashing and smashing with a noise like a railroad collision. After the storm he came upon thirteen dead deer and fifteen dead ostriches. His companions saw several ostriches blinded in one eye and another ostrich running furiously in crazy circles, blinded in both eyes, by those terrible stones.

"What I saw was a herd of forty cattle, all lying dead. About them the grass was gray and white with slain birds—ducks, hawks, partridges."

Like the Bee.

"I, sir," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "am like the busy bee. I have industriously stored the good things of life."

"Yes. And anybody who tried to stop you was very likely to get stung."—Washington Star.

HOME FROM OLD MEXICO

MR. AND MRS. W. R. LOWE AND ARTHUR FOURNET RETURN FROM TAMPICO

ALL HIGHLY PLEASED WITH THE SUNNY SOUTH—SAW MANY CROOKSTON PEOPLE

From Tuesday's Daily—

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lowe and Arthur Fournet arrived home yesterday afternoon on the Northern Pacific from an extended trip to Tempico, Mexico, where Walsh and Low are interested in selling lands, and all report a most delightful trip .

Many Views

Mr. Fournet had his camera along and took nearly 200 views and is very enthusiastic regarding the tropical scenery, the orange groves being loaded, sweet corn in season all the year round and ideal weather. Eudor Brosseau who accompanied the Walsh party may remain there permanently.

Mr. Low Enthusiastic

Mr. Low is very enthusiastic over the proposition. He stated that the party of 12 which Mr. Walsh took down from Minnesota were all eager to buy and thought the country great. Mr. Welch decided to remain till his ticket expired and Mr. Low will return with another party of buyers in a few weeks.

Mrs. Fournet Improved

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Fournet and Miss Mamie are still at Tampico and will remain the balance of the winter. Mrs. Fournet whose health had been very poor is getting strong and robust She walks several miles every day and her rheumatism is not bothering her at all.

Sam Wallace Takes Tumble

Sam Wallace is having the time of his life. He and Mr. Low took a horseback ride a few days ago and Mr. Wallace's horse stepped into a hole. Mr. Wallace alighted — none too gracefully—but no bones were broken. He insisted that he had simply dismounted—and no one who saw him denied that he was certainly dismounted.

Capt. Keller Prospering

A portion of the Crookston delegation took a side trip to Aquescationtes 450 miles from Tampico, where Capt. H. L. Keller formerly of this city is now located, holding a responsible official position with the Mexican Central Railroad. He has a large office building to himself and is prospering in every way. Mrs. Keller and the children are also in good health and happy.

Saw Bull Fights

The Fournets and several others went to the City of Mexico a short time ago and witnessed a real bull fight in which 9 bulls and 17 horses were killed. Other smaller fights were witnessed in the vicinity of Tampico and Mr. Low reports that the Mexicans simply go wild over the sport.

A. A. OLDS ONLY SISTER IS DEAD

FAMILY ONE OF THE LEADING ONES IN HUDSON WISCONSIN

Alfred A. Olds of this city just received a Hudson, Wis., paper giving an account of the death of his sister, Mrs. Charlotte C. Jones of that place death having occurred on Tuesday, one week ago. Mr. Olds was notified by wire but has been ill for some time and could not attend the funeral. The paper states that deceased with her family was one of the pioneer residents of that city and county, and were foremost among those who were interested in the progress and development made.

Deceased was born in Middletown Pa., July 28, 1829 and was united in marriage to George R. Jones at Delphi, Ind., on August 18, 1845.

Preston R. Jones is the only surviving son and resides at Hudson.

The only brothers are Alfred A. Olds of this city and his twin brother, Albert K. Olds of Hudson.

An Appeal For Mercy.

"Judge," said the prisoner, "I suppose you're going to soak me."

"You are a habitual offender," replied the judge; "were caught with the stolen goods, and the court will have to do its painful duty."

"I don't want to seem unreasonable," replied the prisoner. "I don't mind a long sentence. I'm used to it. But say, judge, cut out the lecture that usually goes with it, won't you."—Philadelphia Ledger.

SPECIAL COURT TERM IS ON

A. PATTEWAY, COLORED, BEING TRIED ON CHARGE OF STEALING CLOTHING

FROM THE GUARANTEE CLOTHING STORE—THEFT COMMITTED IN APRIL

AND THE GOODS LOCATED IN JULY—THREE OTHER CRIMINAL CASES.

From Tuesday's Daily—

A special term of the district court convened this morning for the trial of several criminal cases, chief of which is that of A. Patteway who has already been convicted of robbing the Merchants National Bank of cash while acting as porter but that case having been appealed to the Supreme Court the state decided to try him on another charge, also, that of robbing the Guarantee Clothing Store of a considerable amount of goods which were found in his possession. F. L. McGhee of St. Paul and W. E. Rowe are defending and E. O. Hagen county attorney prosecuting.

The Guarantee store was robbed of the clothing and other goods last April and the goods were found in Patteway's possession in July.

The jury was secured at noon today and this afternoon the county attorney outlined the case of the state and the witnesses were then called, including M. Rosenberg, Capt. Vonderbeck, Chief Eck and others in connection with the finding and identification of the clothing.

There are three other criminal cases for minor offenses to be tried, one against Sam Anderson and Landry charged with a holdup and one against Westry for a minor offense.

It will be remembered that Patteway was found guilty of the larceny of funds from the Merchants' National Bank after one of the longest and in some respects most sensational trials that has ever been held in Polk county. Since his attorneys have taken an appeal to the supreme court of the state. While this appeal is pending the state authorities believed it might be advisable to take up the second indictment, consequently things will be doing in the district court tomorrow morning.

The sheriff's office has summoned a special venire of eighteen residents and they reported at the court house this morning. Following are the names of the venire: P. S. Hughes, August Schuler, Joseph White, William Lytle, John Wyand, John Monroe, H. J. Castle, Carl Woodstrom, A. J. Rosberg, August Koeppe, William Heidrich, J. J. Andrist, all of Crookston; Christ. Houston, Walter Latta, J. J. Herberg, Napoleon Montague, of town of Fairfax; John Amundson, of town of Andover.

H. D. COOPER BURIED MOTHER

WAS CALLED FROM TEXAS FOR SAD MISSION AT GRAND FORKS

H. D. Cooper returned last evening from Grand Forks where at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the family residence the funeral of his mother, Mrs. G. H. Cooper was held, she having passed peacefully away last Friday after a prolonged illness.

H. D. Cooper who left here some time ago to start another business at McKinney, Texas, was called to the bedside of his mother by a telegram, reaching Grand Forks a week ago Sundays and was with her for five days before the end came.

The Cooper family is one of the pioneer families of this section. They arrived in Crookston in the spring of 1879 before the railroad was completed to Grand Forks and drove to that place from here by stage. They settled on a farm a few miles west of the Forks and remained there till five years ago when they moved to Grand Forks, residing at 504 Belmont Ave., ever since, the funeral occuring from there by request of the departed, tho she had for years been a faithful member of the Presbyterian church. Deceased leaves a husband, one son, H. D Cooper and two daughters, Miss Lotta A. Cooper, teacher in the Belmone school at Grand Forks and Mrs. M. L. Dryburg of Medford, N. D.

H. D. Cooper will leave here for McKinney, Texas, in a couple of days.

Like money, people borrow courtesy and seldom pay it back.

PROPOGATE MORE GAME

POLK CO. GAME AND FISH PROTECTIVE ASSN. TO HOLD ANNUAL MEET

WILL BUY QUAIL FOR POLK CO. AND GET MORE PHEASANT EGGS

W. M. FERGUSON MAKES FINE OFFER FOR PHEASANT PROPOGATION

From Tuesday's Daily—

The annual meeting of the Polk County Game and Fish Protective Association was held in the City Council chambers last evening and was largely attended. The association now has 130 members and is the strongest organization of the kind in the Red River Valley, all backing the work of the game wardens to a man, and in addition lending personal assistance to aid in the enforcement of the game laws.

Last year the association purchased 500 Ring Necked Pheasant eggs and the result was fairly satisfactory, tho some errors in handling the young birds the coming year will be avoided as it has practically been decided to have all the eggs placed with one experienced man who will hatch the eggs under hens to be provided and raise the birds till they are old enough for distribution and then scattered about the county. W. M. Ferguson, the representative of the Peters Cartridge company has offered the use of his farm at Maple Lake and will also furnish the man free of charge.

It was decided to purchase $100 worth of pheasant eggs this spring as soon as they are available. In addition to this the hens hatched last year will all be laying and as they lay from 20 to 40 eggs each there will very soon be quite a sprinkling of pheasants in Polk county.

It was also decided to order $100 worth of live quail from the State Game and Fish Commission to be placed in proper locations about the county. There are a number of ideal locations for their propogation, the Fertile locality and a portion of Louisville township being exceptionally good places for their breeding

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—Martin O'Brien.

Vice President—Judge L. E. Gossman.

Secretary—A. C. Schmidt.

Treasurer—A. G. Anderson.

The same executive committee of five at present serving will continue, consisting of Wylie Phillips, S. H. Withey and the officers.

The general sentiment expressed was to the effect that with the excellent protection being afforded game and fish sports afield would be enjoyed more than ever in the future.

In addition to other work accomplished the past year the Polk County Association had 2,000 pamphlets printed and distributed among the school children of Polk County setting forth the songbirds of this section and urging their protection by the children. This pamphlet also contained other information which would tend to inculcate the protection of all game and the observance of all game laws by the rising generation.

The Crow Indian Fair

On the banks of the Little Big Horn river, out in Montana, the harvest season marks the recurrence each year of the Annual Crow Indian Fair. This Fair is unique in being the only one Indian in management and participation. Worthy of note, too, is the fact that for a pure, wholesome table beverage nothing can equal golden grain belt beer. Keen appetite comes with its use and it removes indigestion. Have it on the home table at all times. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson, Crookston.

A Case of Auto Suggestion.

A baker on the upper west side who purchased an auto delivery wagon was surprised to receive the following message from one of his most particular customers: "Please send no more orders to me by your new wagon. The smell of gasoline in the rolls made almost the entire family sick."

The baker sent word to the customer that, as the auto was driven by electricity and no gasoline was used at all, she must have been mistaken and added, "Perhaps the cook had just cleaned her gloves that day."—New York Press.

DISCREDITS GROUND HOG

SAYS MAN IN MOON GIVES EVERY ASSURANCE OF VERY EARLY SPRING

SOME BAD WEATHER MAY BE EXPERIENCED IN APRIL—OTHER COMMENTS

From Tuesday's Daily—

E. A. Mills master carpenter of the Northern Division of the Great Northern dealt a body blow to the historic infallibility of the ground hog as a weather prognosticator when he made the statement that the moon gives every assurance that the coming spring is to be a very early one, exceptionally early.

Saw His Shadow

The groundhog certainly saw his shadow today, except perhaps in N. Dakota where all pigs as well as hogs are blind more or less. It looked for a while early this morning as tho the famous weather indicator would be unable to see his shadow but clouds soon disappeared and a clear sky prevailed most of the day.

Mr. Mills Certain

Mr Mills is certain of his ground and has the advantage in the argument in that the moon is older than any ground hog of which we have any record, and if His Moonship predicts an early spring we are not going to argue the question and are perfectly willing to discredit Mr. Groundhog.

Court's Order

By virtue of said decision an alternative writ of mandamus is hereby asked for compelling the weather clerk to produce the goods or appear and show cause for failure so to do.

Sustained By Mayor McPhee

P. S.—Mayor McPhee who has hit the weather thus far this winter right on the head made the following statement: "With all due respect to the ground hog, we are going to have an early spring. The groundhog may do farther south but he makes some awful blunders. Mr. Mills is hereby officially sustained in his prognostications and the whole official machinery of the city will be started to block any movement to the contrary.

OLE KNUTSON HAS HIS SAY

IS SARCASTIC IN REFERENCE TO PROPOSED GAME LAWS

Mr. Editor:

I see that our legislature proposes to make it unlawful to shoot prairie chickens for a long time to come. I believe that such a measure would be for the welfare of the farmers of this part of the state. The prairie chickens are raised on the farms and by right they should belong to the farmers, but the city chaps start out on the first day of September in automobiles and other rigs that scare the farmers' teams, and keep on shooting the chickens right under the farmers' noses from that time until the season closes; so that if the poor farmer wants to get any chickens he has to hunt them before the city hunters start in or after dark. I think the law should be so that nobody should hunt chickens except those who live in the country on farms and that the farmers should have the right to hunt the chickens at any time he pleases. We also suggest that the farmer have the right to shoot all dogs running on his land, and be given the right to take possession of all automobiles scaring his horses or the rest of his folks. Last summer the writer saw a party of hunters from Crookston in a big yellow geared automobile run down a flock of wild geese and I think automobiles should not be alowed to hunt geese. I hope our Honorable John Saugstad and John Holten in the legislature and farmer Stephens in the Senate do all they can to protect the farmers with the chickens by law.

—Ole Knutson.

STEENERSON ASKED TO BIG BANQUET

Will Attend Dinner of the American Scandinavian Society In New York.

Washington, Jan. 29—Representative Steenerson has accepted an invitation to attend the banquet of the American Scandinavian society at New York, Feb. 15. The object for which this society was formed was the exchange of members of the faculty of universities and colleges in Scandinavian countries and the United States and for the promotion of intercourse between the people of the two countries.

Among others who will attend the banquet are Ministers Gude of Norway, Lagerkranz of Sweden and Brune of Denmark. Senator Nelson and Representatives Volstead of Minnesota and Haugen of Iowa were also invited but will not be able to attend owing to the pressure of public business.

OPEN WAR THE GOVERNOR NOW

St. Paul, Jan. 30—The St. Paul Despatch says:

The republican majority in the lower house of the Minnesota legislature has been lined up against Gov. Johnson and his official family.

This attitude was shown today by the passage of the Nolan bill, making the public examiner elective by the people, instead of oppointive by the governor.

The same spirit was again displayed in a resolution calling for the immediate drafting of an employers' liability act, instead of a delay of two years, pending a report by a special commission as advised by the governor.

The determination of the republican steering committee of the house to make a fight on the measures advocated by Gov. Johnson and to antagonize his administration on every opportunity, was made evident today in three instances.

The house refused to refer the Nolan bill, making the public examiner elective, to the committee on banks and banking as was suggested.

The house then amended the bill to make the examiner's term four years, and passed it by almost a party vote, 78 to 27

A resolution by D. A. Stuart, calling for the immediate framing of an employers' liability bill, instead of the creation of a commission to do that work and report two years hence, was adopted.

A lively discussion on the merits of the bill was provoked when C. L. Sawyer of Minneapolis moved to refer the bill to the committee on banks and banking, which would prevent it from coming up for passage today as scheduled.

The motion was lost by a vote of 74 to 34 several of the republicans voting with the democratic minority.

Sangstad Incident Aired

The bill is a strict party measure but several republicans were opposed to it on the ground that office required a technically trained person, who can better be selected by appointment.

Mr. White said that only in the past few days an instance ocourred which showed how closely the public examiner's office was allied with the administration. He referred to the inability of the special committee to get the examiner's report on the board of control. It had been sent to the governor's office he said, and the governor, being out of town, the committee could not get the report.

John Saugstad, chairman of the committee said that he had not demanded the report of the governor in writing until yesterday.

"But you made several previous oral demands did you not?" asked Representative Lennon.

"I couldn't. The governor was out of town," said Mr. Saugstad.

"Well, anyway, you didn't get it, did you?"

"Not yet," was the reply.

Sawyer's motion being lost, the bill was later passed, as above stated.

These Broke Party Lines

The following republicans voted with the democrats to have the bill referred:

Bendixen, Carlson, Conley, Davies, Duea, Haugland, J. N. Johnson, Lee, Mattson, McGrath, McNeil, Opsahl, Rosenwald ,Stuart and Ware. Three prohibitionists, Lobeck, Noble and Sulerud, also voted with the democrats.

Four democrats, Baldwin, Dorsey, Fitzpatrick and Virtue, voted with the republicans.

On the final passage of the bill the republicans who opposed the bill were Adams, Austin, Davies, Duea, Haugland, Holmberg, J. N. Johnson, Lee, Mattson, McGrath, McNeill, Rosenwald, Sawyer, Ware, C. J. Wright.

The following democrats voted for the bill: Baldwin, Dorsey, Fitzpatrick Herzberg, Phillips, Sahler, Sikorski, Virtue.

Lobeck and Noble, prohibitionists, voted against the bill.

Otherwise there was a strict party vote on the bill.

More Politics

Partisan politics were again evident in the house in the introduction by D. A. Stuart of a resolution calling for the immediate drafting of an employers' liability act.

The resolution had the sanction of the official house republican steering committee as was evident for it was passed without any opposition. Later a member admitted connection with the resolution and stated for the consideration of the house at the proper time.

There will be no commission, "as advocated by the labor commissioner and those he claims to have conferred with," to use the language of this particular member of the steering committee. "We are on to the whole game and we intend to put out a bill at once, without the help of any commission," said he.

The resolution in detail cited the injustice suffered by employes generally in the bringing and settlement of personal injury suits. In conclusion it urged that immediate action was necessary and to this end asked for the apointment of a committee to five to draw up the proper kind of a bill.

The resolution declared that it was "apparent that the delay of such legislation as will grant proper relief in the premises is being attempted by those interested in maintaining the present condition of things ,and that by various methods, statements and promises ,such employes are being misled to believe that the present is not an appropriate time for the employe to ask for that to which he has been a long time since entitled; and by reason of all which the employe is about to be deprived of the righteous and beneficial protection of such legislation for an indefinite time."

What the Majority Means

The Stuart resolution and the determination of the republican majority to "beat the governor to it" as a member phrased it, was considered yesterday afternoon at a lengthy session of the house steering committee.

The governor's special message proposing appointment of a commission to look up data for the purpose of giving to the legislature two years hence, an employers' liability bill, safeguarding the interests of all concerned, was before the committee and it was decided to oppose it to a man. According to the interpretation given it by the most ardent partisans of the committee, the message was nothing more than a shrewd political game, on the part of the governor and his cabinet with sanction of the employing interests; to side track any labor legislation for the present.

Madison Independent Press: Instead of having the editor of the New York World indicted for libel it would be better to first show that the statements made by the World were without foundation in fact. The country at large would then be less apt to regard a prosecution for libel as a matter of revenge. Still there is a point beyond which even a great daily paper may not go with impunity.

WARDENS MAKE A BIG HAUL

FRED SPRINGHORN WAS CAUGHT USING GIL NETS IN LAKE OF WOODS

HE WAS FINED AND 5,000 POUNDS OF FISH WERE CONFISCATED

From Thursday's Daily— ...

Game Warden Wm. Munch returned last evening from Warroad where in company with Deputy Warden E. C. Cooke of Roseau Fred Springhorn was arrested for gill net fishing and 5,000 pounds of white fish and pike was seized and confiscated, being sold to the Warroad Mercantile Co., for $210, the biggest price brought for fish at that place this winter.

Springhorn was taken before Judge Medicraft at Roseau and fined $30 and costs.

The seizure was made after a drive of 50 miles to American Pointin what is known as the Northwest Angle or jot of land which extends north of the balance of the boundary of Minnesota, and the drive was made across the Lake of the Woods. Two teams were secured to haul the siezed fish back and the trip with the fish was a most strenuous one. The party started Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock and after travelling all afternoon and all night, arrived at Warroad yesterday morning at 6 o'clock having stopped only to feed the horses, the entire trip having been made over the Lake of the Woods. Breakfast was taken yesterday morning with the Indians on Buffalo Point.

There are practically no white men in that section of the state and it is extremely difficult to locate illegal fishermen, and the landing of Springhorn with therefore have a most salutary effect on the balance of the poachers.

It is understood that Springhorn had already caught and sold about 7,000 pounds of fish it is estimated. 200 pounds of other fish which Springhorn had sold were also located and may be seized and may be confiscated later on. The last bunch was located at Beaudette.

Springhorn was arrested at Warroad from where he was taken to Beaudette and is very lucky to have got off with as small a fine as was imposed, but it is understood that this was the result of representations on his part that he was a poor man and had no money when as a matter of fact it is now understood that he is in good circumstances.

OLD LANDMARK IS DESTROYED

FIREMAN WM. PATTERSON'S RESIDENCE IN SOUTH CROOKSTON IS DESTROYED

OVERHEATED STOVE SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN CAUSE OF THE BLAZE

From Friday's Daily—

Last evening about 10 o'clock fire broke out in the residence of Fireman William Patterson in South Crookston and the flames, fanned by a high wind soon reduced the place to ashes and the firemen did well to protect surrounding property.

Mrs. Patterson is away visiting at Rugby, N. D. and Mr. Patterson came over to attend the moving picture shows. He was about to start for home when he heard the fire bell and rushing towards the city hall he saw the fire team start for South Crookston. He looked in that direction when he reached Main Street and saw there was something doing. He hurried across the bridge never thinking that it was his own home, but when he reached the scene nothing but a pile of ashes was left, the only thing having been saved was one sole rocking chair.

The supposed origin of the fire was an overheated stove, but the cause will never be definitely known. There was some insurance on both the house and furniture but not half enough to cover the loss.

The place is one of the old land marks in South Crookston, having been the old E. D. Childs office, situated just south of the residence of E. D. Childs when he lived there .

There was general fear when the flames were seen that the fire was in the sawmill or lumber yard, an had this been true no power on earth, with such a wind ,could have saved the complete destruction of all property in the path of the wind.

BACK FROM STATE MEETING

WM. BECKER REPORTS GRAND MEETING OF THE SONS OF HERMAN

HELD AT MANKATO — OFFICERS ELECTED—MEET NEXT YEAR IN MINNEAPOLIS

From Friday's Daily—

Wm. Becker has returned from the annual state convention of the Sons of Herman which closed yesterday in Mankato. He represented the Crookston branch of the order and reports one of the grandest meetings the order ever held in the state. There was a large attendance and the order has made advances all along the line the past year including a substantial increase in membership.

The state convention yesterday elected the following officers:

Grand president, Gustave Borchert, Minneapolis.

Vice president, L. F. Schultz, St. Paul.

Secretary, Charles Harpke, St. Paul

Treasurer, FrankNoethen, Minneapolis.

Guide, Julius Boettcher, Duluth.

Inner guard, William Daugs, Henderson.

Outer guard, Chris Rinkel, St. Peter.

Directors, William Budy, St. Paul; Arnold Nillius, Minneapolis; Matt Lellman, Minneapolis; O. P. Anacker St. Paul.

Trustees, Chris. Figge, St. Paul; Ernest Frey, St. Paul; Herman Vogt, Minneapolis.

Delegates to the national convention Fritz Ziegler, Stillwater; Frank Noethen, Minneapolis; Carl Harpke, John Kunz and Lattin Krahmer, St. Paul.

Duluth made a strong effort to land next year's convention, but Minneapolis secured it .

Minor changes were made in the sick benefit clause of the constitution and the medical examination was made more rigid, but no amendments affecting the insurance department were adopted. It was decided to continue the aggressive policy of organization of the past year and to keep a deputy in the field.

PAUL DRAX PASSES AWAY

DIED AT ST .VINCENT HOSPITAL SHORTLY AFTER NOON TODAY

MADE A BRAVE FIGHT BUT INJURIES BAFFLED BEST MEDICAL AID

From Thursday's Daily—

Paul Drax the master brewer at the Kiewel Brewing Co., of this city who was crushed between two freight cars the evening of Jan. 19, while crossing the tracks enroute home near the Crookston Milling Co's. plant died shortly after noon today at St. Vincent hospital after a wonderful show of vitality. It was found a few days ago that the amputation of one limb at the knee was necessary and after this was performed he rallied nicely but gradually grew weaker and expired in a sinking spell today. He was given the very best medical attention possible and the most careful nursing but the injury was more than any constitution could stand.

The deepest sorrow is felt over his death. He was a man popular with all who knew him, honest and upright in his dealings, charitable and kind to his family.

Deceased leaves a wife but no children.

The remains will probably be shipped back to the old home at LaCrosse for interment, and the remains will be sent on the Northern Pacific tomorrow afternoon and Mrs. Drax will be accompanied by a delegate from the Sons of Herman Lodge of which deceased was a member.

Deceased leaves his wife well provided for. In addition to property in LaCrosse amounting to a considerable sum, he carried insurance in the Sons of Herman and in the Manhattan.

The body is now at Chesterman's Undertaking Parlors but will be removed to the residence near the brewery Friday morning where services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Princeton Union: Some villain of deep dye entered a St. Paul schoolhouse last week and appropriated an Old Glory which the pupils had purchased with their savings. The children are naturally much wrought up over the theft of their pet flag and are virtually in mourning over the loss. A man or woman who stoops so low as to steal a flag purchased by a number of school children with their pennies should be tarred, feathered, dipped into a vat of coal oil and then touched off with a match.

BEMIDJI HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Overutrned Lamp In Pickles Home Results In Most Disastrous Manner.

Bemidji, Jan. 29— For the second time yesterday an alarm of fire was sent in about 6 o'clock last evening and the fire department was called to 623 First street south, where the flames were rapidly destroying the residence of John Pickles.

Thru some mistake the fire department was called to the corner of the Miles Block and ran out 100 yards of hose before the error was discovered.

The fire at Pickles home was started in the parlor from the overturning of a lamp. Most of the house was destroyed and all the furniture lost before the fire could be extinguished.

The furniture was almost a total loss but is partially covered by insurance.

Moral: Insure with Magnus Lundberg.

BURNED TO DEATH AT BIG FALLS

From Thursday's Daily— ...

One of the most destructive fires in the history of Big Falls occurred yesterday morning and as a result two people are dead and four are in a serious condition.

Shortly after 12 o'clock fire broke out in the rear of the second story of Audette & Gagnon's building which was occupied by Jack Tremain and P. Lawrence as a saloon, restaurant and lodging house, the fire being caused so it is supposed by the explosion of a lamp in one of the bedrooms.

The walls of the rooms upstairs in Audette & Gagnon's building were composed of heavy canvas and paper tacked to the studding and was very inflammable. The fire gained rapid headway and soon consumed the entire building and its contents nothing being saved. The flames spread to Ed Larson's saloon on the south side and the building was destroyed altho the contents were saved.

J. J. Curley and Joseph LeBlanc two homesteaders living near there and who were sleeping on the third floor were burned to death being unable to escape from the doomed building on acount of the rapid headway made by the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lawrence were sleeping on the second floor when the fire commenced and succeeded in escaping thru the flames but only after being severely burned. Mrs. Lawrence had her left side literally cooked and left shreds of flesh in her footprints as she hurried across the street to safety. Mr. Lawrence sustained burns on the hands, face and back of the head. Two unknown men, who were sleeping at the hotel, were also badly burned. They attempted to get down stairs but the flames were too hot and they were forced to jump from the second story window.

The injured were given medical attention yesterday by Dr. Ratcliffe and sent to St. Anthony's hospital at Bemidji on yesterday morning's train.

The property losses of the fire are estimated as follows: Audette & Gagnon $3,000; Lawrence & Treman on stock and fixtures $2,000; Larson's building $1,500.

The volunteer fire department did excellent work and is deserving of much praise for saving the adjoining property from the flames.

J. J. Curley who was cremated with Joe LeBlanc was a homesteader living eighteen miles down the Big Forks river from Big Falls and was on his way to Minneapolis. He was about forty years old and unmarried. LeBlanc was living on a claim thirty miles from Big Falls on Caldwell Brook.

Fred Gagnon, one of the proprietors of the burned building was saved from a horrible death by the sagacity of his shepherd dog, which jumped upon his bed and awoke him when the house was full of smoke. Gagnon and his dog were unable to get out by the stairway and were forced to jump from a second story window, neither being injured by the fall.

Mrs. Paul Lawrence of Big Falls, who was so badly burned was brought to St. Anthony's hospital in Bemidji and died at 11 o'clock yesterday morning from the effects of her burns.

Mr. Lawrence is also suffering from severe burns about the hands and head. Erick Skogen and George Roy the two men unknown to our Big Falls informer, are also in a very serious condition as a result of the fire, Roy having dislocated his hip when he jumped from the window of the burning hotel.

STARVING HORSES EAT ONE ANOTHER

New Orleans, Jan. 29—A remarkable case of horses driven mad from hunger and turning teeth upon the living flesh of each other, was reported to the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals here last night.

The horses were locked up in a stable by a negro and left for days without food or water. When found dying they had gnawed off the tails and torn large pieces of flesh from the bodies of each other.

The Marconi Operator

John R. Binns, the Marconi operator aboard the ill-fated Republic awakens this morning to find himself famous. He has joined the Jim Bludso class, celebrated in the verse of John Hay as having held "her nozzle against the bank till the last galoot's ashore."

"Jack" Binns was in his wireless cabin when the Florida rammed the steamship. He proved the unseen hero of the wreck. While passengers poured up from the staterooms while officers feared lest any moment the deck sink beneath their feet, while the huge steel construction wallowed helpless on the sea, the Marconi operator cooly sent forth the wireless call, the single subtle force that could conquer waste of ocean, banks of fog, leagues of distance.

Sitting in his narrow wireless cell he repeated the "C Q D" that spelled appeal for help. He could not see nor sense the electric waves that his fingers sent pulsating thru the atmosphere in a widening circle, who diameter became a hundred, two hundred, three hundred miles. He could not know that the vibrations would enter the electrical receivers on vessels steaming many scores of miles away. He could only have sublime confidence in his instrument, faith in the science whose mysterious laws the Italian inventor had utilized.

There is something fine in this cool and quiet reliance upon impalpable electricity at the moment in which annealed steel and triple expansion engines and the force of a trained crew were proving vain.

"Jack" Binns, 'tis said, passed thru the tumult of the Genoa earthquake and kept the Wireless going then. He is but 25 years old, but for five years now has been the joyful slave of the Marconi miracle. He has proved himself a worthy servitor indeed, of Wireless, and has established his mistress Electricity in the affections of mankind.

He is English, characteristically cool. He has shown on board the Republic what breed he is—the breed that has won the seas, that keeps them even today, that when ships are foundering and women and children are to be saved, keeps its head and sticks to its post.

Binns clung to Wireless stayed there with his captain until the ship made ready to sink. His full duty having been done, he accepted a place in the lifeboat. Had his work not been done he would have died at his post!—Minneapolis Journal.

CARPENTER WON—In a fast roller race here last evening. Harry Carpenter of this city defeated Al Thorpe of Fargo. The second race of the series will be pulled off at Bemidji Friday evening and if Thorpe wins there it is probable that the third of the series will be run at Fargo next week deciding the championship of the northwest. Carpenter led the entire race.

GETS SALARY INCREASED—Judge Grindeland has issued an order increasing the salary of P. A. Peterson sheriff of Norman county from $1,000 per annum to $1440; payable in monthly installments of $120. Mr .Peterson made application at the January meeting of the county board for an increase in salary and the commissioners refused to grant an increase. Mr. Peterson then appealed to the district judge as the law provides, and Judge Grindeland issued his order increasing the salary as stated.

SHOW IS GREAT SUCCESS—The first annual show of the Grand Forks Poultry and Pet Stock association is being held in Grand Forks. It opened with a surprisingly large number of exhibits. Chickens, geese ducks, turkeys, pet canaries, and various other birds are shown and the space is filled to its capacity. Ten cages of pet canaries help to make things interesting. Some Hamburg silver spangled birds are dainty birds. F. C. Mitchell of Crookston sent them over with some white faced black Spanish fowl.

DISCOURAGED IN CANADA—Ole Melburg, custodian of the court house is in receipt of a letter from M. S. Berg, formerly of Anthony, who is now located about 500 miles west of Winnipeg. Mr. Berg states that conditions in that section have been very discouraging of late and people living there have experienced hard times during the past three years.—Norman Co. Herald.

BOGGS WAS BOGGED—Early yesterday morning the police of the city noticed that a door in the old Commercial Hotel had been smashed in and an investigation showed that a man giving the name of Ed Boggs was peacefully snoozing in one corner of a room. He was arrested and Judge Gossman of the Municipal court sent him to the Hotel de Daniels on the Hill for 20 days on a charge of vagrancy.

ELECTED OFFICERS— The Gary Telephone company has elected the following officers:

President—Nels Moe.
Vice President—A. K. Rude.
Secretary—Gregor Moe.
Treasurer—Theo. Rishof.
Directors—J. J. Rude, Theo. Johnson and J. B. Luchau.

An effort was made to increase the yearly telephone rent from $3.50 to $5.00 but was defeated by a close vote.

REAL WINTER WEATHER OUT WEST—In a letter dated Jan. 8th received from E. H. Bridger a well known former resident of Fosston now located at Portland Oregon, the writer tells of eight inches of snow being on the ground there at that time and the thermometer registering 15 degrees above zero, and adds: "Now this is something unknown here in twenty-one years, and reminds me of old times. The street care are almost all out of commission and the people here think it is something terrible."—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

HIS TURN CAME — A couple of young ladies in this city thinking to have some fun with a certain young man they expected to call on them during the evening, put up a job to do everything he did. When he arrived and after the usual courtesies the first thing he did was to blow his nose. Each of the girls promptly followed suit, with giggling accompaniment. Thinking it a strange coincidence, the young man somewhat nervously stroked his hair. Both the girls imitated. Then he straightened his collar, and the girls did the same, with boisterous laughter. By this time the wise young man was "next" to their game. Positive of his ground, he calmly stooped down and turned up the bottom of his trousers and then was his turn to giggle.

HOME FROM CHICAGO—Tom Morris returned this morning from a several days trip. He spent some time in St. Paul attending the Masonic Grand Lodge meeting and then proceeded to Chicago where he made some extensive purchases of up-to-date jewelry for his new store. He says there are some very handsome new creations in that line which he will soon have on display.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

ILL WITH LAGRIPPE—The many friends of Mrs. R. E. Smith will hear with regret that she is suffering with an attack of the grippe. To make matters worse yesterday she sustained a fall which did not help her condition at all tho she is not in a serious condition.

SUSTAINED BAD FALL — Miss Schusser and Mrs. Paul Holzknecht who have been visiting at Bemidji passed thru Crookston last Friday evening enroute home from a visit to their sister Mrs. P. W. Roark. While stepping from the train, Miss Schusser fell and sustained injuries that have kept her confined to her bed since that time.

CREAMERY FOR REINER—Messrs. Aakre, Antonson and Vraa of the town of Reiner, announce that a new creamery is to be built in the town of Reiner in the near future by the Enterprise Creamery company a co-operative farmers' concern. A large number of farmers, who own over 400 cows, are back of the new institution and the Peoples' State Bank of this city has guaranteed to furnish whatever financial assistance is needed. The town of Reiner altho one of the newest in Red Lake county, is very well settled and there is no reason why a creamery located there should not forge to the front at a rapid rate.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED—At a meeting of the directors of the Red Lake River Transportation company held Thursday at Highlanding the following officers were elected:

President—Joseph Duchamp.
Vice President—W. G. Hunt.
Secretary and Treasurer—Stephen Singer.

The head office of the company was removed from Highlanding to Kratka. It is understood that Joseph Duchamp will be elected captain of the boat by the directors at a meeting to be held later and he will have charge of the company's business this summer.

HOW COULD HE DO IT—James E. Morrisey entered the Oyster Bay Restaurant yesterday and asked Mine Host O. N. J. Hagen if he would give a meal to a fairly hungry man for 25 cents. In his usual affable manner O. N. J. replied that he would. "All right, serve me with what the members of the Fat Man's Club of New York consider a meal" replied Mr. Morrisey and he then produced the following clipping: "The Fat Men's club of New York had a feast prepared for its twenty-five members—several bushels of oysters, huge steaks, baskets of rolls, pies and other substantial articles of food.

Former Alderman Frank J. Detzler who weighs 380 pounds, arose with scorn when he saw the food, and said "Why Jack Grossman, Jack Probst and myself could get away with that little snack all by ourselves. How do you expect to feed twenty-five?"

Another fat man then arose with this proposition: "Make it a sporting event. Let each of those three put up $50. The one who eats most gets back his fifty and another one; the other money goes to the club." Everybody agreed, the gigantic trenchermen fell to and here is the score:

Frank J. Detzler, 380 pounds; 275 oysters, 8½ pounds of steak, 12 rolls, 11 cups of coffee, 3 pies.

Jack Grossman, 315 pounds; 210 oysters, 6 pounds of steak, 9 rolls 10 cups of coffee, 3 pies.

Jack Probst, 320 pounds; 190 oysters, 7½ pounds of steak, 10 rolls, 6 cups of coffee, 4 pies.

Detzler was proclaimed the winner by a big margin, and got his $50 bill and that of one of the other eaters. The remaining $50 fed the rest of the clubmen, who had to go to a restaurant, because there wasn't a scrap left after the three champions had satisfied their appetites."

The funeral services over the remains of Paul Drax will be held on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Marys church, Father Smiers officiating. From the church the remains will be taken to the home of the deceased where they will remain till evening when they will be taken to the Great Northern for shipment on the flyer to the old home at La Crosse Mrs. Drax being accompanied by an old friend of the family, Ed Krause of La Crosse, and a delegate to be selected by the local Sons of Herman.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

The departure of Mr. and Mrs. George Murch and family will be a surprise to most Crookston people. They will leave in March for their new home at Marshfield, Ore. Mr. and Mrs. Murch and also Miss Scharlotte and George have many friends in this city who regret to hear of their departure. Miss Scharlotte had not intended graduating this year, but now she thinks she would like to finish in the Crookston schools so she is doing extra outside work and will graduate this year.

GOING TO THE WOODS—Emory Sampson is spending the day in the city with W. H. Bryson of Mallory, the latter being here to send his horses to the woods for Ross & Ross whom Sampson represents. A carload of horses will be shipped this afternoon to their lumber camps which are near Blackduck.

REV. SAVAGE IN CITY—Rev. E. P. Savage of the Children's Home Society of Minnesota is spending the day in the city. He was called here in connection with the baby brought here by Mrs. Ben Olson. This child was taken to the Home about a week ago but Rev. Savage is here to look after the legal steps regarding the adoption of the child. He left this morning on the north line regarding several more children which the society was expected to adopt. The work of the society appeals to all who know of its working and is entitled to the support of every one.

"TRETTEN TOWNS SETTLINGS HISTORIE" —Olaf Huseby left for Crookston on Wednesday afternoon, expecting to return today or tomorrow accompanied by Mrs. Huseby and the family and they will take up quarters with the Strand Sisters for the present. Upon his return, Mr. Huseby will enter acticely upon the extensive work which he has undertaken, the compiling of a history of the Thirteen Towns and the pioneer settlers thereof, to be put in book form and printed in the Norwegian language. Altho the full extent of this work is not yet definitely understood it is intended that this historical publication will occupy from 700 to 800 pages of a large leaved book and will contain from 1,000 to 1,200 views and portraits. The principal villages within the territory are taking a leading interest in the enterprise, and it is confidently expected that the country generally will take part in the work. Elev O. Bakke has been largely instrumental in bringing Mr. Huseby here and will ably assist in certain parts of the undertaking. The financial committee, consisting of Martin Benson and G. K. Espeseth of Erskine, C. M. Berg and Gunnar Huseby of McIntosh and Tollef Landsverk and J. A. Hendricks of Fosston ,will meet here next Wednesday to form an organization or company to promote the work. The literary committee in connection therewith is as follows: Rev. J. O .Saeter, and Halstein Lade of Fosston, Revs. L. J. Njus and Dale of McIntosh, and O. H. Dale and Thomas Torgerson of Erskine.—Fosston Thirteen Towns.

The following is certainly an illustration of strenuous society doings in eastern Polk county taken from the McIntosh Times: "A dancing party was given at the old Daniel Jacobson place in the town of Lessor last Saturday evening at which the heavy snow of that night played an important part not only in holding the dancers there until morning; but also in making it interesting for some of them to get there. One young man with two girls to his lot broke his cutter and was obliged to return and borrow a rig from the father of the young ladies, and this delayed matters so that he was obliged to walk most of the way to the dance and break a path for the horse ,while the ladies followed in the rig. Another incident that added flavor if not pleasure to the occasion with the fight to a finish between the promoter of the party and an over boisterous youth who was conceedingly too loud with his mouth and lasted just long enough to regret it."

Hans Olson one of the pioneer lumber men of this section was killed in the camp of the Crookston Lumber Company at Fowlds yesterday by being strick by a falling tree. The remains were buried at Bemidji.

For the past fourteen years, Olson had made his headquarters in Thief River Falls and was well known here by a large number of people. In the winters he usually went to the woods and the summer time worked in the sawmill, He had a homestead on the eleven towns on which he had made final proof and is said to have money on deposit in a Thief River bank. The only relative in this country of the deceased, so far as is known is a cousin in Wisconsin. A father and mother and brothers and sister reside in Norway.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Lillie Patterson and R. H. Patterson, her husband, mortgagors, to L. D. Foskett, mortgagee, dated March 5, 1908, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, on April 14, 1908 at 3:10 o'clock P. M. in book 152 of mortgages on page 202 thereof; that the mortgagors herein have failed to pay $34.17 due October 1, 1908, said sum being due under a certain mortgage executed by the parties named as mortgagors herein and in favor of said L. D. Foskett and by him assigned, which mortgage is a prior lien upon the land hereinafter described, said sum being represented by a certain coupon note bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum after maturity and that there is now due the said L. D. Foskett thereon, under and by virtue of the terms of the mortgage first referred to, the sum of $34.65, he having paid said sum to the holder of said prior mortgage; that said mortgage provided for a reasonable attorney's fee to be paid by said mortgagors upon the foreclosure of the mortgage herein described, and the sum of $25.00 is a reasonable attorney's fee for such foreclosure; that in addition to the sum of $34.65 paid by L. D. Foskett on said coupon note and the sum of $25.00 for attorney's fees, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage the sum of $82.35; making a total due of the sum of $117.00 at this date together with the sum of $25.00 attorney's fees; that by virtue of said default the power of sale in said mortgage has become operative, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof; that the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are the northwest fractional quarter of section number 5 in township number 148 north of range number 45 west of the 5th principal meridian, situate in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota; that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on February 20, 1909, at 2 o'clock P. M., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, including amount of said coupon note and $25.00 attorney's fees, and the costs of such sale.

SCHOOL BUILDING CREDIT TO BOARD & CROOKSTON

Not Only A Handsome Structure But Health Of Students Has Been Taken Care Of By Architect B. D. Keck.

Crookston has a new school building of which every citizen takes just pride—the new Franklin school which replaces the one which was destroyed by fire in what is known as the "Woods district." Many have not yet inspected it, but all will have an opportunity at the formal opening, the date for which has not yet been definitely set but which will probably be held about the time of the convention of High school teachers in this city Feb. 18th and 19th tho no definite arrangements have been made, but on those dates High School Inspector Aiten will be here and the occasion would be opportune.

The Journal representative yesterday inspected the new building and the architect, B. D. Keck very courteously agreed to show our representative thru the splendid new building which is nearly completed but not entirely, tho several of the rooms are already occupied.

Of Classic Design

To begin with the building is of most classic design and viewed from any direction presents a splendid appearance, there being three entrances one facing the corner of the block and one each of streets making the building a decided ornament no matter from which point it is viewed.

The building is of pressed brick, cut stone and concrete so combined as to present a most beautiful and substantial appearance.

Cost $38,000

The building is one of the most modern in Minnesota, costing $38,000 including heating, ventilation and sanitary plumbing. The building contains 8 class rooms 25 x 30 feet with the exception of one which is 25 x 40 and four class rooms on the first floor and 4 on the second floor, the building accommodating 400 scholars. There is also one recitation room on each floor.

Ideal Ventilation

On both the first and second floors there is a central hall into which all the rooms and stairways open making the plan ideal for both light and natural ventilation. The artificial ventilation is splendid. Even the wardrobes are provided with fresh air and foul air flues are in every room in the building, the fresh air being forced in by a big electric fan, the air heated at the same temperature as that at which the rooms are kept. The large flues provided give perfect ventilation and the health of the students is perfectly guarded in this connection.

Fire Escapes

The fire escapes provided include iron stairways leading from both the first and second flors, and the interior arrangement makes them possible to reach without the least danger from any room, no matter where the fire is. The safety of the children from fire danger is still further guarded by the fact that all walls and partitions are of solid brick, with all woodwork eliminated where possible and in addition the under side of the stairway is plastered on metal lathing.

The Lighting Perfect

The lighting of the building is as near perfect as it could be made. All windows are on the left side of the students' seats. The top lights are of prism glass which throws the sunlight to the ceiling and the light from the lower glass can be easily regulated by curtains.

Pleasing in Appearance

There are steel ceilings thru the first and second stories and all are painted white. All the woodwork on the first and second floors is natural birch finish and in the basement everything is Norway pine.

Fine Stairways

The stairways are broad and substantial, built of oak and birch, and the floors on the first and second stories and in the gymnasium in the basement are of hard maple.

Blackboard Ventilation

In addition to all the other modern devices the blackboards in every room are provided with a patent dustless ventilator which is a patent invented by Architect Keck. It consists of dust from the boards and erasers, with flues below which draws all dust from the boards an derasers, thus getting rid of a most objectionable feature of blackboard work, the students getting none of the dust, which under the old system was inhaled by them. This is a feature which is not provided in any other school in the state.

A Fine Basement

The basement is finished thruout, having ample light, play rooms for the boys and girls on separate sides with toilets adjoining, and separate stairways for the use of each, making them completely separate and perfectly sanitary in every way, being equipped with the most modern appliances.

Fine Gymnasium

Asplendid gymnasium is also provided in the basement 32 x 56 feet with high ceiling and fine finishings. The basement ceilings are all plastered on steel laths. The fan and motor room are also located in the basement.

Mechanical Ventilation

The ventilation is on a plan different from anything found in the northwest. The fresh air is taken from the outside and blown by the electric fan thru tempering coils, thence into a concrete tunnel under the cement floor of the basement, and forced up the large brick flues to the different rooms. The fan is 6 feet in diameter and 3½ feet wide driven by a 12 horse power motor and furnishes 21,500 cubic feet of air per minute at a temperature of 70 degrees.

Fine Heating Plant

The building is heated with steam, the plant being located in a separate fire proof building at the rear and is up to date in every respect.

The Contractors

The contractors for the building are Hogland Bros., of this city, James E. O'Brien & Co., doing the sanitary plumbing, and the Crookston Plumbing and Heating Co., putting in the heating and ventilating systems while J. E. Morrisey has just completed the fire escapes. Architect Keck has given the building his personal supervision and at the formal opening every resident should be presnt. The school is a building in which all can take great pride.

TRAFFIC CONDITIONS ARE MUCH IMPROVED

GREAT NORTHERN IS AGAIN USING ITS OWN LINES ON COAST

S. J. Ellison assistant general passenger agent of the Great Northern passed thru Crookston last night on his way to St. Paul. He has been on the Pacific coast and reports traffic conditions greatly improved. Floods caused an immense amount of damage and it became necessary for the Great Northern to secure the use of other lines temporarily. Yesterday's eastbound limited was the first that had been run over the Great Northern own line since the trouble started. From now on the trains will be run over the regulation route to the coast.

Wedding Present Problem.

What people ought to do when they send out invitations to a wedding is to add after the R. S. V. P. the letters P. S. L., which stand for "Please send list." The would-be donor would then send a selection of, say, four articles from 1 shilling to £1,000 in value, and the bride would pick out what she wished.—London World.

LAND OFFICE JOB TO SEN. E.B. WOOD

WELL KNOWN LONG PRAIRIE MAN TO SUCCEED RECEIVER KOLL AT CASS LAKE

The news that E. B. Wood of Long Prairie has been named as receiver of the Cass Lake land office has been received, and it came as a surprise to a great many, as nothing had been mentioned concerning the matter.

The fact is Mr. Wood was not a candidate for the place until a very short time before the appointment was made and it was on the advice of his closest friends, that he became a candidate.

The position is considered one of the best places in the gift of Congressman Lindbergh as it pays $3,000 per year. Mr. Wood will take charge as soon as all preliminaries are arranged, but will not move his family to Cass Lake at least for some time. Mr. Wood is to be congratulated upon securing the office.—Long Prairie Argus.

Red River Valley The Favored Spot

During the past week the press dispatches and private information shows conclusively that the Red River Valley has been the most favored spot in the entire country. A great storm covered practically the entire country Trains were stalled, cattle frozen, fruit trees ruined and all manner of havoc and inconvenience wrought.

Near Marshalltown, Ia., for instance one farmer had a bunch of about 40 fat steers frozen to death in last Fridays' storm, causing a loss of over $2,000.

Did any one ever hear of such a catastrophe in the Red River Valley?

Near Charles City, Ia., the same storm blew down 18 windmills in a small area and caused all manner of damage to the buildings. No such damage was ever done by a blizzard in this section of the country.

For days past trains have been stalled in Iowa and Wisconsin, some of them being held in the grasp of snowbanks for three days. The worst that trains have been affected here this winter is a delay of two or three hours at the most, and these instances have been extremely rare.

In Florida a killing frost has caused immense damage to the fruit crop, which in places will be a total failure.

In the New England states storms and severe cold have caused intense suffering.

Has any one heard of any suffering in the Red River Valley?

The favored conditions existing in this section should result in greater local pride than ever before, and it would be a good thing if every one made it a point to give the Red River Valley some most valuable advertising all over the country by writing to their friends and relatives calling attention to conditions existing here this winter.

Big Increase In Minnesota Dairying

Minnesota creameries in 1907 made 87,044,817 pounds of butter, according to the biennial report of the state dairy and food department. There were 71,769 patrons supplying the creameries and 166,819,567 pounds of cream were delivered, for which they were paid $18,912,042.59. The milk was supplied by 546,595 cows. The list shows 527 co-operative creameries and 195 independents and their running expenses were $2,187,373.27. The 1906 report shows 61,375 patrons of creameries with 490,728 cows, and $16,170,720.13 paid out for butter fat.

Illegal Foods

The report of the state chemist, Julius Horvet, shows 7,085 samples examined in the two years ending Aug. 1, 1908, of which 2,409 were found to be illegal. A large per cent of flavoring extracts were condemned, and of 251 samples called olive oil or "sweet oil" 75 were found wholly or partly cottonseed oil, and 6 oil of sesame. Of 497 samples of spices 39 were found adulterated, 83 short in weight, and in 86 cases the net weight was not given. Many samples of candy were condemned because of aniline dyes.

Little Genuine "Blackberry"

"Blackberry Brandy" is knocked out by Mr. Hortvet. He had 367 samples of it analyzed, and in only 21 did he find the coloring matter derived even in part from the juice of the blackberry. In the absence of any proper standard, however, he has classed all samples as legal unless containing coal tar dye or preservative.

"For many years past," says Mr. Hortvet, "there has been much misapprehension regarding the character of genuine blackberry brandy. The product is colorless or nearly so, the color depending on the time of storage, resembling whisky in appearance and flavor."

Out of 804 samples of liquor the analysis showed 105 containing coal tar dye 128 containing vegetable dye, 43 containing salicylic acid and 89 benzoic acid.

The best showing was made by cocoa and chocolate and by honey, in which no illegal samples were found Only three samples of canned fruits and vegetables were condemned out of 43 but baking powder made a bad record 183 samples being declared illegal out of 297 examined.

Against The Farmers

In this issue of the Journal will be found an interview from Capt. M. R. Brown in which he raises his voice against the proposed legislation to repeal the law against the manufacture of Oleomargarine, colored, which was formerly sold as butter and which was a menace to the dairying industries of the country.

As he states there has been an increase of the dairying industry in this section, of from 50 per cent to 75 per cent since this law was passed and the probability is that his estimate is very low for this section. The increase has probably been that great or greater for the entire country. In the Red River Valley it has without doubt been a great deal higher.

What interests are behind the passage of a bill repealing the oleomargarine law as it now stands cannot be determined definitely at the present time, but one thing is certain, it is no one interested in the welfare of the farmer.

For the past few years the farmers of this section have been getting into dairying more and more every year. This has resulted from several causes Among them is the fact that butter has been increasing in price steadily, and another is that everyone has been urging the farmer to give more attention to the cow.

The passage of such a bill would seriously affect the whole country. Anyone can look back a few years ago to the time when butter was selling at from 8 cents to 10 cents per pound and there is no encouragement to farmers to contemplate such low prices for their produce. Then a herd of cows was more of an item of expense than anything else to the farmer. Now a few cows will produce almost enough to support a family upon

By the repeal of the Oleomargarine law the favored few would be benefitted and the farmers would all be injured and it stands everyone in hand to see to it that the Minnesota representatives in congress and the U. S. Senate take a firm stand against this vicious bill which is being agitated in Washington.

University Finances

The University of Minnesota needs money. It is the duty of the legislature to provide it. There will be a deficit at the end of the current year which of course the legislature will take care of. But there is a larger question involved than the mere caring for a deficit. The legislature should take steps to put the university upon a financial basis that will avert deficits. This can be done very simply by raising the direct tax to which the university is entitled from 23-100 of a mill to a half mill. The present rate yields a revenue of about $240,000. A half mill. The present $240,000. A half mill tax would yield $500,000 and turn the annual deficit into a surplus large enough to take care of increasing demands.

The revenues of the university are made up of direct appropriations, the fractional mill tax, some grants from the United States treasury and fees collected in the university. It is interesting to note that the university provides $200,000 of its own receipts From student fees it gets $159,000 mainly in the professional schools. This sum represents a tax upon education. It is not the policy of the state to make these fees burdensome They are intended mostly to regulate the matter of entrance upon the various courses. The state should provide the funds for the running expenses of the university over and above moderate fees in the professional schools. The half mill tax would not appreciably increase the taxes of any one, and would immediately put the university on a sound footing.—Minneapolis Journal.

Need of the Farmers

The greatest need of farmers in the northwest is not national aid but an increased recognition of the profitableness of thoro cultivation of the soil. Nine farmers out of ten, even if they concede the argument that thorough cultivation is better than the ordinary plowing and harrowing still in their hearts say it is all right in theory but that they have not time to go over their land six or seven times before putting in the seed. The fact is that they have no time to do any less than that, for any less than thorough pulverizing of the soil and thoro fertilizing it when it needs manuring, is absolute waste of time. The farmer who does not practice thoro cultivation, these days, is out of date; he is a slip-shod old foggy. He ought to have some sons at agricultural school who might some day come home and "make the old farm hum," but he himself is hopeless. — The Northwestern Agriculturalist.

Journal Columns Open

In this issue of the Journal will be found a communication from Henry O'Neill in which he tells of the methods he has pursued in successfully raising corn in this section. Those who saw the splendid samples of corn which he furnished for the Polk Co., exhibit to the state fair last fall know the degree of success he has attained There are others who also furnished equally fine exhibits and the suggestion made by Capt. Brown that the corn raisers of this section tell how they raised corn in order that the balance of the farmers could get the benefit of practical experience is a most excellent one, and the Journal wishes to announce that its columns will be open to all such communications as Mr. O'Neill's whether devoted to the subject of raising corn or to the cultivation of any other cereal, vegetable, the raising of hogs, cattle sheep, chickens, or in fact anything of interest to the farmers.

The Journal believes that the prosperity of this section depends upon the prosperity of the farmers and the publication of articles regarding practical experience is the very best information that can be placed before the farmers.

Anyone is invited to use the columns of the Journal along this line and communications will be thankfully received and cheerfully published free of cost.

Knocking Your Home City

Few people know how often a perplexing situation arises in the office of the local newspaper. Some one will come to the office with a grievance. Something in connection with municipal affairs is not going to their liking. They want the newspaper to take up the cudgels and give some official of the city, or all the officials a rich brown roast.

There are many times when this is very right and proper. Any independent newspaper is supposed to call attention to such matters and is glad to do so.

But there are other times when there is a grave question as to what should be done. If every kick and knock was published and commented upon, there would be very little else in the papers. There is always some one with a grievance.

Consequently a paper that would follow the policy of running a regular "kicking machine" would soon be looked upon as "knocking" the city in which it was published and its usefulness would very soon be at an end.

It is certainly very poor advertisement for the city to have column after column descriptice of the awful social conditions, the crookedness or inefficiency of public officials, and general deplorable conditions. Anyone who is fair minded will recognize the truthfulness of this statement.

The Journal is very desirous that people who believe there are conditions existing which should be corrected, or where there is any glaring mistake made by public officials, should report them. The Journal is unfettered by any connections which can impose the sentence of silence. It matters not who is to be criticised, the Journal is free to do so and will at any time when such criticism will result in any good.

On the other hand the Journal must reserve the right to exercise judgement before getting into a controversy which cannot but give the city the very worst kind of advertising. If we wish to build up instead of tear down Crookston, we want to advertise our advantages rather than parade our shortcomings before the world.

A little reflection will easily convince any fair-minded person that the attitude of the Journal in this matter is the best for the city as a whole and every individual resident as well.

Big Conventions Coming

Two big conventions are scheduled for Crookston during the next few months in addition to many smaller ones. The first big one will be the State Sunday School Convention in May and the second will be the annual tournament of the Northwestern Minnesota Firemen in July. These are big events. They mean a vast amount of work. Committees have been named but a committee can not do it all. The people of Crookston as a whole should put their shoulders to the wheel and push. Not only that but while the conventions are in progress every citizen should consider himself and herself a committee of one to see that the visitors are warmly welcomed. Make every one from outside return home with the idea that Crookston is the most hospitable city in the northwest.

Littlefield Independent: The Oregon Republican legislature came to the scratch manfully and elected Democrat Governor Chamberlain to a seat in the U. S. Senate according to the dictates of the people at the primary election in accordance with the pre-election pledges made by the members of the legislature. Tremendous efforts were made by the Republican bosses to have the members of the legislature ignore their ante-election pledges and choose a Republican but not enough could be swerved from their pledged word to accomplish this purpose. Governor Chamberlain is a good man and one who has the confidence of the people of his state.

When a man does try to be good but few people will believe it.

Le Sueur News: Northern Minnesota is entitled to the same consideration at the hands of the legislature as is Southern Minnesota—no more, no less. It is all Minnesota. Let us not forget it.

Little Falls Transcript: Establishment of an international big-game preserve in Northern Minnesota and in Western Ontario is being agitated by leading sportsmen in both the United States and Canada.

Stillwater Gazette: Here's a few words from A. J. Russell in the Minneapolis Journal, that are absolutely true: "If you cuss the town you live in or the firm you work for, it's proof that your salary is too high already."

CASS LAKE FIRE CAUSED $12,000 LOSS LAST NIGHT

THREE BULIDINGS IN CENTER OF BUSINESS SECTION OF TOWN, TOTALLY DESTROYED—DARK INSINUATIONS THAT FIRE WAS OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

From Tuesday's Daily—

Cass Lake was last night visited by a fire, which, but for heroic work of the fire department, would have wiped out the entire business section of the village and which as it was, destroyed three large buildings and scorched a fourth.

The fire was discovered at about 9:30 o'clock and had such a start that H. Mullen's saloon building was a mass of flames before the fire department arrived on the scene.

The firemen put up a heroic fight to stop the flames and their splendid work finally controlled the fire, which was extinguished when it seemed certain that the big Tedford block would go the way of the others.

Three buildings in all, were totally destroyed entailing a loss estimated at $12,000 pretty well covered by insurance.

The origin of the fire is not exactly known, but there are strong hints that an incendiary "torched" the Mullen block, and that the destruction of the two adjoining buildings was assured.

In making the assertion of incendiarism, some local people point to the fires which have occurred there in the past and which have been the subject of investigation by special insurance agents, but nothing ever came of it.

TRAINS ON TIME—All the trains were on time this morning with the exception of No. 5 which was one hour late because of connections. All the local trains were right on the dot. The depot presented about the busiest appearance it has for weeks, the St. Paul train, the train for Duluth, the St. Vincent train and the Warroad train all being on the track ready to pull out at the same time.

HAD PLEASANT VACATION — Oscar Erickson has returned from his annual visit at the old home at Rushford, Minn., where he visited the old folks for a few weeks and from there proceeded to the Range country where he did a good stroke of business for the Burley and Ryrrell Co., of Chicago, the successors to Wemott-Howard Co., which concern he represents since that company was taken over by the Chicago house, the St. Paul branch of which is still located at the old Wemott-Howard Co., 385-387-389 Jackson street.

HAD VERY PLEASANT TRIP—Mrs. Wm. Cronkhite who returned Friday evening from an extended trip to the Pacific coast with Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Newland, the later being her daughter, proceeded to her home west of Argyle Saturday morning. All report a most delightful trip and returned in the best of health. Mr. Newland took a very much deserved vacation from his duties as agent of the Great Northern Express Co., at this point and is now back in the harness as usual.

NOT MUCH CHANGE—M. A. Mossefin, the merchant tailor returned this morning from a business trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis where he has been for the past few days purchasing spring goods and learning of any changes in the styles for the coming spring and summer. He states that there will be no radical departures from last year tho there are a few new wrinkles which will be injected.

WORKS HERE ANOTHER WEEK —Joel G. Winkjer who is now working in the interests of the dairy industries under the auspices of the federal government will work out of this city for another week before going to Bismarck and other outside points to be absent for sometime. Mr. Winkjer when acting as dairy and food inspector for this district prior to the appointment of O. A. Storvick did fine work as his successor is now doing.

Secretary A. M. Locker of the State Sunday School Union left Crookston last evening for St. Paul highly pleased with the great enthusiasm evidenced regarding the meeting of the State Sunday School Convention which will be held here May 4-5-6. He made two addresses yesterday one at the M. E. church at 3 p. m. when he addressed the Sunday School teachers of the city and outlined to them what would be expected of Crookston in connection with the state convention.

In the evening he addressed a union Contractor Louis Johnson who has been awarded the contract for the excavating for the new Federal Building here by the Northern Construction Co., and will start work on the same in a few days.

Mr. Johnson also received word from the same company that a carload of scaffolding and other material of that character had been shipped from Chicago and would be here in a few days and this will be taken care of by Mr. Johnson.

MILITARY MAN HERE—Capt. Ryan of Grand Forks who for years headed the militia company at that place and who was a most efficient officer arrived from Grand Forks this morning and is spending the day here. He is now superintendent for the Minnesota and Dakota Elevator Co.

BOON TO RAILROAD MEN—The warm weather prevailing resulted in all trains arriving on time today. This weather is a great boon to the railroad men who suffer great hardships when the weather delays traffic and keeps them out all kinds of hours.

FORMER MAYOR HERE —Knute Flakne who was for years mayor of Beltrami but whose family is located now in Minneapolis left this morning for Bemidji on business. Mr. Flakne spends a good portion of his time now in this section making Crookston his headquarters. He is quite extensively engaged in the land business.

BEMIDJI HOMES BURNED — The homes of Claude Ritchie and Ole Rudd were totally destroyed by fire Saturday night at Bemidji from flames which originated in an overheated stove in the Ritchie house, at the corner of Fourteenth street and Beltrami avenue

CONSTRUCTING ICE BREAK — Master Carpenter E. A. Mills of the Northern Division of the Great Northern has sent a crew of 8 men to Lergen, just across the river from Wahpeton, to construct an ice break to protect the new bridge constructed across the Red River. It is expected that the work will be completed in plenty of time before the breakup.

LENGBY BUSINESS MAN —Geo. Lillo, one of the prominent business men of Lengby is spending the day in the city attending to some business matters and visiting with his brother-in-law, O. N. J. Hagen of the Oyster Bay. He will leave this evening for Grand Forks. Mr. Lillo has dealt heavily in cord wood for many winters past and has sold a large amount in Chrookston.

HORSES IN FINE SHAPE—C. Teal Sr., has returned from the logging camps near Kelliher where he spent a few days looking after his horses which are working in that section. He reports that they are in fine shape and that things are progressing well with the loggers. The extremely soft weather of two weeks ago threatened to destroy the logging roads but they are now in good shape again.

FIREMAN ILL— Roy Larson the well known fireman on the Great Northern who has a run on the flyer between Barnesville and Emerson left for his home at Shevlin this morning where he will recuperate from a very severe cold which he contracted on a run a few days ago. He rooms at F. H. Whirry's and they felt quite alarmed over his condition.

BIG SHIPMENT RECEIVED—Manager Whirry of the Crookston creamery this morning received a shipment of 12 cans of cream over the Great Northern. The shipments are increasing steadily as the farmers are discovering that more satisfactory returns are received from shipments to the Crookston Creamery than to the Twin Cities. Occasionally they do well in the cities, big payments being made for the first shipments for bait, but later deductions more than make up for this.

RETURNED TO PLUMMER—Editor Chas. Latta of Plummer who yesterday buried his wife in this city, returned to Plummer this morning where he was forced to return to make out his monthly reports as postmaster. The three boys remained at the home of their grand parents, Alderman and Mrs. J. O. Sargent, and will probably remain there permanently. Mr. Latta will return to the city tomorrow. He went via Red Lake Falls this morning and drove across country from there by team.

Theodore Neiers the Euclid merchant spent the night in the city on business.

WHEAT BUYER HERE — Anton Sirek the wheat buyer at Sherack and his brother James returned home this morning after attending to some business matters in the city.

ILL WITH FEVER—Word was received from Saskatoon Sask., yesterday that Thomas Quigley, a son of Hugh Quigley of East Grand Forks, was quite sick there with the fever.

MARRIED BY JUDGE — This morning at 10 o'clock Judge Gossman officiated at the marriage of Mr. John Gerstner, who runs a dray and transfer line at Fertile, to Miss Emma Gullickson of the same place.

HERE AS WITNESS—Chief of Police Ellingson and Jos. Jarvis are here from East Grand Forks as witnesses in a criminal case which may be started today, but which will probably not be reached till tomorrow.

FINISHING TOUCHES— Herman Feidler went to Argyle with a crew this morning to put the finishing touches on the residence of Banker Melgaard which was recently gutted by fire.

COURT AT BAGLEY—District Court is in session at Bagley and there are a number of important cases to be disposed of. A large number of attorneys are gathered there from over Clearwater and Beltrami counties and Eastern Polk.

REVIVALS A SUCCESS—The revivals in Mendenhall church which closed a short time ago, and at which Rev. W. S. Ward of this city assisted doing most of the preaching while Rev. Georgi did the personal work, proved a great success, 25 new members having been received into that church last Sunday.

NEW FARM RESIDENCE— John Green left last evening for Elbow Lake last evening where he will build a residence on the farm of Jack Scott of this city. Mr. Scott left Sunday evening taking another man from here with him and the building will be rushed. The residence burned last fall and a new one must be finished in time for the renter of the land, who has been living in Elbow Lake during the winter, to get back to the farm for spring's work.

RED MEN CHIEFS WERE UPRAISED

BIG GATHERING HELD LAST EVENING BY DESCENDANTS OF THE SCALPERS

Tha-Ten-Ha-Wi-Tha Tribe No. 34, Improved Order of Red Men held a large and enthusiastic meeting last evening, the main event being the upraising of the Chiefs, District Deputy Great Chief Timothy Tastings officiating.

Following this the degree team under the leadership of Chief Jump-Over A-Ditch-and-Fall-in-Swamp Henry Castle, did some crack practice work which showed the result of much drilling. The next batch of pale faces adopted will certainly get what is coming to them. The Chiefs upraised were as follows:

OR ANY FAVORITE FOOD WITHOUT FEAR OF INDIGESTION—DISTRESS

FROM DYSPEPSIA OR A DISORDERED STOMACH VANISHES FIVE MINUTES LATER

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Billiousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in the Stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

ARE READY FOR WORK

HEADS OF VARIOUS COMMITTEES TO PREPARE FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

NAMED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON —CHAIRMEN TO SELECT OWN COMMITTEES

From Wednesday's Daily— . . .

Last evening at a conference between the central committee named in connection with the State Sunday School Convention to be held here in May, and the various pastors of the city in addition to the Central committee of which H. C. Misner is chairman the following were selected as the chairmen of the various committees and each chairman will select the members of his own committee, it being thought that more harmonious and effective committees would be secured in this way, and each chairman would be responsible for the work of the members of his own committee. The chairmen were named as follows and excellent judgment was used in the selection:

Geo. H. Wright, chairman of Entertainment committee.

George S. Chesterman, chairman of Reception committee.

J. W. Wheeler, chairman of Committee on Finance.

Rev. W. S. Ward, chairman of Visitation committee.

Prof. J. H. Powers, chairman of the Committee on Music.

Lucius Miller, chairman of Registration committee.

Rev. C. C. Warner, chairman on Place of Meeting and Arrangement Committee.

Thos. R. Brown, Jr., chairman of Committee on Publicity and Secretary of Central Committee.

Music Will be Grand

Among the great features of the convention will be special music. In addition to a special orchestra composed of a large number of the best players that can be secured which will be present at all the sessions, Chairman Powers of the Music Committee plans on a great chorus of about 150 voices which will render special numbers each evening. This will be a feature alone that will be worth coming miles to hear, Work on the organization and drilling of the chorus will be started at once.

Everyone Should Assist

While the real hard work will be attended to by the various committees named for each branch of the preparatory work, the committees must have the hearty co-operation of every resident of Crookston. If a person is asked to sing there should be cheerful compliance, and if any other duty in connection with the convention is required, comply graciously and willingly and then do exactly what is assigned you. In the meantime boost the convention every day. When you write to your friends tell what a grand and great gathering it is to be.

Some people believe everything they hear and a lot they dream.

Some men would rather own an automobile than have nothing to worry them.

CREAMERIES IN FINE SHAPE

DAIRY INSPECTOR O. A. STORVICK ATTENDS ANNUAL MEETINGS

SUCCESS WHEREVER GOOD SALARIES AND COMPETENT MEN HAVE CHARGE

From Wednesday's Daily—

Dairy Inspector O. A. Storvick has been spending most of his time of late attending annual meetings of creamery associations. He has attended meetings at Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Lengby and Fisher and the reports show up well. In fact he says they always make a good showing excepting where cheap and incompetent men are placed in charge. This class prove the most expensive in the long run.

Last week Inspector Storvick looked into the milk supply at East Grand Forks. He is doing splendid work all along the line.

HAROLD FARMER TALKS CORN

SAYS FARMERS NEAR RIVER HAVE ADVANTAGE OVER THE PRAIRIE FARMERS

THINKS FEW YEARS WILL SEE CROP GENERAL ONE—RAISES IT EVERY YEAR

From Wednesday's Daily— . . .

C. Nelson, a well known farmer near Harold station south of the city on the Northern Pacific is interested in the Journal's "Corn Department" and writes a very interesting letter. He thinks Mr. O'Neill does not make allowance for a difference between conditions close to the river where there is shelter and back on the prairie.

Planting Trees

But he at the same time calls attention to the fact that as soon as the groves planted by the farmers get a little higher, the conditions will be the same, and believes it to be but a few years till corn is on of the leading crops.

Profitable Aii the Time

Mr. Nelson has raised about 30 acres of corn every year for the past six years and has found the step a profitable one every year, even when the corn did not mature, as the fodder and the value of the cultivation to the soil for succeeding crops of either grains made the work well worth the while. Following is his communication to the Journal.

Mr. Nelson's Letter

Editor of the Crookston Journal:

I have read a few and maybe all of Mr. H. O'Neills' letters printed in the Journal of how successfully he can raise corn on his farm. But he has never once stated how close to the river and the timber, he is with his farm which certainly we all know makes a big difference to the protection for the corn. In the first place it forms a wind-break, on the other hand protection from late frosts in the spring and early fall, like which happened last year when we out here by Harold on the open prairie had frost that killed corn the 27th day of August and his down there by the river was green for a month or 5 weeks longer.

But wait Mr. O'Neill, till our groves get little bigger and all the farmers go to raising corn like they do in Iowa or Illinois. As stated in the recent letter people probably won't have to go clear to the river to see good corn raised, as the cultivating of the land has a great deal to do with the warming of the soil too, and the changing from corn to small grain every second year like they do in the above mentioned states and in the southern part of Minnesota.

As for handling the ground before and after planting Mr. O'Neill's plan is good and just like ours but we always harrow our twice before it is up if the weather is suitable.

We have from 20 to 30 acres planted every year ad 3 years out of 6 had matured and as hard corn as in any state and find it a good profitable crop even if we get only the fodder. It makes good feed for cattle and horses and it makes the land yield better crops the next few years after and pays for the work done the year before. Even on that point a man is ahead in planting corn.

Would like to hear some more from Mr. O'Neill, for one, and many others, as all are interested to hear farmers' opinions on good farming.

—C. Nelson

IMPLEMENT MEN MEET

MANY FROM NORTHERN MINNESOTA PRESENT AT FARGO CONVENTION

GEO. F. CARPENTER OF THIS CITY IS THE SECRETARY AND TREASURER

From Wednesday's Daily—

Last evening Allan McKinnon of this city, Chas. Wittensten, Andrew Larson and Nels Johnson of Warren, Lewis Hancock of Fosston and a number of other implement dealers from this section left for Fargo to attend the tenth annual convention of the North Dakota and Northern Minnesota Implement Dealers Association, of which Geo. F. Carpenter of this city is the secretary treasurer, he having gone down Sunday evening.

With several hundred members present from various points in the northwest the convention opened yesterday morning with President D. G. McIntosh of St. Thomas presiding.

The annual address of the president was delivered. Mr. McIntosh called attention in a pleasant manner to the advancement that has been made for the consideration of the members.

Today's program is as follows:

"500 MARK" NEW SLOGAN

CROOKSTON HAS ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY TO WIN DISTINCTION

LOCAL WOODMEN WILL GO AFTER THE STATE BANNER 150 NEW MEMBERS

From Wednesday's Daily—

"Crookston Offers Opportunity" and Crookston Woodmen propose to take advantage of every opportunity to bring distinction. In the past crack forester teams from the Crookston lodge have given the city excellent advertising.

Now they propose going still farther and landing the state banner which is awarded to the camp making the biggest percentage of gain during the year. Minnehaha Camp of Minneapolis held this banner for nearly 20 years till Austin captured it last year.

Crookston Camp has a membership of 55 and they want 500. That would cinch the banner. This means 150 new members and they propose to get them.

To this end District Deputy John C. Moore of St. Paul, and Special Deputy A. F. Nelson of St. Paul have been secured to assist in the membership campaign, having arrived this morning, and will assist the local members for from 3 to 6 weeks as is found necessary.

"Watch the local Camp grow."

FIFTH ANNUAL HAMM BANQUET

HAMM BREWING CO.'S EMPLOYES ENJOY BIG SPREAD AT ST. PAUL

John Rasmusson, A. J. Kirk and Fred Langdon, agent, bookkeeper and collector respectively for the local branch of the Hamm Brewing company returned yesterday from St. Paul where they have attended the fifth annual banquet given by Mr. Hamm to his employes. The affair was held in the Elk rooms in St. Paul and few rivals for magnificence and splendor can be found for Wm. Hamm, when it comes to banquets. All report a great time. Manager Gullickson of the Thief River Falls agency was also down.

BABY GIRL CRIED AND SCRATCHED

All the Time—Torturing Eczema Covered Her Body—Could Not Sleep—Doctor Said Sores Would Last for Years—Skin Now Clear.

CURED IN THREE MONTHS BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I take great pleasure in telling you what a great help it was for me to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for my baby niece. She was suffering from that terrible torture, eczema. It was all over her body but the worst was on her face and hands. Her hands were so bad that she could not hold anything. She cried and scratched all the time and could not sleep night or day from the scratching. I had her under the doctor's care for a year and a half and he seemed to do her no good. I took her to the best doctor in the city and he said that she would have the sores until she was six years old. But if I had depended on the doctor my baby would have lost her mind and died from the want of aid.

"I used all the remedies that everybody told me about and I tortured the child almost to death. Then I saw in the paper how Cuticura was the thing for irritating skin. I bathed her with warm water and Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. She was cured in three months. Now her skin is as clear and smooth as it could be. I shall recommend the use of Cuticura wherever I see the skin in bad condition. Alice L. Dowell, 4769 Easton Ave., St. Louis, Mo., May 2 and 20, 1907."

HAD FLOOD AT G. FORKS

CITY MAIN BROKE AT GREAT NORTHERN DEPOT THIS MORNING

THERE WAS WATER THIS MORNING TO DO EVERYTHING BUT BURN

From Saturday's Daily—

This morning the passengers on the Great Northern train were given an exhibition that their tickets did not call for at the Great Northern depot at Grand Forks. It seems that the frost was too severe for the water pipes and one of the mains burst which flooded the tracks and for a time it looked as tho the entire right of way would be flooded.

Finally some one was found who turned the water off and the train was allowed to pull out of the city on schedule time without any serious difficulty tho the coaches were all covered with water and ice.

OLD RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

MRS. MARSHALL OLSON DIED WEDNESDAY EVENING NEAR BURWELL

On Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the farm home near Burwell, Mrs. Marshall Olson died of tuberculosis after a lingering illness. The body was embalmed yesterday by County Coroner Stenshoel and after services at the farm residence a half mile north of Burwell this morning the remains were brought to Stenshoel's undertaking parlors and this afternoon were shipped over the Northern Pacific, to the old home at Radcliffe, Ia., for interment. Deceased was 28 years of age and leaves a husband and 3 small children.

PRICE OF TUBERS IS GOING UP

Word reaches this city from St. Paul to the effect that the price of potatoes will soon be boosted and that by spring tubers may reach the extraordinary price of $1.50 per bushel.

The wholesale price today varies from 60 cents to $1 in carload lots, according to quality, and an increase in the retail price will probably follow in a few days.

Reason for this remarkable advance in the price of tubers is given as a shortage in the yield last year. The crop is estimated at about 60 per cent of the average.

SWINDLERS WORK COUNTRY

SOLICIT FUNDS IN POLK COUNTY FOR ITALIAN EARTHQUAKE SUFFERERS

MANY COMMUNITIES DUPED BUT PEOPLE IN THIS SECTION ARE NOW WARNED

From Saturday's Daily—

The "meanest man" is always bobbing up somewhere. The expression has lost its meaning and, in present day parlance, it may safely be applied to anyone guilty of a particularly despicable act. There are a few "meanest men" in this section at present and efforts are being made to apprehend them and save possible victims from the effect of their operations.

Swindlers play on all man's passions. Unusually they choose avarice but now and then sympathy is what they count on to cause the average man to shell out his coin to them. When sympathy for themselves is sought, it isn't so bad. But when they play on the sympathy of men for other unfortunates, so that they may gain money for themselves they are descending into the lowest depths of their trade.

The recent earthquake in Italy and the dire straits to which the people of Messina, Reggio and surrounding towns have been reduced by nature's forces has sent a few of the swindlers out thru the Red River Valley, it is said. With Italian cast of countenance, they go forth seeking aid, ostensibly for the earthquake sufferers, but really for themselves. Unsuspicious people readily give up money to what they suppose is a good cause, only to be shamelessly duped.

Fortunately there is believed to be but very few such swindlers operating and the influential Italians, who have the real relief work in hand, are warning their countrymen and the public at large to be sure of the good faith of solicitors before they contribute anythink to a fund for the sufferers.

ADJOURNMENT DAY PROPOSED

REPRESENTATIVE SAUGSTAD SUGGESTS LAST DAY OF MARCH FOR END OF SESSION

JUST TO OPEN DISCUSSION—RESOLUTION HELD UP, BY GIVING NOTICE OF DEBATE

From Saturday's Daily—

If Representative John Saugstad of Climax has his way the present session of the legislature will come to a close at midnight March 1. A resolution to that effect was offered by him, but it went over a day under notice of debate.

The resolution further provides that the introduction of bills shall cease with March 10, except with the consent of the governor.

Mr. Saugstad said later that the resolution was not offered with the idea of making the dates named the specific time for the closing of legislative business but rather for the purpose of obtaining the views of the members.

There is a general desire to bring the session to an early close, consistent with the proper consideration of important measures now in committee and to come but the setting of the exact time is in dispute.

SARAH FRAZIER FOUND GUILTY

OLDER OF TWO GIRLS ON TRIAL WILL GO TO THE TRAINING SCHOOL

LUCILE'S RECORD SUCH THAT SHE IS DECLARED NOT INCORRIGIBLE

From Saturday's Daily—

Judge Sullivan of East Grand Forks yesterday afternoon rendered his decision in the cases of Lucile and Sarah Frazier charged with being incorrigible and ordered that Sarah the 14 year old girl go to the training school The younger girl Lucile, aged 11 years was released there being little evidence that she was incorrigible. Mrs. Frazier promised that the girl would be kept in school and not allowed to run the streets. The older girl will spend the next two years in either the training school at Red Wing or St. Cloud, but will probably not be taken from the city for a week or two. Sarah had been taken out of school and her whole record was such that the judge decided the best place she could spend the next two years would be in a training school.

No trace has as yet been found of Drucella, the 16 year old Frazier girl who was wanted even worse than the other two. Drucella seems to have been the ring leader and her escapades are well known to the police on both sides of the river. When Mrs. Daly was taken away she evidently had an idea that something was going to happen and made her escape. According to Sarah she left the night before the arrests were made, while Mrs. Frazier said she was away on a visit. Both the other girls disavowed any knowledge of where she was.

Mrs. Frazier who was found guilty of ill-treating Mrs. C. C. Daly an insane person and fined $25 or 30 days in the county jail, had not yet decided whether an appeal would be taken or the fine paid.

CROOKSTONITES WIN PRIZES

LOCAL CHICKENS SEEM TO BE ABOUT THE BEST ON THE MARKET

The Grand Forks Pet Animal Show closed yesterday and the prizes have been awarded. While the exhibitors from Crookston simply sent over their birds as exhibits they seemed to get a few prizes just the same and following are a few that came to this city and East Grand Forks people.

When John Was In Doubt.

John was a coachman who took life most seriously and, being very particular, would return frequently in the course of the day to make sure he understood the orders that had been given him in the morning. One afternoon he presented himself before his mistress and began:

"Mrs. T., Oi'm not quite certain ez to Mr. T.'s ordher this mornin'. Oi was droivin' him to the thrain, an' he noticed that the horse was lame, an' he told me to do somethin' to him, mum; but, sure, Oi don't know whither he told me to shoe him or to shoot him. Mebbe ye can till me."

A shoeing was evidently required, but the execution of the order and likewise of the horse was deferred until Mr. T. returned.

His Record.

"The late Admiral Balch," said a Raleigh man, "used often to complain of the increasing cost of national armaments. The armaments, he would say, continually cried out for money, money, nothing but money. They were like the shopkeeper's son.

"'When did James last write to us?' the shopkeeper asked his wife one day.

"'Look in the cash book,' the wife replied."

VERY MUCH AGAINST FARMER

CAPT BROWN REGISTERS PROTEST AGAINST PERIL OF OLEOMARGARINE LAW

HE THINKS REPEAL OF THE LAW WOULD BE DETRIMENT TO FARMERS

From Saturday's Daily—

Capt. M. R. Brown, who started the agitation to secure interviews or communications from farmers who have successfully raised corn, which is already bearing fruit, today made another statement which should be spread broadcast. He said:

"I want to go on record against the present effort that is being made in congress to repeal the anti-oleomargarine law. This law was passed for the benefit of the farmers and it has proved of great benefit to them. The farmers can all remember when the price of real butter went down to 8 cents and 10 cents when it was put on the market with colored oleo-margarine and any repeal of the law would be directly against the farmers and in favor of a few packers who would reap the benefit.

"The dairying industry in this section has been increased at least 75 per cent since this law was passed, and it would certainly not be to the interests of the farmer to have the law repealed. A few years ago the farmer who had a number of cows had a drug on the market. Now the farmer who has a few cows has practically an income for the entire family.

"That is the difference. Tell me the name of the man who can show any other conclusions."

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE FAVORS MINNESOTA RESERVOIRS

Members of the joint legislative committee appointed under the Rosenwald resolution to report on a plan for canalizing the Minnesota river, held an open meeting at the old state capitol last evening. George A. Ralph state drainage engineer, and F. L. Cliff of Ortonville talked on the subject of reservoirs and the discussion was mainly on that point.

It was agreed that the best protection for the lowlands along the river can be had from reservoirs and that the federal government should construct them as an aid to navigation. The committee will draw up a report on the subject at an early date, which will go with the report of the drainage commission's survey of the valley as documents in the case before congress.

FINE SHOWING OF FERTILE CREAMERY

L. E. George of the Fertile Journal arrived in the city yesterday and said regarding the local industries of Fertile:

"The Fertile Creamery shipped 37 tubs of butter this week, an increase of twelve tubs of a year ago. The smallest make for one week this winter was 22 tubs or 1364 pounds while the smallest week's make last winter was 11 tubs or 682 pounds. The price paid to patrons for December was 33c per lb., clear of all expenses and for December 1907 it was 30c. If the increase of output continues thru the summer as it has so far this year the creamery will be unable to take care of all the cream in its present building, as it was crowded to its utmost capacity last summer."

Don't Try Uncertain Recipes

It is entirely unnecessary to experiment with this, that and the other recipe. Why waste time, money and patience when you can get from your grocer, for 10 cents, a package of "OUR-PIE" Preparation — Lemon, Chocolate or Custard — for making pies that are so good that when you eat one piece you will want another? The way to please the men-folks is to give them good pie.

SACRED VESSELS ARE FOUND

CIBORIUMS AND CHALICE FOUND IN EAST GRAND FORKS—VESSELS STOLEN

FROM THE SACRED HEART CHURCH DEC. 12, NEAR G. N. BRIDGE

From Friday's Daily—

The mystery of the stolen ciboriums and chalice which disappeared from the Sacred Heart church in East Grand Forks early in December was solved about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when all the missing articles except the bowl of one of the ciboriums were found partially covered with snow near the Great Northern bridge by three lads.

Murray Sullivan and Tim and Howard Cummings were in the vicinity of the Great Northern bridge with a sled gathering wood when one of them noticed something sticking out of the snow. The three lads went to work and in a few moments had uncovered the chalice and two ciboriums one of which is very valuable. They immediately headed up town with their booty. It was later discovered that the bowl of one of the ciboriums was missing and Chief Ellingson and one or two others went to look for it. It grew dark however; too rapidly, and the missing bowl was not found. The theory is that the thieves simply threw away their booty and it is expected that the bowl will be found today.

Story of the Theft

The vessels stolen were a solid gold chalice of exquisite workmanship and set with gems together with two ciboriums, one of solid gold and the other of silver. The estimated value of the property is $300. The robbery occurred sometime on Saturday, Dec. 13, under very peculiar circumstances and the police were never able to find a clue. Just how the robbery occurred will probably never be known to the people of the city. Phillip Tessler, the janitor was at the church at 7:00 o'clock on the same day, he saw that the cloth used to cover the communion service was lying in the aisle. An investigation disclosed the open tabernacle with the gold and silver vessels missing, and who took them or just when they were taken has not been found out.

It looks as tho the robbers broke into the church with the idea of taking something of value and picked out the ciboriums and chalice from their booty, forgetting that they would have great difficulty in not only carrying their booty very far but in disposing of it. It is thought that after they carried it as far as the Great Northern bridge they realized their mistake and threw away the vessels. Though somewhat tarnished the ciboriums and chalice are as valuable as ever and the lads who were lucky enough to find them will undoubtedly be suitably rewarded.

WERE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Last evening at 6:45 at the home of the bride's parents in Sampsons addition, Rev. O. F. Johnson officiating, Miss Anna Sandberg was united in marriage to Mr. J. E. Johnson. The bridesmaid was Miss Carrie Nelson and the best man was Mr. Martin Johnson. Following the wedding a wedding dinner was served at the bride's home which was beautifully decorated with pink jonquils and white carnations, and candles with white shades were used. There were 16 guests present, all immediate relatives including Mr. A. Hendrix of Bismarck, N. D., brother-in-law of the groom. The bride was beautifully gowned in a white embroidered swiss and a feature of the dinner was a huge wedding cake which was cut by the bride. TELLS HOW TO RAISE CORN

HENRY O'NEILL RESPONDS TO SUGGESTION OF CAPT. M. R. BROWN

OTHER CORN RAISERS URGED TO USE JOURNAL COLUMNS TO TELL EXPERIENCES

From Saturday's Daily—

A few days ago the Journal had an interview with Capt. M. R. Brown and he suggested that the farmers of this section who have successfully raised corn, tell what methods they pursued, thru the columns of the paper in order that those farmers who had not attempted to raise corn, or had tried and made a failure of it, might have the benefit of the experience of those who have had splendid success. Henry O'Neill is the first to respond and his letter is published below. It is hoped many others will call or write articles on how they have successfully raised corn, winter rye or any other cereal. Mr. O'Neill's letter is as follows:

Editor Journal: In a recent issue of the Journal I see where Capt. M. R. Brown suggests to a reporter of that paper that it would be a good idea to encourage those who have raised corn in the valley to offer some of their experiences to other people that might wish to grow some.

We have raised and ripened good corn here ever since 1895. Of late years have raised exceptionally good corn of a yellow dent variety. To one wishing to grow corn they should try and plant on a somewhat sandy soil if possible. Plow deep in the fall or about April 15th if in spring and disk good before planting.

Corn can be planted from the first to the 20th of May according to the earlyness or lateness of the season. Three or four kernels in a hill three feet, six inches square and about two inches deep. If a rain comes after corn is planted and before it is up it is necessary to drag the ground good a day or two before it is above the ground.

That breaks the crust and kills the pidgeon grass that always grows after a rain especially in corn.

If you do not drag after it is over ground, which many do in the corn countries, you must not loose any time in cultivating, going lengthways first and close up to the hills very deep. In about a week or ten days go across and quite deep also. Remember that the first two times you go over your corn to turn the shovels of cultivator out so as to let the sun warm the land down to the roots and by so doing you will not be so liable to smotherd the small plants. The next time you go over the field turn the shovels so as to throw the clay to but do not go too close to the corn or go too deep as that would be liable to injure the roots which would give the corn a severe set-back. If one wishes to plant pumpkins with the corn do not plant till the corn is 8 or 10 inches high and then plant 3 or 4 seeds in every 4th hill and in about every 4th row.

The kind of seed that seems to do the best in this climate is Dakota Red Dent, Minnesota No. 13, Minnesota King, Pride of the North and King of the Earliest.

They are all dent corn and of a good quality too. McGill & Co. seed house at Fargo, N. D. would be the most likely place to get any of the above seeds. They get all the native grown corn they can and it is all kiln dried and will surely grow. To anybody thinking corn raising is a joke in this country we would advise them to pay us a visit at our farm four miles east of town on south side of the river about September 10th next and they may think they got into Illinois or Iowa.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL GOES TO CASS LAKE

Canvass Of Situation Shows That Decision Has Pratically Been Reached.

St. Paul, Jan. 30—The fight for the location of the new normal school, which has engrossed the attention of six towns, has about reached a finish. A canvass of the situation practically gives the school to Cass Lake. Representative McGarry has charge of its claims in the house and it is said that Dan Gunn has cinched things in the senate.

The Bemidji representatives who left for their homes late yesterday, admitted that Cass Lake was in the lead but refused to admit that their own chances were entirely gone.

Cass Lake had the best of the argument from the start which resulted in a combination of the field with its efforts directed in favor of a bill leaving the location of the school to the state normal board. This, the Cass Lake advocates contended, meant giving the school to Bemidji, as it was believed that administration influences would be directed to that end. They succeeded in practically killing the proposition in the house committee.

REV. WITHAM PASSES AWAY

FORMER PASTOR OF GRAND FORKS IS SUDDENLY STRICKEN AT MINOT

SUSTAINS STROKE OF PARALYSIS AND LIVES BUT HALF AN HOUR

Stricken with paralysis last night while walking on the viaduct in Minot on his return from the M. E. church, where he had been acting as janitor Rev. Henry Witham, retired M. E. minister, died in half an hour. He was conveyed to the city hall, where he expired. His wife was with him when he died.

The deceased was for six years presiding elder of the Fargo district. For ten years was connected with the M. E. church for a number of years. He went to North Dakota from Cincinnati in 1893. He was a graduate of the Wesleyan college and the Boston Theological Institute. He was a brilliant preacher and was highly successful in his work in North Dakota. Some years ago his health failed and he was obliged to abandon his work as minister. He occupied himself with other work since that time. He is survived by his wife and two sons.

Friends all over the northwest will regret to learn of his death.

IS THE DULUTH AND SOUTH SHORE COMING?

RUMOR THAT DULUTH & SOUTH SHORE WILL HAVE A LINE TO THIEF RIVER FALLS

The Thief River Falls News says: "The Duluth newspapers have been filled with proposed railroad developments in this section of the state the past year. The announcement that the Soo is going to build a new line from Thief River Falls to Duluth is causing all kinds of speculation and no doubt within the next few years there will be all kinds of railroad building in Northern Minnesota.

"There is a rumor in circulation to the effect that Thief River Falls is not only going to have the new Soo extension to Duluth but that the Duluth & South Shore is going to have a line into Thief River Falls also. As is well known the Duluth & South Shore has the right to run trains from Duluth to Fosston over the Great Northern system. By building a line direct from Thief River Falls to Fosston, a distance of about sixty miles, connection could be given to the Canadian Pacific, the parent road of both the Soo and Duluth & South Shore with Duluth at once. This new line would be used only for passenger business, and freight would be hauled over the new Soo extension when it is built and over the Brooten extension at present.

"The past week a number of surveyors have been at work in the country southeast of Thief River Falls and is is quite probable that work on the Duluth South Shore line will be commenced early in the spring."

MRS. FRAZIER FOUND GUILTY

IS FINED $25 AND COSTS —STAY OF SENTENCE GRANTED UNTIL TODAY

CASE AGANIST LUCILLE AND SARAH FRAZIER FOR INCORRIGIBILITY STILL ON

From Thursday's Daily—

After a hearing which lasted all yesterday morning Mrs. Caroline Frazier was found guilty of ill-treating Mrs. C. C. Daly an insane person, by Judge Sullivan in the municipal court at East Grand Forks, and fined $25 and costs, or in default of this 30 days in the county jail. A stay of sentence asked by Attorney F. C. Massee for the defendant was granted until today. Just what action will be taken in behalf of Mrs. Frazier is not known but it is probable that the case will be appealed. The hearing of the two girls, Sarah and Lucille charged with incorrigibility was not finished when the court adjourned yesterday afternoon and was resumed today. If the records of the Grand Forks court are allowed as evidence the state will have a strong case to send them to the training school.

Chief Ellingson the complainant in the case of Mrs. Daly was the principal witness against Mrs. Frazier. He told of going to the Daly house and finding Mrs. Daly ill clad and ill fed in a dark room provided with a bed and dirty bed clothes. He found only a hard crust on the chair and the first thing the woman asked for was something to eat. Dr. Wilson told of the condition of affairs and of Mrs. Daly's condition and McDonald, bookkeeper for the Lumber company, was a witness. For the defense Mrs. Frazier, Mr. C. C. Daly, the two girls and Mrs. Frazier's son Fraine declared that Mrs. Daly was well cared for. Mrs. Frazier seemed to take the whole affair as a joke but the case assumed a more serious aspect when the judge found her guilty as charged in the complaint.

There was testimony galore to show the incorrigibility of Lucile and Sarah Frazier, Prof. Burnett and the police officers telling what they knew of the conduct of the girls. The principal evidence of the prosecution however, is the record of the Grand Forks district court in the recent Abner Brown trial and Attorney Massee objected to the introduction of this. After arguments by Attorney Massee and Assistant State's Attorney Finlayson, Judge Sullivan took the point at issue under advisement and will announce his decision today.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT FARMERS INSTITUTE

The farmers' institute of yesterday at Twin Valley was well attended there being present between 250 and 300 farmers, completely filling Murphy's hall The state speakers advertised were all present and gave interesting discussions on various farm topics that should prove of great benefit to the farmers if they will act upon the suggestions offered. The institute people expressed themselves as especially well satisfied with the attendance while the farmers seemed equally well pleased with the information given out and from their remarks we judge they would be ready and willing to attend another tomorrow. As Mr. McConnel said, the institute was doubtless the largest and best ever held in that village. The dairy cow, chickens, hogs, corn, clover rotation of crop, etc., were topics discussed.

WARM AND DRY TO STAY WELL

AUTHORITY GIVES SIMPLE PRESCRIPTION ALSO TELLS HOW TO TAKE

TELLS READERS HOW TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE AT HOME

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism or if your backaches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism which is caused by uric acide in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescriptions stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

JOSEPH MURRAY ANSWERS CALL

WELL-KNOWN G. N. ENGINEER SUCCUMBS TO TUBERCULOSIS AFTER A LONG SICKNESS

After an illness lasting for 15 months Joseph Murray of East Grand Forks, a well known G. N. engineer and a former resident of this city, 36 years of age, and residing at 211 S. Fourth street, finally succumbed to the ravages of tuberculosis at 8:30 o'clock last evening. The end came not unexpectedly and was peaceful. The deceased leaves a wife and one child, a girl. For 15 years Mr. Murray was in the service of the Great Northern railroad company most of the time as engineer and was in the service when stricken with the great white plague some 15 months ago. He went to Arizona for his health returning last March. Everything that medical aid could do for him was performed but he grew steadily worse. The deceased came to East Grand Forks in the spring of 1878 from Clayton, Ont., and has resided in that city and Crookston ever since. He was well liked and respected by a large circle of friends who mourn his demise.

Besides his family, deceased has three brothers and two sisters all residents of East Grand Forks. These are Thomas, William and Patrick Murray and Mrs. Morris J. Sullivan and Mrs. W. J. Buckley. The deceased was a member of the Eagles' lodge and the Locomotive Engineers. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the Sacred Heart church at that place.

The funeral will be attended by many railroad men from this city. Engineer Jack Greenhalgh arrived from Barnesville this morning and will go to East Grand Forks this evening with the balance of the delegation. Deceased left his family in very comfortable circumstances, his estate being worth about $12000 in addition to his insurance in the Order of Locomotive Engineers, Eagles and Woodmen.

Deep regret is felt here over his death as he was a genial, whole-souled ma..

LITTLE GIRL WAS BADLY INJURED

HAD EYE BADLY CUT BY HOCKEY STICK LAST EVENING ON RIVER

Last evening Lillie Nyquist was painfully injured last evening while skating on the ice rink on the Red Lake river. It appears that a number of boys were playing hockey and one of them accidentally struck her over the eye with his hockey stick, making a heavy swing and not seeing the girl. The wound bled profusely but was staunched with handkerchiefs She was hurried home and a physician called to dress the wound. The injury while painful is not permanent and will not affect her eyesight.

TOM STAHL SAW SNAKES MONDAY

Conductor Tom Stahl the veteran conductor on the Great Northern who passed thru the city last evening in charge of the Great Northern Flyer stated on his honor that on Monday last at Emerson a snake was killed wriggling along on the sidewalk. As Sir Thomas does not indulge in Canadian or any other kind of whiskey this can be put down as an absolute fact. What the snake has been indulging in to venture out on the 25th of January will never be known as it was promptly sent to snake heaven. However it will have the distinction of being stuffed and placed on exhibition there as a snake that showed up in January.

HELD BIG DAIRY MEET AT LENGBY

Prof. Wm. Robertson of the State Farm and Dairy Inspector O. A. Storvick of this city yesterday attended a most successfull dairy meeting at Lengby the occasion being the annual meeting of the Lengby Co-operative Creamery Ass'n. Both made addresses as did C. O. Carlson of Erskine. There were 200 present at the meeting which was a very enthusiastic one. The creamery there is in a very prosperous condition and will do a much bigger business the coming year than ever before many new stockholders having been secured at the meeting.

MRS. CHAS. LATTA DIED SUDDENLY

The sad news of the sudden death of Mrs. Chas. Latta, wife of the editor of the Plummer Pioneer and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sargent of this city was received this morning. No details of the cause of death were received. The remains will be brought to this city for interment either this evening or tomorrow morning. The funeral arrangements will be announced later. Deceased was for years a resident of this city and her death will be learned with the deepest regret by a large circle of friends.

Real Ratemaking Basis

The report of Expert Morgan of the estimated cost of reproducing the rail roads of Minnesota deals with a subject of the utmost importance. A broad principle of fairness animates all law—or should do so—bearing upon freight rates. The money invested in railway enterprise is entitled to fair return, but from these values must be squeezed the water. The theory is that the cost of reproduction equitably represents the basis of the earning capacity of the transportation companies; that upon the sum so ascertained the companies have the right to base rates which will yield fair and just profits—and no more. Mr. Morgan's report seems to be a thoro one, and the courts must eventually determine whether it is an accurate one, in the sense of the honest judgment applied. That it differs essentially from the exhibits made by the railway companies themselves is entirely natural and reasonable. The viewpoint is different. If the valuation were to be made for the purposes of assessment the same differences would occur, but it is safe to say their relation would be exactly reversed. As a matter of fact, the neighbor state of Wisconsin had just that experience, several years ago in her effort to arrive at a reasonable basis of valuation for the purpose of taxation. The chief difference between the figures of the Morgan report and those of the railway accountants is attributable to the difficulty of reaching exactitude in the valuation of land and terminals. The most competent judges will differ in that respect, and expert testimony in the courts must finally decide. Meanwhile, the basis has been supplied by each party to the rate controversy and litigation may be expedited thereby.—St. Paul Dispatch.

KEEN IMAGINATION.

The Way One of His Lectures Affected Louis Agassiz.

Children are not the only holders of the precious key of the imagination. The finest minds often keep the power of "make believe," much to their own and the world's benefit. That such a possession coupled with ardent enthusiasm makes demands on the nerves and strength is shown in the following anecdote, related by the late Moncure Daniel Conway in his autobiography. He was at one time a pupil of that famous man of science, Louis Agassiz.

One particular lecture Agassiz devoted to displaying some fossils of saurians, newly come into his collection. He made the subject a text for a general review of the chain of reptilian life.

As he proceeded, darting off to the blackboard to illustrate, comparing the extinct with the contemporary fauna, he became more and more animated. His face reddened with excitement until at last he said:

"Gentlemen, I ask you to forgive me if today I end the lecture at this point, although the hour is not out. I assure you I have been describing these extinct creatures until they have taken on a sort of life. They have been crawling, hissing, darting about me. I have heard the crawling and hissing until I am really exhausted. I regret it, gentlemen, but I trust you will excuse me."

Our admiration for the grand teacher was such as to make us break through all rules, and we gave him a hearty cheer. He bowed low to us and quickly disappeared.

EYE EXERCISE.

One Method by Which Poor Vision May Be Improved.

"Have you a high roof?" was the apparently irrelevant question put by the distinguished oculist to the woman who had complained of having bad eyes. "Higher than the roofs of the surrounding houses?"

"Oh, yes," said the woman, "a good deal higher."

"Then what I want you to do," said he, "is to go up there every day and look around for half an hour. That will do you more good than glasses. One trouble with your eyes, and with many pairs of eyes in New York, is that you exercise them so little at long range. They are used to looking at short distances only. Long distance looking is good for eyes. Persons who habitually have a wide expanse of sea or plain to gaze upon very seldom have weak eyes. Of course you cannot move out to the plains, neither can you spend a life on the ocean wave, but you can let your sight travel across the Hudson river every day, and I advise you to do it."—New York Press.

Vagaries of Memory.

The vagaries of the old man's memory are indeed curious. Lord Houghton told Sir Mountstuart Grant Duff that he had once been present when Lord Lyndhurst and Dr. Lushington were asked what was the most interesting thing that they remembered. "Oh," said Lyndhurst, "undoubtedly the day which I spent with Washington at Mount Vernon." "Oh," said Lushington, "undoubtedly the week which I spent with Burke at Beaconsfield." Naturally they were asked to tell something of what had passed on these occasions, but neither of them could remember anything whatever. There is much to be said for assisting the memory of good things with a diary, as Sir Mountstuart himself did. —London Chronicle.

Paid For a Peep at Royalty.

In the eighteenth century the Londoner could look at royalty on Sunday for a modest fee. In a guide to London, published in 1767, it was said, "At St. James' chapel royal by knocking at the side door and slipping a shilling for each person into the hand of the verger who opens it you may have admittance and stand during divine service in the presence of their majesties, and for a shilling each person more you may sit in their royal presence, not in pews, but in turnup seats on the side of them."

A Vague Idea.

During his first visit to a farm little Willie came into the house crying softly.

"What is the matter, dear?" asked his mother.

"I went out to see the cows, and they didn't give nothing but milk," sobbed the boy.

"What did you expect?" inquired the mother.

"I'm not sure what I expected," replied Willie, "but, mother, where does beef tea come from?"—Judge.

A Hint.

"Yes," said the young student thoughtfully, "when I get interested in a subject I never stop until I have embraced it thoroughly."

"That's nice," was the hesitating reply. "Do—do you think I'm an interesting subject?"

Great Expression.

"They tell me, Grimley, that your daughter sings with great expression."

"Greatest expression you ever saw. Her own mother can't recognize her face when she's singing."—Home Herald.

A DARING BUCCANEER

Edward Thatch, Who Was Known as the Blackbeard Pirate.

HIS BATTLE WITH MAYNARD.

After the Hand to Hand Conflict the Desperado's Head Hung at the Bowsprit End of the Lieutenant's Sloop as She Sailed Back to Virginia.

It is almost 200 years since Edward Thatch, better known as the pirate Blackbeard, was a name with which to terrorize the Atlantic coast of the then new country of America. As a buccaneer whose deeds of desperate daring made him feared wherever his name was known he stands a close rival of the famous Captain Kidd, if indeed in some respects he did not surpass that notorious freebooter.

The date of Thatch's birth is lost in history, and his native place is variously given as Bristol and Jamaica. He first appears as a foremast hand to Major Stede Bonnet, a gentleman of Barbados, who, although a man of property and having small knowledge of the sea, thought proper to fit out a sloop and take to a life of piracy, the explanation of his being "a little distracted" being charitably given by one biographer. However that may be, his crew missed in the major the qualities of a successful commander. They deposed him and elected Thatch in his place. Bonnet was tried and executed in 1711.

Thatch's first independent exploit of which we have a detailed account took place in June, 1718, when he captured two French ships near the Bermudas, one laden with sugar, the other empty. Transferring to the latter the crew of the laden vessel and letting them go their way, he sailed with his prize of vessel and sugar for Bathtown, N. C., with the governor of which place, Charles Eden, he had previously arrived at a pleasant understanding.

Thatch gave out that he had found the French ship deserted. Governor Eden received sixty hogsheads of sugar as his share. Tobias Knight, his secretary, took twenty, and the remainder fell to Thatch and his crew. Thatch lingered there for some months, plundering and insulting the merchants of the place. These, understanding at length the futility of expecting redress from Eden, applied to the governor of Virginia to rid them of the pest.

The governor, after consultation with the captains of the Pearl and Lime, then lying in the James river, agreed to provide two sloops, the warships to furnish a complement of men. Lieutenant Maynard of the Pearl was placed in command, and the punitive expedition sailed on Nov. 17, 1718. On the 21st the pirates were sighted in an inlet about sixty miles from Bathtown, and Maynard anchored for the night.

On the following morning Thatch, maneuvering to elude attack, ran his vessel aground, but Maynard's sloop, drawing more water, though she had no guns on board, failed to get to close quarters. The lieutenant, however, threw out his ballast and in answer to a truculent defiance from Thatch promised to be "soon aboard him with his sloop." Coming at last within close range, a broadside from the pirate killed or wounded twenty of Maynard's crew and nine on board his consort.

Maynard now ran alongside the pirate, when, under cover of a discharge of grenades, Thatch and fourteen followers boarded the king's ship. Maynard and Thatch, pistol and sword in hand, engaged in a desperate personal encounter. The lieutenant's sword broke, and more than once he narrowly escaped a fatal injury. But at last Thatch, having received sixteen wounds, fell dead in the act of cocking a pistol. His followers jumped overboard and cried for quarter. Maynard hung Thatch's head at the bowsprit end, sailed for Bathtown, where he seized the governor's storehouse, and then, still with his grisly sign of triumph swinging in the wind, rejoined his ship in Virginia, where thirteen of the captured pirates were hanged.

One of the Blackbeard's crew who obtained pardon was Israel Hands, who makes his appearance in "Treasure Island." Shortly before Thatch met his death Hands had been lamed for life by a pistol shot in the knee fired by Thatch from under the cabin table, at which he, with Hands and others, was carousing, just to remind his crew in general "who he was." Such an act was only one of the many eccentric brutalities of Thatch's career.

When he felt himself in the vein or was going into action his appearance was somewhat startling—his bushy black beard tied up with ribbons, the ends of which were thrown over his ears; a fur cap on his head, with a lighted match on either side, and three brace of pistols slung across his shoulder. Of the usual condition of himself and his crew much may be gathered from the fact that "our company somewhat sober" was a circumstance deemed worthy of note in the diary found after his death.—London Globe.

DELICATE OPERATION

SKULL OF PAUL BERGUM OPENED AND BRAIN EXAMINED SATURDAY

CLOT OF BLOOD LOCATED BUT COULD NOT BE REMOVED BY PHYSICIANS

From Monday's Daily—

Saturday afternoon Dr. Sneeve, a nerve specialist from St. Paul assisted by four local physicians performed an operation on John Bergum who was injured while in the employ of the city in a sewer some time ago.

A large section of the brain was laid bare and the clot of blood which was supposed to have resulted in the paralysis of the left side was located but being at the base of the brain and in a position very difficult to reach the physicians thought it futile to attempt to remove it.

The sick man is resting as well today as could be expected and while the outcome is in doubt fears are entertained that his chances for recovery are very slight.

REMAINS TAKEN TO LACROSSE

BODY OF PAUL DRAX WILL BE LAID TO REST THERE TODAY

FUNERAL SERVICES WERE LARGELY ATTENDED AND EVERY HONOR PAID DEPARTED

From Monday's Daily—

The remains of Paul Drax master brewer at the Kiewel Brewery who died from injuries received from being caught between two freight cars January 19, while crossing the Great Northern tracks at the rear of Collins Livery barn on his way home, were taken to the old home at LaCrosse, Wis, Saturday evening accompanied by Mrs. Drax, the widow, Mr. Ed Krause who came from LaCrosse to attend the funeral and Carl Reidesel representing the Sons of Herman of this city.

The funeral was held Saturday from St. Mary's church and was one of the most largely atended ever held in Crookston, hundreds of friends joining in doing honor to the memory of one who was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him.

The floral offerings at the Drax residence were very profuse and paid mute tributes to the memory of the unfortunate man whose life was ended by a most unusual accident.

The pall bearers were Carl Reidesel M. Palen, Adolph Rauch, Ernest Rolsch, F. Gorder and Wm Becker, and the same gentlemen escorted the remains to the Great Northern depot Saturday evening where many friends again gathered as a mark of respect.

A telegram was received by C. E. Kiewel this morning that the remains of Paul Drax arrived at LaCrosse and the funeral services were held there today and were very largely attended.

SUICIDES WITH CARBOLIC ACID

FAY KIRK, RESIDENT OF RESORT DISTRICT IN E. G. FORKS KILLS SELF

WOMAN WAS DESPONDENT OVER CONTINUED ILLNESS—RELATIVES IN SIOUX FALLS

From Monday's Daily—

Tired of life Fay Kirk, alias Myers, aged 22 years ,an inmate of the hollow district known as "1900" in East Grand Forks committed suicide yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock by drinking carbolic acid. The cause for the act was despondency over sickness coupled with the fact that the woman was a heavy drinker and had been intoxicated all day. She was found soon after she had taken the poison and an ambulance called. Help came too late, however and she was dead before the Deaconess hospital was reached after being unconscious for over an hour.

Fay Myers went to East Grand Forks about eight months ago and has been a resident of the district known as "the Point" since that time. She has twice before atempted to kill herself by taking poison but each time it has proved successful. About a month ago the woman was taken sick and since that time has been despondent, fearing that she would never recover, She left a note with the address of persons living in Sioux Falls, S. D., but whether they are parents or other relatives is not stated.

The remains were taken to the undertaking parlors on the west side and the relatives in Sioux Falls notified.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT

ADELORE VALLEY WELL KNOWN FARMER FELL AND BROKE HIS WRIST

SLIPPED WHILE CARRYING PAIL OF WATER TO HOUSE—VERY PAINFUL

From Monday's Daily—

Last Saturday afternoon Adelore Valley one of the prominent farmers residing seven miles each of Crookston was the victim of a very painful acident, as a result of which he will be incapacitated for work for several weeks.

He was carrying a pail of water into the house when he slipped and fell near the back porch, breaking his wrist. Dr. H. Holte of this city was at once summoned and reduced the fracture and the patient is doing well and it is not expected that any permanent injury will result. The accident however is a most painful one and the many friends of the unfortunate man greatly regret it.

SOME SURE THINGS.

Do Not Bet on Your Ability to Perform These Feats.

Bets to be avoided by those who are cocksure they can do all things are those relating to athletic feats. It would seem that a good runner could easily give a start of fifty yards in a hundred to a man who was doing the fifty yards by hopping on one leg. But few runners, if any, can afford to give that amount of start to any man who is at all strong on his legs. For the first five yards or so they go at practically the same pace, so that to run ninety-five yards while his opponent is hopping forty-five he has to go more than twice as fast, and it is a weak man indeed who cannot hop fifty yards in ten seconds.

An ordinary wooden match is easily broken in the fingers, but, although there are many who will bet they can do it, none succeed in accomplishing the task if the match is laid across the nail of the middle finger of either hand and pressed upon by the first and third fingers of that hand, despite its seeming so easy at first sight.

No one can crush an egg placed lengthwise between his clasped hands.

Not Too Late.

Not long after the great Chelsea fire some children in Newton, Mass., held a charity fair by which $18 was realized. This they forwarded to the rector of a certain Boston church who had taken a prominent part in the relief work, with a letter which read somewhat as follows:

> We have had a fair and made $18. We are sending it to you. Please give it to the Chelsea sufferers. Yours truly, etc.
>
> P. S.—We hope the suffering is not all over.

BODY FOUND IN SNOWDRIFT

FARMER H. STEVENSON FROZEN TO DEATH WHILE IN INTOXICATED CONDITION

SON BECAME ALARMED AT HIS FAILURE TO RETURN HOME AND SEARCHES

From Monday's Daily—

Alarmed over the failure of his father to return home a son of Henry Stevenson started a search yesterday and in the afternoon found the body lying near some buildings two miles south of Milton, N. D. Stevenson had been frozen to death.

Stevenson who resided a few miles from Milton had been there on Thursday, and when he left for home he was very much intoxicated. When he failed to return to his home that night there was no alarm as he had often stayed in Milton for a couple of days when intoxicated.

Yesterday his son learned that Stevenson had left Milton for home. He started a search for him and succeeded in finding the body.

Unable to Get Up

It was evident that Stevenson had made an effort to get into the vacant building but had fallen in a snow drift and perished.

Stevenson was about 60 years old. His wife died a few months ago and then. He is survived by five children he has been drinking heavily since

The body was taken to Milton. It is expected that there may be some developments concerning the sale of liquor to Stevenson.

No inquest has yet been held but it is expected that the death will be thoroly investigated.

HE SEEKS TO PRESERVE DUCKS

Representative Mattson has been heard from and it is very likely that the honorable gentleman from Roseau will hear from a few of his constituents. Mr. Mattson has introduced a bill. His bill provides for a closer season to shoot ducks, but unfortunately the close term is on the wrong end of the season to suit the duck hunters in the northern part of the state. Mr. Mattson's duck bill would have the time to shoot ducks commence on September 15th. Evidently the suave statesman from Roseau county in his ambition to introduce a bill and get his name in the papers, has allowed himself to be horn-swaggled by some one interested in preserving the life of the ducks until they should fly further south. The admirers of Mr. Mattson thruout the district will no doubt be pleased to learn that he is well and is attending the daily sessions and adjournments of the legislature and that the first subject he has tackled is "ducks." Why not ducks

Does ay one question his knowledge of ducks and his experience as a duck hunter? To be sure "ducks" were not mentioned in Mr. Mattson's platform, but this need not create any surprise as it was expected great things would eminate from so much avoirdupoise and the limitation of the gentleman's information as to needed legislation would place him in a front seat without the necessity of elevating his feet upon the desk as other distinguished statesmen are prone to do.

If this country is to be protected and preserved in principal and glory, if its people are to be free and enjoy good government it must look to men of large capacity and broad views to make and execute laws beneficial to mankind. The burning question of county option appeals only to the man who aims to deprive his fellow man of the right to pour down his throat, misery, for himself, his family and friends. But what is alcohol imbibed compared to ducks. Ducks appeal to the appetite and satisfy the sportsman who would rather wade in water with wet feet all day to kill a duck than own a brewery.

Representative Mattson has taken a bold stand for ducks. He has made a beginning and he will accomplish all the things the Times said he would.

The Times took a square issue with the people as to the ability of Mr. Mattson to represent Roseau county and the people would not take the word of the Times and the man of promises was elected. We now acknowledge our mistake. The Times was deceived in his platform and did not know that the gentleman had other great ideas up his sleeve. It was ducks. The majority are to be congratulated upon their choice. DUCKS.

Since the above was in type, word comes from St. Paul that Mr. Mattson's proposition to shorten the time of duck shooting was turned down in the committee and the bill amended to apply to chickens.—Roseau County Times.

SHOEMAKER LEFT BETWEEN TWO DAYS AND HIS CREDITORS GRIEVE

BELIEVED THAT HE HAS LOCATED AGAIN IN DEVILS LAKE, NORTH DAKOTA

From Monday's Daily—

A few days ago John Kron, shoemaker who was located on South Main street left the city between two days, and there are a number of business men who are grieving.

It appears that Kron managed to get accommodations from fuel dealers and others, having borrowed some money from some business men, and promised to pay them with several others he owed on a certain date.

The night preceeding that date he took a train out of the city. Several railroad men state that they have seen him since in Devils Lake, and he will hear from his local creditors later if this is the case. As far as can be learned he said nothing to any of them, and it is certain that he gave no intimation to at least four of them that he was going or his luggage might have been stopped.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES HELD

LAST SAD RITES OVER REMAINS OF MRS. CHARLES LATTA THIS AFTERNOON

This afternoon the funeral services were held over the remains of Mrs. Chas. Latta at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sargent, 706 South Ash street, a short sermon having been preached by Rev. Willard S. Ward of the Presbyterian church. The house was filled with the friends of the bereaved family who desired to pay a last tribute of respect to one loved and honored by all who knew her. The floral tributes were numerous and aside from the individual contributions there was a special contribution "from the newspaper fraternity" of which the bereaved husband has been an honored member for years.

May E. Latta was 36 years and 7 months of age. She died at her home in Plummer at 2:15 a. m. last Friday as the result of on internal hemorrhage. Tho she had been ill for some time her condition had promised complete recovery until the attack which resulted in her death which was very sudden. She is the only surviving child of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sargent and her remains were laid to rest beside those of her sister, Miss Maude Sargent in Oakdale Cemetery, who died several years ago. Deceased came to Crookston from Rice county with her parents in 1879 and has lived in and near Crookston ever since, having moved to Plummer four years ago. She leaves three sons aged 7 5½ and 3 years respectively, and a sorrowing husband.

A specially sad feature of the funeral is that today is the 10th anniversary of her wedding which took place at the family residence where the funeral was held this afternoon, ten years ago this evening.

Deceased had been a faithful member of the Woman's Relief Corps in Crookston for years and that order attended the services today in a body and sent a special floral offering.

The pall bearers today were Messrs. John Crawford, Robert Cram, I. W. Kinder, Walter Stone, D. H. Turner and Archie Hillard.

The members of the stricken family have the deepest sympathy of all in their hour of sorrow. Deceased was loved and honored by all who knew her and her sudden death has cast a veil of sorrow over both Crookston and Plummer.

WHO OWNS THE AIR?

Ancient Legal Maxim Says Man Owns Land "Up to the Sky."

It is still a moot point whether or not the flying of airships over private property may be opposed by due process of law.

In England there is an ancient maxim embodied in the English common law which says, "He who owns the land owns it up to skies." This venerable rule, a legal authority points out, is as good today as ever it was and is full of menacing significance to the airship builder.

The effect of this rule is to give the owner of land the exclusive right to the free enjoyment of the air over and above the four corners of his holding, and any interference with that enjoyment, however apparently slight and harmless, constitutes a trespass, for which an action may be brought.

Applications for injunctions against airship owners and actions for trespass by aggrieved landowners are not unlikely proceedings in the near future.—New York Sun.

N. Y. C. PRESIDENT CLIMBED FROM BOTTOM

William C. Brown new president of the New York Central road, was once a railway telegraph operator in the twin cities. When H. L. Williams at various times assistant general super intendent in Minneapolis general manager of the Milwaukee system and now president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound road, was train dispatcher of the river division in Minneapolis more than 25 years ago, Brown was a telegraph operator at St. Paul and was frequently called upon to do a little dispatching himself. Mr. Williams later recommended Brown to the Burlington and he was made dispatcher at Beardstown, Ill.

Mr. Brown was a son of a Baptist minister at Lime Springs, Iowa, brother of the railroad station agent. Now the brother is traveling freight agent for the New York Central and W. C. Brown is president.

It was as section hand that Mr. Brown started railroading. He worked on the section at Thompson, Ill., between Savannah and Rock Island, on the old Racine & Southwestern road, now the Chicago & Council Bluffs division of the Milwaukee road.

BUILDING AT ADA GUTTED

FIRE DAMAGED THE MATTSON BLOCK THERE THIS MORNING AT 1 O'CLOCK

BANG RESTAURANT COMPLETELY DESTROYED—GROCERY STORE WAS DAMAGED

From Tuesday's Daily—

This morning a fire started by an explosion of a gasoline stove in the Martin Bang restaurant in Ada ruined everything in the restaurant and badly damaged the Whynot Grocery store in the same building, while the law office of Peter Mattson, who owns the building and has offices there was smoked out, but all his law books were carried out with but little damage.

The fire department did great work. The building is a frame structure in the center of a block with frame buildings on both sides but three streams of water soon had the fire under control tho the building is completely gutted. Had there been a wind the residents fear it would have been the worst fire in the history of Ada.

Bang's loss is $400 with no insurance.

SAYS FARMERS ARE IN GOOD SHAPE

LOTS OF PLOWING DONE AND ALL HAVE PLENTY OF SEED GRAIN

James A. Stroble, the agent for the St. Anthony and Dakota Elevator Co. at Angus spent last evening in the city on business, returning home this morning. Mr. Stroble is also the veteran assessor of that township and the county auditor says he is one of the best in the business.

Mr. Stroble says farmers around Angus are in fine shape for the coming year. They have lots of plowing done and have plenty of seed grain something that has been scarce among them, many of them having to buy from year to year.

He also says that very few places are shipping any more cream and butter than Angus—another most favorable sign.

OLD SETTLER PASSES AWAY

HANS H. BERG ONE OF THE FIF FARMERS IN POLK COUNTY

ENDURED MANY HARDS' IN EARLY DAYS—FIN PROSPERED

P. L. Berg of Climax was an arrival in the city this morning from Climax near where he resides on the old Stortroen farm south of Neby, which he purchased a few years ago dividing his time between looking after the farm and sinking artesian wells.

He brought the news of the death of Hans H. Berg of the town of Vineland one of the very first settlers in Polk county, who drove to the valley before the railroads were built, coming overland with an ox team. He settled on the homestead in Vineland where he lived till the end came on Jan. 7, after several years of illhealth tho he was confined to his bed but a week before he died.

He was a man highly thought of by his neighbors and general sympathy is extended to the bereaved wife and children.

Hans H. Berg was born in Toten, Nonway Dec. 7, 1839 and was the fourth of five children born to Hans and Kirstine (Olson) Hanson. His father was a farmer and blacksmith and deceased was reared in the same occupations. He remained at home until he was 25 years of age. After his marriage he came to America in 1867. He crossed the waters on a sailing vessel and five weeks and four days was consumed in the journey. He set sail from Christiania and landed at Quebec, from which point he went direct to Detroit and Chicago and thence to Freeborn County Minn. The first year of his residence there he hired out to others and then spent six years at the blacksmith trade.

He came to the Red River Valley in August 1873 in company with Hans Bangen, Ole O. Estenson and Peder A. Thompson making the trip with oxen and taking other stock along. It took one month to complete the journey. They arrived at their destination too late to break land and went to work cutting hay for stock. Mr. Berg built his own log house with his wife's assistance.

That summer he went to Oak Lake, Becker county, and filed on one hundred and thirty-five acres of land in section 10 of Vineland township and this tract has been his home continuously since that date till his death.

His first house was a log structure with no floor, door of windows. He later built a pleasant residence and was comfortably situated.

Mr. Berg marketed his first wheat at a flat-boat near Frog Point now Belmont. This boat was owned by Clark & McClure and the wheat was shipped north to Manitoba for seed there.

The Red River flood of 1897 following the hard snowy winter flooded the land around Mr. Berg's barn and he put his calves and sheep in the hay loft and kept his large stock outside on the prairie until the water subsided.

Mr. Berg was always deeply interested in the affairs of his township and during his early residence there served as chairman of the township board for six years. He was also interested in the educational advancement and served as school treasurer since the organization of school district No. 6 until his death.

Mr. Berg was married at the age of 2‑ years to Miss Tidna Thompson. Mrs. Berg died in 1884. Mr. Berg was later married to Miss Syverine Hanstad in 1886 and the following children were born to this union: Karine, Hilda Theresa, Emma, Sara, Hans Laura Marguritte, and Hanna Soffie. All of whom are living. Deceased is also survived by his wife.

Thus again has the superiority of our No. 1 hard wheat been recognized, the wheat that has made the Red River Valley famous.

A country that possesses a sail and climate capable of producing such excellent wheat oats, barley, flax and clover, as has been demonstrated in this contest, is bound to become rich and populous.

SLAYER OF GIRL DIES OF WOUND

GEORGE FITZMAURICE WILL NOT HAVE TO STAND TRIAL FOR HIS CRIME

RELATIVES OF DECEASED TAKE BODY TO HOME AT CRYSTAL FOR BURIAL

From Monday's Daily—

George Fitzmaurice who shot and killed Gusta Nelson, of Mohall N. D. in a fit of drunken rage because she was going to a party contrary to his wishes, died yesterday morning at 8:10 in a hospital at Minot where he had been hovering between life and death since January 26 the day of the tragedy. His death ends the interest of the state authorities in the case. Following the murder he had been placed formally under arrest altho there was no hope for his recovery at any time. The parents of the deceased who are residents of Crystal and his brothers and sisters were present when the end came. The body was shipped to Crystal for burial.

Popular as a Student

Fitzmaurice was about 33 years old and when a student at the University of North Dakotaa few years ago distinguished himself in athletics. He was a popular young man in those days. He attended the university from 1897 to 1902 and failed to graduate.

On the day of the murder he told Miss Nelson aged 18 years to whom he had been paying some attention that if she attended an entertainment that evening he would kill her. She paid no attntion to his talk as he often made rash statements when intoxicated.

Waited at the Door

Fitzmaurice drank more liquor and when Miss Nelson left her boarding place in company with a girl chum and Dick Teslow he was waiting with a gun. Miss Nelson ran backward toward the door saying: "My goodness are you going to shoot me."

Fitzmaurice fired and Miss Nelson fell to the ground. He then turned the revolver on himself and inflicted a fatal wound in his head.

There is a great deal of sympathy for his relatives who did everything in their power to reform him.

Suiting His Theory.

"When I hear of a new theory," said a scientist, "I am reminded of the two geologists. At a certain summer resort one brilliant afternoon the younger geologist from his bedroom window saw the older man rolling a great rock down the side of a mountain.

"He watched the work for nearly three hours. The old geologist, thin and little and white whiskered, had a hard time of it to guide that rock almost as big as himself. But he persevered. He got the rock down where he wanted it just as the dinner bell rang.

"The younger man said to him wonderingly at dinner:

"'What were you doing with that rock this afternoon, professor?'

"'Why,' the professor answered, 'the fact is the thing was 600 feet too high to suit my theory.'"

"Do you speak the truth?"

"Not always."

"Why not always?"

"I hate to be impolite."—Nashville American.

MRS. WRIGHT GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Cr/me harged Against Prisoner was Murder Of Young Girl She Adopted. No Eye Witnesses.

Devils Lake, N. D., Feb. 10—Guilty of manslaughter in the second degree and fixing the punishment at five years in the state penitentiary was the verdict in the case of the state vs. Mrs. Mary Wright charged with the mruder of her foster daughter Babe Wright at their home on a farm near this city last summer. The case has ben heard before Judge Cowan and has consumed all the time of the court for past several weeks. There was much testimony of a sensational nature introduced during the trial.

The defense set up the claim that the girl died of heart disease and the state claimed death was due to strangulation or suffocation at the hands of Mrs. Wright the prisoner.

Numerous depositions were made by people residing in the former home of Mrs. Wright and her daughter, as regards the character and the past life of the defendant and much of the testimony went to bear out the contention that she always lead a straight life.

The evidence that convicted the woman was the fact that she was seen to destroy a bloody handkerchief shortly after the death of the girl and a number of remarks that she made in the presence of witnesses regarding her relations with the murdered girl.

The story of the crime is familiar to all. The girl had been to a country dance and upon her return home engaged in a quarrel with her foster mother and the next morning the young woman's body was found cold in death upon her bed. Neighbors were called in by Mrs. Wright and it was at this time she dropped the remarks that lead first to her arrest and finally to her conviction yesterday evening. The jury went out at 2:45 i nthe afternoon and did not return the verdict until 9:15. The case will undoubtedly be appealed.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IS A NORWEGIAN

DEERFIELD NEWS, WIS., NEWS STATES THAT HE WAS BORN ON A FARM OWNED LATER BY HALVOR BJOIN FATHER OF OLE H. AND THOMAS BJOIN OF THIS CITY—THEIR MARRIED SISTER, MRS. OLE KLONGLAND IS NOW LIVING ON THE FARM—DESCRIPTION TALLIES CLOSELY WITH THAT OF THE OIL KING

John D. Rockefeller is a Norwegian. At least that the way the Deerfield Wis., News has it figured out, and what makes the story published by that paper particularly interesting to Crookston people is that Rockefeller alleged father, Torbjon Berrenuten at the time John D. was born resided on a 40 acre farm which he later sold to Halvor Bjoin father of Ole H. and Thomas Bjoin of this city, and at the present time their sister, Mrs. Ole Klongland is residing on the same tract, it having been bought by them following the sale of the property after the death of Halvor Bjoin, which occurred three years ago the coming spring. Ole H. and Thomas Bjoin are very much interested in the story published in the Deerfield News, under date of Jan. 20 which is as follows:

"Reliable evidence has come to this office that John D. Rockefeller is a Norwegian. His father, it is now figured was Torbjon Berrenuten and he lived on a 40 acre piece of land in the town of Pleasant Spring, Dane Co., Wis., six miles south of this place which is now owned by Halvor Bjoin.

Berrenuten died in 1860. He had a daughter who was married to a wealthy Watertown man. He also had a son who was considerably younger. Berrenuten took a trip to the southern states and while there gave his son away to a well-to-do family. The age of the boy corresponds so the neighbors say, and he has many of the characteristics of young Berrenuten.

"Berrenuten was a tall gaunt man very powerful, and in many ways brilliant. It is told of him that once when he borrowed a fanning mill, he put a rope around it and carried to to his home a couple of miles away. Another time he borrowed a wagon box of a neighbor, flung it upon his back and carried it to his place a mile away.

"He was witty and entertaining in conversation, and his mental makeup was in many ways identical with that of Rockefeller's. His face, shape of head and baldness of pate also bear a striking resemblance to the Oil King."

On this same subject Joseph Bartles father of Chas. Bartles of Grand Forks and president of the Bartles Oil company of St. Paul, and of the Bartles Dakota Oil company of Grand Forks was for 15 years connected with the Standard Oil company, and knew John D. Rockefeller intimately. He has a fund of anecdotes concerning the oil magnate which are quite interesting. In a recent interview in the St. Paul Dispatch in which he had a column article, among other things he said:

"There always was some mystery about John D.'s father. Some time ago there was a story to the effect that he was a horse trader in North Dakota and that he died there recently without being acknowledged by his son. The old man was said to have been a sport and was fond of horse racing." The Dakota man referred to was Dr. Livingstone.

Waiters on Horseback.

In great French houses of days gone by dinner was announced by the blowing of hunting horns, and it is on record that at certain gala feasts the dishes were brought in by servants in full armor mounted upon caparisoned horses, a practice we could only look for during the reign of chivalry. Of the attendants at dinner the carver and server took precedence over all the others. They stood probably on each side of their lord. The server, it may be mentioned, was the officer who placed the dishes on the table.

Buddhist Ceremonies.

Some Buddhist ceremonies present a striking analogy to certain Christian rites. An old missionary says: "The very titles of their intercessions, such as 'goddess of mercy,' 'holy mother,' 'queen of heaven,' with an image of the virgin having a child in her arms holding a crescent, are all such striking coincidences that the Catholic missionaries were greatly stumbled at the resemblances between Chinese worship and their own when they came over to convert the natives to Christianity."—London Standard.

BLOODY FIGHT IN E.G. FORKS

TWO EMPLOYES IN GREAT NORTHERN FREIGHT DEPOT ENGAGE IN FIGHT

ONE STABBED SERIOUSLY AND IS IN HOSPITAL—OTHER MAN IN JAIL

From Monday's Daily—

Last night Chas. Laughlin and Jas. Dunn, employes in the Great Northern freight depot at East Grand Forks got into a fight the origin of which is not yet known, with the result that Laughlin stabbed Dunn with a sharp office spindle used to hang bills on.

Dunn bled profusely and was hurried to the hospital and Laughlin was placed under arrest and will be arraigned late this afternoon charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. The seriousness of Dunn's injuries cannot be told for a day or two, and complications may set in which will make them fatal.

OLD SETTLERS OF EUCLID.

AN ASSOCIATION WAS ORGANIZED AT MEETING HELD LAST FRIDAY EVENING

OFFICERS ELECTED AND THOROLY GOOD TIME ENJOYED—MEET FEB. 19

From Monday's Daily—

On Friday evening, last nearly 100 of the old settlers of Euclid gathered in the town hall at that place and enjoyed an old-fashioned good time. The early part of the evening was given up to an interesting program, some of the special features of which were a couple of well rendered male quartets some fine German solos by Paul Useldinger and Charlie Habick, a few good readings and last but not least, an original song by Dr. Chapin. After this came a few impromptu speeches, notably one by Mr. John Goodwin, the mayor of Key West.

It was unanimously voted to organize an Old Settlers Club with Dr. Chapin as president, Peter Stuhr, secretary, and Mrs. Nelson, treasurer. The club will meet again on Friday Feb. 19th when the constitution and by-laws will be adopted and signed.

After the literary and business part of the program was disposed of, the remainder of the evening was given over to cards and dancing, and the service of a bountiful supper.

That the organization of this club is a step in the right direction is the universal opinion, as it cannot but prove helpful as well as entertaining, and it shows a progressive spirit among the people of the community.

The spirit of good-fellowship has long been dominant in Euclid, but it has remained for the Old Settlers Club to demonstrate the fact in the fullest degree.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Crookston Citizens Can Tell You All About It

Home endorsement, the public expression of Crookston people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Crookston reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

R. G. Burkhardt, bookkeeper, Robert and Ash Sts., Crookston, Minn., says: "It is a pleasure for me to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills as they proved their remarkable value by removing pains of a rheumatic nature from my back and limbs. I was also greatly bothered by weak kidneys and I knew this caused the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly recommended that I procured a box at Wallace's drug store and began using them. I improved immediately and continued taking them until the pains in my back disappeared. My present good health is due to Doan's Kidney Pills."

LEMONS RAISED IN CROOKSTON

AGENT W. E. HANDY OF N. P. GOES CORN RAISERS ONE BETTER

HAD LEMON PIE YESTERDAY FROM LEMONS PLUCKED FROM HIS OWN TREES

From Monday's Daily—

While this has been termed the "Banana Belt" no one ever tried raising bananas in the Red River Valley There has been much crowing since it has been demonstrated that corn, apples and all small fruits can be successfully raised in this section.

However it remained with W. E. Handy to make the master stroke. Yesterday at his home a lemon pie was served made from lemons raised on a tree within the city limits of Crookston, Polk County, Minn.

This is no pipe dream or fairy tale. It is a fact. The lemon was picked from the tree about a week ago and the pie was made yesterday. The flavor was fine, Mr. Handy says, just a little superior to southern raised fruits.

Now let the people of Iowa and Illinois sit up and take notice. "Come on up and have a lemon pie with us," should be the P. S. added to letters sent to friends and relatives in the cold middle states.

PRINTING PLANT AUCTIONED OFF

OUTFIT OF GEORGE A. WHEELER & CO. AND MID-WEST CO. BRINGS $3,000

The plant of Geo. A. Wheeler & Co. at Grand Forks was sold at Sheriff's sale Saturday and Dr. L. L. Eckman was the purchaser. He paid $3,000 for the plant. After deducting the amount claimed for taxes and the costs of the seizure and sale Receiver Edmunds turned over the balance to the Union National Bank, which held a mortgage on the outfit for $3,059.87. George A. Wheeler served notice on Deputy Sheriff Benson that he would redeem the property. He has five days in which to redeem it. The plant is invoiced at $12,100.

This is one of the oldest job plants in Grand Forks. The oldest, barring the Herald.

SARAH FRAZIER TO REFORM SCHOOL

INCORRIGIBLE E GRAND FORKS GIRL 14 YEARS OF AGE TAKEN AWAY TODAY

Deputy Sheriff Pat Sullivan arrived from East Grand Forks this afternoon in charge of Sarah Frazier of East Grand Forks who has been committed to the State Reform School at Red Wing.

The girl is one of the worst as far as being wild is concerned, that ever bobbed up from the west end of Polk Co. She has run the complete gamut of experiences from a sensational elopement down. She got as far as Devils Lake travelling as a man's daughter, and her extreme youthful appearance caused no suspicions till officers went after the man on another charge when their pretty plans were all sent awry.

The girl will now serve an indeterminate sentence at Red Wing in the hope that she may be reformed.

London on American Clothes.

Observes the London Chronicle: "In London the man who demands respect has his clothes made for him. But no New York man who is not a millionaire or near it buys anything but store clothes. And the ready made clothes are so standardized that you have but to confess your inches and you are clothed in America."

Public Opinion.

The single snowflake—who cares for it? But a whole day of snowflakes—who does not care for that? Private opinion is weak, but public opinion is almost omnipotent.

POLICE DID GOOD WORK

TOM TORVELL ARRESTED ADMITTED HE STOLE THE MISSING FEED

WAS FINED $15 AND COSTS, TOTALING $25 BY JUDGE GOSSMAN

From Saturday's Daily—

Chief Eck and his force did some clever work by locating the man who stole the 13 sacks of feed which were left outside the S. C. Johnson last Monday evening by Geo. Traston a farmer east of this city who was to call for them.

Following a clue Chief Eck yesterday sent Cat. Vonderbeck to arrest Tom Torvell, who resides north of Gentilly. The feed was found in Traston's sacks, Torvell was arrested brought before Judge Gossman yesterday afternoon and his fine and costs amounted to over $25.

Torvellsonly comment to Chief Eck was "How the d—l did you know it was me that stole it "

TERRIFIC BLOW CRUSHES FACE

CHRIS GUNDERSON OF FARGO IN NEAR FATAL ACCIDENT AT DILWORTH

From Saturday's Daily—

Struck squarely in the left side of the face by a portion of a scantling thrown with terrific force, from a circular saw it is believed, Chris Gunderson, of Fargo was possibly fatally hurt at the Northern Pacific yards at Dilworth yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock.

Gunderson is employed by the N. P. as car repairer. He was engaged in regular work when dealt the terrific blowwhich rendered him unconscious. The exact cause of the accidentcould not be ascertained.

The sight of the left eye was destroyed and the cheek bone crushed in. He is a man of about 40 years. A wife and family reside in Fargo.

"GUILTY BUT NOT PROVEN"

PARAGRAPH IN THE JOURNAL REGARDING PATTEWAY TRIAL MISINTERPRETED

In Thursday's issue of the Journal at the conclusion of an article headed "Patteway Acquitted" which had reference to his last trial which was for robbing the Guarantee Clothing Store, the following comment was made:

> "During the last trial the court room was again packed, the case of the colored man having aroused intense interest, many thinking that he was convicted the first time because he was colored."

A number of people have made inquiries regarding the article, having received the impression that the Journal believed Patteway was innocent of robbing the Merchants Bank.

No such thought ever occurred to the author of the article. The Journal never doubted Patteway's guilt either in the bank case nor in the clothing case which was tried last. What the Journal did mean to say was that many who attended the trial did not believe that the Evidence presented would have convicted a white man who was as ably defended. The Journal has never heard a single person express the belief that Patteway was innocent. The general sentiment is that it was a case of "Guilty but not proven". For instance the evidence in the last case was much stronger than in the bank case. The money stolen could not be identified. The clothing in the last case was absolutely identified. and was found in Patteway's trunk. His only defense was that he had secured the goods in a Minneapolis pawnshop. Still the jury acquitted him.

This fully explains the statement in the Journal that many thought he was convicted in the first trial "because he was colored" not because he was innocent, but because his guilt was not as clearly proven to suit many and on top of it all must be remembered that those who expressed such opinions had been listening to Atty. McGhee who had striven in every way to impress that same fact, that were it not for his color Patteway would be promptly acquitted. His address had more effect on the audience, evidently, than it had on the jury sitting in the case.

The Journal hopes that its position is now clearly understood. It was publishing the news, not voicing its own sentiments by any means.

The hard drinker is usually an easy one.

SEVEN STITCHES OVER HIS EYE

Wednesday afternoon as Trainer Will Keenan who has charge of the Lycan string was jogging the Walsh colt, a passing auto frightened the animal and he wheeled short tipped over the rig and began plunging and kicking fiercely.

Trainer Keenan is not one of the kind to let loose of the reins and tho he received a vicious kick, laying open the flesh over the right eye to such an extent that seven stitches were necessary to close the wound, he held to the reins and stoppd the frightened horse.

HIS BANK ACCOUNT GROWS STEADILY

John P. Georgen one of the progressive farmers near Euclid for the past 21 years was in the city the other day on one of his regular trips which he makes every two weeks with butter and other produce. He has regular customers in the city the year around who take all the butter he can make from his 18 cows. Mr. Georgen has 50 head of cattle and is gradually increasing his herd. He also raises several hundred bushels of potatoes every year and last year he sold the entire crop at an average of 75 cents per bushel. His real early potatoes he sold readily at $1.50 per bushel and gradually the price went down till in the fall he disposed of the balance at 60 cents. This crop also netted him a neat sum. His last trip to the city he had his Journal pegged ahead for another year. It might be stated also, that during the past 21 years Mr. Georgen's bank deposit has been growing steadily.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR CROOKSTON

HOME BAKERY DEPARTMENT TO BE ESTABLISHED BY SLOCUM GROCERY CO.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION FOR A BIG MANUFACTURING PLANT —WIDE FIELD

From Saturday's Daily—

The Slocum Grocery Company decided upon a new and very important branch to the business, a branch that promises to grow vastly bigger than the business of which it will be started as an addition, by the establishment of a home bakery department.

What It Means

This should not be confused with a bakery in the ordinary acceptation of the term, but rather a plant along the line of those maintained by Geo. H. Wilder of Grand Forks, Yerxa and others, of Minneapolis and St. Paul, and other large metropolitan stores in which an immense business is worked up and catered to in outside towns, and tributary to Crookston there is a vast field for operations with ideal shiping facilities in all directions.

The Products

In addition to bread, which is really a side issue, everything in the line of pastry will be baked, candies manufactured, saratoga chips, baked beans, salads prepared and everything of that kind turned out ready for the table. There is practically no limit to the products in that line.

A Metropolitan Move

This is ametropolitan move, and means that the people of Crookston and surrounding territory will be given all the advantages enjoyed by people of St. Paul and Minneapolis. Products of the department will be shipped to any point and there is hardly any limit to the possibilities with no similar institution operating in Northern Minnesota.

Not Competing with Bakeries

The establishment is not in any way competing with the local bakeries tho some of the products will naturally be the same, but the idea is to make the Slocum grocery strictly metropolitan and give the people the same service they can secure in the larger grocery stores of the big cities and at the same time give surrounding towns the same advantage.

A Model Plant

Mr. Slocum has matured all his plans. He spent last week in Minneapolis inspecting the similar departments in the large grocery stores there, getting the very latest ideas and also conferred with dealers in the necessary machinery and equipment, and everything installed will be of the latest and most improved design, capable of the highest class of products.

Secured Competent Man

A. R. Faust a thoroly competent man has been secured who will begin at once to partition a large room the entire length of the spacious store room at the rear of the Slocum Block which will be planned with every convenience for the new department and it is expected that the machinery will be installed and the plant ready for operation by March 15 and perhaps before that time. Mr. Faust comes from Glendive, Montana but prior to going there had valuable experience in Minneapolis and St. Paul and is a high class man.

High Class Trade

The department will be a model of cleanliness, and will at all times be open to the inspection of the public. It is the intention to cater to parties either in the city or at any outside point. Orders can be sent in from any part of this territory and will be filled and shipped promptly.

Great Possibilities

Mr. Slocum believes that this department as started will be the foundation of a manufacturing plant the possibilities of which there is scarcely any limit. The field here is broad almost without limit, and there is no reason why the industry should not grow to such proportions that a separate plant with many employes will be necessary, and the industry one of the most important of any in Crookston.

It is simply another step of Crookston towards assuming more metropolitan propositions and means that the smaller cities and villages tributary to this city can get a service which heretofore they could not secure.

It means that they will have to look to Crookston more than ever before.

ADVERTISING CROOKSTON

JUDGE HALE OF RECENT POULTRY SHOW HAS KIND WORDS FOR THIS CITY

PRAISES POULTRY, CITY, AND THE MANNER IN WHICH THE SHOW WAS CONDUCTED

From Saturday's Daily—

Conventions of any kind advertise a city. Many people who are called upon to contribute toward defraying the expenses of a convention feel as though it was a donation pure and simple, when as a matter of fact it should be looked upon as on investment which will bring abundant returns. D. E. Hale officiated as judge at the Poultry Show held here in December and is associate editor of the Western Poultry Journal which has an immense circulation thruout the central states and following is the conclusion of an article which appears in the latest issue of that Journal:

But after visiting Santa Claus we had to hike for Crookston. Surprised? Well, I should say yes. We expected to find a town of about 3,000 but we found one between 8,000 and 10,000 and everything real meropolitan. The poultry show. Well, it was the prettiest set up show I ever saw and that is saying a good deal. In the first place the boys showed their high forehead in putting Mrs. Mitchell in as secretary, for she knows her business and was there early and late doing her work well and infusing a spirit of sunshine that spread thru the whole show. Of course Mr. Mitchell was there hustling all the time, but he is willing to give Mrs. Mitchell all the credit. The boys have made their own cooping system regulation size, painted blue, covered and partitioned with white muslin that certainly showed the birds off fine.

They had a good sized hall so the cages were only single decked and certainly looked swell. Another year they will try and coop each bird singly. There was plenty of quality, especially in all the Rocks, White and Buff Leghorns, Orpingtons, Hamburgs, Polish W. F. Spanish and Pit Games. These were all large and fine classes. We heard no complaint here about birds being late and under weight. Here we have birds raised way north, you might save 98 per cent of them up to weight, with one White Rock cockerel weighing 9 3-4 pounds.

Just to show they are hustling all the time, they elected Mr. Saugstad to the legislature. He is one of the leading exhibitors, showed a big string won his share of the ribbons and promises to help us all he can to get that appropriation for a chair at the agricultural college. By the way, we elected the same kind of a man from our home county, Olmstead County, Minn. It is time the chicken men made their wants known and use their vote right it is bound to count and command respect for the business.

Crookston has a good crowd of enthusiastic Pit Game breeders, showing about twenty cockerels. We judged them the only real way to judge Pit Games and there was no doubt about the winners and everyone seemed pleased. Don't you score Pit Games is often asked. Oh, yes, every time he scores a knockout he moves nearer the blue ribbon. It don't go everywhere, but it does some places and is the only real way. We are writing this at Rockwell City and from here we expect to get home for Christmas and see if the folks will know us.

HOUSE KILLS COUNTY OPTION

BILL IS BURIED BY A MAJORITY OF TWENTY-NINE VOTES, NO DEBATE PERMITTED

SEVERAL MEMBERS IN EXPLAINING THEIR VOTES, PROTEST SUPPRESSION OF SPEECH

From Friday's Daily—

St. Paul, Feb. 5—County option was given a two year set-back yesterday when the house defeated A. K. Ware's bill by a vote of 44 to 73. The opponents of the bill refused to accord a hearing to those in favor of the measure, by voting to eliminate all debate on the question. The latter motion was carried by a vote of 66 to 51.

When the house was called to order by Speaker Rockne at 11 o'clock today the galleries were filled with spectators who evidently anticipated a clash between the backers and opponents of the measure. That mast of the onlookers were county optionists was apparent when they applauded each member who voted in favor of the bill Their enthusiasm became so rampant that Representative L. H. Johnson, of Minneapolis, arose to a point of order and requested the speaker to have the rules of the house enforced, which prohibit demonstrations of such character.

The majority report of the committee on temperance, recommending the indefinite postponement of the bill, and the minority report, advising its passage had barely been read by the clerk when R. J. Wells of Breckenridge, moved the previous question.

The motion was not debatable but that rule did not prevent several members from speaking to the main question by explaining their votes.

Protests against the application of gag rule were made by Representatives Lennon, McKenzie, Washburn, White and Ware, the author of the bill.

The Vote in Detail

The vote on the motion to adopt the minority report which would give the bill a chance for its life, was as follows:

Ayes—44

Adams, Bendixen, Bicknell, Bjorge, Burnquist, Campbell, Carlson, Conley, Davies, Davis, Ferguson, Gates, Haugland, Holmberg, Holten, Horton, Johnson, C. E Johnson, J. N. Johnson, J. WILL GO TO ALBERTA FARM

Bert Neill, the well known and good natured brakesman on the Fargo-St. Vincent run who resides in this city, will leave this spring for his farm in Alberta where he will spend the summer, He is going to take four fine oxen up with him and will do a stunt at breaking up land that will surprise the natives. He never drove oxen before and is going to establish a new code for their guidance, instead of "whoa, haw, gee, buck" he is going to use the regular train signals on them, and expects by this mthod to get greater speed with less friction.

ITCHING ECZEMA FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

Suffered Torments from Birth — Boils Formed as Big as Walnuts —In Frightful Condition and Could Hardly Work — Tried All Kinds of Remedies to No Avail — At Last

WHOLLY CURED IN 8 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frightful condition. At last my blood was so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my whole body, but I kept from scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was confident they would benefit and, in time, cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that, if they will use them according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of the above can write to Mr. Burnett, who will cheerfully vouch for my statements.

"Hale Bordwell, R. F. D. 3, Cedar Corners. Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907."

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Bordwell and know the condition he was in. He never tires of praising the Cuticura Remedies.

"Nelson R. Burnett, Tipton, Ia."

MAKE QUICK WORK OF EMBEZZLER

JAMES E. McDONALD IS TAKEN TO THE PENITENTIARY FROM RUGBY

Pierce County, N. D., authorities made quick work of James E. McDonald, telegraph operator for the Great Northern at Rugby who was arrested last Friday on a charge of embezzling funds belonging to the Western Union company.

McDonald was nabbed at Casselton by the Great Northern detectives Friday and was taken to Rugby. He was on No. 3 on his way out of the state, it is thought.

He was taken before the authorities at Rugby and pleaded guilty getting one year in the penitentiary.

Sheriff Erickson of Pierce county yesterday took McDonald to the penitentiary at Bismarck.

GUILTY OF SUNDAY OPENING

The last case to be considered by the special term of the district court which convened last Tuesday was disposed of at an after supper session last evening, being the trial of Kittleson and Holte of East Grand Forks charged with keeping open on Sundays. The jury reached an agreement of guilty after being out nearly all night.

A stay of 20 days was granted.

In the assault case in whichOle Myrben charged his bartender, Hans Wang with having assaulted him. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty. This was an appeal case from the municipal court of East Grand Forks.

FAIR ASSOCIATION IS IN FINE SHAPE

The annual meeting of the Red Lake County Agricultural Association was held recently at Thief River Falls Dr. G. A. Penny the secretary of the association made his annual report and it showed that the association is in a prosperous condition. The dates for the fair this year will be Wednesday Thursday and Friday, August 4, 5 and 6. As the lease on the fair grounds expires this year, a committee was appointed to select a new location.

FEAST FOR RNIG FRIENDS

J. L. SULLIVAN PLANNING TO REVIVE ANCIENT MEMORIES AT SEATTLE EXPOSITION

WILL GIVE REPRODUCTIONS OF GREAT BATTLES, USING MEN WHO FOUGHT THEM

Seattle, Feb. 6—Having dipped generously into about everything else, John L. Sullivan is about to launch himself into occultism.

The one time champion of all the "champs" is planning a resurrection, or a materialization, or some other psychic stunt and as a result of it, so he declares, the pugilistic ghosts of othera days will be conjured to do their turn for a little time, as they did it in the days of the greensward and the skin tight glove.

It seems something like a century and a half now, since the oBston boy laid Paddy Ryan low on the banks of the lower Mississippi. To be accurate, it was in 1883 that the one good Irishman was laid away by a better one and the question of the championship brought down out of the air.

It was a whole lot later than that, but almost as long ago, so far as memory serves, that Jake Kilrain was planted on the same well greased toboggan and between that time and this there has been many another good man sent on his way to the place where all good mittmen go, via the same route.

It is these ghostly shadows of the past that Sullivan would bring back into the theater of events, that present generations may see what manner of man it was who fought when nothing save pistols was barred and the anvil was considered a legitimate weapon of offense.

It is in Seattle that Sullivan plans this wholesale revivification of the dead ones. He has arranged with the directorate of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition for a concession on the "Pay Streak" and there he will set up a ring of the old days—not a ring with a velvet carpet on the floor and a lot of sofa pillows stuck around, but a real turf ring, with a rock or two here and there to make it feel homelike—and with the four posts jerked from a farmer's fence, with the nails left in them. There will be none of your cozy corners, says John L. for either principals or seconds.

And through the ropes will go those pugs of the other day and some of a later day, who still were fighters, for Kid Lavigne will be among those present and there is none to say he was not a grand little man, who took the gaff and liked it when it came his way.

Charley Mitchell, traditional rival of the Boston lad, is in with Sullivan on the real and stranger things could happen than that they two should get together in the late autumn of their careers to settle that long mooted question—they came near to a mill only a pair of years ago.

Sullivan has also pulled Jake Kilrain out of the never never land, and Peter Maher, champion of Ireland, it is announced, will repeat that celebrated Mexican experience of his. Joe Choynski, one of the greatest of the old ones, who still lays claim to a punch, will be another, and there is many a man today in fistina who remembers the time Choynski and Jim Corbett went up San Francisco Bay on a barge to have it out.

"I forgot my gloves," said Joe when the barge came to anchor.

"Take these," said Corbett, "and cut the fingers off them," and he pulled from his pocket a pair of driving gloves with beautifully sewed silk welts down the backs of them. An hour later these same welts had made the bank clerk's face look like an unimproved hamburger steak. It was only the foolish or uninformed who after that said Corbett had the streak in him.

That Corbett will be one of them, may not be said, for—bless you, man—he is now talking of tearing Jack Johnson's head off and throwing it in his face and it is not seemly that ghosts should talk like that.

But if Corbett isn't, the rest of the old guard will be, an even score of them, and it will be such a show as will touch the hearts of the right ones, and be a lesson to those today chaps who settle their differences with cream puffs at twenty paces.

DECREASED R.R.EARNINGS

STATEMENT FOR LAST HALF OF 1908 SHOWS SUBSTANTIAL LOSS OVER 1907.

OMAHA ROAD AND THE M. & ST. L. REPORT GREATER NET INCOME THAN IN 1907.

The statement of the earnings and expenses of the Great Northern system for the six months ending Dec. 31, 1908, shows a decided falling off in the income of the road as compared with the six months ending Dec. 31, 1907. The operating expenses for the last half of 1907 amounted, after deductions for expenses, to $12,858,712.34, while for the last half of 1908 the the operating income was $12,492,100.27, showing a decrease of $366,612.07, or a little less than three per cent.

In the operating income of the road there was a decrease of $3,700,325.52, or more than 10 per cent, but the adoption of a policy of retrenchment and a reduction in the expenses of the road along almost every line, together with careful management, served to counter-balance a large part of this. The total operating expenses were cut $3,512,928.26, or about 17 per cent.

The heaviest decrease was in the revenue from freight traffic, where there was a decrease from $26,441,193.87, to $23,175,892.28. or $3,265,301.59. In the passenger department the decrease was not quite so marked, tho it amounted to $543,499.49.

The percentage of decrease for December was less than for the preceding six months. The total operating revenues of the road for that month were $4,135,634.42. This is $453,561.14, or about 9 per cent, less than the revenues for December, 1907.

While the figures show that business improved somewhat in December, as compared with the months immediately preceding, the actual operating income showed a greater decrease compared with December, 1907, than the decrease of the six months ending Dec. 31, 1908, comparel with the six months ending Dec. 31, 1907. The operating income for December, 1908, compared with December 1907, shows a decrease of $106,349.82, or over 7 per cent.

Omaha Road Did Well

For the six months ending Dec. 31, 1908, the gross earnings of the Omaha road were $7,137,739, and the net income was $333,662 greater than for the same period in 1907. The gain was made through reductions in operating expenses.

WANT GOOD REPUBLICANS

MINNESOTA SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN ARE NONE TOO AMIABLE.

THE GOPHER DELEGATION FEELS THAT THE PRESIDENT HAS NOT BEEN DIPLOMATIC.

Washington, Feb. 6—Minnesota senators and members of the house are not in the most amiable frame of mind during the closing months of this administration.

It is evident from talking with them that they feel that efforts along certain lines have not been successful for the reason that the president at sundry times has made appointments without consulting with either one of the senators and with no member of the house.

One of the senators in speaking of this the other day, said: "We would not care so much, if the president would appoint good, able republicans to positions of responsibility, for we consider his administration as republican. But when he names prominent democrats for official favor, men who have run for office on the democratic ticket and then turn around and say they are republicans, it certainly puts the Minnesota delegation in Washington in a bad light at home."

The reference to democratic appointments applies specifically to the case of M. J. Costello, for years private secretary to Mayor Smith, of St. Paul, who is now on the road as a special field agent, and to Gustave Scholle who is to enter the diplomatic service as secretary to some foreign embassy.

None of the Minnesota delegation has aught to say against either of these men. In fact, they are on friendly terms personally with them, but they would not think of indorsing them for an office. But their appointment by the chief executive renders it practically impossible to secure the appointment of two republicans, since all Minnesota appointments are charged to that state.

Stevens Smiles, But Is Mum.

Congressman Fred C. Stevens smiles when he hears of the designation of Gustav Scholle, his whilom opponent for congress, for preference in the diplomatic service. Everybody likes Mr. Scholle, who supported Taft, but the boys at home would like to know what is doing in Washington, anyway, when the good republican workers are left out while democrats pluck some rich, ripe fruit. For, be it known, the appointments of Scholle, and Ambassador Riddle, at St. Petersburg, who is also classed as democratic, are charged up to the state, and there are not many big places abroad for a state like Minnesota.

Tawney May Tilt.

The legislative, executive and judicial bill carrying the increase of salary for the president-elect, is now in the hands of the conference committee between the two houses. Representative Tawney, chairman of the house committee on appropriations, has stated that he will not oppose the increase. Mr. Tawney believes in liberal salaries for high officials. But he may tilt some of Mr. Roosevelt's pet schemes before the session is over He fought the two-battleship proposition hard the other day, and is opposed to many of the increases in the army. When the sundry civil bill is reported, look out for a rejuvenation of the secret service fight.

Davis the Insurgent.

Congressman C. R. Davis is sore at the Cannon regime which still flourishes in the house with unbroken sway. He has been trying to persuade Gardener of Massachusetts to announce his candidacy for speaker. Davis declares that notwithstanding the strong public sentiment that is back of his bill for government appropriations for agricultural schools, he will not be able to do anything with it this session because the cards are stacked against him.

J. Adam Bede contents himself by telling how he will devote himself to the inland waterways, even in defeat. He also tells an occasional new story. This is his latest: "The other day Senator Stone, of Missouri, whom Tillman designated as Gum Shoe Bill, met Congressman Ira Wood, of New Jersey. It was on a corner and just as the senator and member were about to shake hands a handsomely dressed and dashing appearing woman came by. Now, there is nothing strange in that, is there?" continued Mr. Bede, "but it is a fact that Stone first turned to Wood an then Wood turned to Stone, and then they both turned to rubber."

PAPER FOR THE JESUITS

MANY PROMINENT CLERGYMEN WILL BE ASSOCIATED WITH N. Y. PUBLICATION.

New York, February 6—Prominent Jesuits are here to form the staff of a new weekly review, to be printed in magazine form, which is to represent the Catholic point of view of both spiritual and temporal affairs. Its contributors and correspondents in all parts of the world will number between four and five hundred, and already it has placed its bureaus in the capitals of Europe.

Rev. Father John J. Wynne, noted Jesuit scholar and one of the editors of the Catholic Cyclopedia, is to be in charge. The offices are in the old Hicks Lord mansion, at No. 32 Washington Square West, famous in the social history of New York. The editors will live in them ansion, where they will do their work, while the details of the publishing are to be carried on in another part of the city.

The publication will be modeled on the plan of the Tablet the leading Roman Catholic organ of Great Britain, and in form it will be of the long pamphlet variety which is used by try will be the Outlook.

The nucleus of the review is the zine, which is being published at Fordham University under Jesuit auspices, and part of the staff of the monthly is to be transferred to the new weekyet been determined upon, as that and the London Spectator and other literary reviews abroad. The weekly periodical nearest akin to it in this counMessenger, a high class literary magaly. The name of the review has not other matters are to come up before the council, which is soon to convene.

Plans for the review have been under consideration for the last two years, and it has the sanction of the pope and of Archbishop Farley. While the periodical is not designated as the official organ of the Catholic Church, it will be looked upon as the mouthpiece of Catholic thought and as representative of Catholic ideals.

Editors of the review were chosen three weeks ago at a convention of the Jesuit order in St. Louis. The first of the staff to reach here is Rev. Father M. J. O'Connor, of Omaha, until recently vice president of Creighton university. He, as well as most of the staff, have resigned important executive positions in order to enter this new field.

Father O'Connor and Rev. Father E. P. Spillane, of the Messenger, will devote themselves specially to the American branch of the church and to the study of conditions generally throughout the United States. They will have under their direction a large corps of correspondents in the important centers of the country.

Rev. Father Dominick Giacobbi, of Spokane, Wash., will look after the Italian and Austrian interests. Rev. Father Henry Drummond, who has given up the vice-presidency of St. Boniface university in Manitoba, will look after the English, Canadian and French news, while Rev. Father Betten, until lately professor of history in St. Louis university, will have charge of the German interests.

There are to be several other members of the central staff, but their names are not to be announced until a later date. Contributions, however, are nt limited to the Jesuit order, although the society will have general editorial supervision, and those who write will have in view a clientele composed of representative clergy and laity.

The literary department of the publication will suggest the Spectator of London, although it will be somewhat more popular than the Athenaeum. Special attention will be paid to South American countries and conditions there will be carefully reported. The course of the immigrants who come to the United States will be minutely followed. The policy of the journal will be not only to give correct views, but to broaden the Catholics and to bring them closely in touch with the national life. It is believed the first number will be issued about Easter.

SWAN TORKELSON DRAWS TWO AND HALF YEARS

Ex-Sheriff Of Clearwatar County Is Convicted Of Serious Charge Juror Fined For Being Intoxicated.

The second week of court at Bagley for Clearwater county is well under way and from present indications the session will last during the greater part of next week.

One of the sensational trials of the term was that of the State of Minnesota vs. Ex-Sheriff Swan Torkelson of this place who has been found guilty on two serious charges. Torkelson was yesterday sentenced by Judge McClenahan to two years and a half in the state prison at Stillwater.

Judge McClenahan also sentenced G. A Melland to twenty-four hours in jail and his forfeit of his per diem and mileage, and excused him from further service as a juryman, Mr. Melland having reported for duty in an intoxicated condition.

The jury sworn in in the case of the State of Minnesota vs. J. H. Ferris, indicted for grand larceny in the second degree brought in a verdict for the defendant.

Charles Payne, indicted on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to petit larceny and was fined $100 or ninety days in the Beltrami county jail.

But little has been done as yet with the civil calendar. A number of minor cases have been settled out of court. A few of the more important cases will be tried at this term, and a number of cases have set to be tried at chambers in Bemidji at some future date suitable to the parties to the different suits.

Court work in Cleanwater County has been behind for some time owing to the vast amount of work devolving on the two judges. Judge McClenahan intends to finish as much of the work as can be done at this time.

STOCK ROOTS

By Supt. A. J. McGuire of the Grand Rapids Experimental Farm.

Stock roots under ordinary field conditions yield from 10 to 15 tons per acre; from 350 to 550 bushels. When the soil is very fertile, and given extra care, they may be made to yield as high as 30 tons or 1000 bushels per acre.

The cost of growing roots taking everything into consideration, such as value of land, cost of machinery seed, labor, etc., need not exceed $25 per acre, or from $1 to $1.75 per ton. Two acres of stock roots are grown on the experiment farm every year They are grown in rotation with barley, clover and peas. They are sown with a garden drill in rows 24 inches apart. When the plants appear above ground they are gone over with a wheel hoe and later with a horse cultivator every week thruout the growing season.

When the plants are about two inches high they are thinned out, a common hand hoe being used for this purpose. The stock carrot is thinned to eight inches, and the rutabaga and mangel to 12. Thinning the plants early with the hoe lessens the hand thinning later. With the plants far apart they are much easier kept clean and their yield is greater than when grown thickly. In pulling the roots in the fall they are laid even in the row with the tops all one way. The topping is then done with a corn knife, cutting the tops off two or three with a single stroke. The roots that are fed early in the fall before they are put in the root cellar, may be fed top and all, thus lessening the labor. In storing roots for the winter, a cellar is necessary, and should be in connection with the barn for convenience in feeding. Roots that are to be fed in October, November and the forepart of December may be piled on the ground near the barn and covered over with straw and litter sufficiently to keep from freezing.

In storing the roots in a cellar care must be taken to remove as much of the dirt as possible to avoid heating. The freer from dirt the better they will keep.

In feeding mangels and carrote to stock it is desirable to cut them, but not necessary. When the fall work is rushing they may be fed whole, but later when time is ample it is advisable to cut them.

Mangels, sugar beets, stock carrots and rutabagas have been compared on the experiment farm. On high well drained soil and favorable season mangels give the largest yield, but on low ground and in a cold, wet spring are apt to fail. This is also true of the sugar beet. Stock carrots have never failed to produce a crop. Rutabagas are also very hardy but are objectionable for dairy cows.

Taking all conditions the stock carrot is recommended for this section of the state. Rutabagas may be grown for sheep, pigs and young stock but either the stock carrot or mangel for dairy cows.

A sandy loam soil is best for roots and it should be well manured. In preparing the seed bed harrow thoroly immediately after plowing, as the soil is most easily pulverized at that time. It is also well to plank or roll it before seeding as the garden drill is difficult to work in uneven ground. A garden drill is the first thing that should be secured in preparing to grow roots. With a garden drill an acre can be sown in half a day. A good drill may be bought for $8 or $10 Two or more farmers may buy one in co-operation to good advantage. In seeding sow plenty of seed. The surplus may be thinned out easily. For carrots and rutabagas sow from one and one-half to two pounds per acre for mangels 15 to 20 pounds. The time to plant will depend upon the season, from May 10 to June 10. Carrots and rutabagas may be seeded quite early without danger. Rutabagas may be sown as late as July and a good crop secured but earlier planted is safer.

Live stock of all kinds needs some succulent feed in winter to be healthy When roots are fed there will be no need of expensive stock foods and medicines. Grow roots. They have a good value not only in themselves but also in the effect they have on other feeds fed in connection with them, making them more digestible and nutritious.

Doing Splendid Work

The Commercial Club of Warren is attracting wide attention as a result of the splendid work thatis being done by that organization to encourage the farmers to raise the standard of their products and then seeing that the results are given the greatest possible degree of publicity. The Club has held its annual meeting, re-elected the old officers and plans a more active year than ever before. Their annual banquet is scheduled for tonight an da number of very fine addresses are on the program.

But this is not all. The business me nof Warren as individuals have taken an active interest in advertising Marshall county. They have superintended the sending of many entries to the Omaha exposition and as a result a number of prizes were won including first for clover and first for best half bushel of wheat in competition with the world and many minor prizes.

This not only advertises Warren and Marshall County but the entire Red River Valley. For this course the commercial club and business men generally of Warren, and the wideawake farmers of that section including such men as Henry Beardsmore, who, by the way resides in Northern Polk County, are entitled to the highest degree of credit. Their example may well be emulated thruout evry county in the Valley.

Protcted Game Preserves System

A system of protected preserves whereby such big game as moose can be preserved is recommended by the state game and fish commission in its biennial report to the governor, the advance sheets of which have been gotten out. The commission believes that the state should co-operate with th efederal government in establishing such a preserve and the idea is a very good one.

A law should be passed ayyowing non-resident hunters of big game to take the game killed home or else not allow them to hunt in this state at all.

The law at present allows the nonresident hunter to kill one antlered moose but forbids the taking out of the state any animal killed. The commission recommends that the hunter should either be prohibited from killing the moose or be allowed to take it to his home.

The universal license system is recommended by the commission, as the present law is unsatisfactory.

The commission urges the building of more fish hatcheries to correspond with the growth of the state.

A Humiliating Spectacle

It is a melancholy spectacle presented by a governor under indictment but Governor Haskell is entitled to the presumption of innocence which the law declares. He is charged with conspiracy to defraud the Creek Indians thru a land monopoly which would deprive them of their rights under auction sales provided by law; in other words of lining his pockets at the expense of the red men under government ward. The charge looks binding. The ordinary governor of the ordinary state placed in such a jeopardy would have general sympathy and the presumption of innocence would be very strong. It is unfortunate for this hero of one of the startling incidents of the last presidential campaign that he did not emerge without the smell of smoke upon his garments. His denials were made with Oklahoman vigor and he has instituted suits in defense of his character, but that he fell under popular disfavor is beyond dispute, and his withdrawal from the Bryan campaign management is not believed to have been entirely voluntary. The cloud cast about him by the strenuous lecture work of William R. Hearst has not been dissipated and the gloom is thickened by the current government charge. The regretable feature of the presnt situation is the spectacle of a state governor under indictment. It is humiliating to the American people.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Valley Weather

During the past two days the St. Paul and Minneapolis papers have been keeping the wires hot trying to get the details of the "blizzard" in the Red River Valley wanting to know what the effect was on railroad traffic and any other damage done.

It appears they cannot believe that while the Twin Cities and the southern part of the state North and South Dakota have been in the embrace of the worst storm of the winter that the Minnesota side of the Red River Valley has escaped entirely. Such, however, is the fact, as everyone residing here knows. This section has been the most favored in the entire northwest. Yesterday was one of the fiercest experienced in Minneapolis and St. Paul in years. There is plenty of snow there, and a terrific wind prevailed for two days. Street car traffic was completely disorganized any attempt to run on schedule being futile.

Railroad traffic was also greatly hampered, trains being all the way from 1 to 12 hours late, and some of them were abandoned, while all local trains in this section have been running right on the dot.

During the entire winter there has been no inconvenience to railroads in this section from storms. The stock has never suffered for a minute and the weather thruout has been just as near ideal as could be wished.

And this is the Red River Valley, the bread and butter valley where corn is a staple product, where clover takes first prize in world contests, and where lemon pies are made from fruit raised right here.

Great is the Red River Valley. We are the people this winter.

The Old Soldier Ignored

Is the old soldier being ignored in Minnesota? Are the men who answered to the call for troops too willingly and in such numbers when the Civil War broke out, and who fought so valiantly as to arouse the admiration of the entire country to be sidetracked? The following statement of facts regarding the state legislature looks as tho the old soldier had been ignored pretty much. There was a time when the numerical strength of the old veterans was such that no party dared to ignore them. Is it because the ranks are thinning that they were "passed up" when the legislative pie was cut. Here are the facts in the case.

Of the 140 employes in the present senate and house just three are old soldiers. This has caused a great deal of comment around legislative halls especially in view of the fact that two years ago, a law was passed which states specifically that old soldiers shall be given the preference in appointments and promotions in all public departments.

One of the representatives, when asked for an explanation of this state of affairs said that in his opinion the veterans were not physically capable of doing the work on account of their advanced age, but several others who have always opposed the wholesale employing of men at high salaries, are of the opinion that it does not require a man in the prime of life to act as doorkeeper or gallery sergeant.

The "third house" as the employes have been nicknamed is generally acknowledged to be a nuisance, but there are those who attempt to excuse its existence on the ground that it is an institution hoary with age and that it is kept alive to subserve the demands of the constituents of the various members.

The constituents in large measure, are the beneficiaries of the legislators but in some instances the members have courted the disfavor of their constituents and have secured positions for members of their immediate families. There are a half dozen employes whose fathers or brothers are either representatives or senators. Most of these receive $5 per day.

Boost The Other Man's Business—It Helps Your Own

Crookston is just on the verge of the most substantial progress it has ever experienced. Business men are all optimistic regarding the coming year. Prospects are bright not only for the city, but rather in the city because the general conditions in the rural districts are the best they have been in many years.

Crookston must grow. There are many things we need and need badly. We need more industries of every kind. The best way of securing them is to encourage every one we have. Encourage every move in that direction no matter how small it is. A vast number of small industries is infinitely better than a few very large ones.

The man who makes a success of his business is the man who looks after the smallest details with as great care as the large ones.

The city that will thrive the best is the city whose people will look after the little things.

No better advertisement could be given a city than to have it known as a patent fact that its business men stand together. That they boost for one another, even though they are competitors. If a new business institution is to be started of a legitimate nature and promises to be permanent, boost for it even tho it may be in competition with your own. Every new business institution means that greater effort will be made to reach out after trade.

And finally remember that when you boost for the other follow you boost for yourself in the most effective manner possible.

Hands Off The Anti Pass Law

A disposition to trifle with the antipass law has begun to show itself in certain legislative quarters. It ought to be understood from the outset that the people of Minnesota will not for a moment tolerate anything of that kind, says the Minneapolis Journal in an editorial in today's issue.

The law was passed in deference to a strong public sentiment by an unwilling legislature. It has already demonstrated the wisdom that dictated its passage. No cleaner legislature nor one less infested with lobbyists was ever seen in Minnesota than the one now in session. At least a share of the credit for this state of affairs must go to the anti-pass law. It has put both railroads and lawmakers on an independent, business basis—which is, of course, just where they ought to be. It has put all classes of the travelling public on an equal footing—namely, that of paying their fare when they travel. And that, too, is just as it ought to be.

The protest of W. D. Washburn, Jr., of the Hennepin delegation against any change in the law that will affect in the slightest degree its basic principle, will find cordial response from the public. Mr. Washburn has done the people a service by his protest. If it is possible, without hurting the law, or opening doors that ought to be kept shut, to permit uniformed public servants to ride on the street cars without paying fare, there will be little or no objection. But any attempt, no matter how skillfully disguised, to defeat the purpose of the law, and to bring back the old days of passes for legislators and other public officials should be promptly squelched.

Effective Immigration Work

Speaking of the immigration work in Minnesota the St. Paul Pioneer Press says:

The fortunes of states often furnish contrasts as do the fortunes of individuals. While Californians are demanding restriction of immigration, Minnesotans are rejoicing that soon several hundred aliens are to sail from Germany to find homes in this state and will start this way a stream of immigration that will bring 250,000 new settlers within five years.

These German immigrants will come from Galicia, where, tilling fiveacre tracts of land they have accumulated fortunes large enough to give them a good start in Minnesota. They must have had to exercise frugality in their home lives and extreme economy in the treatment of the soil in order to have been able to lay up even modest wealth from their little farms in an old agricultural region. The richness of Minnesota land surely will have full appreciation among these people, and their demonstration of intensive farming should be a fine example for other farmers.

The state immigration department, which has taken special pains to acquaint the more desirable districts of Germany and Russia with the merits of the "Bread and Butter" State as a home, has started this movement from Galicia. Similar results can be shown by the department and what could be accomplished with a larger working fund may be learned by any legislator of other person who may inquire of Mr. Welchor his assistants. Plenty of evidences and arguments are at hand to prove that money thus expended is well appropriated.

Another Attack On Cow

All present-day theories of scientific agriculture, sociological research, irrigation, political economy, rotation of crops, and other things from the trans migration of souls to the fight against the mail order houses may be overthrown by a discovery reported to have been made in Vidalia, La. In this small, but thriving village is said to have been discovered a secret by which oil may be extracted from the cocklebur, says an exchange.

Leading experts on the cocklebur agree with remarkable unanimity that with the weed a commercially valuable product of the soil a peaceful, but widespread revolution in all present-day ideas is inevitable.

Instead of being warred against and driven from all cultivated land the cocklebur will find itself protected and guarded by high walls and iron fences Without these the valuable burs may be easily stolen, as a small boy, by running rapidly thru the patch will be able to accumulate at least a quart of unrefined oil on his garments, and the collie dog could have the material for nearly a gallon of lubricant stuck tightly to his tail.

Tarheel, Tenn., scientists, not to be outdone by their brethren of the bayous are now said to be experimneting with a secret process whereby a fine quality of cheese may be extracted from the leaves of the milkweed.

INSOMNIA.

Curious Way In Which It Affected a Woman's Imagination.

"I can't stand this any longer, doctor," said the nervous woman. "If the patient in the next room to mine, No. 22, doesn't keep quiet at night I must change my room or leave the sanitarium altogether."

"What's the trouble?" asked her physician.

"She has one of these squeaky old wooden bedsteads, and every time she turns over it awakens me. Last night she did nothing but toss to and fro, and I didn't get a single wink of sleep."

"I'll see to that at once," he assured her. "A woman in your condition certainly must have absolute quiet at night. I'll have the patient in No. 22 sleep on the roof. The fresh air will be better for her anyway."

The next morning the nervous woman appeared in the consultation room of the sanitarium in radiant mood.

"How did you sleep?" asked the doctor.

"Perfectly," she replied. "I'm so much obliged to you. It made a great difference."

"I knew it would," he said gravely.

He was telling the truth, because he knew the power of the imagination in disease, especially of the nerves. As a matter of fact, No. 22 had not been occupied at night for three weeks. The patient had been sleeping on the roof all the time.—Exchange.

THE OLD CIRCUS POSTER.

Pretentious Language With Which the Show Was Described.

The grandiloquent extravagance of language of the old time circus poster is illustrated by this reproduction, which is given verbatim:

"There will be presented a resplendent series of sublime, moral, interesting, instructive, amusing and wonderful scenes which would appear entirely too fabulous if expressed in an advertisement. They must be seen to be duly appreciated. These great displays will unfold in all the loveliness and beauty of enchantment, carrying the minds of the bewildered or spellbound spectators off on the gentle wings of the imagination to such pageantry as they might dream of after reading a few pages of 'Arabian Nights' Entertainments.' Words are really wanting to give adequate expression. Webster's unabridged fails most signally in language to fully portray a semblance of the reality. Zoonomy may be learned at this great college in a single evening. Here the visitor will see splendid specimens of the zygodactylous race that live upon the earth or float and poise upon the wings of gold and silver plume in the cerulean arch, and in reference to these the corps of superintendents in courtly dress will elucidate the peculiarities of each with guarded suavfloquence."

WARM AND DRY TO STAY WELL

AUTHORITY GIVES SIMPLE PRESCRIPTION ALSO TELLS HOW TO TAKE

TELLS READERS HOW TO PREPARE THE MIXTURE AT HOME

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism or if your backaches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism which is caused by uric acide in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity when shown the prescriptions stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

CONSOLATION.

The Musician Reminded the Poet of the Case of Guarnerius.

The musician with a compassionate smile watched the poet trimming the fringe from his cuff.

"After all," he said, "your verse may live when Marie Corelli, Winston Churchill and Hall Caine himself are forgotten. Remember the case of Guarnerius."

"Who was he?" the poet asked.

"A pauper and a violin maker. Guarnerius in the seventeenth century made violins that everybody thought too thick; hence they brought only $2 apiece. Musicians would buy them and have them pared down.

"Guarnerius insisted that they were not too thick. When he heard of one of his instruments being pared down he flew into a frightful rage. He had a grouch against the world because it wouldn't agree with him about violin making. He died a pauper because the world would have none of his violins.

"A Guarnerius is now and then to be picked up. Usually it is a pared instrument, and its value is not very high. But find an unpared Guarnerius and you can get anything you like for it. It is one of the world's few perfect violins.

"But Guarnerius died a pauper. The Hall Caines and Winston Churchills of the violin world of his day refused with sneers to drink with him. He, too, trimmed his cuffs."—Los Angeles Times.

Australia's First Theater.

The first recorded production of a play in Australia took place in June of the year 1789. It was called "The Recruiting Officer." The proceeds of the first pay night (some £20) went to the family of a man who had been drowned. In January, 1796, a rough and ready playhouse was opened, and the public had to pay a shilling a head for admission. The payments were made in kind, wheat, flour or rum taking the place of the usual currency.—London Standard.

JUDGE SPOONER BACK TO BEMIDJI

TO OPEN LAW OFFICE AT THAT PLACE—WIFE'S HEALTH IS POOR

Marshall A. Spooner, a farmer resident judge of the district court for the Fifteenth Judicial District returned to St. Paul after having perfected arrangements preparatory to his again residing in Bemidji.

Mr. Spooner arrived in the city from International Falls, where he has been retained by Mr. Forrier, in the latter's contest for the office of sheriff of Koochiching county which will be tried at the term of court at that place next week.

About a year ago Mr. Spooner resigned his position as district judge and moved to Spokane, Wash., where he entered the practice of law.

Mr. Spooner stated to the Pioneer that he was well pleased with his western location but was obliged to return to northern Minnesota on account of Mrs. Spooner's health, she being in poor health all the time while they were residing in the west.

Mr. Spooner will return to Bemidji the latter part of the week and will practice law there having arranged for a suite of rooms in the Bacon block.

Mr. and Mrs. Spooner have a large circle of friends thruout this section of the state and in Bemidji who will extend to them a most cordial welcome on their return to Minnesota and to this section of the country.—Bemidji Pioneer.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY

BELTRAMITE HERE—Otto Will who is teaching at Beltrami spent Friday and Saturday in the city taking the teachers' examinations.

SANDRIDGE AGENT HERE—Ole Mickelson the station agent at Sondridge was in the city Saturday spending the day and taking examinations. He returned to Sandridge for work again this morning.

McVEY HAS ACCEPTED—Franklyn L. McVey has formally accepted the presidency of the North Dakota University and will take up his work in that capacity at the beginning of the next college year. His final acceptance was received today.

THERMOMETER DROPPED— The thermometer dropped down below 20 degrees last evening and held to that figure till quite late this morning. This afternoon it is moderating and tomorrow the weather clerk promises warmer still with brisk south winds.

ADDS TO LINE—Jos Wessel member of the state game and fish commission, peddler of patent cough drops and other confectionery has added a fine line of crushed fruits to his line. He started peddling samples on the north line local this morning and made quite a hit.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE —Tuesday evening a temperance lecture will be delivered at the G. A. R. hall beginning at 8 o'clock by Rv. Alfred Kalin, of Minneapolis one of the best temperance lectures in Minnesota. All are welcome to this lecture. Admission free.

BACK FROM CITIES—D. D. Miller a prominent real estate and insurance man from Bemidji passed thru the city this morning enroute home from St. Paul where he has been spending a couple of days. When asked about the new normal school site he smiled adn looked wise, incidentally jerking his thumb towards Bemidji.

FRANK O'CONNOR HONORED — J. F. T. O'Connor of Grand Forks, graduate of the University of North Dakota who is taking a post graduate course in Yale, has accepted an invitation to deliver the principal address at the birthday anniversary celebration of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot to be held in the Grand theatre New York, Sunday, Feb. 28. This is quite an honor for the young orator who has made so many fine addresses in North Dakota.

Grand Forks had a fire scare last night when some rubbish and papers in the basement of the Western Union Building on DeMers Ave. called out the department. Little damage was done by the fire but the smoke did considerable damage in Taugbel Sisters Millinery.

We heard a man say the other morning that the abbreviation for February—Feb.—means Freeze every body, and that man looked frozen in his ulster. It was apparent that he needed the kind of warmth that stays, the warmth that reaches from head to foot, all over the body. We could have told him from personal knowledge that Hood's Sarsaparilla gives permanent warmth, it invigorates the blood and speeds it along through artery and vein, and really fits men and women, boys and girls, to enjoy cold weather and resist the attacks of disease. It gives the right kind of warmth, stimulates and strengthens at the same time, and all its benefits are lasting. There may be a suggestion in this for you.

Wireless Lighting

We have wireless telegraphy and wireless telephony, and now we are to have wireless lighting. It is known to science that an electric current passing thru a vaccum will produce a vivid light. A scientific investigation proves golden grain belt beer to be not only the purest of all beverages but also the most beneficial to body and mind. Keen appetite comes with its use and it removes indigestion. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Alex Thompson Crookston.

The State and the Individual.

The state may make it easy for a man to acquire a small holding, but it cannot give the man the energy, the industry, which are necessary if the boon is to be an abiding blessing to him. The state may help men over bad times, but it cannot give men the moral character which enables those who possess it by their energy, determination, industry, to place themselves beyond the reach of temporary disaster.—London Strand Magazine.

STOCK TO ST. PAUL—Will Newhouse left last evening for St. Paul with a car of stock which he bought up in the vicinity of his home north of the city. The market has been very strong for the past two days.

PHONE COMPANY MEETING — Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the Lowell Township Rural Telephone Co will meet at the home of N. C. Hanson west of the city in annual session for the election of officers and the transaction of other important business matters.

ONE PIER COMPLETE—The concrete pier at the south end of the new Sampson addition bridge has been completed and work will be started at once on the north pier. The concrete work will probably be finished by the end of the week. The false work for the main span of the bridge is also coming along rapidly.

VISITS OLD PARISH — Our old friend Rev. Mirick, once stationed here as pastor of the Congregational church, dropped in on us the first of the week to keep a pleasant acquaintance alive. Rev. Mirick is now located or sojourning at McIntosh and has charge of three missions in that vicinity. He looks no older than when he was here some six years ago and can we hope do many hard days' work in the Lord's vineyard. He came here to attend the dedication of the Congregational church which took place last Sunday.—Cass Lake Times.

This morning the engine on No. 5 from St. Paul which was one hour late struck one horse of the coal delivery team owned by L. W. Larson and driven by Knute Opskar knocking the animal down with terrific force, death ensuing in about 15 minutes.

Opskar did not know the train was approaching and was unloading coal from a car west of old G. N. freight depot, the team standing between the car on the side track and the main track. The train passes that point at pretty good speed and the accident was the result. The engineer saw the team but supposed Opskar would drive out of the way.

WILL CUT MUCH TIMBER — M. Hegstad left this morning for Wanke, in Johnson township, the extreme northeast corner of Polk county, almost straight east of Plummer, where he will spend the next three or four months looking after the sawing of some timber on a farm he bought at a government land sale a few years ago. He has a large amount of oak on it, of good size, and has secured a portable saw mill with which he will do the sawing, and will also cut some soft timber. The oak is very valuable as it is getting scarce in this section. Mr. Hegstad also has a good farm in Gully township, located just south of Johnson.

EDUCATORS MEET AT WARREN —The school officers and teachers of Marshall county will hold their fifth annual convention in Warren on Thursday and Friday Feb. 18 and 19.

Asplendid program has been prepared of addresses by prominent educators. Co. Supt. Mithun urgently requests every teacher and school officer in the county to attend. As this is not a very busy time of the year a big attendance and a successful meeting is assured. Warren will do all in her power to entertain the visitors. the commercial club having already appointed a committee, consisting of Supt. G. E. Keenan, W. N. Powell and C. E. Lundquist to co-operate with the county superintendent in this matter. A banquet and social time has been arranged for Thursday evening Feb. 1.

Serious Interruptions.

The truly lazy man is not a common figure in this country, and when he does appear he is not treated with proper respect. Ideal laziness is an art as difficult as playing on the violin. A writer in the Washington Star tells of one member of the Sons of Rest who deserves recognition.

"I s'pose John is still taking life easy?" said the woman in the spring wagon.

"Yes," answered the woman who was carrying an armful of wood. "John has only two regrets in life. One is that he has to wake up to eat, and the other is that he has to quit eating to sleep."—Youth's Companion.

OLD STAMPING GROUNDS—A. F. Skaren of the tailoring firm of Nelson and Skaren left tis morning for Warren to attend to some business matters and visit with old friends.

WILL CONFER WITH COMPANY —K. J. Ike left last night for Minneapolis where he will confer with the Kimball Piano Co., for a few days before starting out for another year's work for them. He was accompanied by Mrs. Ike and the baby who will visit friends there for a few days.

ABLE TO TRAVEL — Conductor Burnett who was injured by being jammed between two cars at Lengby several weeks ago and who has been confined to St. Vincent Hospital since that time till a couple of days ago, is able to walk about a little with the aid of a cane. He left this morning with Mrs. Burnett and the baby for a visit at Big Falls. It will be some time before he is able to return to work.

TRIP TO CALIFORNIA—H. C. Misner left last evening over the Great Northern for Pasalena Cal., where he will visit his son Harvey and brother Charley for a week making a flying trip with the intention of returning by the 25th of February. He goes over the Northwestern to Kansas City and on the Santa Fee to Los Angeles and on the return trip will come to Omaha over the Union Pacific. His trip is for both business and pleasure and while he would like to remain longer imperative business compels his immediate return. Agent Bell gave him a printed pamphlet of advice last evening, and pinned his money to his undershirt to prevent his being flimflammed by sharpers. He was going to pin a badge across his back "Crookston Offers Opportunity" but Mr. Bell dissuaded him with the statement, "if any of the sharpers see you coming they will realize that you offer them an opportunity without labeling yourself."

STORM WAS TERRIBLE — R. A. Mathews a prominent merchant of Humboldt was in the city this morning between trains enroute home after a trip to the cities. He came in o No. 7 and says the flyer plowed thru snow drifts all the way up till Barnesville was reached. He states that yesterday was a wild day in the cities the wind blowing a gale and the air so full of snow that it was almost impossible to be out of doors. Streets car traffic was paralyzed and business generally tied up.

SPEARING A BEAR.

Bruin's Sharp Teeth Bit Through the Copper Sheathed Weapon.

"Twice in my chase of bruin I have made use of a bear spear as my weapon of attack," writes Count Eric von Rosen, "and I may take this opportunity to maintain that the use of a spear entails no greater cruelty than any other mode of attack and that every hunter should be armed with one in reserve, since these powerful beasts have a vitality that triumphs over a stray bullet or more unless lodged in a vital region, and when wounded their retaliation is redoubtable and easily fatal. In Karelia, Finland, the bear is yet regarded as a noxious horror. The great black haired 'slagbjorn,' or killing bear, is still rampant there, and a couple of winters back I was able to wreak justifiable vengeance on some beasts that had killed over a score of cows and nine horses. News had been brought me that some of these rascals were hibernating on a small marsh bound island.

"We found no difficulty in locating their lair, and I took up my post at the entrance to it, armed only with my spear. I may explain that a bear spear consists of an ash staff some two yards long and about a couple of inches in diameter. There is a blade of steel about twelve inches in length, and the shaft is copper cased as a prevention against the teeth of bruin. As soon as my gentleman appeared I tried to stick him in the throat, but he parried adroitly, and I missed. I made another lunge and succeeded in driving my spear point through his breast.

"He started roaring furiously and snapped at my copper cased staff, then made an attempt to strike at my arm with his huge fore paw, so that I might drop my weapon. The powerful brute hung on to my spear at the one end, while I as grimly held on at the other end. His bites went through the copper plate, and he started shredding the wood beneath. Strenuously I checked his further advances, and gradually, for his wounds began to tell, his resistance weakened, and he dropped at last over the aperture of his den.

"I pulled out the spear, but so much strength still remained in him that he seized the blade and bit it with a force that left deep indentations in the steel. My companion then finished him off with his own weapon. This struggle from start to finish covered five minutes."

Exclusive.

"Now that your son's in college, I suppose he'll be getting exclusive; he'll be getting into the Four Hundred."

"Oh, he's more exclusive than that! He's on the nine already."—Exchange.

BOUGHT WHOLE DAIRY HERD

NELS ANDERSON SECURES BALANCE OF REV. LYNNE HERD AT ELDRED

WILL BRING THEM HERE FIRST WARM DAY AND SELL THEM AROUND CROOKSTON

From Wednesday's Daily—

Nels Anderson the south Main St. butcher has returned from Eldred he purchased the balance of the fine dairy herd owned by Rev. Lynne. Most of them are Guernseys, and they will be brought to this city the first warm day and sold to the farmers about Crookston.

Rev. Lynne was located at Eldred till about a year ago when he went to Iowa and his renter has decided to leave so he disposed of the entire herd

Mr. Anderson will go to Eldred this evening with I. J. Corry, the latter having purchased four of the cows for his Montana ranch and will try to make a deal for the thorobred Guernsey bull to ship west with them.

They are all high grade cows, and Mr. Anderson will keep one of them for his own use. Several of them are fresh now, and the balance soon will be.

EAST GRAND FORKS SENDS DELEGATION TO ST. PAUL

The committee of the East Grand Forks Commercial club appointed to air in the passing of the bill introduced in the legislature last week in the interests of citizens desiring waterworks and sewer extensions, passed thru Crookston last evening for St. Paul, where they will appear before the senate and house committees today. The members of the committee who left for the capital were Judge Sullivan, Attorney F. C. Massee and Attorney G. A. E. Finlayson.

As has been indicated before there is little difficulty anticipated in getting the bill passed the main object now being to get it out of the mands of the committees and recommended for passage. N. J. Nelson the fourth member of the committee saw to the introduction of the measure on a trip to St. Paul last week and was prevented from going at this time by business engagements. Several cities are interested in the measure and if united action can be brought to bear on the committees the bill should go through without friction. The members of the East Grand Forks committee will return the latter part of the week.

TOM SHEVLIN WINS KENTUCKY BELLE

HIS YALE SWEETHEART IS WON BACK — MARRIED A WEEK AGO

A week ago Monday Thomas Shevlin Jr., manager of the Crookston Lumber Co., at Bemidji, was united in marriage at Louisville, Ky., to Miss Shirley.

This ends a romance which began when the two were attending Yale. The two were engaged there, but Miss Shirly broke off the ngagement. Miss Shirley was known there as "The Belle of Yale" and is a very beautiful and vivacious young lady. Young Shevlin followed her from place to place and was all broken up over the affair and the newspapers were full of accounts of his unrequitted love.

Later, however, there was a reconciliation and the wedding was one of the most brilliant affairs in the history of Louisville. Miss Shirley belongs to one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in Kentucky, and Col. Shirley is a noted horse owner and sportsman and has always been an admirer of Shevlin because of his prowess on the football field.

Where They Know How to Economize.

At the request of a woman in search of a servant the manager of an employment agency asked each of the girls lined up against the wall if she had ever been employed in a minister's family. None of them had been.

"May I ask why you are particularly anxious to know if these girls have had an engagement of that kind?" asked the manager.

"Because we are very hard up just now," the woman replied, "and I must have a girl who is economical. I have found that of all servants those who have worked in ministers' families know best how to economize."—New

MORE ABOUT CORN RAISING

HENRY O'NEILL SAYS CORN HAS FROZEN CLOSE TO RIVER IN THE WOODS

WHEN IT WAS UNTOUCHED ON PRAIRIE — DISCUSSION IS CONTINUED

From Monday's Daily—

Henry O'Neill has written another article on corn raising in response to the communication published in the Journal a few days ago from Mr. Nelson, a farmer residing near Harold Station in which the subject of corn raising is gone into still more in detail The letter follows:

Editor Journal: In Mr. Nelson's letter to the Journal giving his experience on raising corn I see where he refers to my article on the same subject and complains that I never mentioned the fact that I lived on the river and therefore had the advantage of shelter and protection thereby making it easy for me to raise good ripe corn.

If we understood the thing right we were simply to give our experience in as few words as we could—that I did. We thought it uncalled for and unnecessary to say anything about a thing that is so uncertain. Mr. Nelson however raised a point that surely would be too bad to lose sight of in this particular case. We will endeavor to produce reasonable facts tho that ought to be encouraging to people with prairie farms that may intend planting corn this coming season and may probably be startling to any man that thinks it always freezes four or five weeks earlier on the prairie farms than it does along the river. My good neighbor Mr. Nelson must have failed to notice as he drove to town last fall that the first and very same frost that froze his corn also froze Mr. Latta's. Anybody that has seen Mr. Latta's farm in summer will admit that it is as good and early a farm as is along the river. He usually starts cuting his small grain before I do even tho we plant it the same day. If Mr. Nelson had come over a little further and still closer to the timber he would see Mr. White's corn on the Hall place also froze and if he should go across on the north side of the river he would see what he well might think strange. He would see the corn along the river on land low enough to be called river bottom land frozen and the corn upon the open prairie where there was a breeze was not touched by frost at all. Two different times since we began raising corn we had the same experience. That is the corn we had in the low places along the river and close to the timber was frozen and the corn up on the prairie was not touched by frost for weeks afterwards. About five years ago we were busy clearing up some land right by the river and all surrounded by woods when an Iowa prospective land buyer came along. He asked us what we first intended planting on the land and we told him, corn. He said "You don't want to do that. Don't you know that the early frosts always settle in the low places and always follows the river?" We told him it was news to us. Then he told us how he had a piece similar to that on the farm he just left in Iowa and the early local frosts always got that piece and his "corn up on the prairie where there was a breeze" never froze. That was not very encouraging to a man with no experience but we went on just the same and planted corn on that piece and never failed to raise good corn. About three years ago Mr. Wheeler and Anderson whose farm is one mile up the river planted two pieces of corn one on their prairie land and one on their bottom land close to the river and timber. We also had some corn. The corn grew up nice, tasseled out and got ears on some of it when about Sept. 10th along came a sharp frost and froze Wheeler & Anderson's corn. It froze mine too But mine was ripe and out of the way of frost as it was dented and hard. It seems most people have their own views vastly differ from others. Not long ago a certain man that has now left these parts told me I had the advantage of everybody in raising corn mellons, etc., as I had the best farm to begin with. A short time after that he wanted to buy my place and when I asked him the same price as other farms were sold at he pointed out at once the facts that my farm was not worth as much as the average farm as it was poorly located etc. You see "it is a poor scheme that won't work both ways." I don't think myself that my farm is any better located or worth a bit more than any body else's even if Mr. Nelson does say so. According to his own letter to the Journal he on his prairie farm has been more successful with corn than most of my neighbors along the river. From indications what the country wants is more men of Mr. Nelson's type. I would not assume the responsibilities of advising anybody as to what kind of corn to plant, but if I lived on the prairie "Dakota Red Dent" would be my first choice. That variety is raised successfully from Pembina, N. D. to the Bad Lands, S. D. It is raised right on the big prairies of N. D. 40 miles from the timber and it would be strange indeed if it could not be raised here in the heart of the Red River Valley. It is a good dent corn that don't grow too high but has ears well up from the ground which makes it easy husked and is also serviceable when cutting with a binder. It is very easy to husk as the stem that holds the ear is quite small.

If the local feed stores do not have it for sale, J. H. McGill of Fargo is sure to have it. We are told that there are men in the western end of the county also in the Thirteen Towns that have raised corn 15 or 20 years.

It would be interesting and beneficial to us to hear from them as I am certain what I do not know about corn would cover one whole side of the Journal.

Mr. Nelson in his letter said the time was not far distant when one would not have to go down to the river to see good corn. Nothing would suit me better than this coming season to see better corn on the prairie than we may have on the river as that would go to prove what I have always contended—that corn could be raised on the prairie just as well as along the river. The sooner that time gets here the better it will be for all.

There will not be so many farms for rent possibly. In my first letter I referred to Iowa and Illinois in speaking of corn. We wish to say we were not the originator of that reference.

Probably a score of people within the last 3 years that happened to see our place about September 1st and noted the ripe water and musk mellons and also the corn which some years was twelve feet high, said that "for the time being they might think they were in old Iowa or Illinois." Anybody wishing to see a sample of the corn we raised last year can see it at the First National Bank or the Scandia American Bank and at the Bank of Crookston there is a fair but not good sample and also a picture of the corn as it stood in the field.

We believe that if the people writing letters to the Journal would devote them strictly to telling of their experience only the main object would be attained and it would be of more benefit to all concerned.

THOS. LOWRY'S LIFE IS ENDED

RAILROAD AND STREET CAR COMPANY MAGNATE PASSED AWAY

DEATH CAME AT HIS HOME IN MINNEAPOLIS AFTER PROTRACTED ILLNESS

From Friday's Daily—

Thomas Lowry died at 8:50 yesterday morning at his home in Minneapolis, after a long illness from tuberculosis and liver trouble. He had been in ill health for more than four years He was critically ill last August, but raillied and until a few days ago was not thought to be in immediate danger.

Thomas Lowry, lawyer, financier, railroad and street car magnate, was born on a farm in Logan county, Illinois, Feb. 27, 1843.

He studied law at Lombard university Galesburg, Ill., but was compelled by ill health to abandon his studies before graduating. He took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar at Rushville, Ill., in 1867.

He came to the Twin Cities in 1867 and for seventeen years practiced successfully at the Hennepin county bar. In 1884 he abandoned the law to care for his real estate holdings.

He took up the work of reorganizing the street railways of the Twin Cities, which were in financial straits, and built up a traction system unsurpassed in the United States.

He was early identified with the Soo railroad was one of the most enthusiastic of those advocating the building of the line and became its president a post he retained until his death.

He was a large holder of realty in the Twin Cities, and always a firm believer in the future of the two towns, improved his holdings by erecting costly buildings.

In politics he was a republican, altho he never held office. In 1901 following the death of Senator Cushman K. Davis, his friends persuaded him to seek the place, but Moses E. Clapp was selected by the legislature after a short, strenuous campaign.

CARPENTER RE-ELECTED

AS SECRETARY OF N. D. AND NOR. MINN. IMPLEMENT DEALERS ASSOCIATION

HONOR FORCED UPON HIM FOR THE 8TH SUCCESSIVE YEAR

From Friday's Daily—

The Tenth annual convention of the North Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota Implement Dealers' association held in Fargo passed into history yesterday morning when officers were elected, committee reports heard and resolutions adopted. In every respect the convention can be classed as most successful the sessions being pleasant and profitable for the visiting delegates.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are:

President—O. C. Olson, Drayton, N. D.

Vice President—Paul N. Allen of Jamestown, N. D.

Secretary Treasurer—Geo. F. Carpenter, Crookston.

Directors for one year—C. E. Jones Lisbon, N. D., Paul N. Allen, Jamestown, N. D.; D. G. McIntosh, St. Thomas N. D.

Directors for two years—John E. Paulson, Hillsboro; O. C. Olson, Drayton; D. A. Crites, Willow city, N. D.

This is the 8th successive time Mr. Carpenter of this city has been elected secretary despite his protests, and is an honor that indicates very clearly the high class service he has rendered the association.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES MUST BE PAID

tI will be well for taxpayers to remember that personal property taxes became due and payable on Jan. 1. On March 1 a penalty of 10 per cent is added and on April 1 the sheriff may visit you if the required amount is not paid.

Neither Treasurer Flaten nor Sheriff Daniels are over joyous in pressing this matter but it is the state law. You have elected them to perform a certain work, and this is a part of their duty. A small tax if unpaid and a penalty attached, together with other costs incurred may amount to considerable—many times the amount of the original tax.

attending the state university after which he will continue to Iowa, where he will visit his father whose health has been far from satisfactory for some time past.

A FIREBUG IN ADA?

SALOON ADJOINING BUILDING GUTTED LAST WEEK SCORCHED AT NOON TODAY

RESIDENCE ALSO COMES NEAR BEING BADLY DAMAGED THRU CARELESSNESS

From Friday's Daily—

People of Ada are beginning to wonder if a firebug is not busy down there. Fire which was discovered at 1 o'clock this afternoon having badly damaged the saloon of Wm. Shields.

Mr. Shields was in the front end of the saloon when the fire broke out but did not notice it for a few minutes. The department made a hurried run and extinguished the flames after about $500 damages had been done. Loss covered by insurance.

The saloon adjoins the Mattson Block which was gutted last week and this causes the speculation.

Yesterday at Ada also the residence of Isadore Roesch a brother of Frank Roesch of this city had a narrow escape. In some manner an electric light fell down on a bed and the coverlets caught fire. It was discovered and the bedclothes thrown out of the window before anything else ignited.

However these fires are the first Ada has had in years and they feel fortunate.

GRANDPA FULTON HAS BAD STROKE

IS LEADING RESIDENT OF ADA AND FATHER OF MRS. W. B. SHEFFIELD

Last evening Grandpa Fulton of Ada, one of the pioneer residents of that city and father of Mrs. W. B. Sheffield of this city suffered a severe stroke of paralysis his entire left side being agected. He is reported somewhat improved today.

E. L. QUIST BUYS THIEF RIVER PRESS

A deal was closed this week whereby E. L. Quist formerly register of deeds of Red Lake county, becomes the owner of the Thief River Falls Press, having purchased this property of S. W. Bagley. While not a practical newspaper man, Mr. Quist is an able writer and is sure to make a success of the paper.

Mr. Bagley is undecided as to the future but it is quite likely that he will locate somewhere in the west for the benefit of his health and engage in some other line of business.

The best wishes of the newspaper fraternity of this section is with him.

Homer Mussey, who has had much practical experience as a newspaper man and is a young hustler, is taking care of the news end of the Press and is sure to get out a good breezy sheet.

BANQUETTED BY ADA FIREMEN

Last evening the Ada Firemen banquetted the citizens of that place this ebing an annual event with them. The smoke social following was thoroly enjoyed, addresses being made by Messrs. C. C. Allen, M. A. Brattland and D. C. Lightbourn and Rev. Symons. There were about 100 present and the affair was a grand success.

Thomas R. Johnstone of this city had expected to be present but was detained in St. Paul.

WILD DUCKS ARE GROWING TAME

MALLARDS BRAVE MINNESOTA WINTER AND FEED WITH THE FARM DUCKS

Rather than make the long journey southward in the fall, six mallard ducks have made Lawndale springs nine miles south of Barnesville their home this winter. On several occasions the birds have flown to farmhouses in that locality in search of food. After being fed with the domestic ducks they fly back to the icy springs. No one has yet attempted to kill them and the farmers in that vicinity watch for their flight daily to and from the springs.

This is vouched for by well known railroad men of this city who run between here and Barnesville.

SISTER DEMANDS JUSTICE BE DONE

MARY BANGLE BELIEVES THAT BROTHER'S MURDERER IS AT FRAZEE, MINN.

SISTER OF MAN BRUTALLY MURDERED STARTS AN INVESTIGATION

The murder of Herman Bangle is a resident of Frazee, Minn., according to the opinion of Miss Mary Bangle, a sister of the victim. News of finding the body of Herman Bangle was published in the Journal Saturday which time the belief was entertained that he was accidentally killed near Frazee where his body was found. Further investigation showed that his skull was crushed and the top of his head shot off.

Miss Bangle, who is employed by the Great Northern Express company at Barnesville states that she is thoroly convinced that her brother had been murdered in cold blood. A Frazee character is suspected by her and altho there is no direct evidence at hand, she is satisfied that she can pick the guilty party and no stone will be left unturned to bring about justice.

The Bangle parents are old and unable to defend the family and Miss Bangle states that it would devolve on her and a younger brother to start an investigation. Heart broken over the affair, she is making a brave fight to expose the murderer.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF BIG FALLS FIRE

The terrible Big Falls fire which occurred at that place Tuesday night, January 26th claimed death of Erick Skogen at the St. Anthony's hospital in Bemidji yesterday.

Skogen was on the second floor of the burning hotel and was unable to rescend by the stairway, being badly burned and finally forced to jump from the windows to the ground a distance of twenty-five feet.

Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Notice is hereby given that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Lillie Patterson and R. H. Patterson, her husband, mortgagors, to L. D. Foskett, mortgagee, dated March 5, 1908, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, on April 14, 1908 at 3:10 o'clock P. M. in book 152 of mortgages on page 202 thereof; that the mortgagors herein have failed to pay $34.17 due October 1, 1908, said sum being due under a certain mortgage executed by the parties named as mortgagors herein and in favor of said L. D. Foskett and by him assigned, which mortgage is a prior lien upon the land hereinafter described, said sum being represented by a certain coupon note bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum after maturity and that there is now due the said L. D. Foskett thereon, under and by virtue of the terms of the mortgage first referred to, the sum of $34.65, he having paid said sum to the holder of said prior mortgage; that said mortgage provided for a reasonable attorney's fee to be paid by said mortgagors upon the foreclosure of the mortgage herein described, and the sum of $25.00 is a reasonable attorney's fee for such foreclosure; that in addition to the sum of $34.65 paid by L. D. Foskett on said coupon note and the sum of $25.00 for attorney's fees, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage the sum of $82.35; making a total due of the sum of $117.00 at this date together with the sum of $25.00 attorney's fees; that by virtue of said default the power of sale in said morigage has become operative, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof; that the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are the northwest fractional quarter of section number 5 in township number 148 north of range number 45 west of the 5th principal meridian, situate in the county of Polk, State of Minnesota; that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on February 20, 1909, at 2 o'clock P. M., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, including amount of said coupon note and $25.00 attorney's fees, and the costs of such sale.

CROOKSTON AUTO COMPANY

FORMER CONCERN TAKES IN NEW PARTNERS—FIRST FORDE CAR HERE

THE GARAGE WILL BE LOCATED AT N. P. STONE AND COMPANY'S

WALTER AND WILL STONE WILL B ETHE ACTIVE MANAGERS AND PUSH SALES

From Thursday's Daily—

The Crookston Automobile Co., has reorganized by taking in several partners including N. P. Stone & Co., and Charles Ebbighausen and have jumped in after the business with a vengeance, their first Forde car having already arrived and is on exhibition at N. P. Stone & Co.'s large machine warehouse on North Main Street which will be used as a garage, an ideal location with ample room for the storage of all their cars as well as cars owned [illegible] ay one as they will make a business of housing and repairing cars.

Fordes and Overlands

The company still includes Chas. Loring, S. D. Felsing and other local people, and it is the plan to go after the business with a vengeance. Walter and Will Stone will be the active managers and will push the sales to the limit, and with their usual energy they will do business thruout this section. The company will handle an $850 Forde two seated car, and $825 Forde runabout and a splendid Overland Touring car, two grades for $1250 and $1500 respectively.

Complete Repair Shop

A complete repair shop will be operated in the rear of the block which will be in charge of Charlie Ebbighausen who is an expert workman, and can be depended on to handle all work promptly and with dispatch.

A Step Forward

The new company means a step forward for Crookston. They propose going after the business as firms located in other cities do and it will soon be known to the outside world that an automobile can be purchased in Crookston.

IS REPRIEVED TO APRIL 2

LEBEAU'S SANITY IS QUESTIONED AND HE MAY NEVER BE HANGED

GOVERNOR GRANTS REPRIEVE SO THAT HIS CONDITION MAY BE NOTED

A message from Great Falls states that Fred LeBeau, the former Grand Forks man who was to have been hanged yesterday at Kalispel for the murder of Riley Yoakum and his son Frank, ranchers, near Eureka, June 16, had been reprieved until April 2 to determine his mental condition. A question as to LeBeau's sanity was raised some time ago and Governor Norris finally decided to reprieve him.

LeBeau has not worried much since his conviction. He has been engaged a great share of the time in inventing railway appliances. It is thought that some of them may prove valuable

He is known to a number of people here where he made his home for some time each year after trips to the lumber camps.

FIREMEN MEET AT CASS LAKE FEB. 19

ASSOCIATION WILL THEN SET DATES FOR HOLDING NEXT TOURNAMENT

The executive committee of the Northern Minnesota Firemen's Tournament association will meet at Cass Lake on Friday, the 19th of February At this meeting the delegates will decide when and where the next tournament will be held and will also transact their annual business.

At their meeting in Park Rapids last June the place for holding the next tournament was not definitely decided It is believed that Grand Rapids will be given the honor of handling the tournament next June should they desire to accept. If not in all probability it will be held in one of the range towns or at Cass Lake.

There are several new matters that will be brought up at this meeting. It is expected that the committee will introduce new features for the coming tournament.

PIONEER N. D. R'Y MAN DIES IN EAST

J. M. GRAHAM SUCCUMBED YESTERDAY AT NEW YORK AFTER ACTIVE LIFE

Word was received in the city last evening from New York announcing the death of J. M. Graham vice president of the Erie railroad and a former pioneer railroad man in North Dakota. He will be remembered by the early day settlers as the superintendent of the North Dakota division of the Northern Pacific in the early 80's where he was active for several years From this division he went to Winnipeg where he was general manager of the Manitoba line, leaving there to become assistant superintendent of the G. N., then going to the B. & O. after which he went with the Erie.

Some suggestions for valentine entertaining for the young people: Make paper daisies for "He loves me, he loves me not" games and to each daisy attach a tiny envelope containing the man's name. Often the name is a very laughable surprise.

Have a large paper Cupid fastened on the wall with a silver dart in his hand. Blindfold the players one at a time and the first girl sucessful in purloining the arrow will, of course get the first husband.

To tell fortunes with cards use only the face cards and the ten, nine, seven and ace spots. The queen of hearts represents a brown-haired woman with blue eyes; queen of spades, a decided brunette; queen of clubs, a dark woman with light eyes; queen of diamonds a blonde. The same types for men. The king represents married men, the jacks single men. Write any desired sentiment upon the cards shuffle them, cut into three packs, look for the player's individual card, then read the cards found nearest to his or her particular card.

If a man has dollars his wife should at least have sense.

OLD SETTLERS TO ORGANIZE

PIONEER RESIDENTS OF EUCLID WILL MEET FRIDAY EVENING FEB. 5

MANY FROM THIS CITY AND SURROUNDING CITIES ARE ELIGIBLE

On Friday evening of this week an Old Settlers' Assn. will be organized at Euclid which will include many of the old timers thruout the section and includes many eligibles from this city among whom are President H. C. Misner of the Commercial club and wife, and many other prominent citizens.

Dr. J. S. Chapin is the prime mover in the affair and this gives double assurance that the affair will be a success and attract many of the old timers from a distance. Euclid has a great reputation for hospitality, and never does anything by halves and the affair tomorrow night will be on the same order.

NEWS EVENTS OF THE WEEK

FROM THURSDAYS DAILY

TO HOT SPRINGS—Charles Ryan of Western Polk has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., where he will enjoy the balmy air and rest for a few weeks.

HERE FROM MILWAUKEE—John Klema of Milwaukee is here for a ten days' visit with his cousin Geo. Klema and other friends.

RECEIVED INSURANCE MONEY—Mrs. P. J. Barclay as secretary of the Degree of Honor has received a draft for $1,000 from the head officers of that order in favor of Mrs. W H. Norrie as insurance on the life of her husband. Mrs. Norrie has already received the money. The action of the D. of H. was very prompt.

FRIENDS ARE GRIEVED—This afternoon Ole J. Skare of Union, N. D. and R. B. Larson of Leeds, N. D. arrived on the N. P. to call on G. T. Hagen and were greatly distressed to learn of his misfortune. They were in Grand Forks on business ,and as they were old schoolmates of Mr. Hagen's, and had not seen him for 30 years they decided to take a run over for the afternoon. They will return this evening.

POOLROOM BURGLARIZED—The Riverside poolroom at Grand Forks owned by Mike Cleary, was burglarized some time on Monday night. The proprietor discovered the robbery when he opened the place yesterday morning. The gas meter had been broken into and the cash was gone. Some cigars had also been taken. No boxes were stolen but the thief evidently took a number of handfuls from the case. From the gas meter $5.25 was taken. Entrance to the building was secured thru the front door, on DeMers avenue. There is a storm shed and door on the building and so the thief had a chance to work where no one could see him. The window was broken near the door lock. Then the robber put his hand thru the opening and shoved back the catch. After securing the plunder he left thru a rear window.

The police are scouring around for evidence as to who the thief was who stole 13 sacks of ground feed from in front of the S. C. Johnson elevator night before last.

The feed was set outside when time came for closing in the evening, as the farmer was to call when he was ready to leave for home late in the evening.

When he called he found some other or local man had called ahead of him and taken the feed and neglected to leave a card.

This morning at 4 o'clock a special train in charge of Conductor P. C. Keeley passed thru the city from Barnesville headed for St. Vincent. The special contained general Supt. W. D. Scott, Mr. Hoaglund and F. C. Stevens, formerly chief engineer on the Great Northern and later on the Panama Canal, together with several other officials .

They returned south thru Crookston just before noon today and will now make a trip of inspection over the Breckenridge division.

A most remarkable fish was taken out of the river yesterday afternoon by the Grand Forks Concrete company's crew while scooping out sand It must have come from far below the riverbed, as the scoop taking it out had been working for several days in the same place.

The fish has the appearance of an eel; is about 10 inches long, has no eyes, and seems to breathe thru a string of small holes or openings on both sides of the neck. Instead of a mouth it has a row of openings on both sides of the neck with oval suckers around it.

It seems to breathe very heavily thru the openings on the sides, when taken from the water.

CAUSED A LAUGH—Congressman Steenerson recently made a recommendation for the appointment of a postmaster at Twin Lakes, Mahnomen county, which caused a laugh to roll from the seventh to the lower floor of the postoffice department. Mr. Steenerson proposed that Star Bad Boy, who has been a good boy ever since he has been a federal postmaster, be succeeded for political reasons by Fred Big Wind.

The reward anybody receives for early rising is having the rest of the family find fault with him for not getting the house warmer while they were still in bed.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
Makes Kidneys and Bladder Right

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY

Knute Strandy went to Lengby this morning to look after the Great Northern pump at that place which has a bad wheeze.

TAKING VACATION—T. Thoreson a clerk in the store of Sam Thoreson at Fisher is at Thief River Falls where he is spending a few days with his brother. While in Crookston he visited with K. Strandy and other friends between trains.

FINE SON ARRIVED—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brosseau are the parents of a fine 16½ pound son which arrived at the Germania Hotel this morning. Mother and child are doing well and friends are smoking clear Havanas instead of Old Tom.

BAND IN GOOD SHAPE — Bandmaster G. O. Riggs returned this morning from Bygland where he went last evening to instruct the band organized there last summer. The band is in good shape, with the members enthusiastic and doing faithful practice.

BAGLEY TIMES SOLD—With this week's issue the Bagley Times which has heretofore been published by E. N. Falk passes into the hands of the new proprietor, C. E. Perkins having bought the plant and good will of the paper last Monday and will hereafter conduct the same. It is not known here what Editor Falk's future plans are.

RETURNED TO FORKS — N .C. Ludvigson, the Helleman manager at East Grand Forks came in on the Northern Pacific this afternoon and took the Great Northern home after calling at the branch agency here between trains. He says business is fine for this time of the year and there will be something doing later on this year.

SETTLED FOR $1,200—The flowage case of H. K. Rude vs. The Crookston Lumber Co., was settled by the defendants paying $1200.00 damages to the plaintiff. J. A. Hendricks of Fosston appeared as attorney for the plaintiff. It was on the calendar to be tried at Bagley this week.

SUCCESSFUL FARMER — John Skauge, one of the successful dairy farmers near Hendrum, returned home Wednesday evening after spending a few days here having some dental work done. He has been paying a great deal of attention to dairying for years and has made an unqualified success of it.

HEADED FOR HOME—Gene Roy left last evening for Grand Forks after a day here, and from there will go to Hillsboro, N. D. where he will call on a few customers before heading for Minneapolis and spend a few days in the wholesale furniture house which he represents. He says the furniture business is just beginning to pick up and the coming season looks very promising .

SECURES A PENSION—Mrs. Marial Olson a patron of Route No. 1 out of Thief River Falls has received official information thru Congressman Steenerson that her claim for pension has been allowed, and she will receive her first payment at an early date. Mrs. Olson is the widow of John Olson, who was a member of Company H 1st Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Cavalry during the Civil War.

BASE BALL FAN HERE — Matt Camitch, the 32nd degree baseball fan who has been one of the main supporters of the Fargo team thru thick and thin, and who has contributed all kinds of money to keep the professional game going, is spending the day in the city on business. He has nothing to say regarding baseball at this time—he never has—but can always be depended upon to get in the game when the spring fever starts.

LEFT FOR DAKOTA—Joel Winkjer who is doing special work for the dairying branch of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, has left for Fargo and from there will proceed to Bismarck, N .D. where the state legislature is now in session to attend to some special business matters after which he will again return to Crookston. He is kept very busy these days and is doing splendid work for the betterment of the dairy farmer.

ENJOYED TRIP—Elmer Ellington who returned yesterday from the convention of the North Dakota and Northern Minnesota Implement Dealers Convention and spent the day with relatives, continued to Donaldson this morning where he is in the hardware business and will also handle machinery. He says the convention was a success in every way and much enthusiasm shown. The addresses were good and the people of Fargo showed all the visitors a good time.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY

BACK FROM MINNEAPOLIS—Rev. T. T. Ove and little son arrived this morning from Minneapolis where the little boy has been staying for some time pastwith relatives.

VISITED HOME FOLKS—Ed Nelson who is employed with the Great Northern at Greenbush returned to that place this morning after visiting with his parents at Stephen for several days.

BACK FROM THE WEST — Wm. Samson has returned from an extended trip west during which time he looked up many friends at North Yakima and other points. He thoroly enjoyed the vacation. Enroute home he stopped off at Ossea, Minn., where he visited with his parents.

WILL LOCATE IN MINNEAPOLIS—R. O. Belland who has been in the real estate business in Grand Forks for some time past has disposed of his interests there and after a visit with his brother here left last evening for Fargo. He will remain there but a short time before going to Minneapolis where he will engage in business with his brother from this city who is general agent for the Great Northern Copper Co., having recently opened offices, and is at the same time doing a general real estate business.

BACHELORS BALL AT EUCLID—A large sized time is being anticipated by those who attend the Bachelors Ball to be given by a few of the 32nd degree eligibles of that class at Euclid. The ball will be given Feb. 12 and the committee is working hard to make it a red letter event. Dr. Dryden is reported to be working over time in that direction. The affair will be held in the Woodmen hall and the best of music will be provided. If the weather is at all favorable about 12 couples will go up from Crookston.

BOTH TAKE SECOND PLUNGE—It will be of interest to a number of Crookston people to learn that Mr. A. C. Cowing, a former Crookston hardware merchant, was married last week to a Minnesota girl at Seattle, Wash., and his divorced wife was also married at the same time in Sacramento, Calif.

RED LAKE FALLS BANK ELECTION—The directors of the First State bank of Red Lake Falls who were elected at the meeting of the stockholders held Jan. 12 met at the bank building Tuesday evening for the annual election of officers. Theodore Garceau, who has been cashier of the bank for years, was elected president, Frank E. Hunt was re-elected vice president. Geo. F. Hennings, who has served the bank as assistant cashier, was promoted to the position of cashier, was promoted to the position of cashier. Harry Garceau and Noel Delorme were re-elected tellers.

The spring teachers examinations conducted by Supt. Thorson and Asst. Thomas Casey closed today with a record attendance for spring examinations, 180 having registered. The papers will now be sent to the State Superintendent for markings.

Not in the Same Class

Congressman Rainey of Illinois is bidding for a little temporary newspaper notoriety by his attacks on the floor of the house upon such men as the brothers Taft and W. N. Cromwell each and all of whom are in a class he has not yet been able to reach. With such exhibitions as the Baileys, Tillmans and Raineys are making of themselves in the senate and house is it any wonder that the country has ceased to hope for anything worth while from the minority party in congress? A Calhoun a Marcy, a Thurman, or a Douglas, or even a Tilden, a Voorhees, a Hendricks or a Randall would be able to cut some ice at Washington, however large might be the opposite party's majority in either or both branches of congress; but the minority bunch down there now seem to be able to initiate nothing—all they do is to kick, kick, kick about what is done by the majority. The majority party does not seem to be burdened with an oversupply of states men in congress, but it has some, while the minority seems to be entirely destitute.—Warren Register.

No Discrimination

It has been ruled by the state supreme court that all clubs which maintain bars must pay the regular local liquor license. Heretofore only a government license has been required by these clubs. The decision is a just one. There should be no discrimination made for the selling of liquor is the same whether dispensed over the bar of a saloon or the bar of a clubroom.—Roseau Region.

Foley's Orino Laxative cures constipation and liver trouble and makes the bowels healthy and regular. Orino is superior to pills and tablets as it does not gripe or nauseate. Why take anything else? Sold by all druggists.

And a house party by any other name would be a lot of chair-warmers just the same.

EAT SAUSAGES AN NEW BREAD

OR ANY FAVORITE FOOD WITHOUT FEAR OF INDIGESTION—DISTRESS

FROM DYSPEPSIA OR A DISORDERED STOMACH VANISHES FIVE MINUTES LATER

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Billiousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in the Stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.
